The prosecution constituting the office of Chief of Counsel is subordinate to the Office of Military Government for Germany, U.S., Berlin, and through that office to the United States War Department in Washington. The prosecution does not control and can give no directions with respect to the transportation of the documents from Washington to Nurnberg nor with respect to making arrangements for the transportation of representatives of the defense counsel to the United States or with respect to the admission of the representatives of the defense counsel to the Pentagon Building. The prosecution has been endeavoring to assist the Secretary-General in every possible way in connection with the Tribunal's order and will continue to do so. However, the prosecution cannot assume responsibility for the action of both authorities to which the prosecution is itself subordinate and to which it is powerless to give directives or orders.

Rule 12 of the Uniform Rules of Procedure of the Military Tribunals, Nurnberg, imposes no such responsibility on the prosecution and clearly sets forth the channels for the production of witnesses or documents on behalf of the defense.

In view of the limited time remaining, Your Honor, I wonder if perhaps we could adjourn now.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Carter wishes to speak on behalf of the Tribunal.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I thought I made it clear this morning when we were discussing this matter the nature of the ruling of this Tribunal in regard to this matter. This matter does not come under Rule XII, and the Tribunal so held and, as a member of the Tribunal, I resent the attempt of the Prosecution to come here and overrule the holding that we have made.

When the Prosecution brings in excerpts from exhibits they are producing the records, and by the very use of them they are bound to present the whole record here, It isn't a matter of getting evidence in support of the Defense. It is a rule of law that when one produces a part of the exhibit, he is bound to produce it all for the other side to examine.

I thought I made that clear, and when you come here and say that it applies to matters of evidence pertaining to making the Defense, it is clear outside the scope of the Tribunal's ruling. It has nothing to do with it, and I think, from talking to the other members of the Tribunal, that they are in agreement that insofar as the exhibits offered by the Prosecution are concerned and the parts of them that have been offered here, that the responsibility is on the part of the Prosecution and no one else to produce the whole instrument.

Now it is true that the Prosecution is probably in administrative matters subordinate to military government here in Germany; but this Tribunal is not, and when the Prosecution appears here, they appear as officers of this Tribunal, and in that capacity, and I say, as the order previously hold, that the responsibility rests upon the Prosecution to produce or make available the balance of those exhibits or the alternative therein set forth will be invoked.

Now, I hope I have made myself clear on that. Now, I am speaking for myself, and I think for the rest; if they have anything to add I am perfectly willing that they should do so.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Carter has expressed the sentiments of this Tribunal, and there is no necessity of any further comments by the other members of the Tribunal.

The Tribunal will be in recess until nine-thirty tomorrow morning.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess until nine-thirty o'clock tomorrow morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 22 August 1947, at 0930 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats. The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

JUDGE WANNENSTRUM: Marshal, will you ascertain whether or not all defendants are present in the Courtroom?

THE MARSHAL: May it please Your Honors, all defendants are present in the Courtroom.

JUDGE WANNENSTRUM: Judge George J. Burke will preside at this day's session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: I should like to inquire from defense counsel whether or not they received last night, through the information center, the German copies of the section numbered 6 of the Greek report. If they did not, we took it up there.

This is the part of the Greek report to which I referred yesterday, which was not stencilled at the time. He are handing up three copies in English for Your Honors.

We will mark this, if Your Honors please - this Document No. 6, which is an interrogation - as 499-A-6.

The case has gotten along somewhat faster than we had thought, and I would appreciate it if defense counsel would waive the 24 hour rule. With reference to the documents which I presented them last night. I realize that it is perfectly within their rights to stand upon it, and if they do choose to stand upon it, I will make no issue of it, but I would ap predate it, if I could proceed with the offer of 499-A for identification.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: What is your reaction to the proposition, Dr. Laternser?

- 2507 a

DR. LATERNSEER: We agree.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Dr. Laternser has indicated that the proposition is accepted by defense counsel.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Your Honor.

The certificate in connection with the report, which is 499-A/5 for identification, is offered first - I will take it a little bit out of order. That is the certification, Dr. Laternser.

This is offered in evidence as 490 B-5. I think perhaps it is easier to maintain the number and just change the letter, if that is agreeable with Your Honors.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Why not offer it with the same number and leave it the way it is?

MR. DENNEY: Just because, "A" has always been for "identification", Your Honor. That's all, and every time we have had something to identify and that is received in evidence, we drop the "A", and change it to a "B". Or, we can just drop the letter and offer it as 499 slash 5, if that is agreeable.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: I think that would be better.

MR. DENNEY: We will just drop the letter and call it 499 stroke, or diagonal 5, whichever is easier.

The certificate:

"I, Dmitrius Dissopoulos, do hereby certify that the attached documents, Greek Document No. 1 (Vatikiotty Report with reference to my experiences in Haidari Concentration Camp); Greek Document No. 2 (Interrogation of Karamanos Athanasios); Greek Document No. 3 (Decision No. 3 of the Special Court Martial for War Crimes in case against Friedrich Wilhelm Mueller and Bruno Oswald Brauer) and Greek Document No. 6 (Interrogation of Ionnis Leuca Zizis) are original documents from the files of the Greek National War Crimes Office, Athens, Greece."

Page Unlabeled

It is certified to by Dimitrius Kissopoulos, Director, Greek - 2508 a National War Crimes Office, and then the seal and the date.

The first document to which reference is made there is 499 A/1 which is offered as Exhibit 499/1. This is the affidavit of Constantine Vatikiotty.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, I object to the submission of this document. First of all it is not an affidavit at all. It is just a written document, a statement. Also the signature has not been certified to. I do not know whether in the offer of it at this time, I do not know whether the document will be accepted in that case. I would like the author of this document to come to Nurnberg and cross examine him.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is not, of course, an affidavit, and subject to the prior decision of the Tribunal, it will be accepted at this time for what it may be worth, under the prior ruling.

The members of the Tribunal are interested to know whether it may be possible to produce this witness.

MR. DENNEY: I shall inquire, Your Honor. I am not advised at this time whether it is possible or not.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You will, in due time, inform the Tribunal?

MR. DENNEY: I shall, Your Honor. It is my understanding that at this time the witness is at present serving in a foreign country, as the Ambassador in Rome, and whether or not he will be available I am not presently informed. However, I shall inquire and advise you.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

MR. DENNEY: The first page, Athens, September 14, 1945;

"Dear Sir:

"I have the honor to submit a full report of my experiences during the period I was detained by the Germans as a hostage in the Haidari Concentration Camp (near Athens).

"CONSTANTINE VATIKIOTTY" Then the report follows:

"On the 26th of October 1943, members of SS police appeared at my apartment, No.10 Plutarch Street, and peremptorily ordered me and my wife to show them our identification papers. At the same time they began to search the apartment. They sent away my servant and took over the keys, and upon my asking them the reason for these actions, their chief pointed two pistols at me and covered me with blows, stating that there were accounts to be settled between us.

"Then they ordered me to get ready and follow them. They also arrested my wife, upon whose Polish homeland they heaped the vilest abuse.

"We were taken to the Merlin Street Headquarters of the SS., whence after answering a few routine questions, we were removed to prison. I remained in the Averoff prison for forty days, after which without further examination, I was taken, together with other prisoners, to the Haidari concentration camp. Ten days later, my wife was also brought to Haidari and shut up in solitary confinement in a cell in Building No. 15 of the camp. Two months later she was removed to building No.6, where in time, the number of women imprisoned grew to 300.

"Immediately upon our arrival at this notorious camp the Governor commanded that we be searched. Amid showers of blows and abuse, we were divested of our belongings: blankets, watches, rings, and everything that we possessed. Some of the prisoners had their shoes and even their garters taken from them. In this half naked condition we were thrown in the cellar of one of the buildings, where for several days, during the bitter cold of mid-winter, we lay in the bare pavement. It was only a fortnight later that we were allowed to communicate with our families and permitted to replace the necessities among the articles of which we had been robbed.

" My first contact with the terrible prison was a tragic one; for, on that day, I witnessed the first execution which took place within the camp walls.

"As we were leaving the Averoff prison the car in which we were riding stopped at the entrance of the outer gate of the prison yard, and the guard threw into our midst the chained, bruised body of a man in rags. The man was a Jew from Janina, and a Lieutenant Captain during the afternoon roll-call, the Governor called the interpreter and handed him a paper; he then ordered the unhappy prisoner, who stood next to me, to advance towards him. After lashing at the prisoner's face with a whip, he turned to the interpreter and told him to read aloud the written order.

"The interpreter read as follows:

"The Governor of Haidari, Major Radomski, will personally execute before you the prisoner named Levy, for attempting to escape on the day of his arrest. Beware! 'The game fate awaits you in such a case!!!

"A shudder of horror went through us all. The terrible Governor then proceeded to carry out his threat. He drew his revolver and fired at the unhappy man, who crumpled to earth in a bloody heap. His German assassin then calmly ordered us to remove him. But, before we had had time to lift the man, the Governor fell upon us and began to lash at us with his whip. Then, tearing his victim out of our hands, he fired at him once more and ordered us to remove the man's shoes. They were now and, consequently, a good prize. Under the supervision of the Sub-warden, we carried the man to a garbage pit, and there as we had neither spade nor pick, we buried him with our hands. The poor fellow was still alive when we covered him with the earth of Haidari.

"On the following day, I became acquainted with the nightmare of life at the camp. A nightmare which lasted nine long months.

"We arose at five, and from 6 o'clock to sunset we were employed at forced labor. We carried stones made barbed wire netting, filled and emptied ditches pulled down walls etc., under the eye of furious and raving guards, who urged us on with lashings and kicks and harsh shouts of "Los, los".

"The fobs at which we were employed had no practical purpose. They were merely forms of punishment for the prisoners. On one day, while I was with a group of men carrying stones, the Governor approached for inspection and, claiming that my pail was not full enough, he whipped me in the face.

"Serving as Governor of the prison was the above mentioned Radomski, about whom it was rumoured that he had been a porter in Hamburg. He was a sadist, a drunkard a veritable brute. He stalked about the camp ground using his whip, which he usually aimed at the face and eyes of his victims, and often his revolver. A few months later he was succeeded by Lieutenant Karl Fisher a cold blooded, vindictive-infernal hypocrite.

"Our sub-wardens were sub-lieutenant Franz Loeffler, and adjutant Techt, who distinguished himself by his inhuman conduct. Our other tormentors were all simple soldiers, most of them Hungarian. I recall the name of some of them; Richard Weiss, E. Hirschmann, Niklaus Schmitzer, Jakob Suneritch (The camp's executioner) Schmitzer, A. Melzer, Jakob Murgesan and the worst of all, Emmerich Kowacz.

"Amid snow and mud, without overcoats, (the Governor forbade it) under a driving rain in Winter, or beneath a blazing sun in Summer, always bareheaded, and barefooted most of the time, the prisoners toiled and counted the hours until the moment came for them to withdraw to their cells. But even then how could one rest? There were no beds and not enough bed coverings, for the Governor only allowed us one or two ragged blankets. Sleeping conditions were awful. Owing to lack of space we were packed like sardines, and we were covered with lice. All during that Winter, water was distributed at rare intervals, and we had to depend on the arrival of the water wagon from Athens for a little water.

But there was no gasoline, and the waterwagon rarely made the trip. One can well imagine the condition of the latrines. The sewers were rarely emptied, and the prisoners were often forced to relieve their physical needs in the halls and staircases.

"Those among the prisoners who were ill had no possibility of receiving treatment, for the only doctor in the camp a prisoners, as well as the rest of us had no medicines whatever to dispense. Besides, there were always very few patients in the infirmary, for sick leave permits were issued by the Governor, and he, as a rule, refused to grant such permits if the patient had a temperature of less than 104. A sick prisoner was not even allowed to remain in his cell without special leave. Each prisoner was required to be present at morning roll-call in any case, and those who were too sick to walk were carried on the shoulders of the rest.

"On our way to and from work, we were forced to sing (Arbeit und Freude) even though that day might have witnessed execution of some of our comrades on penalty of being deprived of mess.

"I was once held for three days in solitary confinement, in a cell where I had to stand all day. My food consisted of 25 grams of bread, and once a day, a few beans boiled in water, which - to add to hunger the torment of thirst - was saturated with salt. It was only several hours later that I was allowed to drink a little water.

"The most insignificant infringement of prison rules brought on the most serious consequence for all the prisoners. Smoking was forbidden and so was the reading of books and newspapers, (German reading matter not excepted) We were also forbidden to bring in food from outside. Whenever any infringement of the above laws was discovered, the prisoners were exposed to the fury of the Governor. They were forced to do the "Serpent crawl" on the ground, while the guards beat them, and the camp's specially trained police dogs attacked them with tooth and nail. Or they were made to run about the camp, with huge stones on their shoulders, until they fainted.

"Sometimes a punishment was inflicted for no special reason or justification other than the desire to terrorize and torment the prisoners. Thus, one day, the Governor ordered the guards to throw all the prisoners' belongings out of the windows. Blankets, overcoats, suitcases, baskets, underwear, mess-kits, were tossed pell-mell in the courtyard. A special roll call was then ordered, following which the Governor confiscated whatever articles were new or in a good condition. While we were impatiently awaiting to be told to remove the rest of our belongings, we suddenly saw the guards piling up our things into heaps and setting fire to them. These bonfires made up the belongings of thousands of prisoners - many of whom came from provincial areas and would be unable to replace them - kept on burning for several hours while the Governor, like a modern Nero enjoyed and sight and laughed and joked with his guards.

"Every morning at roll call, we were disposed into groups of a hundred and the Governor received a report of the number of prisoners then serving in the camp. Following this a certain number of prisoners' names was called out. The number of names of prisoners to be released was usually very small; rarely exceeding four or five at a time. Owing to the lack of system and coordination between the different services of the SS., it often happened that men, who had been ordered released by Headquarters but whose bills of release had not been received at the camp, were detained in prison for a longer period of time while on the other hand, it happened that names were called for release of prisoners who had been sent to Germany or executed.

"Those who were called for questioning were taken to the SS, headquarters on Merlin Street. They were usually returned to the prison camp on the evening of the same day, unless they were kept at Merlin Street. Sometimes they disappeared altogether. The bodies of some of them were found later, at various points about the capital.

"In the Merlin Street building there were chambers with special installation where those undergoing questioning were often subjected to the most refined methods of torture. This lasted for hours, and often for days. At Haidari I saw prisoners with broken limbs, with bodies all black and blue from the blows they had received (The Germans used four kinds of whips), or bearing the marks of terrible burns made by applying burning torches to them. I saw others whom the questioners had hung up by special pulleys, with their hands tied behind their backs. As they swung in midair, the guards beat them with wire whips or iron rods. Those who had suffered this kind of torture had their arms wrenched from their sockets and were unable for many weeks to make use of their upper limbs. I saw prisoners who were brought back from Merlin Street in a half-dying condition and who were allowed to expire without being permitted to receive medical aid. My wife saw women prisoners who had been made to sit on a lighted electric range, or who had been beaten to such an extent that they were not able to move for days.

"Many prisoners were transferred to the camp after spending one, two or even three months in solitary confinement cells in prison. These men bore the appearance of skeletons; some suffered from tuberculosis, others had been driven half-mad.

"Loneliness, despair, and the constant fear of execution wore on men's nerves and broke the strongest constitutions. One afternoon, during the period allowed for prisoners in solitary confinement to circulate in the yard before the prison buildings, we suddenly saw one man leaving his place in line, and coming towards the camp, gesticulating wildly. The unhappy man had obviously suffered a mental breakdown. He had not had time to advance a few steps when the sentry at the opposite end fired, and the prisoner dropped to the ground. The Governor, being notified, arrived and searched the prisoner's clothes, after which he finished the man off with his revolver and departed, after kicking the lifeless body. For several hours the victim lay unburied on the step where he had been assassinated.

"Another man cut his own throat with a razor, while we were lined up before the Governor. In the women's wards, a woman cut her wrists and was allowed to bleed to death, the doctor not being permitted to attend her.

"The camp rule was that all prisoners should have their hair shaven close. No one was exempted, not even Greek Orthodox priests, despite the protests of the Archbishop.

"The Germans had turned some of the camp buildings into workshops. Here the prisoners repaired furniture - confiscated from Greek homes - and manufactured goods which were intended for various services of the SS or were shipped to Germany.

"All the prisoners in the camp were considered as hostages, and were liable to execution in reprisals for any act committed against the Forces of Occupation. For every German soldier killed, fifty prisoners of Haidari were executed. During the nine months of my stay in the camp about two thousand prisoners were executed at various intervals.

Among those executed were 25 women.

"During the last months I worked together with other prisoners in a storeroom where the Germans brought goods stolen from Greek homes and shops to be sorted and made into packages. This storeroom was situated near Building 15 of the prison, and from the storeroom windows, we were able to witness the gruesome scenes taking place before that building.

"Those who were to be executed, and whose names were usually called out at morning roll-call, were taken to the ground floor of the building. A little later, one or two cars full of soldiers, and another empty truck stopped before the main entrance. The Governor stood at the door and called out the names of the prisoners who, halfnaked and barefoot, emerged one by one and mounted the truck. During the short distance from the door to the car, the doomed men were mercilessly beaten by their guards, and covered with blood they were packed face downwards in the truck and driven to the place of execution. We witnessed this scene many times. On the following day, the clothes of the executed men were turned over to our storeroom to be sorted and stored away.

"Sometimes the proceedings followed a different pattern. Thus, one evening, there was an extra roll-call. Thirteen names were called out, and the men answering to them were informed that they were to be released on the following morning. The men passed the night in singing and celebrating their coming liberation, but, on the next morning, they were taken to a hill outside the camp and executed. At another time, the Governor invited those who were in need of antisyphilitic treatment to report to him, as they were to be transferred to the Syngros Hospital. Several men presented themselves, among which there were some who were not sick, but who found this a good opportunity to get some rest in the Hospital. This group, too, was executed outside of Haidari.

"During the first days in May, about four hundred prisoners were executed.

Of these, one hundred were rounded up one evening at an extra roll-call and spent the whole night awaiting their doom in the company of jeering guards, who cheered them with the words "Morgen kaput".

"Other prisoners of Haidari were used as hostages on German trains. In groups of fifty they were penned up in open wagons, which were placed before the locomotive ready to be blown up in case of a partisan attack on the train.

"In the month of April 1944, the Governor of Haidari decreed that all prisoners should undergo a thorough medical examination, and that a list should be made of those in good physical condition. He did not explain the purpose of these measures.

"A few days later, at a special assembly, the prisoners were all ordered to sit down on the ground. In the sentry boxes were double rows of guards with machine-guns aimed in our direction. Noting our anxiety, the Governor hastened to state that this was not to be a wholesale execution, it was merely a question of transferring a certain number of prisoners to another camp. He then proceeded to call out the names of 1200 men prisoners, to which were added those of one hundred women. It dawned on us suddenly that these men and women were to be sent to Germany. Sure enough, on this very same day, these "enthusiastic workers" were piled into trucks waiting before the camp entrance, and shipped as they were, without extra clothing or shoes, to Germany, where they were put to work regardless of profession or social status. So far as I know, none of them has ever been heard of again.

"Another way of "recruiting" workers was through the famous system of "blocks", i.e. the wholesale rounding up of citizens in various sections of the capital. Hundreds of these men were led to Haidari, subject to a physical examination, and, following a few days stay in the camp, were packed off to Germany. Those who were not considered physically fit, were released. This "block" system went on all during the Summer.

Its purpose was to make up for the failure of voluntary presentation of workers. From the provinces the Germans also brought to Haidari hundreds of women, especially young peasants, who were sent to Germany, I ignore for what purpose.

"Then came the Jewish drama.

"Thousands of men, women, and children were torn from their homes in the provinces and later in the Dodecanese, and taken to Haidari, where, after being stripped of all their belongings, they were mercilessly beaten and subjected to unspeakable torture, and whence they were finally shipped to Austria and Czechoslovakia. The women, especially, were subjected, during the search on their persons, to the most atrocious humiliations.

"From early morning to late at night, these unhappy victims of German brutality were forced to remain out of doors, without food or water. When they had at last been checked and listed, they were shut up in unfinished, roofless buildings, and packed, in groups of five or six hundred, into rooms where there was barely space for two hundred. They were not permitted to circulate in the yard; medical care was denied them; those who were ill died. The other prisoners were strictly forbidden to hold any intercourse with them, and those who attempted to approach them and offer them a little water were beaten by the guards. During the listing of these Jews, the soldiers robbed them of their luggage, of their money, of all their valuables, and many of the prisoners threw away their money or buried it in the earth to avoid handing it over to the Germans. Following the departure of the Dodecanesian Jews, we beheld the soldiers, with the Governor at their head searching about for hours to retrieve the abandoned money and jewelry. Thousands of gold pounds were picked up from the ground on that particular day.

"From our cell windows we were able to watch the whole Jewish drama. We saw the terrible beatings, the transporting of sick or dying old men in blankets, the crushing of small children. We saw the German soldiers beating the women with the butts of their guns and stripping them of their clothes.

We saw the Governor of Haidari, Karl Fisher, using his whip against little children, who writhed on the ground in an agony of pain, with one hand, while caressing his dog with the other.

"A number of Haidari prisoners who had been sent to the Rouf Railroad station to prepare the wagons which were to transport the ill-fated Jews, described, on their return, the terrible conditions under which they were to travel. One hundred prisoners were to be pened in wagons containing barely room enough for half the number.

There were no windows to the wagons, and the only food given the transporters was a handful of raw broadbeans. The wagons were so crowded that mothers bore their babies on their shoulders to save them from suffocation.

"The International Red Cross commission was not permitted to approach these unfortunate people, who – as is well known – were never to reach their destination.

"Any prisoner who spent a term at Haidari, especially during the governorship of the notorious Major Rademski, can testify that all the facts I have reported are an understatement of reality.

"I might add that those arrested by the SS had no means of defense, and were never tried. They were sent to Germany, shot, or released, without further formality. Many prisoners were never examined, and some were executed never knowing the reasons for their arrest.

"On the 13th of February 1944, that is about four months after my arrest, I was taken from Haidari to Marlin Street for questioning. But the examiner did not turn up that day, and I had to stand motionless from morning to night in one of the corridors with my face turned towards the wall. I was given no food, and, to my plea that I be given a little water at least, I received the answer that there was none. I was returned to Haidari that evening, and was summoned to Merlin Street two days later.

Until that time I was ignorant of the reasons for my arrest. A few days later my wife was also summoned for questioning. We were both charged with pro-British feelings, espionage, making out lists of collaborators, writing articles for the Underground press, and, in general, with hatred against the conquerors. Let it be noted that the search in my apartment had yielded no evidence whatever to support the above claims, and that the examiner had assured us that we should be set free in a few days. We were, nevertheless, kept at Haidari six months longer.

"On the 22nd August 1944, after almost 10 whole months of imprisonment we were finally released. Not, however before signing a statement that we would divulge nothing of what we had seen or heard of Haidari, on penalty of death.

"We later heard that at the beginning of September, a few days before the SS left Greece, the Germans had executed in the basement of the Merlin Street building, all those prisoners of Haidari suspected of espionage.

"When I returned home, I found the furniture intact, but most of my household effects had disappeared.....

CONSTANTINE VATIKIOTTY."

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I must ask for an explanation on the part of the Prosecution. Against whom is this unofficial report meant, and against whom is it being submitted?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, that's part of the report against the Defendant Spiedel, as Military Commander Greece, against the Defendant Weichs, as Commander in Chief Southeast, at that time, and Commander in Chief of Army Group F, and against the Defendant Foertsch, his Chief of Staff.

DR. LATERNSE: As defense counsel I would like to contradict this, and I would object to bringing this report in connection with the said defendants. I am looking forward to the proofs to be submitted.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed. May we request the Interpreter to speak somewhat more loudly, please?

INTERPRETER: Yes, sir, your Honor.

MR. DENNEY: The next is 499A for identification, is offered as 499/2, this being an interrogation of the Witness Athanasios Kavamanos at Tripolis on 5 May 1945.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I object to the submission of this document as well. There is no connection of this document with any of the defendants.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: For the same reason assigned by the Tribunal for Document No. 499-A-1, it will be received for what it may be worth.

MR. DENNEY: I don't think it will be necessary to read this into the record, Your Honors; however, it is offered against the Defendants Weichs and Foertsch -- the Commander in Chief Southeast and the Chief of Staff at that time, and also against the Defendant Felmy, whose troops were in command in this area.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I think the Tribunal should point out that it lacks very many of the elements necessary to constitute valid proof.

MR. DENNEY: And the next is 499-A-3, for identification, the decision of the Special Court martial for War Criminals, which is offered as 499/3. The first page contains a recitation of the composition of the Court, and the second paragraph sets up its being "convened in public sitting in accordance with Const. Act 90.1945 at the Central Hall of the Court of Appeals at Athens," and it convened on 23 October 1946, holding in custody the listed defendants: "1 Friedrich Wilhelm Mueller - General of the Infantry; 2. Bruno Oswald Braeuer - General of the parachutists; 3. Fritz Schubert Sergeant. The above-mentioned were sent to this Tribunal by Decision No. 16/1946 of the Judicial Counsel composed according to Const. Act No. 73/1945, to be tried for the acts enumerated in the Decision, i.e. murders, arson, rape, systematic terrorism, torture etc. The President called the names of the accused and the following two were present and without handcuffs. They answered as follows to the questions concerning their identity put to them by the President.

Because the accused declared that they had no knowledge of the Greek language; their answer was communicated through interpreters nominated according to Law." And then there is the personal information with reference to the Defendant Braeuer and with reference to the Defendant Mueller. "The President called the names of the lawyers, appointed by him ex-officio, according to the rules of Const. Acts for each of the defendants." And then the list of the lawyers -- two for the Defendant Mueller and three for the Defendant Braeuer.

"The defendants refused to accept these persons as counsels, stating that they requested the Ministry of Justice by written demand, to appoint as their counsels the lawyers used in the trial of War Criminals Ravalli and Caltsef. Finally they demanded the lawyers of Athens, Const. Tsoukalas, Ilias Microuleas, George Tsilithras, St. Ioanidis and George Antoniadis, as their counsels. Oroly G. Tsilithras and St. Ioanidis were present and said they accepted their nomination as defense counsels for the defendants.

"The President, to complete the number of defense counsels required for each of the defendants nominated the lawyers of Athens, Ath. Krystallis and John Zygalakis as defense counsels for the defendants.

"The defense counsels said that they would perform their duty faithfully and conscientiously and the President asked the King's Counsel express his opinion regarding the defendant F. Schubert who was absent. The King's Counsel proposed that the case the defendant F. Schubert be separated from the present trial according to Law.

The defense counsels said that they had no objections to this. The Court discussed the matter secretly and. decided unanimously as follows: Where as, according to art. 7 B of Const. Acts 13/1945, it is not permissible to try War Criminals in absentia, if on the occasion of a trial some of the accused are absent; the case of those absent must be separated and only those present must be tried. THEREFORE, the Court orders that the case of the absent Fr. Schubert be separated, and the trial proceed with the case of the defendants who are present, namely, B. Braeuer and W. Mueller.

"Following this, the President ordered the secretary to read decision No. 16/1946 of the Judicial Committee. Thereupon, the following persons gave notice that they would be represented in the trial to ask indemnity for moral pain.

And thereafter is listed the names of the people and the indemnity which they requested: the first "for the murder of her husband and the burning of her home," the next "for the execution of his brother and the burning of his house," the next "for the execution of his father, two brothers, and the burning of his home," the next "for the murder of his father," and the last "for the shooting of his brother." And then in the next paragraph on Page 4:

"The defense Counsels speaking in turn asked for the rejection of the a.m. demands for indemnity. The lawyers of those demanding indemnity, asked that objections of the Defense Counsels be rejected.

"The King's Counsel demanded that the objections of the Defense counsel be rejected.

"The Court discussed the matter and decided as follows: "Whereas it has been ordered by Law 1699 every person sustaining damage as the result of a punishable act, has the right to ask for indemnity from a Criminal Court for the moral pain which he suffered from the act. The Court Martial, according to art. '40 of the Military Penal Law, does not have the right to decide on this indemnity as ruled by Law 1699. Whereas, by art. 932 of the Civil Law it is ordered that a pecuniary indemnity for moral pain, is a civil matter which does not have the character of a punishment. According to art. 240 of Law 2803 the Courts Martial try only criminal acts and never civil matters, and the civil demands are sent to the civil Courts. Therefore the pecuniary compensation cannot be tried by the Court Martials.

And then there is further recital with reference to that. And the last, the next paragraph on Page 5, gives the list of the witnesses. I think then we can turn over to Page 8.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I think we'll take the usual recess at this time.

(THE TRIBUNAL RECESSED AT 1100)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, this starts at the top of page 8 in the English. I am sorry I don't have the German page. However it is -- I guess I can find it. It seems to be on German page 9.

"Where is is accepted internationally that some restrictions should be observed in the attitude toward the population of the occupied country. Though it is true that the war crippling the resistance of the enemy yet the belligerents do not have an unrestricted right with respect to the choice of means whereby damage is to be done to the enemy, as is formally stated in art. 22 of the Hague agreement to which Germany has acceded. In instances, where no provision is made by International treaties, the population remains under the protection of the general principles of International Law as they emanate from their international customs, from the Laws of humanity and the demands of public conscience, as is stated in the preamble of the Hague Convention. But art. 46 of this agreement declares that life and property of the population should be spared. And though these were no sanctions provided by international treaties, except by the Treaty of Washington of Feb. 6, 1922, yet it is in accordance with an expressed international conscience and with the spirit of Justice that the transgression of the fundamental principles of humanity should not remain without punishment. It follows from the above that in so far as such transgressions come under the heading of crimes as provided by the Penal Codes of civilized countries, transgressors can be subjected to trial on the basis of the local laws of the country in the territory of which he is found, which determines establishment of competent Tribunals and their procedure.

they are then considered as having violated the common Penal Code and simultaneously by virtue of their deeds as having transgressed the rules of International Law."-- Then a reference to Art. 3 of the Treaty of Washington -- "Besides this the declaration of the United Nations of Jan. 13, 1942 specifies that transgressors of the Rules of International Law will be punished by the Organs of International Justice. This declaration is a principle of justice, at least, as regards the competence of the Courts of the countries occupied by the Axis forces.

Whereas it is contended that the defendants have committed in Greece, contrary to the International Law, acts punishable by our Criminal Code, they fall under the jurisdiction of the Greek Courts in accordance with art. 1 of the Penal Procedure which states that the Greek Criminal Courts are competent to judge all crimes committed in Greece either by Greek, or by foreigners.

Whereas the defendants Braeuer and Mueller Generals of the German Army have served as military commanders in Crete (Greece) during different times of the period 1941-1945 when Greece was in a state of war with Germany and occupied by its forces, and the crimes they are charged with, of murder, terrorism etc. are among those acts which are considered as war crimes by art. I par. 2 of the Const. Act. 73, and consequently it is lawful that they should be tried by this Tribunal.

Whereas the following appears from the depositions of the witnesses and the affidavits of the witnesses who were not present, and especially from the orders and notifications of the defendants published in the newspapers "Herald of Crete" of Heraklion and "Spectator" of Chania, which were the official organs of the German Command, and from the pleas of the defendants:

"The defendant Braeuer went to Crete at the head of his regiment of Parachutists during the operations aiming at the capture of the Island(Crete) in the last days of May 1941; he did not leave Crete before 4 June 1941.

He then returned to Crete on September 1942 as Military Commander and then as Commander of the Fortress Crete, remaining there until June 1944. This late date is evident from his proclamation of June 29, 1944. Defendant Mueller went to Crete as C.O. Of the 22nd Division in Archanes (Crete) on October 1942, he was away from October 43 to January 1944 and then again from the middle of March to the beginning of June 1944. From June 25, 1944 to the end of October 1944 he was the Commander of the Fortress Crete.

Whereas in the first days of the occupation of the Island on the Hersaklion area, the German parachutist killed many (over 100) Greek civilians, among whom the names of Aschimaendrite Theodosskis and Prefect Tsatsaronakis are included. Many articles of furniture and clothing were stolen from the houses of Heraklion. Some of these crimes such as the murder of Tsatsaronakis were committed after 4 June 1941 during the absence of Braeuer and consequently he must be not held responsible for these.

As for the rest it has not been proved that they were ordered by him and therefore he is not responsible for same. The other defendant Mueller, not being in Crete at that time, bears no responsibility for these crimes. Consequently both defendants must be considered of these crimes.

1. On 5 July 1943, by order of the Commander of Fortress Crete 40 people detained in the Prisons of Heraklion, Rethymnon and Hania were shot to death. A proclamation relating to this was published by Braeuer Comm. of the Fortress of Crete, in issue 520 of the Newspaper "Spectator" of Hania.
2. On 24 August 1944, 25 persons detained in Agia Prison were shot to death.
3. On 16 September 1944, 50 persons detained in Agia Prisons were shot to death, and a proclamation relating to the incident was published in issue 940 of the Newspaper "Cretan Herald" by Braeuer.

These shootings of 5 July 1943 were ordered by Braeuer and the rest by the then Commander of Fortress of Crete, Mueller. In all three cases the shooting was ordered as reprisals for acts of sabotage against the German Army. The victims were all innocent of these acts.

4. After a fight which took place in Symia (Vianos) between German troops and the unit of Captain Badouvas on 10-12 Sept. 1943, the 67th Regt. of Mueller's Division started on Sept. 13 an enterprise against the villages of Vianos and Ierapetra areas; they surrounded the villages and on 14 Sept. and the days which followed they arrested all the inhabitants of the villages. All the arrested men were shot to death, except the 147 men arrested in the village Sycologos; a total of 471 men and few women were shot, their names were mentioned by the witnesses examined." --And then follows the names of the witnesses examined and the numbers of persons mentioned--."The remainder of the arrestees, mostly women and children were detained for some days in the Concentration Camp in Rethymnon and then were sent to other areas. At the same time the Germans took away all the cattle and whatever else they could carry and then set on fire the houses and buildings destroying them totally. The following villages were completely destroyed." And then they list the villages which were destroyed and some which were partly destroyed.

"During the burning down of the afore-mentioned villages, several women were burnt alive in their homes; these deaths could have been foreseen and prevented by the Germans. All the aforementioned enterprises and crimes were on such a big scale that they could not have been done without orders of the Commander of Fortress Crete, Braeuer admits having issued such an order and Mueller admits having suggested and executed this order.

They both pretend that this enterprise was a military one against armed forces of the resistance during which the Germans suffered 4-5 casualties, but the depositions of the witnesses and the way the enterprise was carried, exclude such a claim. With reference to this, a proclamation of the Commander of Fortress of Crete was published in the newspaper "Cretan Herald" on 5 September 1943, saying that a measure of reprisal a certain number of communities ceased to exist. This publication bears the date 12 Sept. but was published on 15 Sept. and refers to the aforementioned events, because at that time there were no other similar happenings. The publication of the proclamation at the same time that the reprisals were carried out proves that they were premeditated.

5. On 4 September 1943, ten persons were arrested by Germans in the area of the village Agios Mamas Mylopotamou and were shot to death on the spot, under the pretext that they were arrested on forbidden areas. The next day 20 persons with a priest, went to that spot to bury the murdered people; the Germans seeing them opened fire and killed them all.

6. On 3-5 May 1944 units of the 22nd Division went to the villages of Heraklion District "And then the villages are listed. "-and shot in Camares 5 men and arrested another 15, they arrested in Margaritari 11 men, in Sachtouria 28, and in Icchia they arrested 8 and shot 2. Fifteen of the arrested men were shot in September and the rest disappeared. At the same time they took away all private property and destroyed completely all the houses and buildings of the aforementioned villages by fire and explosives. A proclamation for these events was Published in the newspaper "Cretan Herald" on 6 May 1944."

At that time, Mueller was not in Crete and consequently is not responsible for these crimes. But the Tribunal is convinced that those crimes were ordered by the Commanding Officer of the 22 Dw., on Braeuer's orders, who Braeuer confesses that he had given to his Divisions a general order to act on their own initiative in cases like the present one, accepting in advance, the measures of mass executions, arrests, looting and executions of hostages which were the German system.

"On 7 May 1944 a German unit kidnapped from the village Dougi Monofatsiou, 9 men who have since disappeared.

"On 9 May 1944 a German unit kidnapped from the village Samona 3 men who have since disappeared; the village was looted and then completely destroyed by artillery fire. One child was killed. The Tribunal thinks that (these two cases, i.e., 7.8. cannot be attributed to Mueller who was absent from Crete nor to Braeuer because it was not proved that he ordered them).

"In August 1944 units belonging to the Division of the Fortress of Crete surrounded the district of Kissamos. By 27 August they arrested and shot 60 men in the village Malthyrou, 26 in Kakopetron, 19 in Palea Roumata, 11 in Kalathenes and an as yet undetermined number in the villages Kouneni - Syrikari. At the same time they set on fire the villages of the same district Limni, Elos and Floria. They burnt part of the villages Kouneni where three children were burnt alive.

"In the same month, August 1944, the German Division of Heraklion surrounded the district of Amariou, they arrested all the men they found in the villages, and they shot 46 men in the villages Gourgouthi, Kardaki, Dryges, Vrysses, Smidai, 42 in Ano Meros, 55 in Gerakari, 35 in Krya Vryssi and they deported the rest of the population to other areas.

At the same time they looted completely all the aforementioned villages and completely destroyed by fire and explosives all their fountains, buildings, houses, churches, schools, and cemeteries.

"On 17th of the same month another German unit went to the village Sokara, destroyed a large part of it and shot 27 men.

"On 13 August 1944 a strong German unit went to the village Anogia, arrested all the inhabitants who happened to be there, shot 50 men, sent the women and children to other areas and the men to prisons and then completely destroyed the 940 houses of the village. Next day they shot in the village Gergessi 18 men, and in the village Pyrgos 4.

"On 14 August 1944 another German unit shot 11 men and 20 women in the village Skourvoula.

"On 13 August 1944 another unit arrested 35 men in Sarchos, shot 15 of them, used the others for forced labor and later shot them.

"On 14-19 August another unit shot 12 persons in the village Gonjes Malerizou, 7 men in Kalesia and 4 in Moni; on 20-22 Aug. they shot 7 in Digortynow and 22 in Asteraki.

"On 21 August 1944, 34 persons were shot in Damasta and 109 houses of the village were destroyed.

"At the same time, while the German troops were retreating to the West of the Island, the village Thrapsanos was set on fire and a woman and a child were burnt alive.

"With respect to all these crimes committed on August 1944, a proclamation was published in the newspaper "Spectator" on Aug.

27, 1944. It was issued by the then Commander of Fortress Crete Mueller and stated that 489 persons were killed, 599 arrested and many thousands deported to other areas. Relative to these is the order of Mueller 13 August 44 for the destruction of Anogia, the issue of which he does not deny, saying only that he ordered the execution of 30-50 men only (this order is in the file). All these crimes of murder, arson, looting and deportation were executed by the Heraklion Divisions on the basis of orders issued by Mueller. Braeuer not being in Crete at that time is not responsible for these.

"On orders of Braeuer Commander of Fortress Crete, a unit comprising many criminals (German and Greeks) was constituted in 1943 under the orders of Warrant Officer Fritz Schubert. Schubert was ordered to pursue the criminals and search for arms. By this order Schubert was allowed to use whatever means he chose. In the Execution of this order Schubert committed murders of more than 200 men; Schubert went also to village Callikrati Sfakiou where he arrested and shot to death on 8 October 1943, 24 men and 9 women, whose names were stated by the witnesses. Braeuer, knowing the previous criminal activities of Schubert and learning of their continuation by the commission of atrocious crimes, approved and kept him in the job to which he had appointed him.

"The defendants say in their defense that they had to obey orders of the Supreme German Command whereby they were obliged to order reprisals against the non combatant population for every act against the German Army.

But mass execution of innocent people not charged with any concrete act, and the arson on masses of towns and villages, are acts which are contrary to humanitarian feelings and cannot be justified even by an order of a supreme authority; such orders could not even be considered as orders in line of duty. And what is worse, the unlawful character of these orders is proved by the fact that the recipients of these orders were advised to destroy them immediately after reading them. Besides the Court is satisfied that even if these were such general orders for applying reprisals, the defendants had the discretionary right to choose the kind of means and to determine whether or not they should be applied. But no such means were applied by the Commander of Fortress Crete, when 17 Germans were killed in Omales after a fight with the Andantes, nor when in Nescla 7 members of Schubert's unit were slain, nor when General Kreipe was kidnapped. The defendants not daring to try to justify themselves for the mass executions, suggest that all these deaths of Greek people occurred during fights between Germans and Greek resistance groups. The excuse of military necessity could be justified in case other means were applicable as reprisals, but under no conditions for the killing of innocents. It is true that the Germans in Crete felt that they were living in hostile surroundings and that it was in their interest not to be disturbed by the population in case war activities were to be extended on Cretan territory. They aimed therefore at crippling the morale of the population in order to enhance their security; therefore, they used inhuman means such as mass execution and the systematic burning down of villages thus changing whole areas into a desert.

Such means can be accepted, still less as the justification for an indirect military interest. Whereas irrespective of the question of the applicability of Const. Act 73 to the criminal acts described therein, and which are not provided for in the Criminal Code because of the rule "Nulla poena sine lege" the defendants must be acquitted with respect to the acts provided by Const. Law 73.

"Consequently Bruno Braeuer must be declared guilty for having ordered the following acts:" -- and therewith they list the various murders and shootings and burnings with the dates, the first in July 1943 and the last in September of 44, the September 44 note being the third one from the bottom, the last one being one of August.

And then, turning over to the next page, 19 in the English:

"Therefore, the Tribunal declares as guilty A. Bruno Braeuer because he served the military forces of the enemy as Lieutenant General of the German Army in Chania during the war 1939-1945 and as commander of the Fortress 'Crete,' he knowingly ordered others to commit war crimes under threats of severe punishment in case of disobedience and particularly for the following reprehensible acts which his subordinates carried out:"

And thereafter on the balance of that page and the first two numbered paragraphs on the next are the acts listed in more detail which are referred to on the prior page.

Then, over on page 20:

"Mueller, because he served the military forces of the enemy as Lieutenant-General of the German Army in Chania (Crete) during the war 1939-1945 and as commander of Fortress Crete, he knowingly ordered others to commit war crimes under threats of severe punishment, in case of disobedience, and particularly for the following acts, which his subordinates carried out."

And then they list murders and the dates and places in August and September 1944, and then on the next page is a further list of persons who were killed and continuing for August 1944, the bottom of the page, the setting on fire, by explosives, the villages, and their destruction: and on the next page are listed the villages which have to do with the third paragraph under "Mueller"; and then the 4th count which again applies with reference to Mueller: the next one which applies to Braeuer and Mueller for the executions which are listed on the following page; and then the last paragraph on page 23 lists the confiscation of property from the villages; and the first paragraph on page 24 sets forth the further burnings and also the execution of people as a result of these burnings in the villages which are listed there.

And then follows a paragraph with reference to certain events wherein there is an acquittal:

"Since the Tribunal has doubts concerning the guilt of the defendants with respect to the rest of the criminal acts of the indictment, as described by the Penal Law, they (i.e the defendants) must be acquitted on those counts. This is especially true for the act of putting 300 Jews on board S/S 'Damae' and later or sinking it; it was not proved that Mueller or Braeuer had anything to do with this, Therefore, this act ought to be attributed to the Higher Command of the German police of Athens or Berlin.

"Whereas the acts for which the defendants were found guilty are provided for and punished" -- and then it sets forth the section and code of the Penal Law.

And then on page 25:

"After reading the decision the king's counsel asked the death penalty for both the defendants. The defense counsel asked that the minimum penalty be given to the defendants. The President then ordered the removal of the defendants from the Court Room and the Tribunal withdrew to the Council room where, having discussed in the absence of the King's Counsel, returned again in the Court Room and announced it's decision."

And then follows the findings of guilty and the sentencing to death and the publication of the decisions on 9 December 1945, signed by the President and the Clerk and certified as a true copy; and the executions of these two men took place in May 1947.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The observation made by the Tribunal at the introduction of the previous exhibit will apply equally to the exhibit just read by counsel.

The next part of 499, which is No. 4, does not have to be read at this time. It is furnished merely for the convenience of the defense counsel and the Tribunal and has to do with the subtitles of the Greek film; and when the film is shown, of course, the subtitles will be read concurrently. However, it is offered as 499/4. We have already offered 499/5, which has been received as 499/5, and 499A6 which is an affidavit or is, rather, an interrogation of a witness at Distomo on September 25, 1955, is offered as 499/6.

The first question: "What is your name, and so forth:

"Ioannis Louca Zizis. I was born and am resident at Distomo, aged 58, farmer and Christian Orthodox.

"(He took the oath on the Holy Bible in accordance with Arts. 121 and 124 of the Penal Code)."

And then the next question and his reply:

"On June 10, 1944 I had gone, together with my two sons, to my village which lies close to the spot where the guerillas were lying in ambush. At the first shots, I took my sons and went away. My sons started together towards the seashore of Distomo without passing through Distomo, while I made my way to the village to my house. My house lies close to the village square and adjoins the house of the murdered priest; it is situated between the houses of Spiros Malamos, of the Sfunturaioi, of Lucas Sifiras and Chrestos Papanicolaou and looks towards the square at the point where the worst doings happened.

"Shortly after my reaching Distomo, there arrived from Stiri four lorries, of which one was loaded with dead and wounded Germans who were at once placed on a hospital lorry which left immediately for Livadia. Two other lorries were filled with German soldiers who as soon as they had dismounted, broke up into small parties and at once placed sentries at various points of vantage around the village. The fourth lorry contained the 12 detainees. Shortly afterwards, all the German lorries went back.

"The Germans soon after they arrived at Distomo, made the twelve hostages get out of the lorry and executed them with volleys from their automatics.

At the same time they executed Ioannis P. Sfunturis, Dimitrios Kailis and Nicolas Sfunturis who happened at that very moment to be returning from their fields. Another party of Germans arrested Ioannis Skutas, Aristides Sfunturis and Panagiotis Vassileiou whom they took to the top of the knoll and executed. These events convinced me that a general massacre had been ordered, so I made haste to jump out of the window and hide under an elder-tree situated behind my house from which I could see both in the direction of the Malamos house and of the house of the Sfunturaioi and Sideras I had hardly had time to hide when I heard Germans coming up to the house of the priest whom they at once arrested and gouged out his eyes, after which they killed him and cut off his head. At the sight of these doings, the women and children inside the house where they had taken refuge began to weep and scream, (the Germans) fired a few volleys at after which there was silence. At the same time a second party of Germans entered the house of Spiros Malamos in which many women and children had taken refuge and killed them all. They then opened the stops of the barrels and set fire to the hayrick nearby. After that they went up to the house of Loucas Malamos, took a few clothes and set fire to the house. The fire fortunately did not spread. They then jumped over a garden wall passing quite close to me and entered the house of L. Sideras where other women were hiding and threw a hand grenade inside killing Sophia, wife of I. Anestis, and seriously wounding Anthoula, wife of Loucas Sideras. As they were coming out of the Sideras house, they met Panagiotis Marios and my nephew Nicolas Zizis and killed them. Another band of German soldiers went to the house of Charalampos Sfunturis who was ill, while his wife was hiding in the yard. They at once set fire to the house, thus obliging his wife to come out of her hiding place. They then threw her alive into the flames, thus the two occupants were burnt alive together with their house. Night was beginning to fall when I heard a voice calling upon all those who had remained alive and were still hiding to come out as the Germans had gone away.

I omitted to mention that the wife of the priest who was wounded in the arm jumped from a small window and came up to me. I bound up her wound but she was half distracted, so that we nearly gave ourselves away. After hearing the voice, I emerged cautiously from my hiding place and came out in front of my house. I found lying dead in the yard my boy Athanassios A. Kailis, aged 8 and Ioannis Papanicolaou's boy aged 6, and the priest's head with the eyes gouged out. I entered the priest's house where the bodies of the women lay one upon the other and the whole floor was covered with blood. I hastened to leave the house. On going to the square, I found it covered with the corpses of men and women who had been executed as they were returning from the fields. I went up to the house of my niece, Fotini, wife of Loucas Liaskos, whom I found with her head crushed and clothes torn, while in the cradle lay her baby disemboweled and also the corpses of her eldest child together with that of her old father-in-law. The sight of the victims so tragically massacred, horror and fear made me, despite myself, go outside the village where I remained in hiding, together with the other survivors from my village for about four months as we were afraid to return to the village.

"On June 26 1944 the Germans made a fresh inroad into the village which they found completely empty of inhabitants. On that day they took whatever they had not already taken or destroyed on the day of the massacre and their previous raids. They set fire to houses, poured out the wine, and literally pillaged everything.

"Q. Did you happen to learn the names of the Germans commanding the detachment on the day of the massacre?

"A I was informed that during the encounter at Stiri, a German called Teo was killed and that it was to revenge his death, so they say, that the German officers gave orders for the massacre of all the inhabitants and for the burning of the village which they would have completed, had they not been in a hurry to leave owing to the late hour of the day.

The names of the German officers must be known to the lawyer at Livadia, Mr. P. Karamertzanis, who at that time was employed by the Germans as interpreter.

"I have nothing else to add and I can read and write."

"(The above was read to him and is duly confirmed and signed).

"The witness" and "The Examining Lawyer" and "The Clerk of the Justice of the Peace of Distomo."

DR. LATERNER (Counsel for defendant List): Your Honors, should the Tribunal see any connection between this document and any of the defendants, as the prosecution is trying to prove in this case, I would apply that this witness should be put in the witness box.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is thought of the Tribunal that in the absence of more formal proof directly connecting the affidavits and other documents read that at the end of the trial, upon application by defense counsel, they will be stricken from the record.

MR. DENNEY: And the last part of the report of the Greek National War Crimes office is the one which was yesterday marked 499-A. I believe your Honors have it.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, I wish to object strongly against accepting this report. These reports are similar to the ones submitted by the Yugoslavian Commission, but this case is even clearer. The Tribunal is able in connection with Article 20 of the Regulations of the Tribunal to accept them. I maintain that the reports now to be submitted are not really reports which would come under Article 20. A report is something which tries to establish facts. The report now submitted by the Prosecution, the Tribunal can see by looking into it is a mere Prosecution indictment, something which is maintained but should be proved. If the Tribunal would be in a position to accept this as evidence, then, for example, the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes could simply submit reports which would then become evidence. If this report could be accepted as evidence the procedure would become improvised, so it does not concern a report but an indictment, the contents of which have to be proved first. But even if the Tribunal holds the opinion that Article 20 could be applied, the application of Article 20 would not apply owing to Article 20 itself.

(Int. Hildesheimer) According to Article 20 the Tribunal may accept Governmental documents or reports to the United Nations, Furthermore it may accept reports submitted before to a Commission of councillors or to an appointed party of councillors of the U.N. for the investigation of War Crimes.

As becomes evident from this report, however, this report or statement can only be made during the proceedings itself, because on page 9 of the report and on page 14 this Tribunal is being talked about. It is therefore not a report which has been examined by an inquiry commission, or at least before this trial within the framework of the United Nations.

It is not a report which has been submitted before to a commission appointed by the United Nations. From this report it becomes evident that the prosecution's statement cannot be accepted as probative material, but merely and exclusively as a document of the Prosecution if it proves their contention. If, however, the Tribunal is going to accept this report then I, as defense counsel, shall apply for more material and documents in order to object to the content of this material.

Your Honor, I am just being told by one of my colleagues that possibly I have not been understood correctly, partly because I perhaps was not clear and possibly because the translator did not follow.

JUDGE BURKE: There appears to be no ambiguity in your statement, Dr. Laternser.

Since his appears to be a matter of some importance, and doubtless Mr. Denney may desire to make some suggestions about it, and the Tribunal desires to make a just and proper ruling, we will take a recess at this time until 1:30 p.m., and at that time if you wish to make any further comments about the matter, Mr. Denney, you may do so, and the Tribunal will then make its decision.

(Thereupon a recess was taken until 1:30)

AFTERNOON SESSION

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

JUDGE BURKE: Without the necessity of further discussion the Tribunal is prepared to rule upon the matter submitted at the close of the morning session.

The Tribunal has given consideration to the objection made by defense counsel to the admission of Exhibit 499-A. It is our opinion that in its present form the offered exhibit falls far short of the essential qualification to justify its admission for any purpose of probative value. It moreover offends against all properly recognized rules for the admission of evidence, in that it assumes to indicate responsibility on the part of various individuals involved in the hearing now in progress, and such findings, conclusions and presumptions having been made not in the presence of the interested defendants.

With this definite statement of the attitude of the Tribunal as to the competence of the Exhibit it may be admitted for what, if anything, it is worth.

You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

THE PRESIDENT: Before we proceed further, Mr. Denney, at the time Court convened there were two of the German counsel present, and now five of the 11 are present. Possibly there is a good reason or excuse for the absence of the other counsel. The Tribunal feels that it has some responsibility in connection with this matter. Purely by way of suggestion at this present moment we respectfully call the attention of the counsel that Court convenes usually at the time stated, and that they should be present, at least for the interest of their clients if not out of respect to the Tribunal.

JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases, the Exhibit 499-A for identification becomes Exhibit 499 in evidence; and that concludes the presentation of this document, and at this time Mr. Rapp will continue with the Norwegian phases of the proceedings.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors will permit, before I turn to Document Book 22 I would like to make a few general remarks.

We are now turning specifically to Court 29-A of the indictment. These are charges pertaining solely to the defendant Rendulic only. Charges which we submit in his capacity as the then commanding general of the 20th Mountain Army in Finmark, which is a Northern Province of the State of Norway. For the Court, the defense counsel or defendants, and also my own information, I have taken the liberty of putting a map of Norway on the wall. It is not being offered in evidence. I don't think we have to give it an exhibit number. It is merely put there because the Tribunal might, at their convenience and liberty like to glance at it occasionally to locate the places we mention in the document.

I would also like to call Your Honors attention to two charts contained in the basic information booklet. The one chart I have reference to is Chart G, and the other chart I have reference to is Chart E, and that chart is a schematic presentation of the Northern part of Norway. It does not claim to be true to scale. We are not too much concerned with that. Chart G, Your Honor, however, will give you a general order of battle description of the units, or of the main units I should say subordinate to the 20th Mountain Army at sometime during its campaign. We do not submit that this chart is 100 per cent, correct. We have tried to ask various German experts to try and make it for us as well as they can, but it seems there are no two people who can agree on it exactly, but for our purpose I believe it will help us in the presentation.

And now with Your Honor's permission I would like to turn to Document Book 22. Your Honors, turning to page 1 of this document book, we are offering NOKW-1776. May I inquire from the Assistant Secretary General what the number is.

MR. STONE: Exhibit 500.

MR. RAPP:NOKW-1776, being offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 500. The first document we have, Your Honors, is a priority teletype message. The entire message is being offered in evidence. However, we have only extracted page 3 of the original, which we shall read into the record at this time:

"WFST/Op. Stamp, Top Secret. Fuehrer Headquarters, 4 October 1944, 17 copies," this being the 8th. "Official stamp, Officer only. Priority teletype. To: 20th Mountain Army."

Then a distribution of other units where it went to, a distribution list, rather, and "for information Naval Command, Norway, and Reich Commissar for Sea Traffic, Attention Gauleiter Kaufmann." That is for information only.

If Your Honors will turn to page 2, still on page 1 of the German book, under paragraph 6 of this particular instrument it reads:

"6) Evacuation and Destruction:

"All installations which might be of use to the enemy are to be destroyed thoroughly, particularly roads and railroad lines, port installations, airports and other installations of the Luftwaffe, industrial plants, Wehrmacht billets and camps. All snow barriers on the through roads are to be burned in time.

"Rations and other Wehrmacht supplies are to be destroyed unless they can be transported.

"The entire population of Norway capable of bearing arms is to be taken along as far as marches permit and to be turned over to the Reich Commissar Norway for compulsory labor employment.

"Finnish hostages are to be taken along as the situation requires.

"Signed, by order, Jodl, OKW/WFST/Op Nor. 77 3608/44 top secret, official."

DR. FRITSCH (For defendant Rendulic): Your Honors, my attention has been drawn to the fact that the word "allocation" of labor is not translated properly. May I please ask the translator, the interpreter, to retranslate this word?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: That may be done.

DR. FRITSCH: The last paragraph in the German text, the third line from the bottom of page 2 in the English text, where it says, "for compulsory labor employment," Your Honor, the translation is not very good. It should be "allocation of labor".

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I am interested in that error in translation. I have observed the certificate that it has been translated from the German to the English language, and I am a little concerned about the apparent discrepancy in the word "compulsory" and the disposition of it.

MR. RAPP: I quite agree, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is inexcusable to me that there should be such a variance in such an ordinary, simple matter of interpretation.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I was just about to suggest that we might possibly ask to have the main translation department give us a ruling on the translation of that particular word.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well, that may be done.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, turning to page 3 of this same document, you will find the distribution of this order, part of which I have just read into the record.

If you will now turn, please, to page 4 of the English document book and page 3 of the German document book, we are offering NOKW-114, Prosecution's Exhibit 501. This is a teletype message from the Commander-in-Chief of the 20th Mountain Army, at that time the defendant Rendulic, and signed by him, to the Corps Headquarters of the XIX Mountain Corps, which was a part of the 20th Mountain Army in Norway.

It is dated the "4th of October 1944, Top Secret, Very Urgent, Officer Courier," and it reads:

"In the given case, all the military installations, industrial installations, architectural structures, etc. in the former Finnish Petsamo territory are to be destroyed. This area is to be devastated. Preparations for this are to be made through reconnaissance, preparation of explosives (therewith making use of bombs, etc.) and organization of corresponding demolition and blockade forces.

"Cunning mining (blocking the march) render difficult and *e enemy movements considerably.

"The same measures are to be reconnoitered and planned for the Norwegian territory. There too the carrying out of destructions as in the Finnish Petsamo territory is to be reckoned with.

The next document, Your Honor, you will find on page 6, NOKW-097, being submitted as Prosecution's Exhibit 502.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: May I inquire as to Exhibit 501, NOKW-114, as to whether the signature of Rendulic is a typed signature?

MR. RAPP: It is a signed signature, Your Honor.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: In his own handwriting?

MR. RAPP: In his own handwriting.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: May it be handed to the Tribunal?

MR. RAPP: Very well, Your Honor.

May I continue, Your Honor?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Yes.

The next document, your Honor is 754-PS, being submitted as Prosecution's Exhibit 503. This is the basic order dated 28 October 1944 from the High Command of the German Armed Forces, signed, "Jodl", to the 20th Army for the evacuation of Finnmark. It reads:

"4. For Information: Naval High Comman/Naval Operation Staff (Koralle) "Due to the lack of willingness on the part of the North Norwegian population to evacuate (the territory), the Fuehrer has agreed to the suggestion of the Reich Commisar for the occupied Norwegian territory and he has ordered, in the interest of its own security, the compulsory evacuation of the entire Norwegian population eastward of the Lyngen Fjords, and the burning down and/or destruction of all habitable dwellings.

"Commander-in-Chief North Finland is responsible for the ruthless execution of the Fuehrer. Only in this way can we prevent the Russians - equipped with strong forces and supported by habitable dwellings and the population which knows the locality - from following our withdrawal movements in the Winter and in a short while appearing before the Lyngen positions. Compassion for the civilian population is uncalled for.

The troops carrying out (this order) must be made to understand that within a few months the Norwegians will be grateful for having been saved from Bolshevism and that the barbarian methods of the aerial war against the German homeland and against its cultural places have brought a thousandfold suffering over our people. The human methods of evacuation and the destruction of habitable dwellings of North Norway are necessary for our warfare and will have to be paid with blood of German soldiers if they are not carried out.

In addition the population of fishers in North Norway disposes over sufficient shipping space enabling them to withdraw with the mass across the water. A large part of the Norwegian small-ship space, which at present is concealed, may be used for this purpose and may later be used for our own transportation needs.

The peril of a formation of Norwegian bands does not seem to be apparent if the bands no longer have the support of shelters.

Evacuation of North Norway:

1. Because of the lack of willingness of the north Norwegian population to evacuate the country voluntarily the Fuehrer has ordered the compulsory evacuation of the population East of the Lyngenfjords in the interest of the security of the population, which is to be preserved from Bolshevism and that all houses be burned down or be destroyed. It is the responsibility of the Commander-in-Chief of Northern Finland that this order is carried out ruthlessly so that the Soviets supported by dwelling places and a population which knows the country will be prevented from following our withdrawal with strong forces. Pity with the civilian population is out of place.

2. The men will understand the measures to be taken if it is explained that the barbarian methods of the air war against the German homeland and its cultural places have brought a misery on our people surpassing by far that which will follow in the wake of the measures which must be taken now in North Norway in order to prevent an early thrust by the Russians, according to plan.

3. "The evacuation staff North Norway" subordinate to the O.Qu. in his capacity as evacuation commissar is formed as the competent "Page 11 authority." Leader: Colonel Herrmann, Commanding Officer of the Grenadier Regiment 310. Corps Headquarters XXXVI Mountain Corps is to detach Colonel Herrmann immediately to Army/O.Qu.

SS-Obersturmbannfuehrer Neumann joins the evacuation staff as representative of the Reichs Commissar for Occupied Norwegian Territory.

4. The Commanding Generals of the XIX Mountain Corps and of the LXXI Infantry Corps are charged by me with the responsibility of the carrying out of the evacuation. Corps Headquarters XIX Mountain Corps will evacuate the territory East of the East coast of the Porsangerfjord (excluding the fjord).

Corps Headquarters LXXI Infantry Corps will evacuate the area Porsangeyfjord, (inclusive) - Lyngenfjord (inclusive) 5. Execution of the Evacuation:

- a. The entire evacuation area is to be emptied of people.
- b. Evacuated settlements are to be destroyed unless they are to be used by troops marching through (that is, at the latest by the rear guards).
- c. The operation must be a sudden one and the officers of the Reichs Commissar of Norway must participate and Norwegian authorities must be harnessed for it; the latter, however, only from the beginning of the operation.
- d. The seized population is to be led to the nearest ports under military guard (also small ports with docks suitable for cutters).
- e. Local and district commanders are to erect reception camps in or near these ports.
- f. Men capable of working and marching and in the western districts women capable of marching also, are to be coupled to the marching units furthest in front and to be taken along.
- g. Inasfar as the population still has small ships available they are to be used for the deportation of the evacuees. Military cover.
- h. All ships used by the Wehrmacht (freighters and Army transports) are to be loaded additionally with as many evacuees as possible.
- i. Columns on Reichsstrasse 50 to be formed only to an unavoidable degree; invalids, women and children to be assisted by loading them on trucks. Only men really capable of marching to join the march columns.

(3) By 15.11.44 in the remaining area.

Norwegians found in the respective areas after that period are to be arrested and to be brought to the nearest town headquarters. Directives will be issued concerning their further treatment.

6. It is requested that the Reichskommissar Norway will make available as much shipping space as possible as otherwise numerous casualties among the Norwegians will be unavoidable during the evacuation.

7. I request all offices concerned to carryout this evacuation in the sense of a relief action for the Norwegian population. Though it will be necessary here and there to be severe, all of us must attempt to save the Norwegians from Bolshevism and to keep them alive."

DR. FRITSCH: Dr. Fritsch for Defendant Rendulich. Your Honor, I object to the submission of this document. It is a teletype of the Supreme Commander of the Navy. I may perhaps ask first the Prosecutor how far the probative value of this document is against the Defendant Rendulich.

MR. RAPP: Does the Court permit me, at this time, to state this in the nature of argumentation?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: If it may be stated as a factual outline of what you propose to prove, we have no objection.

MR. RAPP: At that time the Province of Finnmark, in which the 20th Mountain Corps PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Just a moment. Apparently there's some difficulty with the reception.

MR. HILDESHEIMER (COURT GERMAN ENGLISH INTERPRETER): Shall I repeat? Can you hear me?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Judge Carter is unable to get it. Very well; you may proceed.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we submit firstly that this document comes from the Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces of Germany, at that time.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Are you referring now to.....

MR. RAPP: Document No. C-48.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: C-48?

MR. RAPP: It has not as yet been offered so we have not given it an exhibit number. Signed Keitel, it is a directive of Keitel to the Commander in Chief of the German Navy in Norway and Denmark, and at that time part of Norway, that is the Province of Finmark, was under the jurisdiction of the Defendant Rendulich. As part of the evacuation, the part of the German Navy needed in the evacuation or in the accomplishment of his mission was under the command of the Defendant Rendulich.

As part of the evacuation, the part of the German Navy needed in the evacuation or in the accomplishment of his mission was under the command of the Defendant Rendulich, we allege. Therefore, we believe that this order has a definite bearing because it pertains both to the Army and the Navy.

DR. FRITSCH: I shall explain my attitude to this when my case comes up.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, we submit C-48 as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 505. It's a teleprint message to Commander in Chief of the Navy, received 30 November 1944, secret. It is a copy of such message, pertaining to the sabotage in Norway and Denmark.

1) C-in-C, Armed Forces, Norway and C-in-C, Armed Forces, Denmark are charged with effecting the proclamation of an order at the offices of the Reich Commissar of the Occupied Norwegian territories, or at the offices of the Reich Plenipotentiary in Denmark, and its carrying out by the BDS (Commander of Security-Police). This order shall provide that employees, and if necessary, their families (relatives' liability) (Sippenhaftung) are also held responsible for cases of sabotage occurring in their works. Every ship-yard worker, etc. must know that every case of sabotage occurring in his sphere of work entails the gravest consequences for him personally, and, if he disappears, for his family.

2) C-in-C, Norway, and C-in-C, Denmark, will re-inforce the protection against sabotage which up to the present has been carried out by police, special detachments of the Navy and the Reichs Commissar for shipping. They will re-inforce it with all available means by guard contingents made up of personnel of all arms of the service, in collaboration with (Commander of Security-Police). In Southern Norway, the substantial accumulation of troops in the area around Oslo should be drawn upon for this purpose. If the numerous troops available in this accumulation and the rear units in Oslo and in Denmark too are energetically made use of, the guard can be tripled.

I can, moreover, not allow acts of sabotage of this kind to be accepted as acts of God and inevitable, without the authorities responsible for security being called to account. Troops of the Armed Forces employed on protection against sabotage are to come under the tactical control of the competent Commander of Secret Police.

Supplement 5 Army Headquarter, 25 Nov.

44 War Diary High Command 20 (Mountain Army) (O Qu./Evacuation Staff No. 31/44 Secret The Evacuation of Northern Norway.

I. Mission The intention to induce the population of Finland and East Tromsø to evacuate these territories voluntarily, failed because of the limited willingness to support this demand.

Accordingly, the Fuehrer ordered the forced evacuation of the territory East of the Lyngenfjord, in order to protect the population from Bolshevism. The Fuehrer-order to the Wehrmacht commander, in Chief of North Finland contains the following demands:

1. The territory is to be emptied of human beings so that the enemy cannot rely on the working potential and local knowledge of the population.

2. All quarters, traffic and economic installations are to be destroyed so ruthlessly that the enemy is deprived of every possibility of living in this area.

3. What ever can be evacuated in important goods, is to be salvaged.

The initial time period set for evacuation, Porsanger territory by 9 November, Alta/Hammerfest territory by 12 November, and East Tromsø by 15 November 1944 could be prolonged until 20 November 44 as a result could be prolonged until 20 November 44 as a result of a change in the situation.

"Accordingly a salvaging of economic goods in excess of the first planned amounts was possible.

The territory to be evacuated corresponds to 1 and ½ times the size of Denmark. The distances on the single National Highway 50, amount to 1,000 kilometers from Kirkenes to Narvik and from Hammerfest to Tromsø 599 kilometers. Furthermore this highway was occupied by the Marching movement of the Army, so that first of all the sea lane came into the question with regard to deportation." If Your Honors permit me, I would like to show you on this map (Pointing to a wall map), this particular highway, because it will be, we believe, of some importance in this particular phase that we are concerned with.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: In the absence of objection, you may do so.

MR. RAPP: (Pointing with pointer to map) This highway here Highway 50---. I have tried to trace it in red.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Indicate in the general direction of...

MR. RAPP: Here's the Province of Finnmark, and the troops came from Finland to Finnmark and proceeded in a westerly direction. In other words, the movement is something like this, generally speaking (indicating movement by means of pointer).

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: In a westerly direction?

MR. RAPP: In a westerly direction. And once they have reached this crest it is probably what you can call a westerly and southerly direction.

Accordingly a salvaging of economic goods in excess of the first planned amounts was possible.

The territory to be evacuated corresponds to 1 and ½ times the size of Denmark. The distances on the single National Highway, the National Highway 50 amount to 1,000 kilometers from Kirkenes to Narvik and from Hammerfest to Tromsø, 500 kilometers. Furthermore this highway was occupied by the marching movement of the Army, so that first of all the sea lane came into the question with regard to deportation.

For the purposes of the execution an evacuation staff was formed with the High Command of the 20th (Mountain) Army, to which a representative of the Reich Commissioner for the occupied Norwegian territories was added.

II. Means 1. The possibility was merely offered as far as the sea lane was concerned to utilize the unused transport space on ships of the Reich Commissioner for Naval Transport (German Commercial Glad) and on ships of the Navy (Reich Service Flags and Reich W&R Flags). Beyond that, Norwegian local ships and numerous cutters were utilized.

2. On land, the population wandered off individually with their own trucks (trucks, omnibuses, and horse drawn vehicles). The young folk also made use of bicycles frequently, for the march to Narvik.

III. Execution:

1, The inadequate records of the Norwegian resident register were the basis for the seizure of the population. According to them, the territory to be evacuated, including the nomadic Lapps had before the war a population of about 62,000. The (apparently very restricted) number of those persons who fled the evacuation can accordingly only be estimated.

2. On account of lack of time the order to the population for evacuation could only take place in the form of an appeal decreed jointly by the Commander & Chief of the 20 (Mountain) Army and by the Reich Commissioner for the occupied Norwegian territories.

3. Assembly points for the deportation by sea were erected in Billorfjord and Homningsvaag for the area Porsanger and East Finland, in the Hammerfest for the Island territories, and in Alta-SopnesBurfjord for the territory Alta with Kaugoekino.

The felder Traffic took place with trucks and omnibusses, from the sea with cutters, or from the Islands and the wastal localities in North Baranger, by units of the Navy.

Deportation from the Porsanger area took place in the main through two mass transports with 1700 and 1060 persons on the Steamers "Karal A-rp" and A-dolf Binder" from Billefjord. In Alta, through a mass transport of 750 persons on the supply ship "Dithmarschen". Deportation for the rest, with Norwegian local ships and cutters.

4. Rounding up organizations were set up through civilian offices for quarters and further transport of the deported population in Tromso, Narvik, and Harstad.

Forwarding to Mosjoen and Trondheim took place with ships of the Norwegian "Huttigrute". Besides them, the following ships were utilized: the steamers "Brabant", "Dronning", "Sigurd Jarl", "Stella Polaris" as well as the hospital transport ships "Lofotes", "North Star", and "Polar Ice". This forwarding was finished by 25 Nov. 44.

5. Supplies, including quarters and medical help could not be guaranteed by the civilian sector in this wide area to a full extent. The Wehrmacht helped accordingly on a generous scale:

a) through the provision of rations where supplies could not be managed in such bulk by the civilian sector. In the reception stations on land as well as on board the German ships warm rations were given out from field kitchens.

b) through the provision of barrack camps as quarters at the assembly points, Billefjord and Sopnes.

c) through the help of the unit during transport to the coast, as well as during embarkation, especially by assisting families with children.

d) through large-scale care of sick, injured, pregnant women, and mothers with small children by doctors and medical installations. Admission of women for confinement into hospitals, further transport on hospital ships, provision of small children with milk.

The transport of sick and injured from outlying Homes for the Aged and Homes for tubercular cases whose evacuation was necessary, in order not to afford the enemy propaganda material, required and especial regulation. The deportation from Karasjok, Boersely, Kautokeine, and Talvik and/or Korsfjord took place under the responsible leadership of Oberarzt Dr. Gaebler with medical trucks of the Wehrmacht and our own boats used for this.

The population could only take what baggage they could carry, on account of the restrictions of the transport space. The cattle had therefore to be taken over by the Wehrmacht against memoranda receipt, as far as it could not, in individual cases, be taken along.

After extension of the evacuation time an extensive salvaging of important economic goods was also ordered for the civilian sector. Here the execution was the responsibility of the Wehrmacht. Furthermore, a final search was carried out by the Norwegian police detachments on the islands and outlying localities. Destruction will accordingly only be ordered by the subordinate sector commanders (Unterabschnittskommandeure) and/or rear guard officers in agreement with the evacuation commissioners when the salvaging of valuable economic goods (especially fishery equipment) is finished, or impossible.

Salvaging of the reindeer herds took place by an order to the Lapps to drive their herds to the west over Kantokeino-Holligskogen into a reception territory in Tromsfylke.

A retreat to the South was prevented by a blockade on the Swedish border, a lock at Helligskogen made possible the driving through of the reindeer herds by the march movements of the unit on to the highway Finland-Skibotn. This action cannot be finished yet, since on account of the slight snowfall, the expedition of the Lapps, could not be put into operation yet to full extent. Where a herd could not be transmitted farther, part of the animals were taken over against memoranda receipts by the Wehrmacht; the Lapps were nevertheless left the minimum necessary for existence, IV Results In the reception organization, including the fishermen already settled on the Lofotes 36,914 persons were taken all together.

About 5,000 persons migrated before the start of the evacuation up till October from East Finland. About 1100 persons have migrated by means of self-aid without passing through the reception organization a smaller residue of workers of the Wehrmacht is to be moved off later with the unit.

About 10,000 persons have remained in the area of Kirkenes, as a result of the war events. In West Finland and East Troms only 8,500 persons, in the main Lapps, are left behind, whose deportation was only of interest in connection with the finding back of reindeer herds.

The evacuation in the territory between Lyngenfjord and Porsangepfjord could therefore be carried through almost completely. Even voices of the Swedish press had to admit the success of the action and speak of an almost 100% evacuation of the population.

The success of the action was made possible through the excellent cooperation of all participating offices of the Wehrmacht, the Reichs Commissioner, and the Norwegian administration.

Experiences Orderly evacuation under the conditions imposed is only possible if an orderly method of seizure is present in the hands of an administrative medium.

Both were not at hand. The Norwegian citizens were partly the first to leave their realm of their own accord. The administration in Hammerfest and in Talvik worked well.

Even in short periods for evacuation, a frictionless development is possible, if a calendar is also at hand in civilian offices for the evacuation of important goods. Idleness and avoidable losses of important goods result from improvising.

It contributes in any case to the quieting of the population, if every family can have at their disposal a memorandum with the individual orders for carrying out the evacuation. Such a memorandum was to be issued by Minister Lie according to the suggestion of the Army Hq, but came too late, to have any great effect on the population.

Some untoward events, such as the execution of the "Law concerning hand and span services" with the separation of the men from their families to be deported and with guarding like prisoners, burning down of houses in the presence of the inhabitants even where an immediate destruction was not necessary and shelling of the locality Kjellefjord by units of the navy, hinder the readiness of the population to follow the officially prescribed way.

(sgd) Herrmann Col and Leader of the Evacuation Staff Distribution:

MR. RAPP: On page 23, Your Honors, is a breakdown of evacuations as of 25 November 1944. It is an enclosure to the document I was just reading into the record, and it gives a breakdown of people who have been evacuated and people who have not been evacuated, and also how many remained. These, then, added together on page 24 in a grand total of those to be and those which have been evacuated amounts to 62,000 persons; however, there is a better breakdown, if Your Honors turn to page 25. This particular document by itself, NOKW-090-a, which is being offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 507. This document shows "Table of Evacuation as per: 25 November 1944; number of inhabitants to be evacuated on 9 April 1940: East Finnmark approximately 25,000, West Finnmark approximately 27,000, Trom, Eastward Lyngenfjord approximately 10,000 amounts to 62,000. And then Execution of Evacuation: Evacuees: Evacuees reported via Tromsø to the south 29,014, via Narvik approximately 3400."

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Mr. Rapp, I don't quite understand the expression "Execution of Evacuation--Evacuees," Paragraph 2, NOKW-090-a, Exhibit 507.

MR. RAPP: That is right, your Honor, what it pertains to is the population to be evacuated in this operation, based on a count of the population made on the 9th of April 1940. It's probably in somewhat awkward translation.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Yes, it seems a little ambiguous.

MR. RAPP: In other words, they used the official count of the population of the 9th of April 1940 to reach the figure of 62,000. That is the number they were concerned with an intended to evacuate.

JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

MR. RAPP: And then below are the figures they have actually evacuated, listed under Execution of Evacuation, I won't read all these figures into the record. It amounts to about 36,914; and then there are a few left, and then it says "Wehrmacht workers, evacuated with the troops, 285, and it amounts to about 43,300 persons, and then under paragraph 2, they have a number of persons which weren't evacuated; Unable to leave East Finnmark in time, approximately 10,000, and then the number of Lappanders remaining, and refugees avoiding evacuation, and both totals together amount to the grand total of 62,000, which was given at the beginning of this document.

The last document, Your Honors, is an excerpt from a War Diary. It is not signed. Under the entry of 1115 hours, it says: Orientation of the Commander-in-Chief on the situation by the Chief of Staff in the presence of the Ia and Ic.

1.) Report on the situation at the Corps and this is stated in plural. Measures of the Army are approved by the Commander-in-Chief

2.) Nickel Mine Kolosjoki:

The Commander-in-Chief requests that Director General Baron Wrede be informed that transporting and loading of the entire Army will require about 5 - 6 weeks.

Mining the ore during this period is of far-reaching importance to us." "In case difficulties occur, in view of the

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Have you found that document?

MR. RAPP: I'm referring to 2026.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I object to the submission of this document. I have here before me the photostat copy, and on this photostat copy no notes become obvious at all. There are just two typed notes-slips of paper-which at sometime or other were made by some authority or other, and this proves absolutely nothing, and it does not prove that it is part of a War Diary.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is that in reference to Exhibit No. 507 or No. 508?

Dr. FRITSCH: The document which was just read by the Prosecution.

MR. RAPP: It has no reference to Exhibit No. 507 or 508; it has a reference to a document which I was about to put in as an exhibit.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: NOKW-064?

MR. RAPP: 064; that is right.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: And your objection, counsel, is what?

DR. FRITSCH: The document 508, Your honor, NOKW-064.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: And will you repeat your objection?

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, this is a matter of two typed pages on which there is no reference to any War Diary, to anything coming from a War Diary. The photocopy has not been signed. That has been emphasized already and it also has no head. In my opinion, your Honor, it can have no probative value whatever as such documents can be made any time. Perhaps I may submit this document to the high Tribunal.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The objection at this time will be overruled.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, this Document NOKW-064 is being offered as Prosecution Exhibit 508. Under the entry at 1115, it states:

"Orientation of the Commander-in-Chief of the situation by the Chief of Staff in the presence of the 1a and 1c.

"1) Report on the situation at the Corps (plural).

"Measures of the Army are approved by the Commander-in-Chief.

"2) Nickel Mine Kolosjoki:

"The Commander-in-Chief requests that Director General Baron Wredo be informed that transporting and loading of the entire Army will require about 5-6 weeks.

"Mining the ore during this period is of far-reaching importance to us.

In case difficulties occur in view of the importance of the plant for the war effort the Chief of Staff proposes to seize Baron WREDE circumstances permitting, and to force him, under threat of being shot to death to issue orders for the handing over of the plant.

The Commander in Chief gives his approval."

This, your Honors, concludes Document Book No. 22. would like to inquire from the Tribunal if it would be convenient for the Tribunal, possibly, to recess at this time. We are trying to call a witness and I felt we then would not be interrupted in his testimony by the recess if this is agreeable to your Honors.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I have always been quite arbitrary in the matter of proceeding right up to the allotted time, but I will make this exception and recess at this time.

(A short recess was taken).

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Rapp.

MR. RAPP: Thank you very much, your Honor. I have a document before me which we would like to submit at this time, for identification only. It is the script of the Norwegian film which we shall see at four-thirty and then in order not to violate the twenty-four hour rule, we will then ask Monday morning that the document as such be admitted in evidence without having to read the whole script again into the record, which all of us will see this afternoon as part of the picture. I have taken this matter up already with the defense counsel and I believe that defense counsel is agreeable to this.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is defense counsel in agreement with the statement made by counsel for the prosecution?

DR. FRITSCH: Fritsch for Rendulic. Your Honor, it only concerns the Defendant Rendulic whom I represent. I have no objection against this decision on the part of the prosecution.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is agreed.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, this is called Document Norway 13-B and it is offered for identification only as 508-A.

If the Court pleases, I should like to request that the Marshal be directed to summon the witness Ferdinand Jodi.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Marshal will summon the witness, Ferdinand -

MR. RAPP: Jodl.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Ferdinand Jodl.

You will raise your right hand, please, and solemnly swear that the testimony given in this matter will be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help you God.

You solemnly swear that the testimony that you give in this matter will be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

You may be seated.

You may proceed, Mr. Rapp.

MR. RAPP: With your Honors' permission, I would like to examine the witness in the German language.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: There being no objection you may proceed.

FERDINAND JODL DIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. RAPP:

Q Please give us your full name?

A My name is Ferdinand Jodl.

Q When were you born?

A On 28 November 1896.

Q Where were you born?

A Outside Landau in Palatinate.

Q Are you a German citizen?

A Yes, I am a German citizen.

Q What was your profession, witness?

A I was an active officer.

Q Since when did you have this profession?

A I entered the Army on the 2nd of August 1914.

Q And when were you relieved or when did you retire?

A I retired from the Army on 11 June 1947.

Q Are you married?

A Yes, I am married.

Q Have you any children?

A Yes, I have two children.

Q Were you ever a member of the party or it's affiliations?

A No, I was never a member of the Party or any of it's affiliations.

Q Where do you live now, witness?

A I live now in Wiesbaden. However, I retired to Gummersbach in the Rhineland within the British Zone.

Q Are you now free?

A Yes, I am free now.

Q Where were you as prisoner of war at the end of the war?

A I was an English prisoner of war.

Q When were you relieved?

A On the 11th of June 1947.

Q When did you come to Nurnberg?

A. I arrived at Nurnberg about ten days ago. That was the first time. The second time was this morning at 4 o'clock.

Q During the first day in Nurnberg how many times were you cross examined, interrogated, I should say?

A When first I was in Nurnberg I was three times interrogated.

Q And how long did you stay then on the whole?

A Perhaps five days. I arrived on a Friday and I stayed up until Saturday or Sunday. Sunday we did not work and I stayed another three or four days.

Q Can you describe to us your military career in a few short ters. Witness, you can take your ear phones off because I think you will probably understand me without them.

A In 1914, I joined the Army as an NCO in Augsburg, the 4th Bavarian Artillery Regiment. I became a lieutenant and I left the Reichsheer as a lieutenant. During the first World War I served only in the West and only with this regiment at the front. After the end of the First World War I entered, after a short interval, the Reich Army, the Reichswehr; until about 1922 I served at Landsberg as a 1st and 2nd Lieutenant in the 7th Reichswehr Artillery Regiment and then a short time in Munich.

From 1927 to 1929 I was on a Fuehrer's assistance course in Westphalia. From 1929 to 1934 I was in the Reichswehr Ministry as an assistant Fuehrer. Then afterwards in the Department of Foreign Armies. I was in charge of the Russian group. In 1934 until 1935 -

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Witness, a little slower, please.

A 1934 to 1935 I was Battery Chief in Ansbach. 1935 to 1938 I was a teacher of War Tactics at the War Academy in Berlin. 1938 I joined Command of the 12th Corps as Ia to Wiesbaden. In this position I was still when the war broke out. Then, according to my memory, in May 1940, I became of this particular corps. For about 14 days during the offensive in Yugoslavia I was appointed Chief of the General Staff of the 49 Mountaineer Corps and Chief of the General Staff of the 12th Corps -- I was only in the West, as the Chief of the General Staff of the 49th Corps, I was at various points; that is, in France about a fortnight in the Jugoslavian offensive and then, just at the beginning of the Russian campaign I was in Slovakia and also in Poland in the area west of Lemberg-Lwow as Chief of the General Staff of the 49th Mountaineer Corps.

I participated in the offensive against Russia. My unit was at that time in the Donetz Basin and in the vicinity north of the Asow Sea. Approximately on the 10th of January, 1942 I was appointed Chief of the General Staff of the then Army High Command - Lappland which was later the 20th Mountaineer Army. I arrived about the 20th of January, 1942 in Rovanjemi which is in Finland and I remained there and in the same position until the end of February 1944.

Effective the 1st of February, 1944 I was appointed into the Leader Reserve of the OKH and I was transferred and taken to Wiesbaden, which is my native town, and to wait for further orders for my future command.

At the beginning of April the order reached me there to the effect that I should go back to Rovanjemi in order to take over the leadership of the 19th Mountain Corps at the Ice Sea Fron. On 20th April 1944 I took over the leadership of this particular unit. In September 1944 I was appointed commanding general of the Corps. In this capacity I was in the defensive war against the Russian attack on 7 October 1944 where we only succeeded under heavy sacrifices in saving my unit from being kept in a pincer movement by the Superior Russian forces and I managed to take my corps back to Norway.

Then, until the final capitulation, I hold the same position, being the officer in command of this Corps. Then approximately at the end of November 1944, I was given the tactical leadership after being in charge of operations of the Army Department Narvik which consisted, apart from my own units, also of the 71st Corps.

Q. Witness, within what larger unit did the 19th Corps fight? Outside of the 19th Corps, what was subordinated to the 20th Mountain Corps and who was the Supreme Command or of the 20th Mountain Army?

A. The Supreme Commander in command of the 20th Mountain Army was at first General Dietl and later on General Rondulic and in the end it was the General of the mountain troops Boehme.

Q. Witness, did you know General Rondulic? Did you know him personally?

A General Rondulic I met first, as far as remember, in Finland.

Q Did you know him personally, witness?

A Yes, I know him personally.

Q Can you recognize him in here in court?

A. Yes, yes.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You are overlapping the questions and answers. Space the timing between the question and the answer.

Q Witness, will you please leave a small interval between my questions and your answers?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: And more interval between and the next question.

MR. RAPP: Very well, your Honor.

Q Witness, can you point out to us the then General Rendulic, now the defendant Rendulic?

A Yes.

Q Where does he sit?

A General Rendulic is sitting here opposite me,

Q In figures -- speaking in figures, where is he sitting from the left?

A He is the sixth.

Q Thank you. Witness, did your army corps under your command take part in the evacuation, or the so-called evacuation of the province of Finmark?

A Yes, my army corps took part in this.

Q Witness, when did you hear for the first time of forced evacuation of Finmark and that such an evacuation was to take place?

A It is not pass ole for me any longer now to give you a date. I am afraid I do not remember. I can only say for certain that various preludes and considerations occurred before the actual Fuehrer order or Army Order came through during the last days of October and arrived at our army corps.

Q Witness, although as you state here, you can't remember any exact date or any time at all in connection with the Finmurk evacuation, when you did hoar about it, did you take any steps -- that is, before you received the actual Fuehrer order?

A I can roll remember one discussion which I had with General Hoelter but that was a discussion which took place before the Fuehrer order arrived. It must have taken place before the Fuehrer order arrived. This discussion was to the following effect:

"Herr Hoelter, I intend to make an application in writing to the effect that any destruction and evacuation of Finmark should not take place for the following reasons:

"First, my unit which is absolutely exhausted by the various attacks and offensives has something else to do than to deal with evacuations and destruction. We are glad if we can bring our 5,000 rounded into safety to the West and can get supplies of the most necessary things, materials, et cetera. We have no columns in order to transport population.

"Second, I do not believe that the Russians will proceed to the host and will cross the Tana. We are not in touch with them any longer -- with the Russians, that is. We know for certain that the bulk of the Russian units have been transported to the East and, even if the Russians should rant to pursue us, they would be acting differently.

"Third, if we force the population to evacuate and if we burn their houses we therewith create miss givings and ill will amongst the Norwegian population and ombitterment and this ombitterment can be of no practical use to us. We even have to reckon with tho springing in to life of a partisan movement."

When I told this to General Hoelter, he answered: "The A.O.K. is roughly of the same opinion as you but just now the order" -- I do not know exactly what exactly he said it was, a Fuehrer Order or whatever it was -- "has arrived according to which destruction has to be carried out" -- that destruction, that is, and the evacuation -- "and nothing can be done now. The submission of an application in writing is therefore no longer of any use."

Q Witness, who was General Hoelter?

A General Hoelter was the Chief of the General Staff of the Mountain A.O.K. 20.

Q And as such General Hoelter was subordinate to General Rendulic?

A. He was subordinate to General Rendulic.

Q Witness, the discussion which you had with General Hoelter and the arrival of this so-called Fuehrer order were almost simultaneous, weren't they?

A. So I assume.

Q Did you speak to General Hoelter personally?

A Yes, I spoke to him personally.

Q By telephone?

A Yes, by telephone.

Q Witness, in the last days of October of the year 1944, did you have direct contact with the Russian troops?

A I do not remember the date of the last fighting with the Russians any more but it must have been approximately around the 25th of October when the last fight took place that is in consequence of the Russian pincer movement on the east of the River Tana.

Q At this time, this date, 25 October 1944, was if I understand you correctly after the time at which the Russians as you said transported larger units to the East, is that correct?

A Yes, this transfer of strong Russian units must have taken a long time, because the Russians had opposed to my own corps about four or five corps to ours. That is quite a bit of transport, it took a lot of transportation to transfer then to other parts.

Q Alright, witness, I shall put my question in a different way; was the transport at that time in great part concluded, or was it only just starting?

A It must have been like this, that the persecution of Kirkenes was only carried out by only a few small Russian units, and they were originally directed against my own corps.

Q Witness, in your own Army Corps, did you have a so-called 1-c officer; was he in contact with the 1-C officer of the Army?

A Yes, that is correct.

Q At this date we are speaking about, now what, if you can remember, what did the 1-C officer tell you about the enemy position for the enemy intentions, I should say, referring to the mass pursuit of the 20th German Army?

A I probably misjudged the enemy position at this particular point. In the vicinity of Kirkenes there were only about three corps left, or at least we could only establish the existence of three enemy corps. In the direction of Neiden there were even less enemy troops, and beyond Neiden there advanced only very weak Russian forces which went to the West. Contact with the enemy had been lost none or less. Without doubt the enemy left its strong forces either around Potsamo, or he had already transferred them to the south. During the last days of October, in any case, there was no indication whatsoever that the Russians should keep on pursuing us across the Tana River to the West, or that he intended to do so. An absolute guarantee for this, of course, we did not have, because as I already mentioned before the Russians just as at the time when they crossed the Finnish-Norwegian border, also in this case he could stop for sometime at the Tana River in order to wait for the result of some political negotiations with the exiled Norwegian Government.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, just a minute. I do not in anyway wish to direct the prosecution in its questioning, but personally I would be interested in knowing if the prosecutor wishes to present the matter at this time, where this particular river is.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I have just that in mind and have been trying to make arrangements to have one of the representatives of the Norwegian Government to point these places out for us.

THE PRESIDENT: Maybe the witness could do it. However, that is a matter for you to decide.

UNKNOWN GENTLEMAN: (Indicating on map with rule) This is the Tana River and the Tana fiord.

MR. RAPP: Would you be so kind as to stay there?

THE PRESIDENT: You are now having a person testify who has not been sworn or called as a witness. The witness can do so or can try to do so. He should be able to.

MR. RAPP: I am merely trying to do this for the convenience of the Tribunal. If you wish I can have the witness stand and show it to us.

THE PRESIDENT: That is the proper way to do it, rather than having two witnesses on the stand at one time. It should be suggested that he (the witness) speak into the microphone.

Q Will you please show us the Tana River?

A The Tana River is this border river which flows into the Tana fiord. It is a large river, and this is the road by which we retreated. (indicating) And beyond the Tana River, to the west the Russians did not advance.

Q Witness, up to now you spoke of so-called assumptions which at that time you had about the intentions of the Russians; did these assumptions actually come true, that is did the Russians actually advance to the west along this line?

AApart from a few reconnaissance troops the Russians did not actually advance to the west.

C, And when, or at what state, witness, did this take place, and how did it become more and more evident?

A It is very difficult to give a date, because everyday showed more and more that the Russians were for the time being not advancing with stronger forces.

Q Witness, if I understand you correct, that did not become evident until April 1944, when I speak of dates I mean not only just a particular day, but I mean months?

A It was absolutely clear that as far as one could speak of the future at that time the Russians did not intend to advance, unless they intended to start an offensive in the north.

Q From when on did that become evident, witness?

A I could say that from the middle of November it became quite evident that this particular phase of activities had come to an end, and if the Russians intended to advance again that this would be a new campaign, as it was. A date, of course, would be merely arbitrary.

Q Witness, did you receive this order by the 20th Army about the evacuation of Finnmark?

A Yes, I received it.

Q In writing?

AAAs far as I remember, in teletype.

Q On the basis of this order within your unit did the compulsory evacuation begin immediately?

A Yes, it had to begin, because we were in a hurry.

Q Witness, how long did this compulsory evacuation take?

A I am not in a position to make any binding statements about this point as it did not concern me until the beginning of November, and later the compulsory evacuation was supervised by a staff which exclusively been appointed for this purpose.

Q Then give us the date, at what date or approximately what date did you know about this, directly or personally?

A We had to deal with evacuation measures approximately as from November 1 until at the most the 10 or 15 of November, because when I changed my fighting position later from the Tana River to the west I arrived at villages as a rule which had already been completely or partly evacuated.

Q. Witness, were these villages absolutely destroyed?

A. No. When I arrived at these villages, they were not destroyed* Nothing had been destroyed, because our whole unit was actually housed and stationed in these villages. We had to find accommodations, because it was winter and we were near the Ice Sea.

Q. Witness, was the 230th Division within your corps? Was it a unit of your corps?

A. The 230th Division was in my area, but when they came under my command I do not remember anymore in detail.

Q. The evacuation staff which you have just mentioned, which was formed later on, and the main task of which was to supervise the evacuation and carry it out -- now where did this staff receive its troops and men?

A. I should prefer not to say anything about this date, because I had no personal contact with the staff. I had no contact at all, no immediate contact, with them. I never met the staff; therefore I would not like to make just any old statement about something which I do not know for certain.

Q. In other words, witness, the troops of the XIX Corps, which you were in charge of, were never put at the disposal of the staff for evacuation purposes?

A. As far as I know now, and furthermore I don't believe they had any troops. They must have had only columns. It is possible they had columns. It is possible, however, that my quartermaster might have put a column at the disposal of the evacuation staff.

Q. What do you mean, column?

A. Motorized column. If you mean units of any size, regiments, etc., no, that is absolutely out of the question.

Q. Witness, you say you arrived at villages which had been evacuated but which had not been destroyed. Were there any people left in these villages?

A. I have already said that most of the villages were absolutely empty, but on occasions I saw one or two civilians who were packing something.

I saw people with a cow, and similar things, but those were individual cases. Practically, these villages and little towns were evacuated.

Q. And during your service in Finnmark, after the order had been given for the evacuation of Finnmark, you saw no burned villages?

A. No, I saw no burned villages, of course with the exception of Kirkenes, and of course there were villages that had been destroyed during battle.

Q. Did you actually see burning villages, not burned but still burning?

A. I only saw Kirkenes burning on several occasions, in fact, First burned actually by the Russians, and later on through battles, and also through Russian bomber attacks again, and then I saw the barracks which we had built in the vicinity of Kirkenes when we went through.

Q. Witness, did you ever see dead cattle? I mean large amounts, as from a dozen upward.

A. I never saw a dead horse or a dead cow lying about.

Q. Now, witness, let me put it in another way. You said that you called -- that you telephoned General Hoelter, and you gave him three reasons against the evacuation -- I mean to say that you objected. Do you want to say by that, witness, that after the matter had been issued in the form of an order that you were not of the same opinion any longer, that you changed your attitude?

A. The destruction and evacuation also -- this is what I say today and I said it before -- was for me a highly unpleasant and awkward matter, but on the basis of this order, and because I could not guarantee for certain that the Russians would not follow us, I carried out this order.

Q. But you said, witness, that actually the Russians did not follow?

A. Yes, that is what I said.

Q. Witness, as commander or commanding general of the 19th Mountaineer Group, did you ever receive daily reports or other reports from the Army which dealt with the development of the whole tactical situation in Finnmark and in Norway generally?

A. Do you mean with regard to the situation of the enemy or do you mean with regard to the degree of destruction?

Q. No, I mean the actual degree of destruction, witness. After all, the mountain corps which you were in command of then -- did they not have to rely on certain tactical information of the Army?

A. Yes.

Q. The destruction of a country and its evacuation -- are these not tactical matters?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever receive any information on that in connection with a tactical matter?

A. I don't think so, because only at the beginning I and my army corps had to deal with the destruction and evacuation. Later on I took over the leadership of the bulk of the troops. I was in charge of the bulk of the troops of the 20th Mountain Army, which I had to lead back to the new positions, and at a comparatively early date I, with my staff, proceeded into this position.

Q. Witness, I understand that from your former statement. The only thing I wanted to ask you was whether you, as the leader of the bulk of the Army, which after all consisted of a number of troops, whether therefore it was not necessary for you to be tactically informed about other matters which happened in this country?

A. I can only say I was not informed about the destruction tasks, because these orders were sent to the chief of the rear forces and at that time that was the commanding general of the XXXVI Corps.

Q. I did not ask you about destruction tasks. I asked you about destruction that had actually been carried out. Witness, was the compulsory evacuation and destruction of Finnmark a military necessity?

A. Yes, it was, if you expected the Russians to proceed to the west. Apart from that I do not see even today how supplies for the population which was left "behind in north Finnmark could have been procured after all military objects, bridges, roads, and so forth which had to be counted as such would have been destroyed.

In this case about 30,000 people would have been living in a kind of "no man's land", of which perhaps a part, that is those who dealt-

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal wishes to inquire whether there is any likelihood of completing the testimony of this witness before half-past four?

MR. RAPP: Yes, there is, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Will there be cross examination of the witness?

MR. RAPP: I have only one or two other questions, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Will there be some extensive cross examination?

DR. FRITSCH: I do not think that I could finish with the cross examination today, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal has no desire to hurry you in your cross examination, so with that information at hand it is the feeling of the Tribunal that we will now adjourn to Courtroom No. 1 for the continuation of such phases of the operations as indicated by Mr. Denney.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will be seated.

Military Tribunal 5 is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honors, the first film which is being shown will last approximately twenty minutes, and it is a film having to do with the picture in Greece, and is part of the reports of the Office of War Crimes of Greece. It is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 509.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please Your Honors, the captions are in Greek, so they will be translated into both English and German.

(A film entitled "From the Tragedy of our Country" was shown.)

"From the Tragedy of our Country.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, the next picture is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 510. It is a film published under the supervision of the Attorney General's Office, and it was sent to us from the Commission for the Restoration of Devastated Areas in Finnmark.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: We trust that it will be presented with a little more continuity than the one which has just been completed.

MR. RAPP: I hope so too, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is there any further matter to come before the Tribunal at this time?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, we would appreciate it if we could, after the films have been shown and rewound, withdraw them and return them to the delegation from which they came.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: There is no objection.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: If there is nothing further to present at this time, the Tribunal will adjourn until Monday morning, August 25th.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess until 0930, Monday morning, August 25th, 1947.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 0930 hours, 35 August 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the court.

PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, you will ascertain whether all defendants are present in the courtroom.

MARSHAL: May it please your Honors, all defendants are present in the Courtroom.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: You may proceed with the further examination of this witness.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, I believe on Friday last prior to going to the moving picture, I submitted a document for identification only, being the script of the Norwegian picture, and I believe we identified it as 509A. I had distributed that document already to defense counsel and your Honors, and meanwhile the 24-hour rule has elapsed, so we would like to now submit this particular document in evidence, and it is called Norway Document No. 13-B. That is stencilled on the document - Norway 13-B, is to be submitted as Exhibit 509.

In the examination of this particular witness, I believe we stopped when the witness was testifying as to whether or not the evacuation of Finnmark amounted at that time to a military necessity or not, and with your Honors' permission, I would like to take up from there.

Witness, before we left to recess Friday, I asked you, in connection with the evacuation of Norway, whether this evacuation was a military necessity. Do you remember that question? Would you please repeat once more for the benefit of all of us here, what you said at that time?

A: On Friday I explained that the evacuation and destruction of the territories of North Finnmark would have been considered a military necessity for those who had to expect the possibility of a Russian invasion of the territory beyond the Tarna. Only if the Russians had concentrated larger formations in those territories, -- only if a concentration of Russian forces in that territory in Finnmark would have been possible in the winter time, then would it have been possible for the German forces to create a defense position at the Lyngenfjord.

I also stated, with regard to this question of evacuation, that then as well as today, I did not understand how the population of the North Finnmark could have been fed, if all bridges and other military installations had been destroyed, but if we had left the population in this no man's land, I stated that a part of the population, -- and that is that part of the population which carries on agriculture would have been able to live through the winter on their products, but the great bulk of the population was depending on imports of food, and these imports could not have been secured.

Q: Witness, in connection with this statement, I would like to ask you two or three short questions. First of all when did you first become aware, -- because of the 1c report, and because of other things upon which you could draw, --that the Russian forces would not go beyond the river Riva? (Tana?)

A: If one can state a date at all, I think it would have been right to say that I first understood this rightly in November. It was then becoming clear that the Russian forces would probably not follow us.

Q: Do you mean then that with everyday, every month, every week which went by, it became more clear to you that this was the case?

A: Yes, that is correct.

Q: The next question is what did you tell the Norwegian population as the reason for the fact that this forcible evacuation was undertaken in this respect, I do not mean from a military viewpoint, but with regard to all other announcements and notices which you saw; what was the Norwegian population told?

A: I think the most essential part was the contents of the well known announcement, -- public announcement, which was signed by the Reich Commissar at Terboven, and the then General Rendulic. I think in that note probably everything was contained which the population was told.

Q: Witness, do you remember whether in this leaflet, the only thing which was said was with regard to the danger of the Bolshevik movement to the Norwegian population?

A: Yes.

Q: Do you remember, witness, whether this leaflet said anything about the fact that the Norwegian population was eminently in danger of starvation because of the destruction of the military installations which had made it impossible to bring in further food?

A: Well, that I cannot say. I do not remember any details.

Q You yourself are of the opinion that this was one of the essential reasons?

A Yes, I personally think that was the essential reason.

Q But do you not remember whether this was expressed in the public notice?

A No, I don't think so, but I cannot remember.

Q Witness, do you remember then, whether in this public notice, anything was mentioned that there was no reason to have pity for the population?

A Well, I don't think anything like that would have been said in the public notice.

Q Do you remember whether it said anything to that respect in the order which was issued from the 20th Army to the 19th Corps?

A I have already been asked whether this was contained in that order. When I saw the OKW order for the first time, in its original wording - which I had not seen until that point - I said then, and that is about 18 months ago, that I cannot remember that this wording -- that these things were mentioned in the order. Even today I cannot say with certainty because in my mind now the memory of the order from the OKW, is confused - that is, this order which I saw 18 months ago - I confuse with the memory of the order by the OKW which I carried out so many years ago.

Q Witness, you mentioned military destructions which had to be carried out if there was any certainty that the Russians would follow. Do you mean by this "military destruction" - do you also mean the destruction of isolated houses, little fishing shacks, and do you also mean churches?

A No, I did not mean churches in that respect, but everything else would be considered accomodation.

The enemy air force would not mind whether a unit would be accomodated in a house of say three floors or four or five isolated or detached small houses. Some of these in the country, from the military point of view, in the isolated and detached houses, are of more advantage.

Q When you say "detached and isolated houses", do you then mean that the accomodations which were to be tactically and military easy to supervise, but you do not mean when one unit is for instance 10 or 12 kilometers distant from another unit -- you know the neighborhood around there don't you? Isn't it a fact that very often houses are at a great distance, one from the other? Isn't it true that there are isolated houses?

A Yes, that's true. There are houses which are isolated, but usually they are houses which belong to a little settlement.

Q Witness, if I understand you correctly, you fought against the Russians in Finland?

A Yes.

Q At that time, in this fight against your Army, that is against the German army, did the Russian forces have to depend on such accomodations and food and other commodities which the Finnish population gave to the Russians, or such as they confiscated from the population?

A Yes, in part.

Q Putting it in other words, although you said there were almost five Russian Corps, do you mean to say these five Russian Corps were partly dependant upon using such things as they confiscated there - that is as far as food and accomodations and any other things is concerned?

A Yes, that is quite correct for one Corps - that is the Russian Corps which came through the Tundra, and continued on the icy straits because that corps carried food only for five days, and as we know from the statements of prisoners of war, they had been told that they would have to find all of the other food from the Germans.

Q That, from the Germans, but not from the Finns?

A I think in this case that was almost the same.

Q Witness how could it be the same, if the Finnish population was -- the native population -- lived in houses and had their own reserves, whereas the German army was so to speak opposed? I do not understand that.

A I only meant to say by that, that at that time, the Finnish population had already been evacuated, and in that territory there were available Finnish accommodations, and such accommodations as had been erected by the German army.

Q But witness you mean then that four of the Corps were either to fight without essential support of these accommodations or get food from the Finnish?

A Yes.

Q How did these four Corps live? In Bivouacs?

A Well for the major part they were accommodated in old positions which they had before, and later in Bivouacs. That is, field camps. Partly, they also lived in such accommodations as we had been unable to destroy.

A Witness, is it a fact that the Russians, although there was such destruction, were able to progress in Finnmark?

Q No, the Russians did not progress.

Q Was that because of the destruction that the Russians did not follow?

A That is very difficult to say with absolute certainty today. It is quite possible, although not probable, that the fact that so much had been destroyed had an influence on the Russian operations.

Q You have already said, I think you said on Friday -- that the main fighting formation of the Russians, which was the one which would have been provided for the pursuit of the retreating armies, had gone to East Prussia; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Witness although you told us on Friday that you yourself except very occasionally, had never seen destroyed villages or houses or slaughtered cattle, did you know, witness, that such destructions not only had taken place, but also had been continued for weeks and months – that is December and January and later?

A Yes, I knew about that, because after all, I had the order by the AOK, and I knew that this order was being carried out. Further, when the retreat started, I and the troops which were under my command, carried out such destruction and ordered it, in the territory of Karlov.

Q That was quite in the beginning?

A Yes, that's right.

Q But even at a later point you knew that destruction went on?

Q Witness, did you ever receive an order from the Army at any time – I think that would have been right up to the time when you were taken prisoner in April, 1945 -- that this order for the "scorched-earth policy" had been withdrawn?

A No, I don't.

Q Even by telephone, verbally or by any letter?

A No, as up to February, 1945, until April, 1946, I was not in Norway.

Q Would you have been informed of it during your absence, if such an order had been received?

A Yes, I would have.

Q Witness, was it ever mentioned that territories to the west and later to the south should be destroyed, and later also to the south of Finnmark, right up to Norvak and further?

A No, it was never said. I myself, when I was present in Germany, had discussed these questions with my brother. I can almost repeat the exact wording which I used when I told him, and that was in the course of a discussion of the general military position.

A ... "For God's sake don't send me such an order for scorched earth again, because a second time I could not take part in anything like that. If it should be decided to withdraw from the North of Norway and to withdraw into this space south of Narvik, I would not be prepared to lay waste once more flourishing villages and houses and to destroy everything." My brother's reply to that: "I didn't think you would; I didn't expect you to say anything else, and it's quite out of the question." So, it's only in this very personal connection that we considered the possibility of a further laying waste of the territory to Narvik.

Q After this discussion or on the basis of this discussion with your brother, do I understand you correctly if I draw the conclusion that you discussed the whole point with your brother because you were of the opinion that this destruction was unnecessary or for what other reasons?

A I think I'd rather say for humane considerations. This destruction of the North of Finnmark was one of the hardest tasks I had ever been given throughout the war.

Q Did you have any military considerations in that respect or were you only moved by the humane idea?

A I have already, at the beginning of my statements, expressed that I personally, right from the beginning, did not believe that the Russians would progress beyond the River Tarna.

Q Witness, when did you discuss these points with your brother?

A That was at the end of March, 1945.

Q So that was at a time when there was no invasion from the Russians. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q So if the scorched-earth policy had been ordered for Narvik, you not only instinctively but also from a military point of view would have protested against it. Is that right?

A It's very difficult to answer this question because one doesn't know how the conditions had developed; but what I said to my brother and expressed to him was that for absolutely humane principles I would be quite incapable of carrying out against a country in which I had lived, whose people I had come to value and to respect.

And that had no bearing on the fact whether it was military necessity or not. Furthermore, this question of military necessity has always been a much-discussed one. If in this Courtroom I may point this out, even the commander of the enemy forces had to consider the problem whether it would be justified to lay waste and, for instance, to bomb French villages and towns and then invade France. I have read that this question has been debated very intensely. For military reasons it was then decided to further such a policy in order to save human lives, but that one took the risk that through this bombing thousands of French women and children would die. I am quite convinced that there were people in England, as well as in America, but did not agree and did not consider such a policy necessary.

Q Witness, if I understand you correct, do you want to draw a parallel with this explanation or a justification?

A No, I only wanted to state and show that the question of military necessity is always a doubtful consideration. Some people always think any measure is necessary from a military point of view; other people do not agree. I personally have, for instance, when the North Finnmark was destroyed, held that the disadvantages of such an action were greater than the advantages. That is also in case the Russians had pursued us with part forces only.

CROSS-EXAMINATION BY DR. FRITSCH:

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, this is Defense Counsel Fritsch for the Defendant Rendulic.

Q General, your opinion with regard to the pursuit of the Russian Army has been discussed here in detail. May I ask you to answer one question? If it had been considered possible, up till the end of November, that the Russian Army would follow, -- would it not have been necessary to carry out and decide the evacuation even before that point?

A Yes, that's correct.

Q Was just in the North--was there not another point of great importance? I mean the weather.

A Yes, that's right. Before the withdrawal of the forces they were always faced, I'd say, by a horror that the winter would break out. The position was such that we had extraordinary luck with the weather, if the usual big storms had broken out at this time of the year, not only the army but also the population might have had catastrophic experiences through the weather.

Q General, we talked about the pursuit by the Russians. May I ask you, first of all, what forces and at what strength did the Russian forces have when you faced them at the end of October?

AAAt the end of October we had more or less lost contact with the Russian forces. The last battles which only took place on the level of Battalions took place on the Neyden-elf. It is very difficult to say, therefore, what forces we faced at the end of October. I can only say that certain formations or formations beyond the strength of regiments did not cross the Neyden-elf, and the greater part of the enemy forces remained in the Kirkenes.

Q Now, this territory around the Kirkenes was under your jurisdiction wasn't it?

A Yes.

Q You have repeatedly said that the contact with the Russians had been lost. Now then when did the German Army lose Kirkenes?

A I think that must have been toward the middle of October. I do not remember the date exactly.

Q Well, if I put it to you, Herr General, that according to my documents it was on the 5th of November, is that possible?

A That sounds a bit late to me, but may I just work it out in my mind? As far as I remember, it must have been around the 20th of October, but I cannot say this with certainty.

Q Well, anyway the fights took place towards the end of October. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q When you evacuated was only the pursuit of the Russians of importance as far as military points were concerned?

A No. One also had to be prepared for Norwegian units which were in England at the time--would come to this territory...

Q Do you mean they would land there?

A Yes.

Q Do you think other enemies in the country itself did not play any part?

A Well, of course one might consider the danger of Partisans and espionage; but I don't think there would have been any other forces which we had to fear.

Q General, I do not consider the point only from the East, that is yourself, but I also think of the line in the South. I would remind you, therefore, of your relationship with the Finns which had changed. Now, this question: Did they have any bearing on your evacuation for military reasons?

A I must really say that I never considered this problem in any way because these problems did not concern my territory and were not so actual for me as they were for the Army of the 18th Corps or for the 36th Corps. It is quite possible that the Finns forced by the Russians might have been ordered to pursue beyond the South frontiers of Finland. That is quite possible. After all, in the East, also the Bulgarians were forced by the Russians to pursue right into the West.

Q In this connection, Witness, do you know that the Norwegian Government in exile had permitted the Finns to follow the Germans into the Norwegian territories?

A Yes, I know about that.

Q Well, if you considered this fact, would you not say that the question I put to you before gained more importance? Did you yourself never hear anything that the Finns actually penetrated?

A Oh, yes, because they even attacked in position of my forces and the Lyngen fjord but that only up to the point where we had occupied one little corner of Finland. When we left this little corner at the border the Finns ceased to attack. I cannot remember to have any reports to the effect that the Finns had crossed the Norwegian border.

Q Do you mean then that the Finns did not take part in the actual fighting?

A Yes, they did fight, particularly with the 18th Corps and the 36th Corps.

Q How, at that time then could you know whether apart from the Russians, the Finns also pursued your Army?

A I cannot answer that question because this possibility was not so acute in my district. I was not concerned with such a possibility.

Q Do you know the strength of the Finnish Army?

A Well, at that time I think there was only one division, as far as I remember. At least there was one division confronted by us. I think perhaps the whole of the Finnish Army had a strength of about six divisions.

Q Witness, I do not mean the territory in which the Finnish Army faced you but I mean the total of the Finnish Army.

A The Finnish Army was much larger, of course. After all, they had the total front line right from the Varanger bottom down to the Baltic Sea; so they had at least thirty divisions, but I don't remember the actual figure.

Q Would you say that the Finnish soldier, as a soldier, would be of the same quality as the Russian soldier?

A I would say that he would be much superior to the Russian soldier.

Q General, do you know anything with respect to the preparations for the evacuation? In your direct examination you were asked with regard to this point, and you stated then you had received orders to the effect. Now, did you actually know what happened and what was done in order to carry out the evacuation in good order?

A Yes, of course, I know that because, after all, I had my relative orders. The evacuation was a rather big problem. It could only be carried out without any friction if the evacuation plans were strengthened and safeguarded by orders with regard to food and accommodation.

Q I think the roads in the Northern territory were of great importance. Had the roads been prepared for the withdrawal?

A Yes.

Q Can you tell us in detail with regard to this preparation of the roads?

A The disposal of the heavy snow was of great importance. A large organization for the traffic control was necessary and special arrangement had been made to secure the tunnels. Accommodation barracks had been built in the retreat area, military installations had been put up, and medical supplies were ready, and collection and transfer camps had been built.

Q General, you mean all these installations had been built for the evacuation of the civilian population?

A Well, for the civilian population and our own troops.

Q In the area of your supervision, General, did you ever hear of any excesses, riots or cruelties by German troops in the course of the evacuation?

A The first time I heard anything like that was in February or April. I do not remember exactly. That was, I heard and read in Swedish newspapers of an incident which happened in a home for old pensioners. That was a home in Varanger bottom.

Q Witness, I would not like to dwell on rumors or anything which you heard from other sides, but I would like to hear of such incidents which were reported to you because you were the commander of troops.

A Nothing of that kind was ever reported to me in my capacity as commander.

Q Can you tell us anything with regard to the fact whether the demands during the evacuation of the civilian population took preference over the demands of the military troops?

A The position was such that we had to unload munitions and similar materials from our trucks in order to transport the civilian population instead. In some instances we put Red Cross ambulances at the disposal of the civilian population. Although we ourselves had thousands of wounded whom we had to transport into hospitals which lay hundreds of kilometers to the rear. I know of another case where we had a transit camp for wounded which we put at the disposal of the civilian population. This we did although the accommodation for our own troops along the main Route 50 was very limited. The food which we distributed to the civilian population in the area of Tarna--this food did not really mean a sacrifice because those food reserves we could not have taken along with us anyway.

Q But any way the civilian population was supplied with such materials.

AAAs far as we could possibly do that we did it, but after all this was still during the war. Everybody had to fight until his last strength, but I can say with my full conviction that everything was done which could humanly be done under the conditions which we had to struggle.

Q Witness, you went from Kirkenes right down to the Lyngen fjord. Will you be good enough to show us this stretch on the map which we have here?

A (Witness rises from witness stand and is given a pointer). Now, here we are at the end of the Varanger bottom. There's Tarna, Mjor elf, there's Alta here, and there's the Lyngen fjord.

Q Thank you. General, how much time did you need to cover this area? I mean just approximately?

A Well, I think I left Kirkenes about--that means the area around Kirkenes--on the 12th of October, and I arrived beyond the Lyngen fjord, that may have been on the 20th of November.

Q So during this period of the evacuation you were on the way in this territory for about six weeks.

A Well, that means in such a way that I always remained several days in a fighting area.

Q Do I remember rightly, witness, that you stated in the direct examination that never you never saw a piece of slaughtered cattle or dead cattle?

A No.

Q In this connection, I may ask you the following question. With regard to the position of the German Reich, was supply of food one of the most important tasks of the military operations?

A Yes.

Q In the army, and also in your own command, it was particularly attached to the safeguarding and security of food?

A Yes, definitely. It even went so far that in order to safeguard food in the area Kirkenes, I had the order from the high command to hold this area for a longer period than I thought it possible according to the general position.

Q Now, with regard to this attitude of the high command, would the definite slaughtering of the cattle be punishable by the high command?

A Well, the killing of cattle would not have come into the question at all. I can only think that the Norwegian population were not able to hold and to look after the cattle and they therefore transferred them to German soldiers. A similar thing happened in Finland. I remember for instance, I remember in detail, that my staff, before the Finnish population was evacuated, received from the peasants in Petsamo which came under my command, or rather bought a cow for several thousand Finnish marks because the farmer couldn't take the cattle along with them.

Q General, did you ever hear that cattle was burned to death in barns?

A No, I never heard anything like that at all.

Q General, according to your direct interrogation, you stayed in Norway for about three years. Is that correct?

A No, I was in Finland.

Q Oh yes, I am sorry -- Finland. I think you know how the population was made up. Now, generally speaking, what sort of professions did the Finnish population mainly have?

A You mean the Finns? Oh yes, well the Finns apart from the purely city population consists mainly of farmers, forestry workers and fishermen.

Q Now among the last categories, which one was the predominant?

A Well, the peasants, of course, are the predominant category. There are also timber workers, forestry workers, but, very often they sort of exchange, they run together.

Q Now with regard to the Norwegian population, what is the position there?

A I think most of the Norwegian population was engaged in fishing.

Q So that is a very hard and weather beaten sort of person?

A Yes, that is correct.

Q Now what sort of transport means were used by the Finns?

A Almost exclusively their boats.

Q In that respect, do you mean large boats?

A Oh no, they are usually the little fishing vessels.

Q Now if I leave this particular population out of consideration what makes up the Norwegian-Finmark, as far as territory is concerned?

A The Norwegian-Finmark consists mainly of desert-like tundra areas, scattered in the valleys there are some smaller settlements with some agriculture, and for the rest there are also the Lapps who mainly pursue reindeer breeding.

Q Would it be easy to walk about this district off the ordinary roads?

A Well, it would not be possible if you had any vehicles, but a single person could easily cross the country.

Q How many roads -- that is, in this approximately 800 kilometers long territory from Kirkenes to the Lyngen fjord, how many roads are there?

A I think that can be shown clearly on the map. In this district there is practically really only the Reich road 50 and into it run the roads which the Germans have built, Yverlaa, Mjr-elf and the other road along the Finnish-Swedish frontier which runs onto the Lyngen fjord.

Q So you mean in the real Finnmark, there is only one road, is that correct?

A Yes, there is only one road which was completed by the German to carry right through.

Q General, would you agree with me if I say that the destruction of parts of this road and the bridges on this road would have been of decisive influence on a pursuing enemy?

A Yes.

Q Those bridges which were on this Reich Road 50 -- were they already there when the German army marched into Norway?

A I did not take part in the invasion but I know that the Reichsstrasse 50 only existed in parts. I also know that this road running right through and being negotiable for vehicles of all kinds was only created by the German troops and the OT.

Q General, the houses in Finnmark, what were they like? Were they stone buildings or timber buildings? What material were they made of on an average?

A On an average, they were made from timber, log cabins.

Q Do you know anything with regard to forests which were destroyed?

A I think the forest around Alta and also the forests in some side valleys around to the coast were cut in order to produce building material for military installations.

Q General, the town Kirkenes came under your supervision, didn't it?

A Yes.

Q When you left this territory, was Kirkenes destroyed then?

A After the fighting was over, just to give you a sort of measure, about 3 or 4 fifths were destroyed.

Q Do I understand you correctly - you mean that happened in battle?

A Yes, that is in battle. The decisive destruction happened during two Russian air attacks. First of all, half the town, and then in the second attack, essential other parts were destroyed.

Q And you estimate this destruction at about 4/5ths -- that means 80 per cent?

A Well, I would say between 3 and 4 fifths.

Q The remaining buildings, were they destroyed by the German troops when they withdrew?

A No, only in part because we hadn't enough time to do anything like that. We succeeded to blow up the quay's but otherwise the withdrawal was carried out under strong Russian pressure.

Q North of Kirkenes in the Varanger territory, there are the towns Vara and Vard. Were these towns destroyed through military actions or by evacuation measures?

A I can tell you that exactly, because I visited those towns shortly before we withdrew. At that time, Vara, after the last aerial bombardment by the Russians, gave the impression as I mean on a comparative basis, it looked like Nurnberg looks now. Vard was destroyed slightly less.

Q If I remember rightly, you mentioned that you have 5,000 wounded. When you mentioned that figure, did you mean that is at the time when you started your withdrawal or was that another time?

A These 5,000 wounded fell on at about the 10th of October during the course of the fighting. They were constantly being transported to back lines.

Q Would you say you had sufficient transportation for these wounded?

A Oh no, by far not.

Q In spite of this fact, you say you put your own trucks, at the disposal of the evacuation particularly at that of the medical unit?

A I wouldn't like to put it that way. Mainly we gave convoys that means truck convoys, and only in extreme cases and only when we were particularly asked did we send any ambulances.

Q Today in the direct examination you mentioned the public appeal to the Norwegian population.

You say this appeal was signed by the Reich Commissioner and also the Supreme Commander of the 20th Mountain Army Corps. Do you know anything about the relationship of the General Rendulic to the Commissar Terboven?

A. Well, the relationship was not a friendly one.

Q. How do you know that?

A. The Supreme Commander, at the end of November, 1944, visited me in our combat position west of the Lyngen fjord. On this occasion, he also reported difficulties with the Reich Commissioner.

Q. Do you remember any details, any particular remarks from this report?

A. Well, today I do not remember anything in such detail that I could repeat it here.

Q. But you would like--you mean to say that the relationship between the Reich Commissioner and the Supreme Commander was rather tense?

A. If I may add, I think I can just remember one remark which the Supreme Commander made. He said that he assumed the total responsibility for Norway as Supreme Commander in Chief and he would not allow the Reich Commissioner to interfere with this responsibility.

Q. General, with regard to this appeal, I beg your pardon I don't mean the appeal--but I mean the order which came from the army with regard to the evacuation, do you remember that the word "ruthless" was used?

A. No, I do not remember that.

Q. What was the relationship between the soldiers and the civilian population?

A. The relationship was a very friendly one. Particularly, of course, between those soldiers who had lived in this territory Vanga with the population.

Q. That would mean that in order to prepare the soldiers emotionally for the evacuation from their homes of those people with whom they had lived, very definite language had to be used.

MR. RAPP: I object to this type of questioning. I believe defense counsel is getting a conclusion from the witness rather than a testimony.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

MR. RAPP: I believe the witness already has answered, Your Honor to this question. We would like to have this stricken from the record.

THE PRESIDENT: The question may be answered.

BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. Would you answer this question, please?

A. This word "ruthless" I have always considered in that light, that it was to prepare the soldier emotionally because as I have said before, I as well as my soldiers considered this necessity for destruction a very bitter one.

Q. Did you in Norway meet Norwegians who were not Quisling followers?

A. I was hardly ever in Norway. I had my combat position in Petsamo. I only came temporarily to Kivkeneg and in the district of Vard and Vara. After I had lived in those districts, I came to my combat position which was South of Troms. They were very small places. That was the end of November, 1944. I had no personal contact with any Norwegians. That is, neither to Quisling followers nor to anti-Quislings.

Q. Were you not a prisoner of war in Norway?

A. Yes.

Q. During that time of imprisonment, did you talk to Norwegians, particularly did you talk to them with regard to the evacuation?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember any remarks which were made by these Norwegians with regard to the success and the carrying out of the evacuation? I mean their remarks which were made to you in this respect?

A. I never heard any remarks in the negative. Generally speaking, I personally was reproached with having taken part in the destruction of the Finnmark.

Q. Witness, I don't think you understood my question quite correctly. What I want to know is while you were a prisoner did you ever talk with any serious Norwegians with regard to the evacuation? Did you have any conversations to this effect while you were a prisoner of war--and I am particularly interested to know how these Norwegian people now reacted and what they thought of the actual facts which accompanied the evacuation?

A. In no way did I ever find bitterness among the population --at least such people as I talked to.

Q. General, I am coming to the end of my questions. The prosecution maintains that a general plan was in existence according to which the civilian population was supposed to be systematically weakened and broken down. Did you ever hear anything of such a plan?

A. No, it seems to be quite unfeasible to me.

Q. You never knew anything with regard to such a plan?

A. No.

Q. General, did you know the army order which the then Supreme Commander gave by which the transfer of the high command in Norway was announced?

A. No, I cannot remember anything like that.

Q. General, how did these orders finish? I mean what was the salute?

A. We usually said "Long live the Fuehrer", "Heil Hitler".

Q. Was that quite the usual way of terminating any order?

A. Yes, it was.

DR. FRITSCH: I have at the moment no further questions to the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our morning recess at this time.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I have just thought of a other two short questions during the interval. May I ask the witness these questions?

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. General, you said that the carrying out of he order to destroy the Finnmark was a very difficult task to you. Why did you not resign your office as Commander?

A. What use would that have been? I would have put my soldiers into a very difficult position and I would have left them there by themselves. If I resigned another man gets my position and the soldiers have to carry out the orders anyway.

Q. Would you have had the possibility of resigning?

A. No, I wouldn't have had this possibility.

Q. Why not, General?

A. I would have had to give a reason for this resignation; I would have had to give a practical reason why I did not carry out the Wehrmacht orders and I son't have to tell here why I did not want to do so.

Q. Is an order known to you, the order that there was no such thing as a resignation?

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we submit that this line of questioning is entirely outside of the scope of the direct examination and if defense counsel wished to make the witness their own witness, for this particular line of questioning, we have no objection.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I cannot agree with these statements.

THE PRESIDENT: The witness may answer.

BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. May I ask this question again, General? Is an order known to you according to which it was impossible for officers, especially high officers, to resign?

A. I have not seen such order but I have heard about one, and I assume that a resignation of that kind, especially during the war did not exist.

Q. You say that you heard about such an order?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, one other question, witness. General Rendulic, whose defense counsel I am, was in the Balkans, especially in the Balkans and also in Norway. For weeks now the reproach is being made that the German forces, especially in the Balkans, used especially severe fighting methods, and had proceeded in a very serious and were manner altogether.

Now, you stated that General Rendulic, as Commander-in-Chief in Norway, had done every thing in his power to create good and favorable conditions for the civilian population. How do you account for the difference in the warfare in Norway then? Will you please answer that?

A. I believe that the difference in waging war in Norway and in the Balkans or in Russia or even in Finland can be very simply explained. The enemy was of an entirely different nature. The Soviet Russian and the Partisans in the Balkans, as far as I am informed, fought with very brutal attitude and ruthlessness. The German officer and the German soldier could only use the same method of fighting.

DR. FRITSCH: Thank you.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. RAPP:

Q. Witness, were you ever in the Balkans?

A. Yes.

Q. When?

A. At the beginning of the offensive I was in the Balkans.

Q. How long?

A. During the actual fighting I was there only fourteen days and for the preparations I was there for three weeks.

Q. Thank you. Witness, you said that you have never heard about the possible resignation of a German general.

A. I beg your pardon?

Q. I said that a German general could have resigned. You said you had never heard about such a thing. Is that correct? Did you say that?

A. Well, I had heard about it.

Q. What do you mean "heard"?

A. I have heard that a German officer could not resign, in war.

Q. Witness, my question was, whether you had over heard that a German officer or general could not resign.

A. Yes, I have heard of that.

Q. You also said that you do not know about such a case in which actually a general ever resigned. Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean by resignation?

A. By resignation I mean a German general applying for his resignation and says? "I can no longer put my services at the disposal of the Wehrmacht." There were cases, in fact, where this resignation was actually accepted. I believe I seem to remember General Halder, for instance, in such cases, the wish of the applicant was granted and it coincided with Hitler's own wish.

Q. That is your assumption?

A. Yes, that is my assumption, but I also know in other cases, for instance, the case of Field Marshal von Rundstedt, that the application for resignation was not granted. My brother, for instance in his case his replacement was refused.

Q. Witness, at the beginning of your examination, in cross examination, you said that the weather conditions at that time were most favorable for the German Army. Is that correct?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Were they also favorable for the Norwegian population?

A. I think I expressed that.

Q. Witness, furthermore, you were asked in the cross examination whether one was ever afraid that Finland, after it had been excluded from the German coalition pact, had ever really been an actual enemy of the 20th Army in Finland or whether it could have been an enemy ever. Witness, did the Finnish General Staff or the Finnish Government report to the Army in Finland at the proper time that the Finnish Government was turning away from Germany and did they, through this measure, give the opportunity to the German Army to withdraw from Finland immediately?

A. The information came with a time limit of a fortnight. This time limit of a fortnight was not enough, quite insufficient in fact, to grant us a proper orderly withdrawal from Finland.

Q. But generally it is a fact, witness, is it not, that the enemy does not usually give a fortnightly time limit and then says after that we attack?

A. Well, these were special conditions.

Q. But a fortnight was better than nothing at all, witness, was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, witness, you also spoke about your not having seen any atrocities being carried out on the part of members of the 20th Army and you also said that you saw no vandalism of any kind; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Witness, at the beginning of your examination, in cross examination, you said that the weather conditions at that time were most favorable for the German Army. Is that correct?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Were they also favorable for the Norwegian population?

A. I think I expressed that.

Q. Witness, furthermore, you were asked in the cross examination whether one was ever afraid that Finland, after it had been excluded from the German coalition pact, had ever really been an actual enemy of the 20th Army in Finland or whether it could have been an enemy ever. Witness, did the Finnish General Staff or the Finnish Government report to the Army in Finland at the proper time that the Finnish Government was turning away from Germany and did they, through this measure, give the opportunity to the German Army to withdraw from Finland immediately?

A. The information came with a time limit of a fortnight. This time limit of a fortnight was not enough, quite insufficient in fact, to grant us a proper orderly withdrawal from Finland.

Q. But generally it is a fact, witness, is it not, that the enemy does not usually give a fortnightly time limit and then says after that we attack?

A. Well, these were special conditions.

Q. But a fortnight was better than nothing at all, witness, was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, witness, you also spoke about your not having seen any atrocities being carried out on the part of members of the 20th Army and you also said that you saw no vandalism of any kind; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that you had never heard of rumors of such vandalism. Now, witness, if I understand you correctly, this negative answer of yours can only refer to the time, as you said on Friday, at which you actually had something to do with the evacuation measures. Is that correct?

DR. FRITSCH: I object, Your Honor, please, this is a typical case of a leading question.

THE PRESIDENT: He may answer.

A. I repeat my former statement. I heard for the first time of an atrocity in February, or possibly April 1945. The 6th Mountain Division was reproached within or in the neighborhood of an old age home, of having burned a house with an old man inside. On instruction of AOK I at that time cross-examined by court martial those who were supposed to have been in charge of this. I read the affidavit of the man in charge, the engineer platoon leader. I had it in my own hands, in fact, and I read that he himself, before it was burned, that he examined and searched each house, and that he thought it quite impossible that this case had actually happened.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I have only one question to ask. My attention was drawn to the fact by my colleague, Dr. Latenser, that the word "court martial", which the witness used, was not translated. I would like you to ask the witness to repeat, perhaps in one sentence.

MR. RAPP: I have heard it. I heard it translated.

THE PRESIDENT: In order that there may be no question about whether it was translated or not, the witness will repeat the statement to which reference has just been made concerning the actions in connection with court martials.

THE WITNESS: I repeat, I had the matter in question examined through the competent authorities, which was in the case a court martial.

Q. Witness, you told us that your brother, who was the Chief of Staff of the defendant Rendulic, and of course you also, were against this order, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you said furthermore, witness, that a proclamation was made directed to the Norwegian population which was to the same effect as the OKW order, which was signed by Rendulic, as well as by Terboven is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you regard this order as a so-called Fuehrer Order?

A. I never thought about this. This red poster I only actually saw once or twice stuck on walls of houses. Otherwise I never had it in my own hands.

Q. Witness, perhaps you haven't understood my question correctly; the poster was not the actual order of which I speak; I mean't whether the order which you in the 19th Corps received from the 20th Army, and which came from the OKW, whether this order was regarded by you as a Fuehrer order?

A. Yes, for the reason that according to my memory the order contained in its first phrase that "the Fuehrer has ordered." I don't remember exactly, but I think I am almost certain that it was so.

Q. Witness, did you ever in your military career, and you have been asked questions here about Finland, the Balkans, Russia and Norway, -- did you ever see a proclamation to the population which was really like an order?

DR. RITSCH: Your Honor, the way he puts this question shows that it is a suggestive question, a leading question, and I protest.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I am trying merely to refresh the 'Witness' memory about what he has been asked here, and I have not at all stated my question.

THE PRESIDENT: You may conclude your question.

Q. Did you ever see such proclamations at all which were signed by a supreme command, and also at the same time by a political personality?

A. I cannot remember having seen such an order or proclamation anywhere.

Q. Did that mean anything to you?

A. I never thought about this. I was much more interested in the general over-all problem than with regard to a proclamation.

Q. Witness, do you mean to say that on the basis of the fact that this order was a Fuehrer Order you were bound to carry out this order?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you have carried out a repetition of this order in the sense of this discussion with your brother?

A. I expected this question, and I accept all consequences too. Secondly, then I would not have agreed to the destruction of things and villages probably after I did not see the necessity of them, and I would have taken all consequences in general.

Q. General, what would the consequences have been?

A. I would have been shot immediately.

CROSS-EXAMINATION BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. Witness, I have only two questions which result from the direct examination; Mr. Rapp asked you, General, whether it was usual that the enemy was informed before that you would be attacked in 14 days; how was the relationship with the Finnish Army?

A. Our relation with the Finnish Army was excellent.

Q. Did that come out of these very critical days?

A. Partly, yes. I had nothing to do with the Finns. I was not actually a witness, because up there we had no troops in our district; but I do know that those Finns whom I had dealings with were in excellent relationship to us until the last moment, and they regretted the unfortunate development very much.

Q. Do you mean this way, they did not approve of the attitude of your Government?

A. No.

Q. The second question, General, is in connection with the proclamation. The prosecutor asked you whether you saw such a general proclamation at another place or on another date; in any of the occupied territories was there a Reichskommissar apart from the supreme commander?

A. I believe not.

DR. FRITSCH: Thank you. I have no further questions, Your Honor.

Just one moment, please.

I have no further questions, Your Honor.

MR. RAPP: The Prosecution had no further questions, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Are there any questions desired to be asked by members of the Tribunal -- Judge Carter?

JUDGE CARTER: No.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Burke?

JUDGE BURKE: I have none.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors, please, we would like to turn now to Document Book 23. If Your Honors will turn to page 1, please, of the Document Book 23, and this is also on page 1 of the German Document Book. This is a report in the nature of a decision made by the Police Chief in Finmark in the town of where the Norwegian Government carried on an intensive investigation of war crimes committed by the 20th Army during that time.

DR. FRITSCH: Mr. President, in order to save time I would like to object now against the submission of these documents. These are not official documents at all, they are just reports of the general atmosphere, without any reference material of any kind, and it is a report which has not been sworn to, and from which nothing becomes evident, and it has no similarity with any acceptive evidence material or any probative value.

MR. RAPP: Most of the documents contained in this document book are similar to this Document No. 1. They were put at our disposal by the liaison officer and representative of the Attorney General's office in Norway. He has made out the covering certificate which I will offer at the end of this presentation, that all of these affidavits have been submitted to him, they have been taken in his presence or by persons working there in conjunction with and under his authority, and we submit that we would like to have these documents admitted into evidence, and your Honor yourself should decide how far the probative value of these documents should be adjudged.

THE PRESIDENT: First, may I inquire, Mr. Rapp, if the affidavits or depositions are in the form which has been approved by the Tribunals, or the rules for the Tribunals?

MR. RAPP: If Your Honor, please, I would like to pass up to you the affidavit so you may decide yourself as to whether this would meet with your requirements.

THE PRESIDENT: I think then your preliminary proof should be presented first, rather than the affidavits and the supporting certificate.

MR. RAPP: As Your Honors will note that many of these affidavits are made at a time, or quite a number of these affidavits were made at a time by the Norwegian Government when Ordinance No. VII was not known either to this Tribunal or to us, and the Norwegian Attorney General has travelled around extensively in these Northern parts of Norway and has gotten these affidavits on the basis they are used to, that is according to their laws and their regulations, and I do not know whether or not the affidavits as they are today will comply meticulously to the rules laid down in Ordinance No. VII. Nevertheless, I will have Colonel Volestad, who took these affidavits and who is present here and who could also, if the Court so chooses, take the stand in order to give the Court information as to how these affidavits were obtained, and the nature in which they were obtained, and elaborate on that particular rule.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, may I say something to that? The first report which will be submitted with a new exhibit number, is of 14 March 1947. That is a date when doubtlessly the rules of this court were known. These rules have not been kept to. There is no explanation of any kind in these documents that they were made in forms of affidavits or that they have been sworn to.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, as I would like to repeat, and I am sure you will appreciate this particular emphasis I am trying to make, these reports were not made by us, they were made by the Norwegian Government, and we are trying to have them submitted for whatever probative value the Tribunal wishes to give these reports.

THE PRESIDENT: You are presenting, Mr. Rapp, an affidavit which is not in the form as has been approved of by the rules laid down for these tribunals, am I correct in that?

MR. RAPP: In some cases it is true, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: That being true, can they be offered with any degree with which you could support them and on which the Tribunal could receive them.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we felt that it was technically not possible for us to bring all the affiants down to Nurnberg, we, therefore, we asked Col. Volestad to be present here and thought if there was any question as to the procedural value of these affidavits, the Tribunal might like to avail itself of the opportunity of talking to Col. Volestad, to see whether or not, as matter of fact, all rules were observed as laid down in Ordinance No. VII.

THE PRESIDENT: It is not for the Tribunal to satisfy itself in that respect. It seems to me it is incumbent upon the prosecution to present affidavits that are in keeping with the rules laid down for the Tribunals.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I have pointed out before that though Document Norway No. 1 was possibly made at a time when the rulings were known, I can see about 7 documents which were made at a time when the ordnance was not published or not known. How could we go about after this has been submitted to us to get this changed at this time? Would it be agreeable to the Tribunal if we put them in for identification, and we are trying to get the necessary rules and procedures as laid down under Ordinance VII affixed to these documents?

THE PRESIDENT: You can, number them for identification, and if you wish submit them later in what you think is the proper form to the Tribunal, and we will give consideration to them then.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, that will be agreeable to us.

DR. FRITSCH: May I just ask, Mr. Rapp, if this applies to all the documents of this document book which are now numbered?

MR. RAPP: The documents which are in this book, although reaching us through the Norwegian government are German reports that is official German Army orders, as for instance the document Norway No. 4, Norway No. 6, Norway No. 7, Norway No. 8, Norway No. 10. These documents are regular German reports which fell into the hands of the Norwegian Government, and were turned over to us, and they have the regular certificates saying where they came from, and we believe there is no question as to the authenticity of these particular documents, so I feel we could put these in and withhold those which are in the nature of an affidavit but are not at this time admitted by the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will receive and give consideration to the old captured army documents. If you wish to present them we will consider them one by one when they are presented. As to the others, the Tribunal is not receptive to their consideration at this time in their present form.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, may I inquire from the Tribunal whether or not it would be acceptable to the Tribunal if the Prosecution would put Col. Volestad on the stand to testify as to the nature of these documents? This is merely in the nature of an inquiry?

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, this seems to be a procedure which is not in agreement with the general rules. It is important that each individual man who made these statements was conscious of having made these statements under oath. That is one of the essentials of affidavits, and that cannot be borne out by the witness either.

THE PRESIDENT: If the Prosecution wishes to call the suggested witness he may do so, and we will rule on the matters as they develop.

MR. RAPP: Very well, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: We are not telling you how to submit your case.

MR. RAPP: We appreciate this, Your Honor, I would like to in the nature of the existing rule of 24 hours, inform now the defense that we may call this colonel to testify about this.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I may call your Honors attention to the fact that this witness has been present here since the beginning of the proceedings, and in my opinion therefore he can not be examined as a witness at this point.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honor will then mark the following documents for identification only, Norway No. 1 for identification 511-A, Norway No. 2, for identification 5 -----

Am I going too fast, Your Honor?

THE PRESIDENT: No.

MR. RAPP: 511-A, Norway No. 1.

THE PRESIDENT: Where is 510?

MR. RAPP: 510 was offered, the Norwegian picture we saw last Friday.

THE PRESIDENT: And the script is 509, and 510 is the picture itself?

And now if your Honors will turn please, to page 11, there we have a document which is Norway 4, offered as Prosecution 514. This is a report submitted by the Mountain Army Corps, dated the 30th of October, 1944. It was at that time commanded by the previous witness, Jedl. It is secret, and the subject is: Comment of the Division Commander of the 210th Infantry Division concerning the evacuation.

To 20th (Mountain) Army High Command Enclosed I am transmitting a comment of the Commanding Officer of the 210th Infantry Division concerning the problem of evacuation with which I concur completely.

1 Enclosure (initial) J This report is dated the 29th of October, 1944, 210 Infantry Division Commanding Officer, 1c.No. 1114/44 Secret.

Stamped, Corps Headquarters, XIX Mountain Army Corps, Received 31 December 1944.

This, Your Honor, is as it actually appears on the original document. We understand that this is rather ambiguous, how this report could have been received by the XIX Army Corps on the 31st of December. Yet, on the 30th of October, it is being forwarded to the 20th Army.

If your Honors wish, I could pass this up to the bench so that you could see this yourselves.

Competent Officer : Ic Diary No. 1479/44 Secret Comment concerning the evacuation

1.) The Division has pressed for more than a year for the evacuation of the Varanger area, Repeatedly the Division approached the office of the Reichs Commissar in Kirkenes requesting it. Again and again Government Councillor Dr. Schaud as well as the present incumbent of the office, Landrat Neven explained that the Reichs Commissar in Oslo did not agree to the evacuation.

When, during the past summer Russian hostilities increased the Division again contacted the office of the Reichs Commissar in Kirkenes with the request to speedily initiate the evacuation.

The heavy air combat on Kirkenes, Vadsoe and Vardoe toward the end of August caused me to personally request the speedy evacuation of the population now. The psychological moment seemed to me particularly suitable. Actually I was informed from many levels of the population that at that time they were willing to carry out an evacuation according to plan.

"However the evacuation measures had to remain half measures since the Reichs Commissar in Oslo rejected any compulsory evacuation. At the occasion of the evacuation of some houses in Kirkenes the Deputy of the Reichs Commissar was informed by Reichs Commissar Terboven that Reichs Commissar Terboven reserved for himself personally the evacuation of each individual house. This directive was issued because the chief of the Organization Todt, Senior Architectural Councillor Dr. Luehrs during a visit in Oslo called the attention of the Reichs Commissar to the fact that the Division intended to carry out compulsory evacuation.

When the Commander in Chief of the 20th (Mountain Army) visited the Varanger area on 26 August 1944 I submitted to him the view of the Division according to which the area from Vardoe to Vadsø would have to be evacuated immediately in any case, if necessary compulsion. I asked him to influence the Reichs Commissar in Oslo to grant the necessary authority. However, a decision as suggested by the Division was not made.

11.) The last minute evacuation measures could not be successful as had been foretold by the Division on the basis of their knowledge of the local situation.

The reasons for that are as follows:

- 1.) Transportation via sea is too dangerous; no civilian can be influenced to go aboard.
- 2.) Transportation possibilities via land are exhausted excepting minor possibilities, as far as the Division can see."
- 3.) The civilian population does not fear the danger inherent in remaining any more than it does the dangers of transportation of any sort.

111.) At this time compulsory evacuation is to be carried out in the territory still remaining. The troops cannot be employed for this purpose without endangering the defense tasks. However, the Division is ready to round up whatever can be rounded up of the population with the organs of Reichs Commissars, of the SD and of the Secret Field Police. Here however, one must state frankly that large parts of the population have fled to the barren lands.

They no longer can be captured. That is why the Division will limit itself primarily to the settlements along the roads. In as far as that goes, the population will be ordered suddenly to evacuate and a short time limit will be set. In order to compel the evacuation the population will simultaneously be informed that all houses will be burned down. It is the view of the Division that this is the only way by which anything at all can still be accomplished.

At this time Sturmbannführer Baberske and the Secret Field Police by agreement with the Chief of Police (Lensmann) who is reliable, are establishing the parts of the population of the Tana area concerned. This was done at the initiative of the Division. Execution of the operation suddenly after information has been received of the actual space available for transportation. It must be avoided that the operation brings about the assembly of larger parts of the population, who then can not be evacuated.

Permit me to point out that such compulsory measures no matter how successful individually encounter serious objections of the political kind. The short time limit and the limited transport space will make it possible to evacuate only several hundred persons.

The mass of the population which in the Tana area alone 3,000 are still living, can not be removed. One should consider whether the disadvantage arising from the bitterness of the remaining population is not larger than the advantage accruing from the evacuation of several hundred persons.

I myself believe it is more valuable to retain the high reputation of the German Wehrmacht here instead of burdening it with compulsory measures.

In addition the effect of compulsory measures can not be foreseen. It is to be feared that partisan and sabotage matters will increase considerably in the rest of Norway to which the Corps will withdraw. Exactly these elements which have been evacuated by compulsion offer themselves for this work. On the other hand it may be advantageous if the German Wehrmacht continues its beneficial attitude toward the population until the end. It will soon become common knowledge that the Russians employ the population to compulsory labor in the territory occupied by them. With some clever propaganda we might be successful in bringing closer to us the population in the rest of Norway by exactly this procedure.

Finally I wish to state that Sturmbannfuehrer Baberske, the German Political Advisor of the Fylkesmann, who is there by order of the Reichs Commissar shares these objections.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honors, there is a certificate contained in this document, a certificate of somebody called, "Rolf Schnyder". According to my knowledge Mr. Schnyder is a member of this division. In this certificate it is certified that it is a true and correct photo copy, and that the original is in Oslo.

I think it my duty to clarify this question, because I do believe that Herr Schnyder as a member of the local prosecution, is not allowed to issue a certificate of this kind.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, all individuals in the office Chief of Counsel of War Crimes are members of the prosecution staff. There is no independent individual, with the exception of those individuals under the Secretary General, who are not members of General Taylor's staff, and as such, serve as part of the prosecution. I believe, therefore, that the objection of the defense counsel to this particular certificate is rather irrelevant.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: May I inquire as to where the certificate is in this document book to which reference has been made.

(Mr. Rapp handed the document to the Tribunal)

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: The Tribunal will give consideration to the objection just made, and during the recess period will study the matter further, and will make the necessary ruling when we reconvene after our noon recess.

The Tribunal will be in recess at this time until one-thirty this afternoon.

Court No. V, Case No. VII.

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours.)

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: The question before the Tribunal at the time of adjournment was to certain of these exhibits, and the Tribunal is of the opinion that until they have met the requirements as set out by Ordinance 7, Article 7, that they should not be admitted.

That particular article and section is very liberal, add it should not have been difficult to have covered that requirement as set out therein.

That indicates the attitude and the rulings of the Tribunal.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, may I just point something out to the Tribunal, not in any kind of reflection as to the ruling the Tribunal has handed out, but merely in the nature that I believe there is possibly a misunderstanding on the part of defense counsel.

The documents referred to as certified by this individual are in the original here, right in Nurnberg. They were brought to us as originals from Oslo, Norway. They were then photostated, and returned to the Norwegians for their archives. The individual certifying merely states that he has compared the photostatic copy to the original.

I believe that defense counsel was inquiring about that one particular point and we have the originals of these documents right here.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: There is no question raised as to that part, - that phase, but it is as to the manner of the certification, and as to the jurat, or the swearing. There is nothing of that nature attached to the document.

MR. RAPP: Very well, your Honor.

Your Honors will recall that prior to offering this Document Book 23, I made the statement, which possibly escaped your Honors' attention, saying that we have a covering affidavit from the Norwegian government, for all of these documents, and that I will submit this particular affidavit at the end of my presentation.

I believe that I have made this or a similar remark at the beginning of cutting these documents in.

We have this affidavit before us, and if your Honors wish, we could put that in at this time.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: It is not for the Tribunal to say what you should or should not do. If you care to put it in, you may do so. We will rule on it as we see fit.

MR. RAPP: All right, your Honor. Then we will submit this affidavit at this time. We were not prepared to make sufficient copies of it to go all around to defense counsel, and use it as an individual document, so with your Honors' permission, I would like to mark this for identification, and after the 24-hour period has elapsed, I will see to it that the necessary copies as required will be furnished to all concerned.

I would like to submit this, Your Honor, for identification as No. 155-A.

If your Honors now please, turning to Document Book 23, page 17, this is being offered as Prosecution Exhibit 516. This is in the nature of an official report from the -

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: This is Norway 5?

MR. RAPP; Norway 5, that is correct, your Honor.

This is in the nature of an official report, -

DR. FRISCH: I beg your pardon if I have misunderstood the decision of the Court. Just before the interval, before the recess, my objection to the certificate had not been decided on. It was the certificate referring to the preceding document, that was Norway No. 4.

I pointed out to the Tribunal that there was a certificate on the part of Mr. Schnyder. I believe I do not have to repeat my argument. The Tribunal had promised the decision concerning this particular case.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: You may continue with your remarks.

DR. FRISCH: Your Honor, I had pointed out that in this document, Norway No. 4, Exhibit No. --- I don't remember it, -- it is 514, it is a certificate of a member of the prosecution staff, Mr. Schnyder. In this certificate it is certified that it is a correct photostat and that the original document is in Oslo.

THE PRESIDENT: As to this particular objection the same will be overruled.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, in this case perhaps I haven't expressed myself correctly. May I in this case ask whether Herr Schneider did actually see the original document in Oslo, and on account of his actual inspection of the document decided to certify it?

THE PRESIDENT: He certifies to the fact that it is a copy of the original - of a document filed in German archives.

DR. FRITSCH: Yes, and in my opinion it says at the end of the document that the original document is in Oslo.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, it makes no difference where the document is if he certifies that it is the original -- a copy of the original. The objection will be overruled.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors permit, now, we turn to Page 17 in Document Book 23, Page 19 in the German Document Book. This particular document are excerpts from an official report of the Norwegian War Crimes Commission, dated the 20th of April 1945. That is at a time when Norway was not yet liberated, and it states as follows: "The City Engineer of Hammerfest: The devastation of Hammerfest after the compulsory evacuation of the population at the beginning of the month of November 1944. On Sunday 29 October it was proclaimed that 'the population of Finnmark was to be compulsorily evacuated immediately.' The first district of Hammerfest to be evacuated was FuglenesStorelven at the latest Monday, 30 October, 1200 hours. On Monday 30 October I called on the then Island Command Major Gaedke, who simultaneously was Evacuation Commissar."

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I would suggest that regarding the question which we talked about, that Mr. Rapp should explain and state whether he wants to use this document only for identification or for evidence.

MR. RAPP: May I be permitted to answer this question, Your Honor?

THE PRESIDENT: Yes.

MR. RAPP: This document we submit as evidence. It's an official report from the Norwegian War Crimes Commission. It's not in the nature of an affidavit and, as such, is admissible under the rules of the ordinance. And it was, as a matter of fact, written at the time when Norway was still occupied. I believe that the ruling of one Tribunal this morning pertained only to affidavits. This is not an affidavit but a report.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, in that case I protest. I object against submission of this document. It is a report of some kind of local engineer, and it does not become evidence from the fact that it is an official government report.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any certificate showing as to ...

MR. RAPP: Yes, that particular certificate is covered in the certificate I have just submitted for identification, made out by Colonel Follestad. In other words, this report was one of many reports submitted to the Norwegian War Crimes Commission and the Attorney General's office, from which they were in turn made a complete report.

THE PRESIDENT: Now is this admissible until your certificate can be received properly?

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, we believe that under the rules an official report of any nature by a War Crimes Commission or members thereof are admissible in evidence.

THE PRESIDENT: Yes, but we do not have that certificate.

MR. RAPP: Very well; then we offer this for identification for the time being, but not on the reasons as set out by defense counsel.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, that's all right, but it's not acceptable in its present form, and not without a certificate showing as to its authenticity.

MR. DENNEY: Excuse us for a moment, Your Honors.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors permit, we were just trying to find out from defense counsel whether or not they would waive the twentyfour hour rule, but they want to find out whether or not the certificate was official; so we are trying to get them a translation of this certificate. So, if Your Honors permit, I shall take the liberty to go to those documents now about which there seems to be no argument. And the first one I'd like to submit as such is the Norway No. 8. It will be offered as Prosecution 's Exhibit No. 517, and if I may call Your Honors' attention to the fact that Norway 5 should now be designated "For identification only" and be called 516.a. This Norway No. 8, which is 517, Your Honors will find on Page 28. This is a report stamped secret, Divisional Combat Post, 4th of January 1945, 230th Infantry Division. It's in German on Page 30. Ic No. 42/45 Secret.

"To the Command Army Unit Narvik Subject:

Evacuation. Counter propaganda Reference:

Your teletype Ic No. 1469/44 Secret of 31 December 44.

Innumerable German women and children have died painfully up to now in burning cellars and under the ruins of their houses because of the air terror started by the Anglo-Americans. The American terror filers boast of their cruelties calling themselves "Block Busters" and "Murder Incorporated". The neutral press avoids making charges against the English and the Americans for that. However, it picks out the fact of the evacuation of North Norway and of North Finnland in order to incite against methods of German warfare in the worst way.

To the German Mountain Army situated in North Finnland and North Norway Finnland's treason on 3 September 1944 lost the natural supply road across the Baltic and Finnland.

That is why the Mountain Army had to be led back. Finnland and a part of North Norway had to be evacuated, that was a military necessity. It was a matter of withdrawing an entire army so as to avoid its encirclement. Toward the end of October 1944 the Bolsheviks invaded Norwegian territory and occupied Kirkenes. The Norwegian population which by and large had shown itself loyal and more than that even helpful and obliging toward the Germans during the four years of occupation had to be preserved from the grasp of Bolshevism. The procedure of the Bolsheviks in Rumania, Bulgaria, Poland, Finnland, Estonia and Lettland shows what kind of fate the Bolsheviks had in store for the Norwegian population also. They would have employed the Norwegians ruthlessly and brutally for their own purposes. They would have killed all Germanophile Norwegians, raped the Women and brought starvation to the country.

In order to safeguard the German March movements the Soviets had to be prevented in the course of their advance from finding billets and working forces available which might be employed in combat against the Germans. Cases of espionage participated in by individual Norwegians, who had remained in the Finnmarks show that the Bolshevik would have found supporters also in the indigenous population. North Norway and North Finnland were evacuated for this reason and all residences and installations were destroyed.

A large part of the sensible Norwegian population gladly and willingly followed the call of the German government in October 1944 to evacuate voluntarily.

THE PRESIDENT: Just a minute, please. Did you mean to read that "German Government"?

MR. RAPP: "The call of the" Norwegian Government in October, 1944."

THE PRESIDENT: You read it "German."

MR. RAPP: I'm sorry, Your Honor; it should be "Norwegian."

"Thus cities like Hammerrest and Honningsvaag could be evacuated mainly voluntarily. The following urgent telegram signed by the Norwegian minister Lippestad and the Norwegian Chief of Evacuation Berg was sent to all chiefs of Police (Lensmaenner) in West Finnmark.

"You are herewith ordered to compulsory evacuate the population within your district. Publicize this by posters and via all telephone stations and contact the German authorities for immediate initiation of the compulsory evacuation which has been ordered by the German authorities. Inform us immediately by wire, particularly whether additional transport is required".

On 1 November 1944 red colored eye fetching posters and while leaflets were distributed containing a proclamation of the Commander in Chief of the German Troops in North Finnland and North Norway and of the Reichs Commissar for occupied Norwegian territories. It stated that all Norwegians again were requested to follow the orders of the evacuation authorities and to move off towards south. The end of this proclamation reads as follows:

"Any person not obeying this order exposes himself and his family by his own fault without possibilities for shelter and food to the perils of the Northern winter."

The contents of this proclamation have become known to all Norwegians in North Norway. All Norwegians of good will had the possibility of evacuating to the south.

The English radio broadcast a proclamation to the Norwegian population in the Norwegian language not to follow the orders of the evacuation authorities but to move off into inaccessible side valleys.

Unfortunately there were a number of Norwegians who fulfilled this demands with their women and children.

As far as the German Command was concerned it could have left the Norwegians to their fate. No doubt they all would have perished in the mountain. But in order to help these misled people and to preserve them from certain death the German Wehrmacht employed patrols to comb through Fjalls and Fjords to pick up Norwegians there who were full of gratitude to their last hour saviours. This for instance, 212 Norwegians were found during a search operation of a Mountain Jaeger Regiment in the area west of the road Lakselv-Kistrand on 5-7 December 1944 in the area north of Kistrand and Repparfjord. These rescue operations were carried on by the Wehrnacht at a time when the Wehrmacht itself had to accomplish marches of an extraordinary extent. If at present some individual Norwegians still keep hidden in the caves they alone are responsible for their miseries.

The Lapplanders through their leaders had been informed by the German Wehrmacht that they should move off to the west with their reindeer herds. The Lapplanders were promised an ample reward for every reindeer they would drive across the road Skiboth-Slilastua. At first the Lapplanders accepted this offer particularly because the German Wehrmacht assured them of special protection for their reindeer herds.

If not withstanding the mass of Lapplanders with their reindeer herds did not move off it is obvious that they acted that way because enemy agents had misled them and caused them not to carry out their intention. Neither Lapplanders nor Norwegians have ever been told by the Germans that they would be shot to death if they did not evacuate.

The evacuation of the territory evacuated by the Wehrmacht and the complete destruction of all roads, billets, transportation and food stores prevents the Bolsheviks from a thrust into North Norway. That produces a great disappointment to the Soviets, their planned continued march will have to be delayed for the time being. That is why they agitate against the evacuation of North Finland and North Norway and why they are trying to incite the neutral countries on this issue. And for all that it was Stalin who during the withdrawal of the Russian troops in 1941 for the first time caused the Russian population to evacuate and all residences to be destroyed.

Because Germany is fighting this struggle for her existence she must reply to the Russian methods of warfare with the same means unless she wants to lose.

During the evacuation all Norwegians were treated decently. The German soldier knightly has assisted all Norwegians requiring his help find thus he helped to mitigate to a great extent the emergency produced by the evacuation. In individual cases he has shared his rations with Norwegians and he helped the halt and the women loading their baggage.

The population was evacuated by means of ships or motor trucks. All available shipping space was mobilized. In order to cite one example: two large transports with about 1500 Norwegians each left for Tromsø in the first half of November from Billefjord and Hamnbugt in the Porsangerfjord. The space put at the disposal of the Norwegians was intended for transportation of German Wehrmacht, goods. All German motor vehicles -- as far as space permitted -- took along Norwegians. The young Norwegian capable of marching was permitted to go along on the ship or the motor vehicle only in order not to separate him from his family.

For this the German soldier managed long stretches on foot and had to spend the night outdoors.

If it did happen that in individual cases single family members were separated from their families the Germans did everything in their power to reunite the family.

German Wehrmacht doctors cared for the civilian population while en route and in the interim billets. The troops themselves furnished sufficient rations and established the billets.

And all these measures were carried out at a time during which the Germans themselves carried out one of the most difficult march movements.

In as far as Norwegians had to leave their personal property behind measures were taken to compensate them. As far as the transport situation permitted the rest of the entire Norwegian possessions particularly household equipment, clothing, fishing equipment, stoves, lighting fixtures were salvaged and evacuated.

MR. RAPP: The next document, Your Honors, Norway No. 9, we offer for identification only, as 518-a, and we then turn to page 60, Norway 10 which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 519. This is the proclamation to the population of Norway, published by the Reichs Commissar for the Occupied Norwegian Territories, Terboven, and also by the Defendant Rendulic, at that time Commander in Chief of the 20th Mountain Army: "TO THE POPULATION: The evacuation of a part of north Norway has been rendered a military necessity as a result of the treachery of a Finnish Government clique."

THE PRESIDENT: The document Norway Do. 10?

MR. RAPP: That's correct, Your Honor.

"The evacuation necessitates the removal of the civilian population as the enemy has proved that, in those territories occupied by him, he ruthlessly and brutally forces the civilian population to give him active assistance in achieving his aims.

This means that no shelter or means of existence of any kind can be left to the Bolshevik enemy in the fighting zone. All such installations as housing accommodation, transport facilities and food stocks must be destroyed or removed.

THE POPULATION IN THESE DISTRICTS WILL THEREFORE BE DEPRIVED OF THE BASIS FOR THEIR EXISTENCE, SO THAT IN ORDER TO BE ABLE TO SURVIVE, THEY MUST EVACUATE TO THOSE NORWEGIAN TERRITORIES WHICH ARE STILL PROTECTED BY THE GERMAN WEHRMACHT.

HE WHO DOES NOT COMPLY WITH THESE UNEQUIVOCAL INSTRUCTIONS EXPOSES HIMSELF AND HIS FAMILY TO POSSIBLE DEATH IN THE ARCTIC WINTER WITHOUT HOUSE OR FOOD."

The next document, Your Honors, is Norway Norway No. 11, and we will mark this for identification, 520-A; Norway No. 12 will be 521-A, and then Norway No. 13, which Your Honors will find on page 89.

Norway No. 13 on page 89, page 83 in the German document book. It is being submitted as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 522. This, Your Honors, is an Order of the Day, signed in his own handwriting by the Defendant Rendulic, and it reads:

"The Commander-in-Chief 20th Mountain Army Army Headquarters and Armed Forces Commander Norway 18 December 1944 As of today I assure the supreme command over all troops hitherto under High Command Norway.

I welcome at this occasion all Command authorities and Troops Units of the other parts of the Armed Forces employed in the Norway Theater, In the coming year of decision I expect smooth cooperation of all Command authorities and Offices.

Our common task serves only one goal: To help the work of our Fuehrer toward final victory.

Long live the Fuehrer Signed RENDULIC COLONEL GENERAL AND ARMED FORCES COMMANDER NORWAY."

If your Honors please, there is still Norway 6, Document Norway 6. We submit this for identification only. Norway 6. That 523-A. And then Norway 7 we submit in evidence as Exhibit 524. Your Honors will find this on page 27 of the document book. I believe it is on page 29 of the German document book. It is: Command Post 19 December 1944 Office APO No. 02192 Subject:

Evacuation of the area West Bank Lyngonfjord.

Pursuant to the application by the Norwegian evacuation Chief in Lyngon Major Ress the time limit for the end of the evacuation is extended from 21 December 1944 to 10 January 1945 For the Office of APO No. 02192 By order (signature) Grothe Major G S C I believe, your Honor, this will conclude Document Book 23 but for the submission of the additional proof required by the Tribunal and after the elapsing of the 24-hour period tomorrow we shall come back to that.

There is one additional certificate, your Honor, which we would like to submit at this time for identification only, in order to get the 24 hour time limit in.

It pertains particularly to document No. 9 and I am sure we will talk about that some more tomorrow. So for the time being, if your Honor permit, we will call this particular certificate for identification, 525-A. If your Honors please, we request the Court to instruct the Marshal to summon the witness Arne Dahl.

THE PRESIDENT: The Marshal is directed to present the witness named to the Tribunal.

Does the witness speak English?

MR. RAPP: The witness does speak English, your Honor, but there may be occasionally a word which he told me he may not know, so we also would like if your Honors please to swear in the official Norwegian interpreter in cases of emergency.

THE PRESIDENT: The interpreter will raise his right hand and be sworn.

I do solemnly swear that I will perform my duties as interpreter before, this Tribunal according to the best of my ability and skill.

(The Interpreter repeated the oath.)

ARNE DAHL, a witness, took the stand and testified as follows:

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. The witness will raise his right hand to be sworn. You do solemnly swear that the testimony you will give before this Tribunal will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth so help you God.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

You may be seated.

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. RAPP:

Q. Witness, would you please give your full name?

A. My full name is Arno Dagfin Dahl.

Q. Witness, how long have you been in the Norwegian army?

A. I have been in the Norwegian army since 1915.

Q. Have you been active since that time?

A. Yes, I am a regular officer from 1915 and I have been active since,

Q. What is your present rank, witness?

A. My present rank is a major general.

Q. And how old are you, witness?

A. I am 53 years of age.

Q. Could you state for us shortly your military career, please?

A. I was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in 1938, a Colonel in 1944 and a Major General in 1945. I have been commanding officer of the Military College of Oslo, aide-de-camp to the King of Norway, and commanding officer of the Western Finnmark district since the 1st of January, 1938.

After that, after war broke out in Norway, I took part in the fighting up in North Norway and had the command of a battalion and then a brigade. Later on, I got over to Great Britain from Norway in 1940 where I commanded the Norwegian troops in Scotland. I got to Scotland in 1940 and commanded the Norwegian troops there. In 1941 I was appointed head of a military mission to the United States and Canada where I stayed until 1943 when I went back to England and in 1944 was appointed head of a military mission to Russia. In 1945, as I said, I was appointed a Major General and am now commanding the Northern District of Norway which is about one-third of Norway.

Q. Witness, where were you located when the Norwegian resistance collapsed?

A. When the Norwegian resistance collapsed, I was not very far from Narvik in the mountains near the Swedish border.

Q. And you said after that you went to England, you escaped so to speak.

A. Yes, we demobilized our army and I went to England by boat.

Q. Did you have to sign any paper, parole or oath not to fight against the German armed forces?

A. No.

Q. Witness, when was the first time after your escape to England that you re-entered Norwegian territory?

A. I re-entered Norwegian territory on the 10th of November, 1944 after having come to Murmansk on the 6th of November.

Q. What was your mission at that time? What did you do?

A. My mission was to cooperate with the Russian forces and at the same time to have command of the Norwegian troops being sent to Finnmark. Besides, I had the mission to reinstall Norwegian authorities in re-occupied territories. For that reason, my mission also consisted of representatives of the different Norwegian government branches such as social affairs, justice and police, finance, information, and so on.

Q. Now how did these troops, these Norwegian troops that you speak of -- how did they get into Finnmark?

A They got to Finnmark in the same way as I did and the mission, by sea from Great Britain. The Norwegian forces to start with were merely a token force. We had very small forces in Scotland or in Great Britain and it was taken aboard a convoy and came to Murmansk on the 5th of November.

Q Now you say, witness, that you landed and these troops landed in Murmansk. What was the reason that they had to go so far east when they wanted to go into Norway?

A Well, there were several reasons for that. The first reason perhaps to get into cooperation with our Russian Allies by the way, secondly that it was very difficult to land anywhere in North Norway at that time because of the destruction.

Q Did the Germans in these days command the Coast area?

A Yes, I think I might say so, not all of it but most of it.

Q Witness, did you actually engage the Germans up there in Finnmark?

A No, I can't say so. When we took over from the Russians, which was by the end of November, the German troops had already got such an advance that we did not get into touch with German troops until about the beginning of February and that was only a patrol skirmish. No had some small engagements later on in Western Finnmark but nothing very much.

Q Now, witness, when you arrived up there in Murmansk and you got in touch with the Russians, were you told at that time what intentions they had in reference to the German forces up there?

A I was not give any definite plan but I got to know that the Karelian Army under General Retneskop had been sent south, the most part of it, south to the main theater in the Baltic, but as comparatively a small force was left in North Norway and I had not been there a very long time until I understood that it was not the Russian intention to follow the German forces. When we got to Norway, the eastern part of eastern Finnmark, the most forward patrols of the Russian army were on the Tana River.

Q If you want to—

A Well, have you got a pointer? Perhaps I might point it out.

Q Yes, we have.

AAAs I said, when we got to the eastern part of Eastern Finnmark, the Russian forward patrols were on the Tana River and the last contact which had been between Russian and German troops was on the 6th of November and there is the River Tana (indicating).

We heard the Russians did not try to follow up and there might be several reasons for that. We asked that the Norwegian troops might be put in the frontline as soon as possible. But when we got there, there was no enemy there.

Q That date are you speaking of, witness?

A I am speaking of the--now about the 27th or 26th of November when the Norwegian troops got to the Tana line.

Q Was there fighting or any contact between you and the Russian forces and the Germans around Kirkenes prior to that date?

A No, there was not.

Q Now witness, did you advance in a westerly direction with your brigade?

A Yes. I had not a brigade to start with, but by and by we got troops from Sweden and from Great Britain so that in the spring of 1945 we had a brigade. The advance was very difficult because of the difficulties of time of year, of the roads, and the climate and I might be allowed then to say a few words about the country about which we are speaking.

The area of Finnmark is more than 48,000 square kilometers. That means it is larger than for instance Switzerland or Denmark. In this area were living about 60,000 people, mostly rather poor people and most of them fishermen. The main part of the population was living along the coast. The climate at that time of year is very, severe, and you might understand that when I show you that the Polar Circle is very far south of this area.

I will point to it now. Here it is (indicating) The mean temperature in December is about the 70th degree, 14 degrees Fahrenheit in December.

In January it is about 11 to 12 degrees. In the inner part of the country it is far colder and the temperature may drop to 40 below, even more. The country is very high so that the northern winds coming right in from the arctic Ocean have a tremendous bite. There is not a very great amount of snow.

I might say, generally speaking, about one meter. But because of the heavy storms, especially from the North, this snow is drifting up in large drifts and that again means that it is very difficult to keep the roads open. Not so much because of the amount of snow but because of the drifting snow and I would like to point out that even with the assistance of great number of Russian prisoners of war, the Germans were not able to keep Main Road 50 open all the year around.

There are certain stretches which would be very difficult to keep open and as I said one special part of it just west of the Tana Fjord was not kept open any year as far as I know during the war.

I might also say that there is only really one road leading from east to west. That is Main Road 50 and that is just a road which is so difficult to keep open. There is another road coming from Ivalo in Finland going through a Norwegian place called Karasjok and joining Main Road 50 at the Possoni Fjord. (indicating) There is one more road from Finland to Norway and that is south of this area coming into Troms country or territory.

Q General, how far were the German rear guards ahead of you on the average?

A Well, I really don't know but I should think that they were very far ahead because the last contact between Russian troops and German troops and that was only patrols was on the 6th of November and we didn't get there until about the 26th--that means about three weeks. They had a three weeks' advance. I should think personally, sir, that by the end of November, all German main forces would be out of Finnmark and that only very small rear guards and destruction troops were left behind; the Germans had then been in this territory for four and a half years and of course knew it very well.

They had a great number of fortifications along the Coast, partly belonging to the Navy and partly belonging to the Army and commanded by the Army, but all these bases were destroyed by and by.

Q Now witness, did you generally follow the main route to retreat of the German army, generally speaking?

A Yes, one mountain force of the Norwegian troops followed that main road.

Q. And they were under your command?

A They were under my command but not until the beginning of February. Before that date, they were under the command of the Russian troops. According to an agreement which the Norwegian Government had, a similar agreement between the American, British and Russian Governments, according to which the Norwegian forces fighting in Norway should be put under the command of that particular allied commander but in the beginning of February I got command of all the troops up there.

Q What was your estimate at that time how large the German forces were who were retreating in numbers?

A Well, I had a very good order battle of the German troops. I cannot now remember exactly how many it would be.

Q Roughly.

A But I should think something between 100 and 150 thousand men.

Q Now General, you said that these Norwegian troops which followed up this German retreat or withdrawal were under the over-all command of the Russians until February, 1945. Is that right?

A No, until the 5th of 6th of February.

Q All right. Now were there substantial Russian forces accompanying these Norwegian forces?

Q. All right, Now were there substantial Russian forces accompanying these Norwegian forces?

A. There were no Russian forces accompanying the Norwegian forces, and it was quite clear as I have previously stated from the beginning that the Russian forces would not enter Finnmark. It was too difficult proposition at that time of the year to follow up with large forces in a country like that. And besides, the position was not in Norway, and it didn't very much matter to the allied forces if Finnmark was occupied or not.

Q. General, as you were going west with your brigade, between November and February, up there – just what did you see?

A. I saw the scorched earth policy as I have never seen it before. All the communications were destroyed. The roads were blown up and mined, the bridges, the quays, the telephone and telegraph centrals; the telephone poles were either out down or blown up, and in the craters along the few roads were a great number of both teller mines and personnel mines. Also the housing was destroyed – not everything in the eastern most part of Eastern Finnmark because the Russian attack had prevented that destruction. Otherwise, speaking of the line West practically speaking – west of the Tana River, everything was completely destroyed. That includes all housing and what I mentioned before; also historical buildings and churches. Not all of them but more than half of the churches were destroyed. And this destruction took place – as far as I know from October until rather late in the spring of 1945. The destruction took place not always at one particular time. There were places which were raided two or three times.

Q. What do you mean by that, General?

A. That means the place was destroyed once. Not all of the population was evacuated. Some were left for some reason or other, and this was, of course, known to the German troops so that they came back for a second and a third time and got away the rest of the population and destroyed the shacks and huts or what they might have built in the meantime to be able to survive.

Q. General, what was the approximate date – I mean in months that the subsequent destructions of these towns happened?

A. I think -- well, I am sure – that places like Kjullefyord (witness spells the name) were raided by the end of November and by the middle of December; and there are several other places which are difficult to spell – I think I will drop it – which were raided a couple of times, too.

Q. General, do you have any knowledge as to the date – or the approximate date – that some of the main communication centers were destroyed, going from east to west, from Kirkanes.

A. Well, of course, there were destroyed as the German troops withdrew. And I should think that most of them were destroyed by the end of November. But I cannot tell anything exactly about that.

Q. Now, as the German troops withdrew and the destruction had taken place by the end of November, do you know whether or not other destructions occurred as the German army withdrew which would fall into the months of December and January?

A. Yes, I have just told you that at least two or three places on the coast were raided at a later date; and I also know for certain that some places in western Finnmark were destroyed, for instance, in the month of December. I think I am not wrong, but that can be verified by the official papers, when I was in the town of Hammerfest and Kjullefjord and Upper Alta were destroyed about the middle of December.

Q. General, did you get, at that time that you were up there, these reports that these various towns and hamlets were destroyed?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you think at that time, was the reason for these destructions?

A. Well, I thought that it was wanton, and I could not see that it was a necessity for the German forces so completely to destroy the country as was done.

Q. Now, you say "so completely" -- do you mean that -- do you want to say that not everything represented military targets? What do you mean by that? Will you explain it to us?

A. Well, I can understand that communications were destroyed, but I cannot understand and I cannot see that according to any international law that the housing, for instance, and especially along the coast where there could, not be any advantage, were so destroyed as they were; and monuments and churches, and so on; and hospitals, for instances, were also destroyed.

Q. Now, you stated that the highway 50 was, so to speak, the crux, the most important part of this entire evacuation.

A. Will you please repeat that question, please?

Q. The Highway 50 was the most important element that has to be taken into consideration both by the forces in retrograde movement as those who were following up, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, as it possible for either the Germans, or for you, to not follow this highway 50 and still advance?

A. Yes. It could be done.

Q. To what extent?

A. Well, it could be done, but only with smaller forces and with troops on skis, and it would, in any case, take a very, very long time; and these troops had to live under Arctic conditions, complete darkness; it rained up there for two months, from November to January so that troops which advanced outside of the main Road 50 would be exposed to very great hardships. But I don't doubt that small groups might be able to advance from east to west.

Q. But not in large bodies?

A. No, I think that is the great difference between these two things. Large bodies could not be supplied. This is the main thing.

They could probable also advance, but as they could not get supplies they could not keep themselves up.

Q. General, have you ever seen, or as it been officially reported to you, that there was substantial destruction away from Highway 50?

A. Yes, as I said, sir, I had on my mission representatives of the Norwegian government, different branches, and they sent in representatives of our government, through me, as I was their head. I read them all and saw the reports. Besides, I get reports from my unit commanders, more of a military nature. So I knew at any time what had been -

Q. You saw them?

A. And reported it.

Q. Now General, in that time that you were up there did you ever converse with the indigenous population of Norway, or Finnmark?

A. I did.

Q Did these conversations evolve around the subject of the evacuation?

A. Yes, very much so, as these people were in a very poor condition As a matter of fact in order to be able to save them we had to concentrate on saving lives instead of trying to kill Germans. We sent out three expeditions; one along the coast, which got rather far along and under the command of a lieutenant colonel, and he actually succeeded in getting back into safety more than 1,000 people. I sent another expedition along the Tana Riber down to the Sogne Fjord, which I just pointed out on the map, in the center of Finnmark. All these expeditions were equipped with clothing, food medicines, and so on; blankets -- to try to help these people who, we heard, were living in great distress. And if we had not been so well prepared with that relief work I think that the destruction would have been much greater than now happened.

Q. Now, General, you said your forces did not amount to more than three thousand men in February, is that right?

A. It did not amount to so much as three thousand men in February, but I think in March.

Q. Then did you commence this action, where you helped your country men up there.

A. We started right away. I could see that there was very little chance of capturing any German rear guards. I found it much more the much more important thing to try to save our countrymen's lives, so I started in November by sending these expeditions along the coast north, and a little later the expeditions inland.

Q. How many men did you have at that time when you commenced?

A. I had about three hundred men.

Q. Was their help effective?

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. Well, how many people did you have to help?

A. Well, they were left there in eastern Finnmark. We hoped to start with fifty thousand people but by and by we found manymore, hidden in most strange place. They were hidden in the most strange places; and then we got these reports from scouts so I think that if we had not prepared this eventuality we might not have found some people that winter.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our afternoon recess at this time.

(A recess was taken)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors, please, I had a talk with the defense Counsel for the defendant Rendulic, Dr. Fritsch, and he tells me that he is agreeable that we withdraw Identification 515-A. That was the document which was a certificate by the Norwegian representative here in Nurnberg giving evidence as to these documents we are trying to put in, but when he made out this original certificate he listed all the documents, including those which have meanwhile been received. I suggested to Dr. Fritsch that we pare this particular document down to include only those which have not been received, and that I will furnish him tonight a copy of such certificate in lieu of 515-A, and that he should consider the 24-hour rule still being covered by that arrangement, and Dr. Fritsch told me that was agreeable to him.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors, please, I would now like to continue the examination of the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

Q. Witness, prior to the recess we were concerning ourselves with reports or conversations you had in connection with the Norwegian population which you met up here, and I asked you to tell us the nature of this conversation as far as it had any bearing on the evacuation which took place at that time?

A. I think I mentioned that we saved at least 1,000 Norwegians living on the coast, and many more, but I don't know the exact number of people living inland. Now, these people, as I said were living in the greatest distress. First of all, this was at a part of the year where the temperature is very low, and they had no houses. They had no food. It was taken away when the German forces withdrew. They had no means of getting food, because their boats, motor boats, and even small going boats, were either destroyed or sunk.

So that it was an obvious task for us to try and get hold of these people, and get them back to safety. We got a report from one island west of Hammerfest, - that was in January, that about 1,000 people were living in the greatest distress, and they had to be relieved. We could not do that because we hadn't got boats enough, therefore we had to send a message to London and ask for a relief expedition from there, and that was accepted on the 15 of February, when about 500 people were brought away to Murmansk, and later on to Scotland.

Q. Did any of these persons that you saved or you administered medical care, ever mention to you the fact why they did not evacuate?

A. Yes, I cannot remember any special remark, but these people had their homes up there. Norwegians have been living in these areas for several hundreds of years, and the way they were evacuated was in such a crude manner, that they thought it would be better to stay there, to stay behind even when taking the risks of the cold and the scarcity of food and so on.

Q. You speak of the way - or I believe you said the cruel way of the evacuation how do you know that?

A. I have read all the reports. They have made a general impression on me and I do not remember details, but I do remember one instance which was stated in a report to me on the 15th of December 1944 by an Army officer, who had made his escape himself. That was from a place called Berlevaag. When the withdrawal from the Eastern part of Finnmark started in October, the main population of Berlevaag got the orders to meet at a certain day at a certain hour, and the order went on to say those who did meet would be shot. This man, this Army officer met also, and they were ordered to carry ammunition shells from dumps down to the boats. The shells weighed about 35 kilos, and they were also ordered to carry dynamite and gun powder down to the boats, and they did that for about two days.

Then the burning started. These people in Berlevaag, as many people in many places, thought they would be in a danger zone by being in their homes, and therefore they built old shacks and houses of peat outside the place, like these people had done. The burning started by burning down these small houses outside the town, and then the crowd was pushed forward down the quay, all of them, the old, the sick, and so forth. The cattle was either shot in the open or shot in the stables, or burned in the stables. I have seen that myself. I have seen groups of cattle being burned in the stables. That, I mean, accounts for their dislike for being evacuated. Also the very rough part of the year, and the voyage in small boats along the coast, which were full of mines and which could be raided at any time.

Q. Have you, General, ever seen personally any villages or settlements being burned down?

A. No, I haven't seen that, but when we got to Kirkenes part of it was still burning. There was another reason for the population to try to get away. There were epidemic diseases spreading, some cases of typhus, but rather large epidemics of diarrhea and dysentery. The important part of it was that there were no doctors. I have been evacuated, and as far as I know there was only one doctor left in the whole district who had made his escape. Now, there were epidemic diseases, cold, hunger and so on, and no doctors, no hospitals.

Q. General, did you ever see personally any villages which were actually destroyed or settlements, as a result of this evacuation?

A. Yes, I have seen most of the places in Finnmark. I got to the western part of Finnmark about the beginning of April myself.

Q. What was the degree of destruction?

A. Well, I think that the destruction was as complete as it could be. As I think I mentioned in my first remarks, practically all of the territory west of the Tana line was completely destroyed. There was nothing left.

Q. And, General, these houses and settlements and villages, did they at any time offer your troops any shelter or were they all destroyed before you got there?

A. They were all destroyed before we got there, except in the Easternmost part of Finnmark. As it was, when we got to these places, they could not offer us any shelter. First of all they were burned, and secondly the concrete fundamentals of the buildings were blown up by dynamite, so that building could not even be repaired, and even to this very day there are 7,000 people who have not been able to go back to Finnmark.

Q. On account of the destruction?

A. Yes.

Q. General, did these destructions, as you saw it at that time in command of a military command, offer a deterrent to the Russians to advance, in other words were the destructions a reason that the Russians did not advance?

A. Of course I can't tell you.

Q. Did the Russians ever talk to you about that?

A. No, but I can make my own opinion about it, and that is that it was not possible to advance under those conditions with large forces.

Q. In other words, you say that the destructions that were carried out actually had the effect that they kept the Russian army back from advancing?

A. No, I wouldn't say that. That was, of course, one of the reasons, but in any case, I think, that the Russian Army could not have advanced, because the cold and the climate and the temperature and so on, in Finnmark is not suitable for operations on a large scale in the wintertime. It is completely dark, as I said too, and the decision was not fought in Norway. It was merely a small sideshow which was joint on up there.

Q. But, General, the Germans, as you told us, carried on this destruction for many months to come, and the Russians did not advance, so how did you estimate the situation at that time?

A. I estimated the situation in such a way that the Russians would use their forces at other points, and didn't care about Norway.

Q. But that was information which you had in your position of constant contact with the Russian forces, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. But you don't know whether or not the Germans were in a position to know that too?

A. Well, I think they knew. There are several reasons why I think so. First of all, the German Intelligence Service was certainly very good. Besides, they had their planes that could easily find out whether their troops were following up or not, and the third point is that after the German Army left there were radio costs which kept them in knowledge of where the advancing troops might have been at any time. We got some of those costs, and they must have given very good information that no troops did follow.

MR. RAPP: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION BY DR. FRITSCH: Dr. Fritsch for defendant Rendulic.

Q. First of all, I would like to clarify a few personal doubts; did you say, General, that you were 38 years old?

A. No, I said 53.

Q. I beg your pardon. You are an active officer since the year 1915, an active soldier?

A. Yes.

Q. General, do we agree that on the question, of military necessity we can disagree, that we can be of various opinions on the question of military necessity?

A. Of course we can disagree.

Q. You were with the Russians, General?

A. Yes.

Q. Since when?

A. I was head of a military mission to Russia from about the 1st of October 1944.

Q. Since that time did you have any special contact with the Tana Front of the Russian Army, on the Tana River?

A. I had no personal contact with the Tana Front, but our troops had.

Q. You listed some reasons which, according to your conviction, speak in favor of the fact that the Russians would not press into Norway; would you tell me whether at the Tana Front and until what time there was fighting contact between the Germans and Russian troops?

A. Yes--

THE RESIDENT: Pardon me, General, just a moment. Let's put this microphone right out in front. Now, if you will just sit back, General, and take it easy, just as though you were visiting. You don't have to use it as though you were talking on a telephone.

THE WITNESS: It is very difficult to hear.

THE PRESIDENT: You say you are not able to hear?

THE WITNESS: I am hearing now.

A. But I can answer that last question. The question was, when the last contact between the Russian and German troops was on the Tana River, and according to the reports which we got it was on the 5th or 6th of November.

Q. Down to that day there were fights with the Russians?

A. Yes, there had been very little fighting since October 24, and the German troops had very rapidly gone back behind west of the Tana River, and it was just very small rear guards being left on that river at that particular time.

Q. For what reason should the German leadership be sure that the Russians would not follow?

A. As I said to the Prosecutors, the Russians would not follow because they knew very well difficult conditions up in the north of Norway at that part of the year, and also they had sent most of their troops down south to fight in the Baltic.

Q. Do you have any basis for this, that the German command was also informed of this.

A. No, I do not now whether the German command was informed of this.

Q. The German army command had to be, or could assume that the Russians would follow.

A. I do not think they could assume that, because their intelligence service might have told them, or would certainly have told them that the greater part of the Karelian Army was being sent South, and what was left would not have been sufficient to cope with the German forces which were then in Finnmark.

Q. But these are just assumptions on your part, General. Is that right? You said that Norwegian troops from England, in the winter of 1944-45 were sent to Finnmark?

A. Yes.

Q. Were these troops supposed to land in Finnmark?

A. They were not put ashore in Finnmark; They were put ashore in Murmansk and from there transported in Finnmark.

Q. And the reason why they were not supposed to land in Finnmark; can you give me that?

A. The reason why they were not put ashore in Finnmark, well that would probably be as I said to the prosecutor,-that we must first cooperate with our Allies, and therefore go to a Russian port and see what their plans were.

Q. Witness, didn't I understand you to have said that they did not land in Finnmark because they knew about the destruction?

A. Well, that was a small reason, I agree to that, but of course a small force of 300 men can be landed almost anywhere from boats.

Q. Witness, you spoke of the Reich Highway No. 50 and you described this highway as the only import and road from east to west in Finnmark; is that correct?

A. That is correct, - the most important road, yes.

Q. Was this highway in the year 1939, before the landing of the German troops, - was this highway fully fit to be traveled on?

A. No, it was not completely finished until after the German forces came in Finnmark. There were a few stretches which were not finished before the war.

Q. And this highway was finished by the Germans; is that right?

A. No, that is not right, but small stretches of the highway were finished by Norwegians working under German orders.

Q. Then you spoke of the mining of this highway. Do you consider this mining as militarily necessary?

A. Yes I do.

Q. If the Russians had had the intention to follow the Germans, we cannot affirm or deny this intention post facto; wasn't it then a military necessity to destroy the housing facilities for the Russians as they would press on?

A. No, that is a great mistake. These houses were very few, and I cannot imagine how any force which could cope with the strength of the German forces could have any use of those few houses along that highway. As I have told before, the greatest part of the population in Finnmark were living on the coast, and the advance did not take place and could not take place along the coast.

Q. General, we shall come back to this question later. My question is this. I want to determine by your experiences, whether it was not especially difficult for a military opponent, if he would come in a country like Finnmark, and find no shelter.

A. Would you repeat that question; in succession please? Will you say it in English once again?

Q. Don't you think that it would be very difficult for a military opponent invading Finnmark to find no shelter there?

A. Yes, that would be difficult.

Q. General, you spoke of the fact that the inhabitants of Finnmark lived mostly on the coast. Aren't there some villages on the highway too?

A. Yes, there are some small villages on Highway 52.

Q. General, during the direct examination you spoke of destruction of towns.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Just a minute, General. The young man wants to give you a substitute receiving set.

Now General, may I suggest that you just sit back as though you were visiting in someone's home, and answer your question just as though we were carrying on a conversation.

You may proceed.

Q. General, would like to come back to the question of military necessity. If the German Command had recognized the necessity for evacuating this place, wouldn't it have done some good to the Norwegian inhabitants that it would take them out of a territory which was destroyed, for military reasons?

A. I can see no necessity of destroying the country. As I have said, I do not think that any large forces could advance in this territory and keep themselves up.

Q. Wasn't the impossibility for the opponent to enter this region only created by the fact that the housing facilities were destroyed?

A. No. The opponent would have the greatest difficulty of getting into this country even when the houses were there, and even when the roads were there. This highway 50, as I said, would not be open in the winter.

Q. Highway 50 was unused in the winter, wasn't it General,?

A. Yes, in part of the winter, but in not winter, so far as I knew the road was kept open even with a great number of prisoners of war working on it.

Q. Do you know, General, that the road was filled with tunnels which would keep it from being snowdrifted; partly by wooden tunnels?

A. Yes, I knew that some part of it was equipped with those tunnels, but even do they were not possible to keep open.

Q. At what time of the winter, 1944-45, did you move on this highway with your troops?

A. The troops moved on this highwas from about the end of November, and until say, March. But they did not exactly moves on the highway because they were on *kis and they went outside of the highwas.

Q. Couldn't larger units of troops have moved on this road, if the road had been open?

A. They could have moved to a certain extent, but had been stopped at very far eastern place just went of the Tana Fjord.

Q. General, you spole about the destruction of towns and villages. Was Kirkenes, for example, destroyed, as a result of the evacuation?

A. Not all Kirkenes, but a great part of Kirkenes was destroyed as the German troops evacuated.

Q. Do you know that Kirkenes wes repeatedly bombed by Russian airplanes?

A. I knew that Kirkenes was bombed on several occasions by the Russian airplanes.

Q. Do you know that these bombing and the direct fight around the city destroyed the city about 90 per cent?

A. I think that is completely wrong, because as far as I heard, there was no fighting in Kirkenes whatever.

Q General, didn't you say yourself before, that the last fight took place in the beginning of November around the region of Kirkenes?

A No, I never said that.

Q Witness; in answering a question during direct examination, -you spoke of the cruel evacuation, and you specified in your statement, -you mentioned a case, if I remember correctly, it was a matter of the village of Berlevaag; is that correct?

A That's right.

Q Did you investigate this case yourself?

A I did investigate it by witnesses, but I was never there myself, of course, and this person who gave me the report has signed his report.

Q You also said that cattle was burned in stables. Did you yourself see any of these things?

A I have never been in the places which were evacuated by the Germans, but I have seen cattle burned in the stables.

Q And this happened, according to your convictions, not as a result of the usual military actions?

A Yes. This was at a place where there was no action at all. It was at a place called Lakselv.

Q General, you also said that churches and historical buildings were burned down. Could you give me any towns where this happened?

A Yes, I can mention a place called Altagaan, which is the old residence of the County, -- 'well the" ", as we say in Norwegian, built in 1740, and. which was . It was a building which could not be -- I cannot find the word in English, but it is a building which has a historical value and which was not to be changed in any way or used for any other purpose than a certain one.

There is also another building to the south, at the place called Hamnes, which I could also mention, and at the latter place the Germans had themselves known that this was an historic building.

Q Was this building situated inside a village?

A It was not situated in, -- well not particularly in a village. It was now the building where the commanding officer of the Western Finmark was living; that means on a training ground, and it was far from other buildings.

Q Could it have served to house troops?

A Yes, it could house troops.

Q General, -- of what building material do the houses in Finmark usually consist?

A They mostly consist of wood.

Q If some of these houses serving as shelter would be burned, then there would hardly remain a building which one would want to save; that is a church or similar building; then there would hardly remain any building unharmed? Is that correct?

A Well if the village was put on fire, and it was a suitable wind, I think the whole village would bum down.

Q General, then you said that you had received various reports according to which Norwegians had escaped evacuation. Did you also get reports from those who had been evacuated?

A Yes, and that is a point.

As we had re-occupied part of Finmark, a lot of people from the occupied area came to Finmark and they got there because they wanted to assist the population in Finmark with food, clothing and boats, and all of these people who came in from outside of the re-occupied territory, had to report to my staff, so I knew everything they told me about the evacuation.

Q You then said that the people to be evacuated had to pass through mined waters on boats. Is that correct?

A Yes, that is one way of evacuating people.

Q Do you know, General, that these boats were almost exclusively manned by German soldiers?

A I don't know that.

DR. FRITSCH: I have no further questions, your Honor.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Are there any further questions by other counsel?No response.....

Is there any redirect?

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION BY.

.....MR. RAPP: A very short one, your Honor. General, the element of military necessity was raised during the cross-examination, and I would like to ask you if as you stated, it was remote or nonexistent. What other reasons were there for destroying this territory presuming that it was not military necessity?

A I did not quite catch that.

Q I said, assuming that the destruction was not military necessity, what other reasons are given for the destruction?

A Well, we by-and-by saw acts of Germans towards the population which seemed to us to indicate a certain mood of revenge, and one of these raiding parties coming back actually killed six fishermen, and amongst them two boys, and then after that, the German commander went to a small hut which had been erected after the destruction, where a woman lived with her small children, and he asked this woman her name, and then he told her he had killed her husband and her son, and then he raped her in the presence of her children.

After that exploit, a poster was put on the bodies, and I may be allowed to read that because it is rather significant, I think, I have translated it into English, but it was written in Norwegian, and the contents were this:

"Norwegian Men and Women!

"Point I: We fight and work for you and for a future European state.

"Point II : We do not give away chocolate and tobacco as a bait, but we have shown a friendly attitude toward you during five years of our stay here.

"Point III: We protect your homes against Bolshevik blood terror.

"Point IV: We protect your homes from capitalistic plundering.

"Point V: We grant you fishing grounds for your own personal use.

"Point 6: We get you work and bread.

"The one who opposes us, the one who supports the anti-European powers with English, America, and Soviet Russia as leaders, the one who openly or secretly places himself against us in this for Europe so difficult time, the one who fleeing in fishing boats or escaping across the border opposes our arms, the one who openly or secretly assists the enemy on this or on the other side of the front, he is a traitor to Europe and to his Norwegian homeland, and he will be found and destroyed regardless of where he is hiding."

That is one example, sir. I have another one, which also speaks for itself, I think, and that is the following: After the 8th of May, after the capitulation, the Norwegian authorities sent out expeditions to the devastated areas to find out the conditions and make a report. There were still then German troops in those territories which were otherwise evacuated. At one place a poster was found, which I have brought with me, and which has the following in printing: "As long as there is an enemy within our borders, may hate be my duty and revenge my virtue." And this is distributed by the 6th German Mountain Division, and it has a stamp date on it, 15 February, which probably is the date when the receiving unit received it from this division. When, therefore, the prosecutor asked me this question, we all had a feeling that there was -- they tried to revenge themselves, which was the origin of these acts in Finnmark.

Q. General, in your talks with the Norwegian population or with men under your command, was it ever mentioned to you directly or by insinuation that the population was very glad that the Germans are helping the Norwegians to escape Bolshevism?

A. No, never. That was never said to me. On the contrary, the population in Finnmark was very much upset and used the strongest words of the language to express their feelings towards the German troops. I will add, though, that of course there are some people in Norway belonging to the Nazi Party that have a different opinion.

MR. RAPP: That's all the questions I have, Your Honor.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I have just two more questions, resulting from the re-direct examination.

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. General, you spoke of the shooting of a fisherman and two boys. How do you know that?

A. I had a military patrol out which saw the thing. Besides, I had a report from an intelligence officer, a very complete report taken on the spot.

Q. When was this incident supposed to have taken place?

A. That incident took place on the 6th of May 1945.

Q. On the 6th of May 1945? Where?

A. Where? That was at a place called Hopeidet.

Q. And where is this place?

A. This place is between the town of Tana fjord and Lakse fjord. It's rather far east.

Q. On the 6th of May 1945 were there still German troops there at that time?

A. Yes. They came, as I have told before -- they came continually back with raiding parties along the coast, and also they came inland after having landed.

Q. But at that time you, General, had already your brigade with you and you already had pushed on towards the west.

A. That's right.

Q. How did these German troops come to move in back of you?

A. It's very easy to explain. As I told before, Finnmark is a country of 48,000 square kilometers, and I don't think that 3,000 men would be able to cover that.

Q. Witness, one final question. From where does this piece of paper come which you have read before? Did you yourself receive it or did you take it from a house, or what?

A. This paper I have here in court was taken by one of those Norwegian expeditions being sent out immediately after the capitulation, and found on one of the houses at a place called Birtavarie, and it was taken with the expedition to the 6th Division Command, of which I am the commander.

Q. You yourself never found such a paper, did you?

A. No, everywhere I came everything was burned.

DR. FRITSCH: Thank you very much.

THE PRESIDENT: Perhaps -- anything further for this witness?

MR. RAPP: We have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: May the witness be discharged then? Any objection on the part of any defense counsel to the discharge of this witness? The counsel for Rendulic? There being indication that there's no further desire on the behalf of the defense counsel for the retention of this witness, you may be excused, General.

Did you have any other matters this afternoon, Mr. Rapp?

MR. RAPP: I have nothing further this afternoon, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You had some papers--

MR. RAPP: We could have that postponed until tomorrow if Your Honors desire.

THE PRESIDENT: We have about five minutes before adjournment. We'll adjourn at this time until tomorrow morning.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(The Court adjourned at 1625 hours.)

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America, against Welhelm List et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany on 26 August 1947, 0930, Justice Justice Edward F. Carter presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America, and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Marshal, you will ascertain as to whether or not all defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honors, all defendants are present in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Edward F. Carter will preside at this day's session.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, there are a few matters we would like to clear up about exhibits, identifying documents, etc. that we have let go a little too long, so perhaps this would be a good time to do it and in addition counsel for the defendant Rendulic has had something come up in the case which is pending before Military Tribunal II and will be over there for 30 minutes or so and then will return.

I think that the matters that are here will take up the Court's time until he gets back if that is agreeable with the Tribunal. This which has just been handed to your Honors, and defense counsel, Secretary General, the interpreters and the reporters is to be marked 480-A. It is to be inserted at the end of Document Book XX and given pages numbered 146 and 147. I am sorry, your Honor, I don't have the German page number but Dr. Laternser advises me that it will be satisfactory if we indicate that it should be inserted at the end of German Document Book XX.

This document which has just been given to your Honors and defense counsel, the Secretary General, the interpreters and the translators should be marked 498-A. It should be given pages numbered 140 and 141, and is to be inserted at the close of Document Book XXI. I do not have the German pages but it should be inserted at the close of German Document Book XXI.

Both 480-A and 498-A are offered for identification only, as has been the practice with reference to the prior similar exhibits, one of which has been offered for each book.

May it please your Honors, the Question of the signatures of the defendants which appear on the various curriculum vita affidavits which have been submitted to the Tribunal has been discussed with all of their defense counsel and they are agreeable to a concession that the various documents--that is, I shall list them momentarily--have been signed by their clients.

Counsel for the defendant List with reference to Exhibit 2 which is in Book I, the signature appearing at page 3; counsel for the defendant Foertsch with reference to Exhibit 11 which is in Book I, the signature appearing at page 42; counsel for the defendant Kuntze, Exhibit 132 which is in Book VI, the signature appearing at page 4; counsel for the defendant Geitner, Exhibit 216 which is in Book IX, the signature appearing at page 3; counsel for the defendant Weichs, Exhibit 311 which is in Book XIII, the signature appearing at page 5; counsel for the defendant Rendulic, Exhibit 313 which is in Book XIII, the signature appearing at page 13; counsel for the defendant Dehner, Exhibit 315 which is in Book XIII, the signature appearing at page 21; counsel for the defendant Leyser, Exhibit 324 which is in Book XIV, the signature appearing at page 56; counsel for the defendant Speidel, Exhibit 409 which is in Book SVII, the signature appearing at page 3; counsel for the defendant Felmy, Exhibit 442, which is in Book XIX, the signature appearing at page 3; counsel for the defendant Lanz, Exhibit 443, which is in Book XIX, the signature appearing at page 8; and may it please Your Honors, the only concession that is made is that those are the signatures of the individuals in question.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I assume that defense counsel have heard the recitation of the stipulation made between prosecution and defense counsel. Are there any objections to it as it has been stated in the record? If not, the Court will accept it as a stipulation between prosecution and counsel for the defense.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honors, I have given my consent as regards my clients that these are their signatures. The reasons were the following: in order to obviate any necessity for getting witnesses from abroad. But I want to expressly move, first of all, that Exhibit NOKW-860, Exhibit 2 is cancelled. This Exhibit is an affidavit of the defendant Field Marshal List.

My reasons for asking for cancellation are as follows, quite briefly.

The prosecution cannot ask for a defendant to appear as a witness. If it submits an affidavit of a defendant, it really calls him as a witness because it uses his statement as evidence. Legally, the prosecution is not in a position to do this. For that reason, I object to the use of this affidavit Exhibit No. 2 on the part of the prosecution and move for the reason I have given now that this affidavit, be cancelled.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I am inclined to think that counsel is in error as to the rule that he cites. If a defendant elects to sign a statement, I think his statement is admissible and the rule does not apply that he is called to testify against himself. If there are any admissions against interests, they are proper to be offered against him. I think, therefore, the motion will have to be overruled.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, we would like to withdraw the certificate which is 525-A for identification, which was offered yesterday and the certificate will be resubmitted with the Exhibit Norway-9.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You may of course withdraw any Exhibit for identification if you care to.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, Your Honor, and then we would request that this certificate which has nothing to do with the Norway case be marked 525, the one which has just been handed to your Honors. All of defense counsel are familiar with this, and I think that all we will have to do is just read the first two pages and we can omit the executive orders of the President of 2 May 1945, 16 January 1946, the memorandum of 29 March 1946, of Mr. Justice Jackson--excuse me, Robert H. Jackson, Chief of Counsel, General Order No. 301 of 24 October 1946 signed by Major General Huebner, Chief of Staff, and the copy of the appointment of General Taylor dated 24 October 1946 under the authority of General McNarney, the then Commanding General in the American Zone in Europe.

If that is agreeable with your Honors, then, I will just read the first page, the first two pages rather, because there is a recital in the first document with reference to those that follow.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You may, of course, read any part of it you see fit to read.

This certificate is made for the purpose of showing the authority of certain of the personnel of the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes to administer oaths and properly to attest those affidavits which will be offered in evidence before the Military Tribunal for Case 7 in the United States v. Wilhelm List et al.

Pursuant to Executive Order 9547, 2 May 1945, attached hereto as "Tab A", Executive Order 9679, 16 January 1946, attached hereto as "Tab B". Memorandum No. 15 of Office of Chief of Counsel, 29 March 1946, attached hereto as "Tab C", General Order No. 301 of the Military Governor, 24 October 1946, attached hereto as "Tab D", and letter, USFET, 24 October 1946, Appointment of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, attached hereto as "Tab E", I am authorized, and have been since 29 March 1946, to prepare and prosecute charges of atrocities and war crimes against leaders of the European Axis powers and their accessories.

In discharge of the responsibilities conferred on me by the abovementioned orders and instructions, I have authorized and detailed members of my staff who are engaged with me in the preparation and prosecution of cases, including attorneys, interrogators, and other investigators and agents of the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, to conduct interrogations and investigations and in the course of such interrogations and investigations to administer oaths.

Among those whom I have authorized to conduct interrogations and investigations and to administer oaths, with the effective date of their authorization, are the following personnel of Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes:

FRED KAUFMANN, U.S. Civilian, AGO Identification No. A-441649 Chief, Interrogation Branch, Evidence Division, Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, authorized 9 July 1946.

OTTO KREILSHEIM, U.S. Civilian, AGO Identification No. A-445900, Interrogator, Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, authorized 4 October 1946.

WALTER E. RAPP, U.S. Civilian, AGO Identification No. D-416367, Director, Evidence Division, Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, authorized 26 May 1946.

HENRY SACHS, U.S. Civilian, AGO Identification No. A-441698, Research Analyst, Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, authorized 15 July 1946.

MR. DENNEY: At the time the Greek film was shown the certificate from Dr. Dimitzas was not available, and I now have the certificate and hand it to the Secretary General.

Dr. Fritsch has now returned from the Pohl case, and that concludes the matters which we had with reference to miscellaneous matters, and Mr. Rapp will now continue with the presentation of the evidence involving the Norwegian case.

MR. RAPP: If Your Honors will recall, yesterday, in connection with Document Book 23 there was some question as to the Jurat of some of the documents which were marked for identification only. We are now submitting the necessary certifications, and as I shall come to each document I shall at that time make some comments which may be necessary. Norway No. 1, --- Norway No. I which has been marked Exhibit 511-A for identification, we will not present at this time. We just leave it as 511-A, and we will not further present it at this time.

Norway II, which has been marked for identification as Exhibit 512-A, and Norway V, which has been marked 516-A, and Norway XI, which has been marked as Exhibit 520-A, and Norway XII, which has been marked Exhibit 521-A, -I have given defense counsel a certificate pertaining to these documents. I promised this particular certificate to defense counsel last night. I didn't get it off of the mimeograph machine until about 12:30 this morning. I couldn't find defense counsel at that time any more, so I gave it to him at the first opportunity this morning, and in view of the fact that we could not get together last night defense counsel informed me this morning that he would have to have until noon today before I can put in those documents which are covered in connection with this certificate.

So I am now passing out to the ether defense counsels merely in order to keep their document book, up, although they have no connection with the Norwegian case, copies of this certificate, and after the noon recess I shall come back to this certificate and read the documents pertaining thereto into the record.

This particular document which I am having reference to now should be marked Exhibit 515-A, until such time as we present it as a document after the noon recess, so we mark it now for identification as Exhibit 515-A. This, Your Honors, is to be marked 515-A for identification.

I shall now pass out copies in English to the Honorable Tribunal, to the Assistant Secretary General, to the interpreters, the translators, and copies in German to the defense counsel and also copies to the court reporters.

If your Honors turn now, please, to page 17 of the English document book, and page 19 of the German document book, as your Honors will notice this particular document is offered in excerpt only. The original document appears in Norwegian. We have only translated the excerpt part into the English and the German language. I have meanwhile informed defense counsel that before the day is over I will also furnish to him that part which is not being offered in evidence by the prosecution in the German language, so that he may avail himself of such translation if he wishes to do so, and defense counsel told me that was agreeable to him.

Defense counsel calls to my attention that the previous certificate which I have submitted to your Honors for identification, marked 515-A, does not cover Norway document 5, which I had just reference to.

That of course, is correct and I was merely referring to one part, and this previous certificate, which, of course, has no bearing on that what I have just told the Court. As far as this document Norway 5 is concerned, which has been marked for identification as Exhibit 516-A, I should like now to submit this document to your Honors as Prosecution Exhibit 516, with the understanding that I will furnish defense counsel tonight that part which was not offered by us in evidence, but for his information.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honors, I object to the submission of Norway 5 as an exhibit, for the same reasons which were discussed yesterday in reference to these documents. This is a report of the town engineer of Hammerfest, which in no way moots the demands made by the rules of procedure regarding evidence. This is likewise not a document which has its origin in the investigations of a Government commission. Rather, it is a personal report of a private individual.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, I was just about to hand to defense counsel the Jurat of this particular document we are submitting into evidence, and it is perfectly obvious that the document is all that that defense counsel says it is not, and I am just about ready to hand that to defense counsel. It was marked yesterday for identification as Document 516-A, and we are submitting it now as document. The certificate that was in there yesterday was not withdrawn. It was still marked for identification, and we are putting it back as such today, and I was just about to pass out to defense counsel and the court copies of the jurat. This particular document, Your Honor, of course, bears no particular document number, since it is in the original folder marked at present as Exhibit 516-A.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I don't want to protest against not keeping to the time limit of 24 -hours in this case, but I would like to ask mr. Rapp to use the same procedure as regards this document as in the other cases, and to discuss these matters in a final manner this afternoon. I have just only come into the possession of this Jurat, as your Honors have seen.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I appreciate defense counsel's concession on this particular instance. However, I believe there is a little difference on the other document. We had withdrawn the identification, and we were re-submitting it, and I had promised him to do that last night and I was unable to comply. This particular jurat has never been withdrawn, in other words, the document remains for identification with the Secretary General.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, at any rate this is a supplement which to document 516-A submitted yesterday. This supplement has only been submitted just now, and I believe it is only fair if in this case, the same procedure is adopted as with the other document.

JUDGE CARTER: The questions involved in this certificate seem to be similar to those in the other certificates. We think the position of counsel well taken, and it should at least go over until the afternoon recess.

MR. RAPP: Very well, Your Honor, The next document I am having reference to is Norway IX, which Your Honors will find on page 33. It is on page 36 of the German defense counsels' book. Norway IX was marked as 518-A -- 518-A, and in compliance with the desires of defense counsel I am now merely passing out the jurat and we shall return to it after the noon recess.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I would not object if in the case of this document we would already discuss the entire objection to this document. I don't believe that the confirmation of the signature of this document is very essential. This is an indictment originating in Norway. However, indictments in my view cannot be admitted as evidence. For this reason alone I believe this exhibit can not be admitted, and I am therefore taking care to object already at this juncture against its admission.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we submit that this particular document Norway IX is an official report of the representative of the Norwegian government to the United Nations War Crimes Commission in London, and was prepared during the war, and concluded toward the end of the War. We are submitting it under the rules of Ordinance No. VII, as an official Government report, and the Tribunal in admitting this particular piece of evidence is, of course, at their own discretion if they decide to give it any weight or how much of it they want to allocate to it, but I believe that it is in the nature of an official government report which was submitted to the United Nations War Crimes Commission.

DP. FRITSCH: Your Honor, may I point out that this document is super-scribed "Accusations", and thus it outwardly conform with the form of an indictment.

JUDGE CARTER: It is the opinion of the Tribunal that it is properly admissible in evidence. The fact it might contain such statements will not prevent it from being used. However, we are in agreement, no doubt, that the accusations don't have very much probative value before this Tribunal. I think probably if it is established that it is a document of the War Crimes Commission of the Norwegian Government that it will have to be admitted for what it is worth.

I think on that issue we will have to overrule the objection.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, may I reserve stating my point of view until the time after the expiration of the limit for the document submitted today.

MR. RAPP: If the Court pleases, I should like to request the Marshal be requested to summon the witness Trygve Schance, S-c-h-a-n-c-e. Trygve, T-r-y-g-v-e, is his first name: Trygve Schance.

JUDGE CARTER: The Marshal is instructed to summon the witness.

Does the witness speak English?

MR. RAPP: The witness does not speak English, Your Honor.

JUDGE CARTER: The witness will be sworn.

I solemnly swear that the testimony I will give in the case on trial will be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me God.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

JUDGE CARTER: You may sit down.

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. RAPP:

Q What is your full name, witness?

A Trygve Schance. That is, T-r-y-g-v-e S-c-h-a-n-c-e.

MR. RAPP: May I inquire from the interpreter how it is intending to conduct this interpretation. In other words, are you going from Norwegian into the German or from Norwegian into the English, or viceversa.

INTERPRETER SCHAPF: I don't care, whichever way you prefer it. I can talk either English or German.

MR. RAPP: All right. I suggest I examine the witness in the German language, and you answer and translate in the German language, and the interpreters then can put it into English. I believe that will be more convenient all the way around.

Q When were you born, witness?

A 15 April 1907.

Q And where were you born, witness?

A In S-k-j-a-n-e-f-a, N-a-m-v-i-k.

Q Have you any family, witness?

A Yes, a wife and two children.

Q What is your profession, witness?

A I am police director in Polmak.

Q What was your schooling?

A Elementary school, secondary school, and I took a training course in the Civil Air Defense. I took a police training course in general mechanics. That is all.

Q Since when have you been director of Police in Polmak?

A I have been in Polmak since February 1, 1945.

Q In which part of Norway is the town of Polmak situated?

INTERPRETER SCHARF: Is the witness supposed to use the map?

MR. RAPP: Yes, if he can do so.

A Polmak is situated near the Finish frontier, that is the interior part of Finnmark.

BY MR. RAPP:

Q Thank you. Witness, what did you do before you became chief of police in Polmak?

A I was police sergeant-major in Vardoe.

Q Witness, where is the little town of Vardoe? You needn't point it out on the map.

A It is on the coast on the eastern part of Finnmark.

Q And how long were you there? Since when?

A I had taken up my position in Vardoe on the 15th of June 1935.

Q And witness, if I have understood you correctly, you left on the first of February 1945 and went to Polmak from there, is that correct?

A Yes, that is correct.

Q During the time of the occupation were you in that little town of Vardoe?

A Yes, at that time I was in Vardoe.

Q Witness, what was your task as an inhabitant of the town of Vardoe during the time of the occupation? What did you do?

A I had to deal with criminal matters since I was a police official.

Q Witness, can you give us some more details briefly? It is a rather large concept, criminal matters.

A I had to deal with theft and violations of the law on the part of the civilian population.

Q Witness, was the town of Vardoe during the time you stayed there destroyed in connection with the war?

A When the Germans retreated, we calculated that between 80 to 85 per cent of the town had been destroyed.

Q When did the Germans withdraw, witness?

A They left Vardoe the first days of November 1944.

Q Was it the first time that you heard of a retreat or had seen a retreat?

A I was not in Vardoe at the time the retreat was taking place.

Q Where were you, witness?

A I was in Skjanes (spelling) S-k-j-a-n-e-s.

Q Would you like to point out to us now on the map, Vardoe and Skjanes?

A (Indicating) It is on the west side of the Tana Fjord.

Q How did you learn of the retreat in Skjanes?

A On the 30th of October 1944, I talked over the telephone with my mother-in-law. She is living in Finnkonckeila (spelling) F-i-n-n-k-o-n-c-k-e-i-l-a. She told me that on the same day a German detachment had been in the town of Finnkonckeila, and I must add here that no other German troops were in Finnkonckeila. These Germans told the population that the little town was to be burned and that the population was to be evacuated in boats. The population had decided in the meantime not to go away. They did not want to evacuate the town, and they began at once to leave for the mountains. The Children's Home had been transferred to Finnkonckeila from Vardoe at some previous date, there were 23 children from the ages of 1 to 15 years, and we had 4 women looking after these children. My mother-in-law wanted to know whether I could possibly help to take these children from Finnkonckeila to a safer place, and I answered that I would do that. Eleven young men apart from myself accompanied me. They also were prepared to go to Finnkonckeila across the mountains in order to do that. At 6 o'clock in the morning on the 31st of October, we began our trip and went to Finnkonckeila. We arrived in Finnkonckeila at about 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The population had already gone into the mountains overlooking the village. A German detachment had arrived in Finnkonckeila in a motorboat and stayed near the village.

I saw that boxes of dynamite were taken from the boats to shore and also cans with gasoline.

I went down into the little town and one of my comrades accompanied me. It was my intention to obtain clothing which I had previously sent to the house of my mother-in-law, and so it happened that I struck up a conversation with the leader of this German detachment. It was a German lieutenant. I asked him whether it was true that this town was to be burned. He answered, "Yes, this place is to be blown up. This is not only to happen here, but in the whole of Finnmark." And he added that the population was to be sent to the south in small boats. I asked him then what would happen if the population should decide to go to the mountains. He answered that afterwards a detachment would arrive which has the task of fetching the population.

He said those who should refuse to come along would be arrested and would be taken into German captivity, and they would also risk being shot. We were told that we had to leave the place at once because the blowing up and burning down was to begin at once. We went back to the camp then which the people had in the mountains. The other ten who had been with me had begun to make preparations in order to take the children away with them over the rocks. At about half-past three in the afternoon, they began their detonations and the burning down of the houses. There were three fish processing factories, producing all kinds of fish products, these three installations were blown up as the first with dynamite. And the Germans went from house to house with their cans of gasoline. They went into the houses, remained there for a moment, then came out again, smashed the windows with the butts of their rifles, and a moment or two later the houses began to go up in flames. The procedure of the Germans was quite systematical, that is to say, they went from house to house.

I was sitting up above the village and looked at what was going on until about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. At five o'clock, the whole place which is situated in a gorge was a sea of flames. Two houses were some distance from the village, and those two houses were not in flames when I left. It is at that time we began our retreat to Skjanes with the children. We had a very strenuous trip with these children. The smallest had to be carried on our backs. The way back took us 18 hours. We arrived at Skjanes at 12 o'clock noon, on the 1st of November 1944.

The children were very badly dressed, only thin shoes, and they were badly equipped for such a trip. We lodged the children in the school building of Skjanes. In the evening of the same day, that is on the first of November 1944 at about 11 or 11:30 at night, a German landing craft arrived in Skjanes. A number of German soldiers and marines disembarked from this boat. The first thing they did was that they put fire to the warehouse in Skjanes.

Soldiers were posted around the village, and others went and told the population that they would have to be on the landing craft within, at the latest, one hour. The leader of this detachment was a German lieutenant. This officer went to the school building in which the children were, and he ordered that all these children should instantly be brought to the boat. The superintendent of these children's home came running to my house which is situated about three or four hundred yards from the school, and they asked me to try to intervene with the Germans so that the children would not have to be taken to the boat. I went along with them and talked to the lieutenant. He said that his order was that he was to collect these people and my objections and my pleas not to do this were of no interest to him. He said exactly the same regarding what was to happen as the lieutenant with whom I had talked in Finnkonkeila, and he also said that those who possibly remained behind would either be made prisoners of war of the Germans or could possibly also be shot on the spot. This conversation took place on the stairs outside of the school building in which the children were lodged.

It was night and the children were in their beds, and the officer ordered that his soldiers should at once start taking the children to the ship. I saw that the children were taken out of their beds without any opportunity of putting on clothes, and they were taken to the ship as they were without any further ado. The bigger children were usually successful in putting on some of their clothes, and they were also taken to the ship. I then saw that I could do nothing here. I left this house and went back to the house in which I lived, and where my wife, my mother, and my children were living. I was stopped by the German lieutenant when I was going back, and he told me to stop, turn back, and go to the boat. I pointed out to the lieutenant that I was in my pajamas and that I only had an overcoat, apart from that, and slippers. And I also told him that he should give me an opportunity to prepare myself better for such a trip, and that also I had a family after which I had to look.

He ordered a soldier to take me to the boat at once. I pointed out to him that he himself had posted sentries around the village which were to see to it that the whole population was to board the ships, and I thought If there were such sentries around the village there would not be any harm if I could go back to the house and prepare myself for the trip and for my family. Thereupon he gave me permission to do that. I went back to my house, and the soldier who had been there said the same, that an hour at the latest we should be on the boat, and that we should prepare ourselves for that.

During the time that remained to us we succeeded in leaving our house and getting into the mountains. Later it appeared that the rest of the population had done the same -- that is, had taken to the mountains.

I want to know your attention to the fact that the country around SKjanes is very rough. It is very easy to hide one's self there and to get away from the place.

This ship of which I have spoken previously left in about one hour had only the children were on that boat and the people who had looked after the children.

MR. RAPP: Witness, the Judge wants to say something.

PRESIDENT JUDGE CARTER: We will take our morning recess at this time.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You may proceed.

BY MR. RAPP:

Q Would you please carry on with your report?

AAs I have already said, we went into the mountain in order to escape from the German forced evacuation. I would like to point out here that the places which I mentioned before such as Skjanes, Finnkonjkeila, et cetera, were on the Nurfen Peninsula and there are no road communications there.

The next day it was the 2nd of November an armed fishing boat came to Skjanes, a kind of auxiliary war ship. Germans landed from the ship and then they started to burn down houses and the village. The civilian population was then in the mountains in the neighboring district. Since we saw that the Germans were starting to bum down the village, we tried to come as near to the village as possible in order to see what was going on.

The same thing happened which happened in Finnkonjkeila. Explosive stuff such as gasoline was taken into the houses. The windows were broken and soon after this the houses burst into flames.

Those domestic animals which the population were not able to bring into safety were taken by the Germans. Some of them were slaughtered on the spot. Others were taken on to the ship.

As I have already said, we collected in the mountains and after all we had there a camp in which we were collected. None of us had more with us except that which we carried on our bodies and we were gathered there together. We were altogether 130 people. The eldest was 86 years old. The youngest was a girl 4 days old. This little girl and the mother of this child we had taken on a stretcher into the mountains shortly before the burying started.

For three days we stayed out in the open and in the meantime we tried to erect some kind of houses. We build a kind of house which we call up there a "Gamme". That is a house made from turf.

After these three days we succeeded in building sufficient houses and to develop these houses sufficiently in order to get into them. We had very little to eat and we had very few clothes.

What we had to eat was mostly cattle which we slaughtered, cattle which we had saved from the Germans. We were there in the mountains for 17 days. In the first days, while we were there, we saw continuously, German ships coming from and going into the Fjord, and German aircraft which flew over our heads. We had no communications with other villages, neither telephones nor roads.

We knew that Finnkonjkeila had been burned to the ground. We had seen the sea of flames in Berlevaag. We sent small patrols of two or three men to Gamvik, and Mehamn to see what was happening there, and we discovered there that these villages were completely destroyed, that they had been blown up and burned down, and that the population had been compulsorily evacuated to the south.

From the 17th of November, a German motor boat came from Batsfjord, and we discovered there how conditions further east in Finnmark were. I went with the motorboat when it went back east, and came in this way as far as Vardoe.

Q Witness, one moment please. Was it a German or Norwegian motorboat?

A It was a Norwegian motor boat.

Q Thank you very much.

A In that way I got to Vardoe, where I worked. After all, I had a job. I got there on the 19th of November. My job was to collect information about the population which had remained behind, so that we could help them. It turned out that we had a few Norwegian motor boats left, boats which we had succeeded in saving. So far as it was possible, to use these motor boats to transport the people who were still in the open, we did this, but it must be remembered that the German control had to be avoided.

In addition my job was to interrogate people who came from West Finnmark. It turned out that there also a few motor boats had been saved. As soon as it became a little quieter there, – as soon as there weren't so many German ships there, these boats, -- those motorboats, – started out to eastern Finnmark. There were also boats coming from Lofoten.

They made a large bend in the north and then they landed in eastern Finnmark.

After we had listened to the people who arrived in this way, we learned much more about what had happened in the various villages. Slowly but surely, we discovered what had happened and the whereabouts of people, and where help was most needed. The Norwegian soldiers had arrived at this time in Finnmark, and Lt. Colonel Johnson, was appointed leader of the expedition which was to help the civilian population.

We listened to what these people who came from the other parts of Finnmark had to say, and in this way we also discovered how the Germans had acted in the various districts.

Slowly but surely we succeeded in bringing the people who had been living under the most difficult conditions to Eastern Finnmark. In the meantime we received news that the Germans had also been carrying out destructions in Western Finnmark.

Q Witness, the town of Vardoe which you spoke about last, it is on the Varanger peninsula; is that correct?

A It is on the Varanger Peninsula. Vardoe, - the town of Vardoe, is on a small island which is divided from Varanger by a sound. There is no land communication from the town to the island, but the main road goes on up to this waterway, this sound.

Q Would you please show us the town of Vardoe on the map? Witness where is the main road 50 which goes from the East to the West?

(Witness indicating these things on map?)

A It starts here and then goes along this red line where I am pointing.

Q How far, approximately is this town, Vardoe, from the main road, main road 50 which goes from the East to the West?

A The waterway which divides Vardoe from the main road is about 1500 meters wide.

Q I do not think the witness understood my question.

A From the main road 50 there is a branch, a continuation, so to speak, from Vardoe to Vardsae.

Q Witness, the question I think was very simple. How far is the distance from the main road 50 to Vardoe, in kilometers?

A 75 kilometers from Vardoe to Vardsae.

Q That still is not the answer to my question. You have now told me how far from Vardoe to Vardsae. I asked you how far it is from Vardoe to the main road, 50.

AAbout 125 kilometers.

Q That's correct. Now, witness, this town which you mentioned before, - my Norwegian is not very good, - but it's Finnkenjkeila, how far is this place from the main road 50, in kilometers?

A 130 or 140 kilometers.

Q. Witness, in your capacity as a policeman up there, have you often traveled through this whole territory?

A. Yes.

Q. During the occupation?

A. Not as much during the time of the occupation as afterwards.

Q. How soon after the occupation?

A. I went from Skjanes to Vardoe on the 17th and 18th of November. On the 18th of December, I was in Berlevaag. On the 28th or 29th of December, I went from Vardoe to Palmak, and then back again.

Q. An of these towns which you have named are in Finnmark?

A. Yes. In May, 1946, I went by air from Vardoe to Tromsø. That is on the other side of Finnmark, in the West.

Q. Were these trips which you have just spoken about of an official nature?

A. A part of them, yes. Some of them were official. The trip to Tromsø was of a private nature.

Q. Apart from the private trip, what was your official task?

A. My trip to Berlevaag, had to do with the traitors, - the trial against the people who had committed high treason.

Q. Witness, you do not have to tell us the reasons for every single one of your official trips. Generally speaking, in which capacity did you travel there, and what was on the whole, your task?

A. I travelled in the capacity of a police official. They were only investigations on those kinds of tasks.

Q. Did you have contact with the inhabitants during these trips?

A. Yes.

Q. Witness, during the evacuation did you ever receive a reason from the German occupation authority why the evacuation took place?

A. Yes. During the conversations which I mentioned before with the German officer in Finnkonjkeila, I heard about this. This was that the population had to be taken from the sphere of the threatening soviet Russian domination of terror. When I was in the house of my mother--in law in order to get the clothes which I spoke about before, I met a German soldier who was forcing some drawers, etc.

I do not know what he was looking for. He saw that I took various pieces of clothing, and tried to put them into my rucksack, and he said to me, "Leave it; you don't need anything." He said, "If you should succeed in getting away into the mountains, you are going to be shot anyway, and if the Russians come, then you will be used for forced labor in Siberia, and you don't need any of these things there."

Q. Witness, did the Russians really penetrate into this territory about which we are just speaking?

A. No.

Q. Did the population with whom you spoke ever tell you what they thought about the reason for the evacuation?

A. The Norwegian population regarded the destructions which had taken place, and the evacuation as pure vandalism.

MR. RAPP: I have no further questions at this time, your Honor.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. Dr. Fritsch for the defendant Rendulic. Witness, you were a police official for four years during the occupation?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, then, you worked for the Quisling government?

A. No.

Q. You were a police official?

A. Yes.

Q. And who constituted the government then?

A. From 1941, it was the Quisling government.

Q. And to whom were you subordinate as a police official?

A. During the period of the Quisling government, we police officials followed the orders and paroles which were given us by our lawful government in London.

Q. But the exiled government in London couldn't give any individual orders, any detailed orders.

A. We had our system of information and we were so informed that we know and could follow what was decided in London.

Q. And what kind of information was this? What system of information?

A. We listened to the Norwegian radio from London. I would like to point out that the Quisling government had their own police, state police, and a party police.

Q. Well, who paid you then?

A. I got my salary from the Norwegian state.

Q. And this Norwegian state was represented by the Norwegian Minister of the Interior for you?

A. I would like to point out to the defense counsel that although we had a Quisling government in the country, the Norwegian resistance movement was in no way dead, only a small percentage of the population supported the Quisling government and the government was supported by bayonets.

Q. Witness, when the Quisling government came into power, did you have to swear an oath of loyalty to them?

A. No, we didn't have to. If anyone had been asked to swear this kind of oath, I would have left my job.

Q. Witness, I am now speaking about the period November 1944. According to your description, a telephone conversation from Finnkonjkeila told you for the first time of the imminent evacuation. Is that correct?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And previously, no announcements of any kind had been issued about an evacuation?

A. During the middle of October, I went on my bicycle from Vardoe to Smallfjord and then I went on by boat to Skjanes. There I saw and heard that the Norwegian members of the Nazi Party had received information that they were to be evacuated. They were told that they were to be brought to safety. About that time, I didn't discover anything about the fact that the Norwegian population was to be evacuated. This information only referred to the Nazi population, and I thought it probably that the Germans would tell their followers in Norway that they were to be brought to safety.

Q. Witness, when did you see for the first time a poster, an announcement which urged the population to evacuate?

A. As I traveled through Tana, those proclamations were nowhere to be seen. As I have already said, in Skjanes there was no land communication. Everything there took place at sea, by sea routes. The only telephonic communication which we had in Skjanes was with Finnkonjkeila and in this part of the country no posters were put up.

Q. And did you see later on posters of this kind?

A. Yes. I saw then when I came back to Vardoe in connection with the work which I had to do as a police official.

Q. Witness, did you go in an official capacity to Skjanes?

A. Yes.

Q. As a police official?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, what did you have to do there? Just one quite short answer.

A. Since the town of Vardoe was far from the main routes, it was decided that a part of the police chamber there was to be transferred and this part was to be taken to Skjanes.

Q. Who issued this order?

A. The order was given to me by my chief, the police director in Vardoe.

Q. And from whom did the director of police receive this order?

A. I can't say because I naturally do not have the right to ask my superiors from whom they received their orders.

Q. To whom was this police director subordinate?

A. The Department of Justice was superior to the Police director.

Q. And this Department of Justice belonged to the Quisling government?

A. Yes, but a very large percentage - the greatest percentage in the Department of Justice did not belong to the Quisling Government.

Q. Not to the Quisling government? Or the Quisling party?

A. Only the ministers were in the government.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: The Tribunal will recess until one-thirty this afternoon.

(A recess was taken until 1330 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors will see before them a piece of paper which I have passed out during the recess to be marked for identification 523-A. I just wanted to get this in in time so that by tomorrow noon when the 24-hour period elapses we can tie this particular certificate up to Norway Document 6--523-A. I furnished copies of this to the interpreters, the court reporters, the assistant Secretary General, the German defense counsel.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q Your Honor, may I continue the cross examination? Witness, before the noon recess, you told me that the middle of October, 1944, you had been transferred to Skjanes by the then Norwegian government.

A Yes.

Q Were you then again in service as a police sergeant major?

A The police office was to be transferred. However, it did not get there because the boat which was to take these people there was seized by the Germans and requisitioned. That was in Batsfjord.

Q What did you do in Skjanes?

A I was waiting there for our office. The telephone communications were cut and for that reason I had no information. I was waiting for the boat to arrive.

Q Witness, who was your highest superior in Norway?

A The police was administered by the Justice Department and thus the Justice Department was the highest authority.

Q And this Justice Department was part of the Norwegian Government of that day?

A It is like this: every minister took care of the duties of his department.

Q He belonged to the government, didn't he?

A Yes, he did.

Q Witness, you told me that you did not have to swear an oath of loyalty to the Norwegian government of that time. Is that correct?

A Yes, it is.

Q Only you yourself didn't swear an oath of loyalty or did none of the police officials swear an oath of loyalty?

A The whole of the police. Those who were Norwegians among the police officials did not swear so oath of loyalty.

Q But then you carried out your duties on the directives of that government?

A I would like to point out that the adherents of Quisling government in Norway were not more than two per cent of the population. In all departments of the government, people who were bitter enemies of the Quisling government had their place. Even within the Quisling party, the resistance movement had its people who informed the resistance movement about what was happening within the Quisling party. It might be said that the whole country, almost the entire population was not only opposed to the Quisling government but was fighting against the government.

Q Excuse me, that is sufficient for my purposes. Witness, you then went to the Norwegian place which I can hardly pronounce--Finnkonjkeila. The German soldiers who landed there--you saw them, did you?

A Yes, I did.

Q Were these marines or were they ordinary troops?

A Ordinary army troops as well as marines.

Q How did you recognize the difference?

AAfter the Germans had been in the country for four years, it was natural that one knew the difference between a marine and an ordinary army soldier.

Q You talked with the leader of that unit?

A Yes.

Q That was a Lieutenant?

A Yes.

Q A Lieutenant of the Marines?

A That was an army lieutenant.

Q Do you know, witness, when in this place the inhabitants were first asked to evacuate it?

A That was on the previous day, on the 30th of October, 1944.

Q And in what manner?

A This place has no road communications; for that reason, a ship came which landed those soldiers. These soldiers went through the village and told the population what was to happen.

Q Witness, you had said in this children's home which was situated in this village had been transferred from Vardoe. Is that correct?

Q For what reason was the children's home transferred from Vardoe to this place?

AAAs I said before Vardoe is situated far to the east, and for that reason there was a great danger that war operations would take place in that region. Apart from that, the building in which the children's home was housed, had been taken over by the Germans.

First of all the children's home was transferred to Kongsfjord.

Q Just a moment, did Russian air attacks take place on Vardoe?

A Yes, indeed.

Q Was not that the reason why this children's home was transferred from Vardoe to a place which was in less danger?

A I assume that both reasons applied.

Q Was Vardoe greatly damaged by these air attacks?

A Yes, indeed.

Q What was the approximate percentage of the town which was destroyed by these air attacks?

AAbout 45 per cent, of the houses.

Q Were destroyed by these air attacks?

A Yes.

Q Witness, you then brought these children to Skjanes on the 1st November 1944?

A Yes.

Q You said it was very difficult to go across the mountains—these children were dressed in a very insufficient manner, is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Why did you not put these children into the ships in order to send them to safety in that way?

A Since numerous attacks had taken place at sea by the Russians and other allies, it was deemed very dangerous to evacuate the children by sea.

Q Did this evacuation of the children to Skjanes take place in agreement with the German evacuation commission?

A No. That was out of the question.

Q How did the German evacuation authorities want to transport these children?

A They were transported in such a landing craft, it was an iron boat with a roof and nothing else.

Q And this kind of a transport you found more dangerous than the transport with insufficient clothing across the mountains?

A From Finnkonjkeila to Skjanes the distance is not greater than about 30 kilometers, but to Tromsø, and that was the first point where the German landing craft would stop, it would have been 650 kilometers, across wide stretches of sea infested with mines, and so forth.

Q Witness, how big is Finnkonjkeila?

AAbout a 100 people lived in Finnkonjkeila.

Q 100. Can a landing craft travel over a distance of 650 kilometers non-stop?

A Mr. Defense Counsel must not assume that I know the efficiency and capacity of the German war vessels.

Q You had stated that this was a small iron boat which would only touch land in Tromsø, that is after a voyage of 650 kilometers, do you know that?

A It was not a small boat, it was one of those flat boats with a flat bottom the English called landing crafts.

Q It was a large boat then?

A What do you mean by a large one and what do you mean by a small one in talking about ships?

Q Just because of that I would like to be told the size of this boat by the witness who has after all soon this boat.

A For the length and width to be given in meters?

Q Yes, please.

A About 20 meters long and five to six wide.

Q When you then returned to Skjanes did you again take up your duties as a police officer?

A I said previously that in Skjanes I was waiting for my office which had been delayed in Batsfjord, and as long as my office and the officials had not arrived in full strength, I could not take up my duties with this office.

Q You then had lots of children in the school in Skjanes, how many children were there and how old were they?

A I have already said that there were 23 children, and the age categories from one to 15 years.

Q Did women look after these children?

A Yes, indeed.

Q How many women were available for this purpose?

A I have already told you four.

Q You then said that these small children especially were brought half clothed, half dressed on the boats; why did not these women see to it that these children were properly dressed?

A I have already said that the director of the children's home came to me and asked me to intervene. The children were taken on board the ship while I was looking on myself.

Q This does not constitute an answer to my question.

A How could the women dress the children when the Germans tore these children from their beds and conducted them to the boats.

Q Excuse me witness. I put a question to you, why did the women not dress these children. You answered by putting a question to me.

A It was like this. The director of this children's home had come to me and she hoped and expected that I would be successful seeing that the children were not taken and if the children were not taken away there would have been no necessity for dressing them.

Q. How long did you negotiate with the German officer about this question?

A. About 5 minutes.

Q. And he still refused to leave the children in the home?

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. Was the director of this children's home present at this discussion?

A. She was in the house while I was talking to the officer outside the house on the stairs.

Q. Could she not in the meantime see to it that the children were dressed?

A. The director of the children's home did not believe the Germans would be brutal enough to take the children in this manner.

Q. Had it been said that the children were to be evacuated on a ship?

A. Yes, that was said.

Q. Now, what was the brutality in this procedure?

A. First of all it was brutal that the children should be subjected to such a voyage. It was so to speak an iron box, the boat was nothing else but an iron box with a motor at the end. Apart from that not enough time was left to prepare the children in a proper manner for a voyage of this kind.

Q. How much time was at their disposal?

A. Not much more than 5 minutes.

Q. You mean to say that from the time the German soldiers announced Skjanes was to be evacuated until the time the children had to board the ship?

A. The children's home or the population generally?

Q. The population generally?

A. One hour.

Q. How large is Skjanes, as regards population, I mean?

A. About 150 inhabitants.

Q. Witness, you had received permission for yourself to return home again and to look after the evacuation of your family, is that correct?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Have I understood you correctly that the Germans had surrounded the whole village by sentries?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. In spite of that you did not board the ship?

A. No.

Q. Rather you went into the mountains?

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. Were you not observed by the soldiers who surrounded the village?

A. No. The village of Skjanes is so very extended there is one house here and one house quite a distance away.

Q. One can't really speak of surrounding this village then?

A. German soldiers were posted around the village. To say "surrounded" would not be the proper expression.

Q. Have I understood the number correctly of those who entered the mountains from Skjanes, did you say there were 130?

A. I said in the camp in which I was we were 130 People.

Q. Were all of these people from Skjanes?

A. All of these people came from Skjanes.

Q. Witness, how many people were evacuated from Skjanes?

A. 27.

Q. And all the others could save themselves from being evacuated by fleeing?

A. Yes, I have already said that.

Q. How many German soldiers had landed in order to carry out the evacuation?

A. I don't know whether I saw all of them the way I was, however, I want to say there must have been 15 to 20 men.

Q. Do you want to say these 15 or 20 people were not in a position to supervise the place that was evacuated?

A. It is evident that the population of the village knew the conditions of the terrain in the village and in the surrounding country better than the soldiers who were posted there, and for that reason they were successful in gaining the mountains in spite of the soldiers.

Q. Where was the evacuation intended to take the people from Skjanes?

A. We did not get any information on this.

Q. Was this transport boat which was to evacuate the population from SKjanes, was that also a fairly large boat, that is to say a ship?

A. It was the same landing craft of which I have already spoken.

Q. The same boat which evacuated the population in that other place?

A. The same boat which evacuated the children from Skjanes traveled to Finnkonjkeila, on the next day, and that is as far as I heard, and took the population on board as there were only very few who had come to the boat.

Q. You said, the evacuation of Finnkonjkeila took place before that of Skjanes, is that not correct?

A. No, it took place afterwards.

Q. Witness, you were in Finnkonjkeila, that place was evacuated, there you escaped the evacuation, and you also took the children with you, and then you went to Skjanes?

A. My family was in Skjanes. I was asked from Finnkonjkeila to go there and help and bring these children to safety. I therefore went from Skjanes to Finnkonjkeila. My family, therefore, was not in Finnkonjkeila.

Q. That is correct? Witness, when you were in Finnkonjkeila, there were German troops there, as you said, in order to evacuate that place?

A. German troops were there in order to burn down the place.

Q. And leave the population there?

A. The population was to stay there. It was said that a ship would come and will fetch you.

Q. And this ship, witness, when you went to Skjanes had not arrived in Finnkonjkeila?

A. No, it had not arrived at Finnkonjkeila yet. The ship which actually came had been in Skjanes, had taken the children aboard, and touched Finnkonjkeila on the way to the south on the way across the fjord.

Q. Witness, on my question when I asked if the ship was to go to Skjanes, you answered me you did not know, is that correct?

A. We got the information that the population was to be sent to the south.

Q. No place was named?

A. No place was named.

Q. But you knew that the same ship which had taken the children was going to Tromsø, that is what you said previously?

A. I did not know that the ship was bound for Tromsø. I heard later when communications were re-established that the ship had gone to Tromsø.

Q. Witness, as reason for your wanting to take the children across the mountains, you told me this was that Skjanes was only 30 kilometers while you had known that the ship was bound for Tromsø, that would have been 650 kilometers; and now you are telling that you learned only later that the ship was to go to Tromsøe?

A. I named Tromsøe because I know now where the ship was bound for. That is the reason I named this distance.

Q. At that time you did not know that the ship was bound for Tromsøe?

A. No. I only knew that the children were to be sent south.

Q. Previously, you told me on my question of why you went by foot over the mountains, you told me that you had escaped evacuation because the ship was bound for Tromsøe. That is previously, you told me that you knew at that time that the ship was bound for Tromsøe. Why is there discrepancy in that, witness.

A. When the Germans came and said the ship was bound for the south, when we in Norway talk of the south we mean everything south of Trondhjem. If we talk of northern Norway, we talk of everything situated north of Tromsøe.

Q. Witness, thank you, we can leave this subject now. One question. Did you talk about the evidence during the noon recess with any of your fellow countrymen?

A. No.

Q. Witness, as you said, you then went in a Norwegian motorboat from Skjanes to Vardoe, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Witness, may I first of all ask you, do you speak German?

A. Very little. I understand a little bit of German.

Q. Was this motorboat belonging to the Norwegian government of that time?

A. This was a fishing vessel which belonged to a fisher in the Batsfjord.

Q. Witness, when you returned to Vardoe, did you take up your duties?

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. You said you had made investigations regarding those people who had escaped to the mountains?

A. Yes.

Q. And on whose orders did you do that?

A. On the order of my chief, the police director.

Q. That is on the official orders of the then Norwegian government?

A. What does the defense counsel understand by "Norwegian Government" in this case?

Q. The superiors of your police director.

A. The Norwegian government was in London. The Quisling government was never recognized as a Norwegian government.

Q. Witness, I please ask you not to evade this Question. I have asked you on whose orders your director of police was acting?

A. Norwegian members of the Norwegian government in England had come back to Norway as well as Norwegian soldiers, and they started work right away.

Q. When was that, witness?

A. I returned to Vardoe on the 19th November, and there the Norwegian agencies had already started work who had come over from England.

Q. Witness, on the basis of these investigations you made, what did you find out about those people who had escaped into the mountains? Did many people die?

A. The people who had escaped from the burned down villages to the mountains had made great efforts to build houses. Winter should have started at that time already, but in that year autumn was very long.

Q. My Question was to this point. What did you find out about the fate of those people, that is to say, whether many of these people did perish.

A. I know of some cases in which people perished because of the strenuous conditions under which they had to live.

Q. Their number can't have been very considerable, as I take it, from you answer.

A. This is due only to the very mild weather. Normally, winter starts in this part of Norway on the first of October, that is in the first week of October; in this year, it started only at the end of November.

Q. Witness, this does not yet answer the question. I asked you for the number of victims.

A. In my district that is in the district of Skjanes, I learned that one elderly man in (spelling) L-a-n-g-f-j-o-r-d-n-e-s-, had died while fleeing.

Q. Otherwise, you did not hear of any case of death?

A. And in Skjanes a woman died of heart trouble because of her exertions. That was after I had left Skjanes.

Q. Was that an old woman?

A. She was between 40 and 50.

Q. Witness, for about three or four years you served in an official capacity under the German occupation?

A. During the German occupation, under the German occupation powers, yes.

Q. Did you have any contact with the German military during that time?

A. In Finnmark the number of soldiers was many times larger than the number of the civilian population. In the course of time, Germans had more and more authority in regard to the many things that were happening there, and it was quite inevitable that the civilian population came in to contact with the German soldiers.

Q. That is what I implied in my question. I only wanted to know from you whether you had any closer contact with the German soldiers?

I ask you to answer this question with only yes or no.

A. Partly.

Q. What were your personal experiences with the German Army troops there?

A. I did not like them.

Q. Excuse me, I believe that. I asked you what were your experiences that is, how did the German soldiers behave toward you?

A. They behaved as the Germans have always behaved themselves towards the population of an occupied territory. They look upon themselves as the Master Race.

Q. I don't believe that we can go any further into this problem in this manner. I want to hear from you whether you personally have had bad experiences with these German soldiers apart from the evacuation?

A. As police official during the time of the German occupation, I could observe how the Germans took every opportunity to look down upon one as something more or less inferior.

Q. That is a matter of emotion. I have asked you whether something unpleasant was done to you or to your family?

A. A German officer wanted to have me punished because during a stormy night during which one could hardly see anything. I had passed him without greeting him or saluting him.

Q. That is the only unpleasant experience you had with the Germans?

A. During all this time all we Norwegians were under tremendous pressure because of the German occupation.

Q. Witness, I certainly understand you. Nobody likes to have the enemy in his country, but this is not the matter at issue here. I'd like to ask you to answer my question now. Did you yourself suffer from unjust treatment from the part of German soldiers?

A. What do you mean by "unpleasantness"?

Q. I would then like you to answer the following question. What have you to complain of regarding the treatment of yourself or your family on the part of the German occupation forces?

Have you nothing to say in this matter, witness?

A I cannot at the moment remember anything except for this, that we were insulted. The Norwegian official authorities were not recognized.

Q You said you were continuously insulted. Surely, you must recall one of these many insults.

Witness, may I put another question to you, so that we don't spend too much time on this? Did the German armed forces provide food for the population?

AAAs far as I know, the Norwegian population was not provisioned by the German armed forces.

Q The Norwegian population did also live on foodstuffs which were imported, not only on food which was raised in the country?

A We imported a certain amount of foodstuffs.

Q. These imports would have to go through the German occupation channels at that time?

A I personally don't know anything about that.

DR. FRITSCH: For the time being I have no further questions to the witness in cross examination.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. RAPP:

Q. Witness, were you a member of the Illegal Norwegian movement?

A Yes, indeed. I worked in the Illegal movement.

Q Were you ever aware of the fact that under German law this movement was illegal?

A Yes, I was, indeed, aware of that.

Q Did you look upon this work in the Illegal movement as a duty?

A Yes, I did.

Q You told us that there were more German troops in that neighborhood than there were Norwegian inhabitants. Is that correct?

A Yes, that is correct.

Q Was it very dangerous for you to serve your royal government in England?

A Yes, indeed, there was always the danger that the Germans or that the members of the Quisling Party would get news of it.

Q And what was the punishment publicly known which the military government had issued for such membership?

A In the lightest cases, it was penitentiary or forced labor and usually death sentences.

Q Witness, you told us that about 2% of the Norwegian population were adherents of Quisling. Is that correct?

A Yes, it is.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I just wonder what all this has to do with the evacuation of Norway.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I submit that this particular phase was brought in by defense in their cross examination, a matter which we did not intend to include. It was put in there for the purpose of discrediting the witness and I am trying to establish the fact that the witness's conduct up there was not of that nature.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Well, no one objected and we sat here and listened patiently and I don't think that warrants going back into it again. These examinations never will end if every new point that is brought up provokes another long new line of testimony.

MR. RAPP: Very well then, your Honor; if in the future such points are brought up by the defense, we shall object.

Q Witness, could you tell us the climatic conditions prevailing at the time of the evacuation?

A The climatic conditions were unusually favorable in this fall.

MR. RAPP: Shall I repeat this question in German to go back to the German language?

Q What were the climatic conditions in Norway or, rather, in Finnmark during the time of the evacuation?

A The climatic conditions at that time were very unusually favorable for this time of the year.

Q Witness, can you describe to us what conditions were like at sea during the time when you were in Finnkojnkeila?

A The weather was good.

Q Witness, if talking of the sea, I believe at least one does not talk in terms of good or bad. Could you describe just what the sea was like?

A The sea was quiet and calm.

Q Witness, was the coast up there infested with mines?

A Yes, indeed. There were mines all over the place.

Q I am not talking of land. I am talking of the water. I am talking of sea mines.

A Yes, these were sea mines.

Q How did you know that?

A I learned that in Vardoe because if a Norwegian ship confiscated by the Germans was ordered to go some place the crew of this ship learned what course it had to take in order to evade the mines.

Q Who laid those mines?

A The Germans laid those mines. On the other hand, German as well as British airplanes had dropped mines.

Q Did you ever see, witness, whether German ships of any kind or size--I am talking now of those which either entered the coastal area or left the coastal area--were any of those ships destroyed by mines?

A Yes, I did see that.

Q Was this fact known to you when the problem of the children's home was under discussion, the fact that German ships had hit enemy mines in the coastal areas--was that fact known to you when the problem of the evacuation of the children's home was under discussion?

A It was generally known among the coastal population that Russian and British airplanes had dropped mines. The population got to know that in the following manner--that certain routes in the sea were blocked until German mine sweepers had swept those lanes.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: We will take our afternoon recess at this time.

BY MR. RAPP:

Q Before the recess we talked about mines which were laid along the coast by the Allies, and that the population knew about that because occasionally German boats exploded. Witness, was this fact one of the reasons why you tried to prevent the children from being evacuated by sea?

A Yes, that was one of the reasons.

Q Witness, you have stated here that you personally had no bad experiences with the Germans, that you can remember. Is that correct?

A No, I cannot remember any incidents.

Q Of a personal nature?

A Yes, of a personal nature.

Q Then you merely expressed your feelings?

A Yes, only my feelings.

Q Witness, can you tell us quite briefly, apart from the examples which you have already stated in your main testimony of bad experiences which you yourself observed or which were reported directly to you in your capacity as political chief, bad experiences of your countrymen up there with the Germans.

PRESIDING JUSTICE CARTER: I do not see any necessity for going through that again unless it is something in addition to what he has testified to.

MR. RAPP: That is what I wanted to test whether or not he had additional testimony to give to that particular issue, your Honor.

PRESIDING JUSTICE CARTER: I think you should limit it to anything additional then.

A. Yes. After Russia and Germany were at war, the Germans issued an order, according to which all people over 15 years of age had to have an identification card, and this identification card had always to be carried by the people. The Germans often controlled the people to see whether they had these papers, and while they pretended to carry out these controls, there were sometimes violations on the part of the Germans.

Q Witness, we are merely interested that you tell us, without beating about the bush too much, and quite briefly, what kind of violations these were, whether you were a witness of them, or whether they were reported to you in your official capacity. That is all that we are interested in.

A In one of these cases an old woman was exposed to one of these identification card controls, and when she did not produce the paper quickly enough, a pistol was pushed into her back, she was taken across the street and she was threatened with being placed before the Field Gendarmerie.

Q How do you know this?

A This was reported to me in my capacity as a policeman.

In one case a young Norwegian was hit down on the street by two Germans. The young man wanted to meet a Norwegian girl, and the Germans also wanted to go with this girl, and therefore they hit him down. That was reported to me.

Q Witness, in the first case which you told us about, was it reported to you who the people were?

PRESIDING JUSTICE CARTER: Just a moment. The indictment in this case charges that the defendant Rendulic was charged with a crime committed during the evacuation. It seems to me that this evidence of what happened during the occupation is outside of the scope of the indictment.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, the occupation in this particular phase was part of the evacuation, i.e. the occupation was de facto still existing. I believe this would fit into the evidence we are submitting. In other words, the occupation did not cease the minute the evacuation started.

PRESIDING JUSTICE CARTER: If I remember correctly, the indictment charges the burning of the homes and destruction of property as not being a military necessity. There is nothing said about injuring or killing any of the population or anything of that kind. It seems to me that we are getting outside of the scope of this particular area.

MR. RAPP: Very well, your Honor, then I have no further questions for the witness.

PRESIDING JUSTICE CARTER: Is there anything further?

BY DR. FRITSCH, for Rendulic:

Your Honor, I only have one question in connection with the redirect examination.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we submit that we have been rather liberal in permitting defense counsel to have so to speak, the last word every time the prosecution produces a witness. Heretofore we feel that that prosecution introducing a witness, that after the cross-examination, the testimony ought to be concluded. Now the defense is trying to re-direct or re-cross examine the witness at this time.

PRESIDING JUSTICE CARTER: I think where the prosecution brings in now evidence, they are entitled to bring in cross-examination. If it is rebuttal, they are not. We will permit him to ask the question.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I only have one question which arises from the re-examination of the prosecution.

RE-CROSS EXAMINATION BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. Witness, you were asked in the re-direct examination whether the military government, that is the German military government in Norway had issued heavy penalties.

My question is was there a German Military Government in Norway?

A. There was a Reich Commissar, Torboven.

Q. Do I understand you correctly that this Reich Commissioner was a military authority?

A. I do not know how far his authority went, and of what kind it was.

Q. Was the office of the Reich Commissioner a military agency, witness?

A. I do not know what relation he had to the military.

Q. Witness, did you ever hear that Norwegians came before a military court?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you now mean a court of the Reich Commissioner or a Army court?

A. This was a so-called court martial.

Q. And who was on this court tribunal?

A. I was never in those courts.

DR. FRITSCH: Thank you very much. I have no further questions.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Are there further questions by the defense? The Tribunal has none.

Is there any reason why this witness should not be excused permanently?

The witness will be excused.

(Witness excused)

MR. RAPP: If your Honors please, we would like now to return to Document Book 23. Your Honors, the first document we would like to submit is the document which at present is marked for identification as 515-A the one I handed Your Honors this morning. --515-A. This particular jurat which has been furnished in its translation to the defense counsel; reads as follows:

I, IVAR FOLLESTAD, certify; that I am a Counsellor at Law and I am duly licensed to practice before the Supreme Court of Norway and all Inferior Courts of Norway, that I am a Lieutenant Colonel in the Norwegian Army; that I am a duly authorized representative of the office of the Attorney General of Norway and as such I am duly accredited to the office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes (US) at Nurnburg, Germany; that I brought to Nurngerg, Germany, documents Norway 2, Norway 11 and Norway 12; that the procedure detailed herewith was followed in connection with these documents.

(A) Norway 2 is a deposition made by Egil Sorenson to the Norwegian Police at Vadsae, Norway. After the deposition was made, the deponent (Egil Sorenson) appeared before the Judge of the Criminal County Court of Varanger, Norway, on 12 August 1947 and stated under oath, in accordance with Norwegian Law, that the contents of the deposition were true. Norwegian law provides that statements which as to be used in any judicial proceedings may only be sworn to before a Judge in court. Further Norwegian law requires that sworn statements to be used as evidence in criminal cases must be made not only before a Judge in Court but in the presence of counsel appointed by the Court to protect the interests of the party against whom the sworn statement may be used. This procedure was followed and such counsel was appointed by the Court.

(B) Norway 11 is a letter of 18 June 1947 written and signed by Dr. John Caspersen Deputy Director of the Norwegian Ministry of Social Welfare. The letter is also signed by Dr. Karl Evary, Director of the Norwegian Ministry of Social Welfare. After the letter had been read and signed, Dr. Caspersen appeared before a Judge of the Criminal Inquiry Court of Oslo, Norway, on 3 July 1947 and stated under oath, in accordance with Norwegian law, that the contents of the letter were true. Norwegian law provides that statements which are to be used in any judicial proceeding may only be sworn to before a Judge in Court. Further Norwegian law requires that sworn statements to be used as evidence in criminal cases must be made not only before a Judge in Court but in the presence of counsel appointed by the Court to protect the interests of the party against whom the sworn statement may be used.

This procedure was followed and such counsel was appointed by the Court.

(C) Norway 12 contains three letters as follows; the first dated 25 February 1947, the second 26 June 1947 and the last 3 July 1947.

All three letters were dictated by Antoni Skoen, Deputy Director of the Central Statistic Office of Norway. The letters of 25 February and 3 July were signed by Mr. Skoen. The letter of 26 June was initialed by Mr. Skoen and signed by Arne Skaug, Director of the Central Statistic Office of Norway. The three letters were addressed to Ivar Follestad Antoni Skoen appeared before a Judge of the Criminal Inquiry Court of Oslo, Norway, on 3 July 1947, and stated under oath, in accordance with Norwegian law, that the contents of the letters of 25 February, 26 June and 3 July, all 1947, were true. Norwegian law provides that statements which are to be used in any judicial proceeding may only be sworn to before a Judge in Court. Further, Norwegian law requires that sworn statements to be used as evidence in criminal cases must be made not only before a Judge in Court but in the presence of counsel appointed by the Court to protect the interests of the party against whom the sworn statements may be used. This procedure was followed and such counsel was appointed by the Court.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I object to the introduction of this document as an exhibit. With Exhibit 515-A the prosecution tries to introduce Norway Document No. 2, 11 and 12 which are not admissible according to the rules of procedure of this court. This kind of procedure in my opinion would only mean getting around the regulations. According to my duty I must also object to the certificate of a witness who gives a declaration in this form and of this contents for his government.

In addition, I would like to point out that according to the principle of the better proof, in my opinion as the witness is here in the courtroom, he himself must be heard on these questions. Furthermore, I cannot see how the witness gets the basis for his statement that the declaration of the persons mentioned in the documents 2, 5 and 11 were actually given to the Norwegian court in the correct form. In no case do the documents in themselves correspond to the rules of procedure as they are valid for this court.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Is there any question in the mind of counsel as to the authority of this man to make this certificate?

You didn't hear?

DR. FRITSCH: I didn't get the last question, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I say if there is any question on the part of the defense as to the authority of this man to make this certificate, we think he is entitled to call him for cross examination on that subject if the defense cares to do it.

DR. FRITSCH: Yes, that is also one of the reasons submitted by me.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I say if you care to examine this man about his authority to make the certificate, you may cross-examine him on that subject.

DR. FRITSCH: Yes, Your Honor. But I would have to decide about this. In my opinion, the other reasons submitted by me should be sufficient in order to rule out this document.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I don't think it is so important on this document as it is on the documents they are trying to get in evidence when that objection comes up, but if you want to question his authority, you may do that now.

DR. FRITSCH: Yes, that is what I am doing, Your Honor, and I would also ask that the documents should only be admitted if the validity of this Document 515-A is recognized. If those persons who in Documents Norway 2, 5, and 11 have also given statements are placed in the witness stand for me by the prosecution so that I can cross-examine them.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: If you care to cross-examine him, you can do so now. He is here in the courtroom, I understand.

MR. RAPP: That is perfectly agreeable to us, Your Honor. I believe defense counsel was inquiring whether or not the affiants could be brought to Nuernberg for the purpose of being cross-examined by defense counsel.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Oh, I misunderstood him on that. Well, I suppose if you request it that, under the rule, they have to obtain them if they can for cross examination.

DR. FRITSCH: Yes. I would like to make this application, Your Honor. I therefore ask that in case the documents are admitted in evidence I be allowed to cross-examine those witnesses who made the declarations in the documents Norway 2, 11, and 12.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: We will cross that bridge when we get to it. Let's get the preliminaries out of the way first.

MR. RAPP: May I inquire from defense counsel now what defense counsel intends to do in relation with this document?

DR. FRITSCH: I would ask that this witness be called into the witness stand so that I can cross-examine him.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You are now dealing with Exhibit 515-A and not the documents themselves. Do you care to examine Follestad as to his authority to make this deposition?

DR. FRITSCH: Yes.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: All right, proceed to do so.

(IVAR FOLLESTAD, a witness, took the stand and testified as follows.)

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Does the witness speak English?

A. Yes, Your Honor, I do.

Q. I solemnly swear that the testimony I will give in the case on trial will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me God.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. Witness, please give your full name.

A. My name is Follestad.

Q. Witness, where were you born?

A. I was born in Bergen in Norway.

Q. Where are you living at present?

A. I live in Bergen in Norway, but for the time being at the Grand Hotel in Nuernberg.

Q. What are you by profession, witness?

A. I am counsel at the Supreme Court of Norway.

Q. And what is your education?

JUDGE BURKE: Just a moment, Dr. Fritsch. Do you seriously question the authority of this witness to make the type of certificate which he has assumed to make here?

DR. FRITSCH: First of all I must do that, Your Honor. Unfortunately, I must do this, Your Honor, but I will be very brief.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Proceed.

BY DR. FRITSCH:

Q. Witness, I would like to ask you only to tell me whether you received the usual education for the profession of a lawyer.

A. Yes.

Q. How far did you know about the events which were connected with the evacuation in Norway?

A. I only learned of them after the war, on investigation.

Q. Witness, did you conduct these interrogations by order of the Norwegian Government?

A. Yes, I did. On the authority of the Attorney General and the Norwegian Department of Justice.

Q. Witness, on whose order are you here?

A. I am here on account of the authorities just mentioned, the Attorney General of Norway and the Justice Department of Norway.

Q. In which office here did you submit your legitimations?

A. The Attorney General had taken up contact with General Taylor and General Taylor has got the appointment from the Norwegian Attorney General.

Q. Witness, the document marked for identification, 515-A, is known to you?

A. Yes, I know the documents because, as stated, I brought them here myself.

Q. Were you yourself present, witness, when the witnesses mentioned in these documents Norway 2 and so forth were sworn in?

A. No, I was not present. I was not present when the witness mentioned in Norway No. 2 was examined under oath, but I personally was present when the three latter witnesses mentioned in 11 and 12 were sworn under oath. Anyhow, I can certify that it was done also with the witness named in Norway 2 because their protocol from the court testifying just reached me yesterday. I have it here.

Q. Then this declaration of the 24th of August 1945 was not given by you from your own knowledge but by reason of documents which you have just received?

A. No, that is a mistake on part of counsel. I just stated that I was personally present when the witnesses mentioned in Norway 11 and Norway 12 were sworn under oath in the Norwegian court. I was not present myself when the witness in Norway was sworn, but as I just told you, I have the protocol here with the following letter from the Attorney General himself.

Q. And what can be seen from that?

A. What I stated, that this witness was examined in court, counsel being appointed by the judge for the defendant Rendulic, and that he made the same statement word for word as appears in the Document Norway 2. Afterwards, defendant's counsel or judge made a few questions and they were answered, supplementary.

Q Witness, in Document 515-A, it states that the witness in Document Norway 2 on the 12th of August 1947, before the Judge of the Criminal Appeal Court of Varanger, appeared and that on this day he swore under oath that the contents of the declaration was true.

A Yes, that is right.

Q This affidavit was only made on the 12th of August 1947, then?

A The witness first made a statement to the police and afterwards this statement was sworn to in court in the presence of a Norwegian Criminal Judge and in the presence also of counsel appointed for the defendant Rendulic.

Q And Norway No. 11 and 12 were also only prepared in 1947, on the 18th of July and 27th of February? And the 3rd of July and sworn to?

A The dates just mentioned are the dates when the letters were written. On the 27th of September, the first one; on the 18th of June the second one; and on the 3rd of July the last one. They were sworn to, all of them, in the same meeting in the Criminal Inquiry Court of Oslo on the 3rd of July, 1947.

DR. FRITSCH: I have no further questions to the witness.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we have no questions.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: The witness will be excused.

Exhibit 515-A will be admitted in evidence subject to the usual limitations that we place on evidence of this kind.

MR. RAPP: If your Honors will now please turn to page 4 of Document Book 23 and page 5 in the German Document book, your Honors, this is a deposition by Egil Sorensen to the Norwegian Police of Vadsoe describing the destruction and killing of Sorensen's wife by members of the German Wehrmacht.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I would ask the prosecution to tell me against whom this document is directed. I have pointed out already that the navy which is charged here and who is supposed to have committed some act -- was not subordinate to the defendant Rendulic.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, as to the argumentation of defense counsel, we will show later on and tie this document up that the defendant Rendulic as a matter of fact at that time commanded all German units within the German Wehrmacht in Norway in his capacity as armed forces commander Norway and commanding General 20th Mountain Army.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I am wondering whether this deposition is within scope of the indictment against the defendant Rendulic with regard to his conduct in Norway.

MR. RAPP: That is correct, your Honor; the area involved is in Finnmark, the Lakesfjord, and is part of the evacuation conducted by the 20th Mountain Army at that time.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: The point I make is, he is not charged with any responsibility for killing anybody in Norway under the indictment, isn't that correct?

MR. RAPP: Your Honors, I believe the indictment states that in connection with the evacuation, several hundred people suffered death. At least 61,000 people were evacuated, or 31,000 people forcefully and, in connection with this, hardship and death was brought on the Norwegian population.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: It is the opinion of the Tribunal that the probative value is rather questionable, but rather than try to determine that now, we will permit it to go in and deal with it at the proper time.

MR. RAPP: Very well, your Honor. May I call your Honor's attention to the fact that this particular document is only submitted here as an excerpt, but we have furnished -- and the original document is in Norwegian and we have only translated into German and English up to yesterday -- that part which we are submitting into evidence but I have meanwhile furnished defense counsel the complete translation of this Norwegian document for his use.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I think under those circumstances you can read what parts you want to as long as you provide the balance to the defense.

MR. RAPP: Very well, your Honor.

"Report to: Police Chief Vadsoe submitted by Police Officer L. Naess.

"Subject:

"Compulsory evacuation and arson in Veidnedklubben and the killing of Frau Wilhelmine Soerensen.

"Interrogated on 2 July 1946 in Veidnedklubben: The witness Wilhelmine Soerensen. He is familiar with the incident and understand his responsibility as a witness. He is ready to make a statement and declares:

"On 16 December 1944 the witness was on the trip by motorboat to Ifjord. At that time most of the residences in Veidnes had been burned by the Germans but the entire population had fled to the mountains and was living in adobe huts. No Germans were left in any camps in Lakesfjord which made the population feel secure from the Germans. Arriving at Ifjord the witness and the other people in the motorboat suddenly became aware of a warship lying in the Trollbukt near the shore. Dawn had just broken and the moment the people in the motorboat saw the warship, automatic weapons from there shot in front and behind the motorboat so that there was no possibility for flight.

"When the Commander of the warship heard that the families of the people had remained in Veidnes the destroyer went to Veidnes.

"There the German lieutenant with 14 soldiers went ashore with a Norwegian (Martin Mikelsen) who had orders to show the way to the families.

"The witness and the other people on the motorboat remained aboard and were locked into the boxes where the ropes are kept. There they remained locked up until 2100 hours when the Captain arrived and issued an order to some others to go ashore.

"The witness and two other people remained aboard in the box where the ropes are kept all night. The next day at 12:00 o'clock the witness was permitted to come out of the box and to move around the deck freely.

About half an hour later the Norwegian Julius Mattisen came aboard. The witness inquired of him concerning the witness' wife and for the first time he heard that she had been shot to death by the Germans up in the mountains the afternoon or evening before. The witness then tried to talk to the Captain. However, the latter had gone ashore. At 2:00 o'clock the same afternoon the Commander came aboard and the witness could talk to him. The Captain related that the wife of the witness had been killed unintentionally. Civilians some of them armed had fled at the arrival of the Germans. The Kommando had opened fire from the ship and thus the wife of the witness had been hit. The Captain further related that the wife of the witness had been buried in a lake in the country. The witness then wanted to go in order to get the body he was not permitted to do so and now the Captain said she had been buried in the ocean."

The name of the wife of the witness was Wilhelmine, nee Eriksen. Her body has not been found.

.....

After the Germans had burned down all the remaining houses in Veidnes the destroyer left for Hommingsvaag in the evening of 17 December.

.....

Adult males above 50 years of age were sent as prisoners to the prison camp of Kroekeberg. Later they were interrogated by uniformed Germans. Having been detained from 11 to 12 days all prisoners from Veidnes were released from the camp together with some other prisoners.

Read to and agreed to: signed Egil Soerensen.

.....

This particular document, Your Honor, I have just read will be marked Prosecution Exhibit 512. I forgot to mention that to the Tribunal.

Then next, Your Honor, turn to page 61, if you please, Norway XI. It was marked for identification 520-A, and is being offered as Prosecution Exhibit 520. It is on page 61 and page 56 of the German defense counsel document book. On pages 56 and 57 of the German defense counsel document book.

This, your Honor, is a medical report by Dr. Karl Evang of the Norwegian Ministry of Social welfare, and was requested by Lt. Colonel Ivar Follestad, Norwegian Attorney General's Office. It describes the destruction of Norwegian Medical Installations during retreat. There is also attached to this particular instrument a copy of a broadcast of BBC. This particular document I am referring to now we are not pressing for evidence at all. In other words, we are merely offering the medical report of Dr, Karl Evang. This is a letter dated June 1 , 1947 addressed to Col. Follestad, and it states: -

DR. FRITSCH: I am sorry, I just want to see whether I have this letter.

DR. RAPP: Your Honor, defense counsel was objecting to the fact that I was reading that part of the letter which dealt with a BBC broadcast, and I have just mentioned the fact we are not offering this, but the last part of this particular letter, Your Honor, ties up the following page of the document. So in order not to create any further confusion I will read now only the last paragraph of this letter, I have already identified the date of the letter and to whom it is addressed.

.....The details we have been able to gather are based therefore on accounts from individuals or from individual officials. The material is of very little use for statistical purposes. I can however, give the following information on the medical institutions that were destroyed by the Germans in North Troms and Finnmark:

.....

Then if Your Honor will turn to page 62, page 58 of the German Defense Counsel Book, the information is furnished as follows:

.....North Troms:

Skjervoe nursing, home, Destroyed during the evacuation 12 beds.

Halselv tuberculosis home. Used by the German air-force and afterwards destroyed - 14 beds.

Lyngen tuberculosis home. Badly damaged during the evacuation 18 beds.

Finnmark:

The following institutions were razed to the ground:

Hospital at Rirkenes 23 beds, nursing home 4 beds.

.....

I hope your Honor will permit me to dispense with some of the Norwegian names. I am just trying to identify the lines some way.

..... Vadsoe 45 beds, and another hospital at Vadsoe 30 beds. Vadsoe hospital 54 beds, and another at Vadsoe 13 beds.

- a small tuberculosis home in Nesseby, Varangerfjorden. With the exception of the Vadsoe, so and so in hospital in Vadsoe, there was total destruction of all hospitals.

There are a number of examples that the evacuation was carried out with great brutality and several tragedies were enacted. These were partly due to sick and old being taken from their beds and with a minimum amount of clothing, being forced to board small vessels which were used during the evacuation. Several desperate situations also occurred amongst those who fled from the evacuation and hid in the mountains. Many of these had no opportunity to take sufficient clothing with them. Some were expectant mothers and there were even cases of births taking place in Finnmarksvidda under the most primitive conditions, in bitter cold, without clothing and with very little food.

This seems to be the only place in which a complete scorched earth policy was carried out under arctic conditions and in winter time.

The next document, Your Honor, is page 71, page 68 of the German Document Book. It has been marked for identification as Exhibit 521-A, and it is being offered now and submitted as Prosecution Exhibit 521. This is a letter from the statistical Office of Finnmark, addressed to the Supreme Court Attorney Ivar Follstad, Victoria Terrasse 7, in Oslo, dated February 25, 1947, and his subject: "War damages in the Finnmark and North Troms. It states as follows:

.....In answer to your letter of 18 inst. the Town Council begs to state as follows:

In connection with the claims of reparation by Norway on Germany the Town Council has collected information on the war damages. Those informations are, however, not complete concerning the distribution of the damages on the different districts, but on the basis of the material produced, the Town Council has been able to put up the following survey on the damages especially as regard Finnmark and North-Trome. The informations are partly based on approximate calculations and do not pretend to be complete.

DR. FRITSCH: I object to the submission of this document as evidence. This is information which cannot be checked at all. It is impossible for the defense to bring the Town Council from Oslo here and cross-examine them. The Statements are not identified. It is merely an indictment, and therefore I would like that the objection be sustained.

JUDGE CARTER: It will be admitted for whatever the Tribunal may find it to be worth.

..... Regarding the most important items special information on the damages during the evacuation in the winter 1944/45 has not been obtained. Most of the damages are included in the war damage insurance for buildings and movables amounting to about 270 million Norway Krons, for all the years of war. By contacting the War Damage Insurance you will probably get special informations about the damages due to the evacuation. The informations on the damages on public harbour works as well as on the fishing fleet are complete, and the Town Council has no special information about the part falling within the time of evacuation.

Roads and bridges.

The road director has estimated the German destructions of roads and bridges in the Finnmark during the evacuation in the autumn 1944 to approximately altogether 24.7 million Norw. Kr. of this about 11 million Norw.Kr. for roads and 13.7 " " " " bridges.

Other war damages on roads and bridges in the Finnmark have not been taken up especially.

Telegraph and telephone.

The telegraph director has estimated the damage on stations (inclusive radio stations) and on telegraph and telephone wires during the German evacuation of the Finnmark and North-Troms in the Autumm 1944 to about 15.6 million Norw.Kr.

.....

JUDGE CARTER: It appears the time for adjournment has arrived. We will adjourn until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(Thereupon at 4:30 p.m. an adjournment was taken) Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List, et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 27 August 1947 0930-1630, Justice Wennerstrum, presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the court room will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: The Marshal will ascertain if all defendants are in the court room.

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honor all defendants are present in the court room except Weichs who is absent due to high blood pressure.

THE PRESIDENT: If a certificate has been issued by the prison doctor you may hand it to the Secretary-General. You may proceed Mr. Rapp.

MR. RAPP: Your Honors please turn to Document Book XXIII, page 73, page 69 of the German Document Book. We have reached the part of this page, "Telegraph and Telephones" in the middle of the page and we now come to:

"Harbors and Harbor works.

The port director has estimated the war damages on official bridges in the FINNMARK and NORTH-TROMS DISTRICTS during the German evacuation in the autumn 1944 to approximately2.2. million Norw. kr.

"In addition to this there are considerable damages on private bridges and quais. The amounts for these damages are included in the figures mentioned below by the War Damage Insurance for buildings (risks on industry and civil risk).

"The Agriculture.

"The War Damage Insurance for buildings has estimated the war damages on houses and buildings in agriculture in the FINNMARK and NORTH-TROMS districts to about12 mill. kr.

"The War Damage Insurance for movables has estimated the war damages on machines and farming outfits domestic animals, crop and furniture to about6 million kr." That is on page 74, your Honor.

"These figures are purely agriculture risks. All damages on the property belonging to the fishing population have been entered under civil risk below.

"The damages to the forests of the Finnmark and the NorthTroms districts during the war inclusive the devastation made by the Germans during the evacuation in the autumn 1944 and inclusive future losses due to exploitation of the forests, have been estimated by the Town Council to approximate

25 mill. kr.

The Industry.

The war damages on industrial buildings in the FINNMARK and NORTH-TROMS districts have been estimated by the War Damage Insurance to about38 mill. kr.

"The War damages on industrial movables in the FINNMARK AND NORTH-TROMS districts have been estimated by the War Damage Insurance for movables to about5 mill. k4.

Houses and buildings, Movables, Civil Risks.

"The War Damage Insurance for buildings has estimated the war damages on buildings in the FINNMARK AND NORTH-TROMS (exclusive buildings has estimated the agriculture and industry and those belonging to the state) to about 114 mill. kr.

The War Damage Insurance for movables has estimated the war damages on general movables in the FINNMARK and NORTH-TROMS districts (farming and industrial movables excluded) to about.

....94 mill. kr.

Stocks.

"The War Damage Insurance for stocks estimated in September 1945 the evacuation damages in the FINNMARK in the autumn 1944 to about18.4 mill kr.

The actual amounts are now considered 2 - 3 million Norw. kr. too high, but if all war damages on stock in the FINNMARK for April 1940- May 1945 are taken into consideration, the amount can be accounted for. The war damages outside the evacuation damages only amounted to about 2 - 3 mill kr.

Goods on board ships.

"The State Goods War Insurance estimates the war damages on goods on board ships in the FINNMARK during the evacuation in the autumn 1944 to about1.2 mill. kr.

"Various war damages covered by private insurance companies are not to be obtained in detail on FINNMARK. The amount of these damages is, however, not estimated to be very high, considering the total amount of damages claimed by all insurance companies together for reparation war damages to be about 16 million Norw. kr. for the whole of the country and for all the years of war.

Ships, freighters, larger and smaller fishing boats as well as all sorts of small vessels.

"All smaller vessels at a value under 250 kr. were included in the War Damage Insurance as movables and amounts for wreckages and war damages on such boats in the FINNMARK ARE INCLUDED IN the amount of 94 million kr. under the item for movables above.

"By the State War Damage Insurance the amount of 1.9 million Norw. kr. was mentioned as the sum that this institution has paid especially for war wrecked boats, but also for partial war damages during the war on boats having their basis in the FINNMARK and NORTH-TROMS districts.

"The re-insurance institute for the fishing fleet, BERGEN states that the amount of reparation costs paid by it for totally war-wrecked fishing boats , etc. and for partial war damages on such boats having their basis in the FINNMARK and NORTH-TROMS districts for all the years of war amounted to a total of approximately 2 million Norw. Kr. Perhaps the re-insurance institution is now able to give more exact information and especially also for the damages during the evacuation.

"In addition to the two amounts mentioned here of about 1.9 million Norw. kr. and about 2 million Norw. kr. are amounts paid by the private insurance companies for their insurance responsibility on war damages on fishing boats and other boats. As mentioned above no information has been obtained about this last amount.

"When these above mentioned amounts are added, the lump sum is about 360 million Norw. kr. for the war damages mentioned under the individual items. It is to be mentioned that these damages cover direct war or direct destruction through war actions. Damages brought about in connection with requisitions of houses and grounds as well as materials with special reference to the exceptional wear and tear following the German use for houses and buildings, roads and bridges etc. and material requisitioned is not included in this amount.

"The amounts mentioned in most of the above are based on the information presented to the Town Council during the war and immediately after this and they are calculated according to the prices before 9 April, 1940.

At present further additional amounts might have arisen by which the final figures would have been still higher.

"As a comparison it can be mentioned, that the informations received by the Town Council up till November 1945 represent the war damages for the whole country including the total losses of ships preliminarily calculated to more than 3 billion Norwegian kroner.

AS/NH File No. 849/47 Supreme Court Attorney Mr. IVOR FOLIESTAD Strandgaten 19 BERGEN.

Criminal case against General RENDULIC -- concerning the ravages in the FINNMARK 1944/45.

We are in receipt of your query of 20 ult, regarding information on the value of the real estate in the FINNMARK and NORTH-TROMS before 9 April 1940. For this reason, the town council has had a conference with the authorities who supplied the information about the ravages before, and who have made a number of calculations of the total values before April 1940 for the different groups of property in the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS.

The calculations are as exact as they possibly could be at the present time, and the evaluation of laud and ground has been kept apart as you mentioned in your letter.

Subsequently the evaluation of property together with the estimation of damages have been put up and a percentage of damage within the various groups. The amount of damages according to the letter from the town council of 25 February this year, has in some cases been corrected according to more recent and complete informations.

Buildings, furniture and movables etc.

As mentioned in letter of 25 February most of the damages in the FINMARK and the NORTH-TROMS districts are under the war damage insurance for buildings and movables amounting to about 270 million Norw.cr. This preliminary figure has now been corrected by the company to about 290 million Norw.cr. The total capital on buildings-furniture and movables in these provinces in April 1940 can be stated to approximately 350 million Norw.cr. This amount comprises all houses, buildings, fire insured and not fire insured (inclusive municipal buildings but excluding the buildings of the State, which have been entered under various items below. Furthermore, it comprises all furniture and movables, machines (immovable and movable), tools and implements, crops and professional movables for agriculture (inclusive domestic animals), private bridges and quais, all small boats with a value below 250 Norw. cr. etc. The percentage of damage for the group makes about 83% Roads and bridges.

The total value on April 1940 of all roads and bridges which are part of the constructions of the road service as well as workshops, tools and stocks has been calculated by the Road Board to about 80 million Norw.cr. The damages of roads and bridges during the evacuation in the autumn 1944 which was formerly calculated to about 24.7 million Norw.cr. has now been supplemented by 5-10 million Norw.cr. for workshops, outfits and stocks (which had been extended considerably during the war and which was almost completely damaged) to a total amount of about 33 million Norw.cr. or approximately 40% of the total value. For the bridges damage was complete.

Telegraph and telephone.

The damage on stations (inclusive radio stations and air bases) and telegraph and telephone wires during the evacuation was formerly estimated to about 15.6 million Norw.cr. This preliminary amount has been corrected to about 20 million Norw.cr. The damage is reckoned to be total.

Harbours and Harbour works.

The part director has formerly estimated the war damage on public buildings (bridges belonging to the State, the port service and the local port services) in the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS during the evacuation to approximately 2.2 millionen Norw. cr. as a supplement was made for buildings and storehouses etc. belonging to the port service, which was not included before. The damage is considered to be total.

Ships, freighters smaller and larger fishing boats.

The town council has calculated the boat property in the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS in April 1940 to approximately 16.5 million Norw.cr. (about 15 million Norw.cr. for some larger boats originating from HAMMERTEST, VARDØ and VADSO.)

The total amount of damage for war wrecked and war damaged fishing boats in the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS ing the whole of the war has been estimated by the war insurance company for the fishing fleet to 2.9 million Norw.cr. If the value of the larger boats which practically all have been wrecked, is added to this amount the total damage for this group is approximately 4.5 million Norw.cr. or 27% of the total amount of 16.5 million Norw./cr. In the letter of the town council dated 25 February of this year, the damages on this item are provisionally calculated to about 4 million Norw.cr.

Stores of goods and goods on board ships.

The town council has formerly given the damages under those items to about 19.5 million Norw.cr. The damage was total.

Various war damages covered by private insurance companies.

These are not able-as mentioned before-to give any information for the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS provinces alone. However, the amount for such damages will certainly not be very large, as mentioned before.

The forests.

The damages on the forests of the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS during the war, including the devastation made by the Germans during the evacuation in the autumn 1944 and inclusive future losses due to the exploiting of the forests, was formerly given by the town council as approximately 25 million Norw.

cr. The assets of the forests in April 1940 are calculated to about 40 million Norw. cr. which results in a percentage of damage of about 60%. The reason for the percentage of damages being so high is evidently, as mentioned before, the fact that in the estimate of the damages the future losses on account of exploitation of the forests is included.

In addition to the amounts mentioned above concerning the buildings of the State as well as material etc. there are some amounts relating to the power stations of the State, the State's schools, personages, post offices etc. inclusive furniture, material and outfits of transportation. The evaluation of these buildings etc. on April 1940 is calculated to about 5 million Norw. kr. and the damages during the war and the evacuation to approximately 4.5 million Norw. kr.

If all the amounts referring to the individual items above, are added together, the total evaluation of the property of the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS on april 1940 is about 530 million Norw.kr. (exclusively the value of lavd and ground) and a total damage of approximately 400 million Norw.kr.i.e. an average percentage of damages of about 75%.

Dronningens Gate 16, telephone OSLO, 3 July, 1947 Telegramm Statistik Four reference Our reference HM/ SF DOCUMENT 4 Supreme Court attorney Mr. IVAR FOLLESTAD Strandgaten 19, B E R G E N.Criminal case against the General RENDULIC - concerning the ravages in the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS 1944/45.

According to letter from the Norw. Govt. statistical office of 25 February and 26 June this year, some of the items of war damages for the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS districts are covering all damages during the war, and consequently also the damages before the evacuation 1944/45.

To-day the Town Council has, however, obtained the following additional information about the part of damages that is to be attributed to the time before the evacuation and during the evacuation Buildings, furniture and movables, etc.

In the letter by the Town Council of 26 June, the damages have been put down with a total amount of about 290 million Norwegian kr. Of this amount approximately 50 million Norw. kr. cover the time before the evacuation and 240 million Norw. kr. approximately the evacuation period. The percentage for damages on buildings, furniture and movables, etc. during the evacuation then amounts to 70%.

Ships, freighters, larger and smaller fishing boats.

The Town Council has no information at present about the part of the amount of damage of 4.5 million Norw.kr. falling within the time of war before the evacuation. Still the damages before the evacuation were of very little importance.

The forest.

The main part of the damages on the forests in the FINMARK and NORTH-THOMS districts, estimated to approximately 25 million kr. falls into the time of evacuation. The damages before the time of evacuation can only be estimated to 2-8 million Norw.Kr. Considering that the estimate of damages for the time of evacuation of approximately 23.5 million Norw.kr., the percentage obtained is about 56%.

Supplement to the buildings belonging to the State as well as material, etc.

The damages included in the amount of 4.5 million Norw. kr. are only concerning the time of evacuation.

According to the additional information given above the total estimation of the damages for the FINMARK and NORTH-TROMS for the time of evacuation is about 400 million Norw.

kr. minus about 52.5 million norw.kr. 347.5 million Norw.kr. or an average percentage of about 66% of the total real capital on April 1940 of about 530 million Norw.kr.

This document was offered for identification only as 516A. It is now being submitted as Prosecution Exhibit 516.

I would like to call to your Honors attention that we have only translated excerpts of this letter from the City Engineer of Hammer-fest, but we have furnished defense counsel with a complete translation of such letter.

The City Engineer of Hammerfest The devastation of Hammerfest after the compulsory evacuation of the population at the beginning of the month of November 1944.

On Sunday 29 October it was proclaimed that "the population of Finmark was to be compulsorily evacuated immediately". The first district of Hammerfest to be evacuated was Fuglenes-Storelven at the latest Monday, 30 October, 1200 hours.

On Monday 30 October I called on the then Island Commandant Major Gaedke—who simultaneously was Evacuation Commissar—in order to find out what was to happen to the public utilities i.e., fire department, water works, electricity works etc., I was together with the administrator of telegraphy who wished to receive similar information concerning telephone and telegraph. We were told that there was no further use for the fire department. However, the water and the electricity works were to continue until further orders. I asked whether I myself should remain in the city and was told that of course i did not have to evacuate.

Then I stated the necessary number of employees I required i.e. three engineers, one guard for the dem of one electricity work and preferably three men for the water work, However, the families of these people had to be evacuated because women and children were not permitted to remain.

The fire department was given leave of absence. Some of them had left already—they had been evacuated to the country previously with their families—as had other inhabitants of the city.

"After the evacuation of the population was finished on 3 November it became possible in the course of the following week to collect, pack up and to send away all essential remaining fire department and air protection material with the help of the persons who had remained. This material was collected from different places. All of it was went away with two freighters which had stayed there with evacuees and loaded diverse goods.

"On 15 November when the General Horwegian Telegraph service was supposed to be liquidated or terminated and the machines were to be dismantled I telegraphed as a matter of orderly procedure to the Norges Brandkasse (Norwegian Fire Insurance). I told them that the fire department had ceased to exist on 1 November and that according to rumors the city was to be destroyed entirely.....

"The devastation of the city The figures in parenthesis in the following refer to the enclosed map of Hammerfest 1:4000.

This map shows the different areas or buildings.

"As early as on the 5 and 6 November 3 farms in Fuglenesdalen and all smaller buildings in the neighborhood of the city were burned down and at the same time also the houses in Soereyesund-the area along the Akkerfjordweg to Sjaaholmen. -The building containing the reduction valves of the water works seemingly was mistaken for an ordinary dwelling. It was burned down so that the valves were partly destroyed packing were standing open. After the inspection the Evacuation Commissar was informed that the mains of the water works would freeze if a heavy frost should occur which would put the works out of commission.

"(2) On 22 November the first part of the city, the western part (Hauen)-about 50 plots- were burned down. One or two buildings were blasted in order to prevent the fire from spreading to other buildings. At the corner of the cemetery in the street toward the Krutthusstrasse a few small bombs and sure burning wood had been dropped. German soldiers were successful in removing all this with the exception of one bomb which exploded and blasted a piece of the cemetery wall. The burning down had started in the morning. About 9:00 o'clock I arrived at a place where the German soldiers brought out hose from a fire station to extinguish the fires. They wanted to prevent the fire from spreading across the street toward the elementary school. However, the keys for the hydrants, the connection for the hose etcetera were missing. I then had to help to organize the extinguishing and were now able to keep the fire from spreading.

"During the following days all foundations of the burned down places were blasted. There were still 10 buildings standing unharmed, west across the Akkerfjerdweg.

They remained until the last.....

"(5) On 18 December the settlement on Hammeren near Fuglonesweg-(Mella) a total of 5 buildings was burned down. One house (Loekkes) down the road remained whole.

"(6) On the 24 December (Christmas Eve) the houses near the old shooting area near Storvannet, a single house in Breillia (Roy Pedersens) and a few little barracks, the building on Einan and the Ilslageret were burned down (for nothing).

"(6a) On 27 December the remaining houses in Breillia and the nursery, the Villa Nissons and the rest of the barracks around there were burned down. On the same day probably also the buildings below the power plant were burned down. On 28 December the large Naval barracks on Skansen Fuglenes were burned.

"On one of the first days of 1945 the buildings west of Stottabakken on Fuglenes (5-6 houses) were burned down. "(7) On 12 January 1945 The buildings east of Storelven were burned down i.e. the entire Molla and Mollaplataa including the buildings on the spur of Storelven from Storvannet. However, not the factory of Hauan with its storage plant where cement was kept.

"(8) On 13 January 1945 all of Fuglenes, so to speak was burned down excepting the steam operated factory of Fuddersen & Nissen and the landing stages there and the two western buildings up above including three houses in Fuglenesbugten. Still remaining are the buildings of the coal depot of Robertson and the hospitals with the apartments for the physicians and janitors.

"(9)

"(10) The following were burned on 20 January: the remaining parts of eastern city district between Storelven and Material- and Stenkuls Klemminningen building on Batteriebakken up to and including the corner building number 474 with the three houses in the back below the new sub-stations.

"(11) On the following days the main building of Robertson and the packing houses in Fuglenes and the landing stages and buildings were demolished. These belonged to the Finmark Canning Factory.

"(12) After the houses on the southwest side of Storvannet had been evacuated (the Prohibited area) which had been requisitioned by the Naval Commandant they were all burned down and a newly erected bunker building with tremendous iron concrete walls and iron concrete roof (broadcasting station etcetera) was blasted.

"In connection with the burning down of the city all poles of the electrical power lines were sawed down, the insulators were broken and the wires were rolled up and sent away. Transformers and the equipment of the transformer stations also were dismantled and sent away with German ships. As early as 19 November 1944 the dismantling of unit II of the power station was started after the old direct-current generator for 1890 had been taken away. Generator III with the switch table and switches and the regulator of the turbine later was sent away by a German ship. Further dismantling was unsuccessful.

"On 4 December the destruction of the high voltage power line Persa-Hammerfest was started. They left the poles a good meter above the surface. The insulators were broken and the copper wires were cut, tolled up and taken away. Usually it was cut off at each pole so that the wire has only old metal value. I do not know what happened to the transformer poles later.

"On 6 February 1945 I received orders to leave the city, together with all Norwegians and the German units and the Russian prisoners.

Only a small detachment of engineers (blasting detachment), consisting of about 20 men and one lieutenant, and the evacuation authorities and a Norwegian tugboat with two Norwegian engineers on board remained. I received information from them concerning the fate of the rest of the city which was confirmed by the Germans mentioned above whom I met in Tromsø.

"(13) When we were in Haaga, fire was discovered in the district of the elementary school. Its reflection was visible to the neighborhood of Loppa. All the remaining buildings in the center district of the city from Krutthusgaten to the steamer landing stage were burning all night, also all churches. A fresh southern wind prevailed. The German port captain related that 'unfortunately' fire had broken out in the Soldiers Home on Sadel Street (No. 353, together with No. 49, where the blasting detachment lived). It had been hoped that the church would remain but the tower started to burn and the church also was lost. On the following days the installation of the bunker depot was burned down and the crane tracks were blasted as well as the salt silo. But the demolitions did not work out as successfully as they were planned. The hospitals with the two apartments also were blasted and everything was levelled to the ground. The other buildings of Fuglenes and in the western part of the city and by the way some other houses - all of wood -- were burned down. The refrigeration plant and the administrative building of FFR - both of them of iron concrete - were blasted.

"The steamboat landing stage also was blasted but later the tug had great difficulty to break up the supporting pillars and here the blasting did not seem to have the intended effect either.

"The bridges across Storelven and Svartelven were blasted. The crews were prohibited from going ashore because mines had been laid.

I wish to add in this connection that two German members of the Organization Todt (engineer Beer and one soldier) lost their lives on 24 January in one of the many shelters of the civilian air raid protection (near Svartelven) where tread mines had been laid also.

It seems that in the main street as well as in all side streets which were open for automobile traffic such mines were laid until the end.

"The power station with the remaining machines and transformers was blasted on 5 February at 10:00 o'clock after the plant had stopped functioning at 9:00 o'clock. It was alleged that afterwards the dam was blasted and the pipe lines probably were blasted in some spots. All transformer stations were blasted after the electrical apparatus and the transformers had been dismantled and removed. The high voltage cables in the stations were cut above the floor but they are believed to have remained undamaged otherwise excepting near two blasted bridges.

"It is assumed that of the water work units the intermediate damand the installations of the reduction valves had been blasted - in any case bombs had been brought there. Also a nine inch main line in the tubular bridge across Storelven where depth bombs had been laid. It seems that the line to Fuglenes was destroyed by the blasting of the bridge across Svartelv and/or of the road near this bridge. The jetty on the city side and the jetties on Fuglenes are undamaged.

"As stated above, after each burning the foundations, the smoke stacks, etc. were systematically blasted and leveled to the ground. It seems that the part of the city which was burned down after the sixth represents an exception. There the blasting was started. It stopped when the Germans suddenly left the city on 10 February 1945. Some smoke stacks, etc. were left standing near the Oscars-Plass, elementary school. It is possible that the Zentralkommandoplatz (iron concrete on the first floor) also has been forgotten. It was covered by snow on 6 February. On 10 February 1945 only the chapel in the cemetery remained standing.

JUDGE BURKE: Mr. Rapp, without indicating that the document you have just read will have any evidentiary value or will be accepted as having any probative value, I am wondering about the ambiguity in the translation of the second paragraph you have just read.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor is referring to "In Hammerfest this compulsory evacuation is to be carried out in the following manner."

JUDGE BURKE: Yes. The apparent difference in being able to translate the language as to whether they were evacuated by the police or Wehrmacht, or by the Armed Forces, Wehrmacht.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I have been advised that the insert was put in there for the benefit of the Norwegian population to whom this particular proclamation was addressed, and it in both instances means the same. In other words, the word "den vepnede makt" is the translation into Norwegian of the German word "Wehrmacht", and that has been put in parenthesis. I believe that is what you are referring to in the above paragraph. If Your Honors permit me I would like to show you the original, how it actually looked and was corrected.

"The time for compulsory evacuation of the next part of the city will be published by proclamation. The Evacuation authorities.

") Changed later to "den vepnede makt" (Armed Forces, Wehrmacht."

If Your Honor will turn now, please, to page 26, page 28 of the German Document Book, Norwegian Doc. VI has been marked for identification as Exhibit 523-A.

We are submitting it now as Prosecution Exhibit 523.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I would like to ask the Prosecution who Preuthun should be, whether the Prosecution asserts this is a subordinate of the defendant Rendulic?

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, the individual Preuthun was an evacuation commissioner appointed by the then Norwegian Minister President Quisling. The sole purpose of this document is to show that these facts as contained in the document and reported within their own, then Quisling, Government, did happen during the evacuation. Minister Whist is minister of the Government at that time, and Preuthun was evacuation commissioner of some liaison position to the 20th Mountain Army.

DR. FRITSCH: I protest against the introduction of this document as evidence, because I don't think that this evidence is relevant. It has nothing to do with the defendant Rendulic.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, this is an allegation on the part of defense counsel which we cannot concede. I think it has very much to do with the defendant Rendulic, because it shows what actually happened during the evacuation, and it was found in the Quisling files of the Norwegian-German puppet government at that time, and we feel it has strong probative value, because it shows what occurred during the evacuation and the date is fixed at the time, so that the defendant Rendulic was in charge of the evacuation.

THE PRESIDENT: In the light of our previous rulings it will be admitted, however, the Tribunal by that admission is not indicating what, if any, probative value it will later give to this document.

MR. RAPP: It is dated, Hammerfest, 3.11.44, 1655 hours.

To Minister W H I S T For information concerning situation stop SCHONER "Fortuna" 50 tons loaded from Lesbesby with 250 persons including Old Age Home and 10 persons confined to bed half frozen to death on deck stop Seventeen hours to here stop Transport must be continued in the same manner stop The people received warning two hours before and were ordered not to take along food or bedding since according to original German plan the men were to walk from Bellefjord to Hamuerfest stop signed PREUTHUN

MR. RAPP: Now, Your Honor, the last document in this Document Book 25, you will find on page 33. It is page 36 of the German Document Book. This was marked for identification as Exhibit 518-A, and it is now submitted as Prosecution Exhibit 518. These are the charges of the Norwegian War Crimes Commission before the United Nations War Crimes Commission in London pertaining to the evacuation of the Province of Finmark, Norway.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, I protest against the introduction of this document. This document has already been mentioned, and I reserved my protest, because this is, as I have already said, surely an indictment. The probative value, therefore, can only be as great as if the prosecutive authorities here made some kind of an assertion. Any kind of probative value cannot be gained from such an indictment.

MR. RAPP: The defense counsel told us the same story yesterday, and I understand the Tribunal told us at that time it will be admitted for what it is worth.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, a ruling was not made. Yesterday I merely protested against the form of this document, and I was told that a certification by Col. Follestad would be submitted, and therefore I reserved my further attitude.

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, I believe we mentioned yesterday this report was an official Norwegian Government report.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Rapp, did I understand your statement that this was an indictment, it was a part of same proceedings in England?

MR. RAPP: No, Your Honor, I mentioned that this is a report in the nature of an indictment, or rather in the nature of charges. That is the accepted way of the United War Crimes Commission. In other words, these Government reports can only be accepted by the United Nations in the form of these charged. They are not being submitted to the United Nations War Crimes Commission merely in presenting the evidence as it appears without the charges, and as such it was forwarded to us, and we picked it up as an official Government report made up in the form of charges.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is of the opinion it has no probative value as far as this defendant Rondulic is concerned, and the objection will be sustained and it will not be admitted in evidence.

MR. RAPP: Then your Honor we would like to have this document remain with the identification 518-A; is that acceptable to the Tribunal?

THE PRESIDENT: It is allright with us.

MR. RAPP: Mr. Fenstermacher will continue with Document Book 24.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: May it please the Tribunal, before beginning with the presentation of the documents in Document Book 24, I would like to hand to Dr. Latenser a copy of a memo which I received yesterday from the Yugoslav delegation attached to the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes. The memo is addressed to no fr m Lt. Col. Svonimir Ostric, Chief of the Yugoslav Delegation, It is dated Nurnberg, 26 August 1947.

"In connection with your inquiry this delegation is informed by the Yugoslav National War Crimes Commission in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, as follows:

1. "General Bader, Paul, is registered by the United Nations War Crimes Commission in London as a war criminal. He is not in Yugoslav custody, and the Yugoslav National War Crimes Commission does not know his present whereabouts.
2. "General Dandkelmann, Paul, was delivered to Yugoslavia by the British Occupation Authorities in Germany, and is now in Yug Slav custody in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.
3. "General Fohn, Gustav, and General Schmidt Ritzberg are registered by the United Nations War Crimes Commission in London, as war criminals. They are not in Yugoslav custody and the Yugoslav National War Crimes Commission dies not know their present whereabouts.
4. "Col. Zellmeyer, Joseph is at present in Yugoslav custody, in Belgrade Yugoslavia."

"The memo is signed by Lt. Col. Svonimir Ostric, as chief of the Yugoslav Delegation attached to the office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes. This, Your Honor please, I think, takes care of all inquiries which have been addressed to the Prosecution with respect to the whereabouts of some persons in the which the defense have shown some interest with the exception of one George Kiessel. The Yugoslav delegation is attempting to contact Belgrade with regard to the whereabouts of George Kiessel, and when we find out that information I think it will take care of all outstanding requests by the defense to the prosecution.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: There were certain requests made yesterday were there not, as to certain Norwegian witnesses?

MR. RAPP: Your Honor, we have not received any such request.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: I mean in Court here.

MR. RAPP: In court they were made of a general nature, yes, your Honor.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, during the submission of the documents I pointed out that I would reserve the right for these persons mentioned in the document to be called here for cross-examination.

Formal application I have not yet made. I will make it at a suitable time, with permission of the Tribunal.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Whenever and if you desire to make the application you may do so in the proper manner.

DR. FRITSCH: Thank you, Sir.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I would like to recall that further such applications are on hand. I remember with reference to a Greek witness, and a witness Lenz, the Tribunal at that time, when I protested against the submission of the affidavits ruled that they should be stricken from the record of the prosecution did not bring the witnesses in for cross-examination.

The same ruling was made in the Greek witness' case, and in the case of the witness Lenz, and I can definitely remember this.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honor, please I think the Greek witness to whom Dr. Laternser refers is Verikiari, who gave a report to the Greek government with respect to his experiences in a concentration camp in Athens. That report was submitted as part of the official documents of the Greek National War Crimes Commission, and I am not sure if I understood the Tribunal's ruling, at the time the report was admitted.

Did the Tribunal mean that we should bring the witness and produce him for cross-examination without an application in that respect by the defense, or since the report of Verikiari was part of the Greek War Crimes Commission's documents, was it accepted for whatever probative value it.

any, it had?

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: I think it might be well for the defense counsel, - the respective defense counsel, - that may be interested in each particular case, to make the application so that there will be a formal record. There has been from time to time a request for the production of these witnesses, and we have indicated that if the witnesses were not brought here for cross-examination, the Tribunal then would give consideration to a motion to strike the respective documents that might be affected.

We believe, however, that it would make a better record, if the respective counsel who are interested in each particular case will make an application, and then if they are not presented, later make a motion to strike the particular document affected.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor I will observe these regulations.

MR. RAPP: With your Honors' permission, since we are talking for a minute about these prospective witnesses, I would like to call to your attention that it is in every and all instances, difficult for us to produce these witnesses, that is merely administratively difficult. We will get them if we possibly can, but I would like to have defense counsel cooperate with us in putting in those applications early, so that not a week before their case is finished, we are getting those applications, and then if we cannot produce them, that will be held in some way against us.

I think defense counsel should realize that there is a lot of red tape involved in getting these witnesses from foreign countries. I believe that is a reasonable request, and we are trying everything in the world we can to get those people, but we are often depending on foreign governments, and a lot of other agencies and defense counsel should realize that.

PRESIDENT: In connection with Mr. Rapp's statement, it should be kept in mind that presenting these documents, also presents the responsibility of bringing these witnesses here for cross-examination. That is one thing.

MR. RAPP: That is correct, your Honor.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Second, in connection with your statement as to the request for cooperation on the part of defense counsel, it seems to the Tribunal that at the close of the prosecution's case, the defense counsel will know what witnesses, if any, they wish to have brought here for cross-examination, and it will be the Tribunal's ruling, subject to later modification, if necessary, that any request for the production of witnesses should be made prior to the commencement of the defense' case, defense' testimony.

There will be a recess period. As to how long it will be we have not yet decided, but it will at least give you time to make your request.

MR. RAPP: Very well, your Honor.

PRESIDENT: Is there any objection to that on behalf of the defense counsel?

DR. LATERNSE: No.

PRESIDENT: Defense counsel have indicated that they have no objection; so let your conduct be accordingly.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Now we begin the final two prosecution document books today. Document books 24 and 25. The documents contained in these two books are all new documents, but we received them from Washington too late to have them included in the earlier document books.

In a sense, the final two documents, -- the final two document books -- are a review of the proceedings up to date. These extra documents received from Washington too late; are again in chronological order, and present in microcosm, the prosecution documents heretofore introduced.

We will turn first to page 1 of the English document book, page 1 Of the German document book, Document NOKW 1660, which is offered as Prosecution's exhibit 526 -

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I object to the submission of this document NOKW 1660, for the following reasons: This document contains excerpts from the daily reports of the Commander-in-Chief Southeast to the OKW or the OKH, excerpts from the same daily reports are already present in document book No. NOKW 251, Exhibit No. 128.

This exhibit is in German Document book 5, page 70.

I have compared this document with the one which has already been submitted and I have discovered that alone in this document, 37 cases are contained which repeat themselves, and were already submitted by the prosecution in Document 128.

I repeat, - 37 cases alone in this document. Since so-called cumulative evidence is not admissible, I request that this document be rejected or that the prosecution should not submit it in such a way that cumulative evidence, which is not admissible, is contained in it.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Document Book 5 I do not have with me, your Honors, but I should like to ask Dr. Laternser whether Exhibit 128 was also daily reports of the Commander Southeast to OKW and OKH.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I am able to show that all those 37 cases are the same reports.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honor pleases, the prosecution has no desire to submit identical evidence. If we have already introduced this it is apparently an error. We received two different documents from Washington and I had them checked, and thought that they were entirely different, but we should like to withdraw it at this time until I have further opportunity to check it, and if we agree with Dr. Laternser, after investigation, we will be very glad to withdraw it entirely. We have no intention of delaying the proceedings by offering identical evidence on more than one occasion.

JUDGE BURKE: It is not entirely that it is your intention to do what has been indicated here, but it seems to indicate carelessness in the compilation of these documents that are being presented here at the expense of the Tribunal.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That is exactly what I want to check your Honor. We have found that the next two documents, NOKW 1661 and NOKW 1663 were already introduced in evidence, so we do not propose to offer these at this time.

We turn instead to document NOKW 1798 which is on page 76 of the English document book, and page 49 of the German document book We offer it as Prosecution' Exhibit 526. This is a report to the Commander in Serbia. The document is dated Belgrade, 11 September, 1941, and he receipt stamp . "The Military Commander in Serbia, Administrative Staff" appears on the left hand portion of the document.

Your Honors will recall that at this time, 11 September 1941, the Defendant Lit is Armed Forces Commander Southeast, and his chief-of-staff is the Defendant, Foertsch.

The subject of this report is, "Unrest in Serbia".

The report is, "For information to the Deputy of the Foreign Office in Belgrade."

"The third political reason supposedly is the fact that in course of unavoidable execution, which have to be carried out in reprisal for attacks etc, often innocent people and not the real perpetrators are hanged or imprisoned. Of course in the case of martial law the fact cannot be avoided that an example must be set immediately. Therefore it will be the task of the Occupation Forces which are now present in greater strength, to protect the people in the country in such a manner that they will be able to collaborate."

"Without fearing the revenge of bands and Communists and also to denounce ringleaders and assassins.

A fourth political reason is that Serbian Chauvinist national honor was very deeply offended by the almost dishonorable defeat of the Serbian Army which was previously considered especially brave. This was especially disgraceful for the officers and men. Besides splendid German leadership and bravery of German troops, superiority of German dive-bombers etc. there was another factor which caused Serbian soldiers to lay down their arms often without a fight - namely a complete lack of understanding this war which has been provoked. Now honor-loving Serbs, especially the youth, are ashamed of this surrender and are skillfully incited by Communist propaganda to rehabilitation, that is to fight the Germans.

As a last reason in this respect I consider the tens of thousands of idlers whom one can see at any hour of the day, unemployed in the restaurants and inns in Belgrade and the hundreds of thousands in the major cities in Serbia, who then become the prey of the politicians and finally of the Communists. In Belgrade the closing of secondary schools alone caused about 8000 students to be unemployed for the past months, who in accordance with Balkan customs read newspapers uninterruptedly and discuss politics. Why it is not possible to send from Serbia alone one hundred thousand workers of all types to our hardworking German homeland, where a very great shortage of all types of labor is embarrassingly noticeable, is beyond my knowledge as a layman."

"As well as many other observers fail to understand this highly regrettable phenomenon. Even intelligent Serbs who are concerned about their country regret the fact that those many thousands of unemployed have not long since been included in the labor program here or in the German Reich. Perhaps the new Nedić Government upon German instruction will also make a change in this matter.

.....

Thus numerous reasons have accumulated which have led to the deplorable present conditions. I take the liberty of stating my views with regard to remedies even at the risk of mentioning things which have been already initiated or planned and therefore known or out of date.

.....

The second point is a much more effective counter propaganda than has been the case heretofore. The Serbian peasant who is still illiterate does not neither read newspaper nor does he have a radio set, and announcements are perhaps twisted by Bolshevik leaders of bands to mean the opposite for him or are misrepresented.

In this case only oral propaganda by deputies of the government sent to all villages speaking man to man among the people, will help to clarify the lies of the Community. And if it is feared, that these official speakers will be rejected as unreliable because of being paid by the Germans then the Commanders of the small German units or of the reliable Serbian formations should immediately take tip this clarification work by the hundreds in order to combat, from the roots the missma and atrocity reports spread by the Bolschviks."

"A further means would be the reexamination of maximum prices to see whether they really are so unpossible that the peasant are loathe to delivering their goods to markets and instead permit them to disappear in the Black Market as we experienced in desperation in the first World War. In the future the peasants would have to be given the opportunity to harvest their plums to dry them for exportation, to make Slivovitz, to raise pigs as before etc.. The population here must again be taught to have confidence in the German administration as was the case just after the war.

We of the German Red Cross are dutifully making efforts to help and to give advice wherever we can and we have gained unquestionable success and the confidence of large circles of the population our being laymen-like friends of the Serbs who believe everything implicitly that is told without criticism. But I believe from my experiences and observations based on mature judgment of the country and its people that here too, as almost everywhere else, the peasant, in Serbia this pertains to more than three quarters of the populations, is basically sound and opposed to the criminal operations. This was shown by the enthusiastic welcome given to the first Serbian Security Detachment which arrived in the country recently.

If through the present report I have helped to reestablish orderly conditions, then my duty as a member of the Red Cross who should help to heal the wounds which our word had to make and my duty as a National Socialist, whereby I am bound by oath to cooperate for the sake of the Fuehrer and the Reich is fulfilled.

I am sending a carbon copy of this letter for information to the Headquarters of the German Red Cross."

Signed, "The Commissioner of the German Red Cross in Serbia" BY MR. FENSTERMACHER: The next document, if Your Honors please, is Document NOKW 1666. It has been already introduced in the evidence, and so we also pass that.

We turn instead to page 82 of the English, page 53 of the German document NOKW 1664. It is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 527.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honors, I have just been informed by one of my colleagues that his exhibit, - this document NOKW 1664, is identical with Exhibit No. 116, in Document Book 3, page 113 of the German. I have not checked this personally.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: In order that there be no confusion, Your Honors, I ask that we pass it until we can have it rechecked.

PRESIDENT: WENNERSTRUM: Will it hold this same number, or will you give it a new document number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I suggest that we pass it entirely, and give it no document number, or identification number at all, until we can finally check it.

The next documents, NOKW 1663 and NOKW 1662, have been checked and found to have been already introduced in the evidence. I suggest that we turn now to page 97 of the English Document book, page 62 of the German document book, NOKW 1712. This is offered as Prosecution's 527.

These various extracts are from the War Diary of the 342nd Infantry Division. The first is dated 10 January 1942. Your Honors will recall that at that time the Defendant Kuntze, was the Armed Forces Commander-in-Chief of the Southeast, simultaneously Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army, and that his chief of staff was the Defendant Foortsch.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

The next entry in the War Diary, is 19 January, 1942, 0915 hours.

DR. SAUTER: Your Honors, I would like to point out that this document has also been submitted before. It is identical with the document in Document Book 9, Exhibit 228, pages 66-67. The prosecution missed this.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors, I wonder if it would not save time if the defense counsel have any more objections to any of the documents in Document Book 24, and we can pass them until I can have them checked for a second time. They already have been checked once.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: May I suggest that you confer with defense counsel, if possible, during the recess period and endeavor to ascertain whether or not there are any duplications in these proposed offered documents so that we may proceed along without interruption after we return from recess. However, if through oversight, some document may be offered and it had not been caught prior to this time, why we do not want defense counsel to hesitate to call our attention to it. We will take our recess at this time.

(Recess taken until 1115 hours)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, during the recess Dr. Laternser and I checked the first document, NOKW 1660, and we have agreed not to offer certain pages of that document, but to offer certain pages which were apparently not duplicated. If Your Honors will turn then beginning with page 13 of your Honors' document book, NOKW 1660...

THE PRESIDENT: That's exhibit No. 526?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Prosecution offers this as Exhibit No. 327; your Honor, page 15 of the English, page 11 of the German document book. This is, as are the other pages which we shall offer as part of this exhibit, Daily reports from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to the OKW in Berlin. The first is the Daily Report for August 27 1941.

"25.8 in Ravna Reka (20 kilometers northeast Cuprija) 1 bandit shot to death and 7 captured by fighter detachment.

"26.8 in the same place 6 bandits shot to death, leader captured.

"26.8 between Losnica and Krupanj 2 armed bandits shot to death fighter detachment.

"26.8 during skirmish 10 kilometers north Vel. Kikinda (Banat) 2 Communists shot to death."

And the Daily Report is signed Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Ic, or Intelligence Officer. Next on page 23 of the English...

THE PRESIDENT: You're not offering any of the...

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We're not offering any of the pages except which I specifically refer to, your Honors. The next is page 23 of the English, page 18 of the German, the Daily Report to OKW from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast: "12 September--Search for arms in area of Nigrita (Northeast Saloniki). No important results. 3 Greeks shot to death." Next on page 23 of the English, page 19 of the German document book, Daily Report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to OKH for the 15th of September 1941: "15.9 in Belgrade leader of a special Communist Group captured, one Communist shot to death. 15.9 near Lokovik (North .of Vel.

Plana) food train attacked and looted. 30 looters shot to death." Next on page 29 of the English and page 21 of the German document book, Daily Report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 21st of September 1941. Your Honors will recall that at this time the Defendant list was Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and simultaneously Commander of the 12th Army, and that his Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch: "Serbia: Near Cacak in the Banat, 24 Communists hanged for attacks on railroad line." Next on page 30 of the English, page 22 of the German, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast's Daily Report for the 23rd of September 1941: "Serbia: In Gradiste/Danube, 23 insurgents shot to death." Turning to next page 31 of the English, page 22 of the German document book, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast's Daily Report for the 24th of September 1941, under the section of the report dealing with activity in Serbia: "Sabac will be depopulated beginning 24 September." Next on page 32 of the English, page 23 of the German, Daily Report of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 26th of September 1941: "Serbia: 49 insurgents shot to death near Valjevo by the 123th Infantry Regiment." Next on page 34 of the English, page 24 of the German, Daily Report for the 20th of September 1941, from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to OKW: "Serbia: 34 insurgents hanged in Cuprija. Greece: 29 September 22 Greeks killed during mopping-up operation in area Northeast Saloniki. Houses burned down." Next on page 35 of the English, page 25 of the German, Daily Report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 3rd of October 1941: "Serbia: 12 Insurgents shot to death near Lajkovac by 123 Infantry Regiment. Home Guard Company in GRN. Milanovac - 10 dead, 60 missing. Own losses: 31 dead, 2 wounded, 10 missing; Enemy: 17 dead." Next on page 36 of the English, page 26 of the German, Daily Report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 4th of October 1941: "Serbia: A total of 43 insurgents killed." And I call your Honors' attention to the description in this Daily Report of insurgents killed with the description in the previous report of insurgents shot to death. Next on page 37 of the English, page 26 of the German, Daily Report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 7th of October 1941:

"Serbia: Basaid (18 Kilometers north Petovgrad/Banat) 11 Communists hanged." Next on page 39 of the English, page 27 of the German, Daily Report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 15th of October 1941: "Serbia: III Battalion/749th Infantry Regiment on the march from Kragujevac to G. Milanovac for execution of new reprisal measures." Turning next to page 41 of the English, page 29 of the German document book, Daily Report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 18th of October 1941:

"Serbia: 717th Infantry Division: As reprisal measure for Kraljevo 736 men and 19 women were shot. Own losses 2 dead, one wounded.

"Greece: The villages of Ano-Kerzilion and Kato-Kerzilion on the Strimon River estuary burned down since they were proven to have been Nigrita band supports. All male inhabitants (202) shot to death. while houses were being burned down, ammunition including blasting ammunition exploded. When parachutists was shot to death, the Greek who had sheltered him was also shot to death and 1 house was burned down."

Next daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 9th of November, 1941. This is on page 50 of the English, page 34 of the German:

"Serbia: 714 Infantry Division: Near Majdanpel. (East, Southeast Pozarevac) 14 insurgents shot to death."

Turning next to page 51 of the English, page 34 of the German, Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, daily report for the 10th of November, 1941:

"Serbia: 342nd Division marching on the area around Valjevo, Divisional Staff Valjevo, 1 Battalion in Lesnica (15 Kilometers North of Lesnica). 130 hostages shot to death as reprisal measure."

Next on page 56 of the English, page 37 of the German, daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 6th of December, 1941 : Serbia:

342 and 113th Infantry Division continue mopping up. enemy losses: 73 dead, 91 Mihailevic-Cetniks captured. 4 machine guns, 182 rifles, 1 ration depot captured 80 Communists shot to death.

In Belgrade 50 Communist and suspects arrested.

I direct your Honors' attention again to the different description. Under enemy losses, "73 dead" and two lines below "80 Communists shot to death."

Turning next to page 57 of the English, page 37 of the German, daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 7th of December, 1941.

"In Belgrade 80 Communists and suspects arrested.

"Lt. General of Artillery Bader has taken over affairs of the Commanding General-Plenipotentiary in Serbia."

Your Honors will recall that from the middle of September, 1941 until the 7th of December, 1941, General Boehme was Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, subordinate to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast and Commander in Chief of the 12th Army who, from April until October, 1941, was the defendant List and from late October, 1941 until August 1942 was the defendant Kuntze, and that the defendant Focrtsch was Chief of Staff to both List and Kuntze.

Turning next to page 59 of the English, page 39 of the German, daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 10th of December, 1941, Serbia.

"During mopping up operation around Cacak, 49 Communists including 1 leader were shot to death, 187 arrested."

Next page, 60 of the English, page 39 of the German, daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 23rd of October 1941--I believe that may be a typographical error, because it is signed Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12 Army, 11 December, 1941.

"Serbia: 113th Infantry Division: During mopping up operation 66 insurgents captured, 34 shot to death."

Turning finally to page 7 of the English, page 43 of the German document book, daily report of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 20th of October, 1941.

"Greece: 19 Oct. members of Navy fired on near Strymon Bridge, South west Seres. 2 soldiers dead, 1 wounded. In reprisal, 13 hangings."

We continue on page 102 of the English document book, page 66 of the German document book. This is NOwW-1671 which is offered as prosecution Exhibit 528. It is a letter from General Bader who at the time the letter was written was Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to General Kuntze, who at the time was Deputy Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. The letter is dated Belgrade, 19 January 1942.

Subject: Teletype Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Ia No 188/42 top secret of 16 January 42 To The Deputy Wehrmacht Commander Southeast General of Engineer Kuntze Saloniki.

To the inquiry of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast I reply as follows. I warn expressly against the intended measures for the extension of the Bulgarian territory. The arrest of the government after its having resigned will not help, and only increase the animosity and unrest.

I propose the following:

As the SS Division will probably not arrive in time, a weak German garrison must be taken into account. The responsibility for the maintenance peace and order must in the first place be transferred to the Serbian government the threat that the Bulgarians will continue to occupy the country if the unrest continues. Above all the Serbians should bleed and die for their country. We have to save every man!

Signed Bader General of the Artillery Turing next to page 103 of the English Document Book, page 67 of the German, document NOKW-1669, which becomes prosecution Exhibit 529, these are an exchange of messages between the Armed Forces Commander Southeast who at the time was the defendant Kuntze, and the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia who at the time was General Bader.

The first message was transmitted on the 7th of February, 1942, -I beg our pardon, the first is from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast to the defendant Kuntze, transmitted on the 7th of February, 1942, to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia:

"The following teletype has been received from the Chief, OKW:

The reports from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast on the situation in Serbia and the result of the punitive expedition do not yet justify hopes that uprisings on a major scale will not commence again in Spring. The bloody losses incurred by the Insurgents and the number of those liquidated are small. The number of prisoners is much too large. Individual prisoners were even able to escape from captivity.

according to a report by a confidential agent, the people's attitude, originally depressed is supposedly giving way to increasing arrogance and Cetniks with the skull or the Yugoslav insignia on their fur caps are said to move about under the eyes of the Occupation Forces.

Numerous Serbian officers have fled and will organize the next uprisings. Others are said to move about openly in their former uniforms.

The prevailing opinion supposedly has it that the Germans are unable to cope with the Insurgents, and that Hungarians or Bulgarians have to come. The veracity of this report cannot be established at this headquarters. Only one thing is certain, that so far it had not yet been possible to break the backbone of the Insurgents through Draconian measures and that military operations alone will also not be in a position to do so.

The most effective measure is to employ a widely spread spy system and brutal Police and Secret Police measures to recognize who formation of Insurgents right at the start of burn the out. These measures are to take place on the largest scale possible after the commitment of a Higher SS and Police Leader. I again must emphatically point out that the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast must manage in the coming year to with the Forces remaining with him, and that is his duty to employ those measures which will guarantee success.

Note Wehrmacht Commander Southeast:

The plenipotentiary Commander in Sweden is requested to present suitable proposals.

1. -Attitude about the Situation Reports

1.) All reports on the enemy available here, show that, under the influence of the fighting in the East and Anglo Russian propagando, an increased revival of the Insurgent movement within the area under the command of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia had to be expected in the coming spring.

2) Between 1 September 1941 and 12 February 1942 the enemy suffered the following losses:

If your Honor please, during that period 1 September 1941 and 12 February 1942, the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast with the defendant List later the defendant Kuntze, Defendant Foertsch was Chief of Staff to - both of those men.

a.) Killed in action or shot: 7756 persons b.) Shot as preparatory measures subsequent to combat actions: 20149 persons.

3.) No prisoners were taken in the course of combat actions with the Insurgents. Who ever is found carrying or possessing a weapon or who ever is active in the serving the enemy is shot on the spot.

4.) Arrested suspects are subjected to the following procedure after investigating the question of guilt in accordance with martial law:

a.) Those found guilty are shot b.) All persons where the question of guilt cannot be clarified without doubt are transferred to a Prison Camp for the execution of reprisal measures.

c.) Those found to be innocent are released. To shoot all persons encountered in the combat area on principle, with the simultaneous burning of their homes without clarifying the question of guilt would result in the following:

a. A further decrease in food production for the troops and population, since the majority of the villages occupied by the bands are rural communities.³

h.) Further decrease in the number of employees in plant and armament factories.

c.) Further limitation of quarters for troops.

5.) Uniforms are worn in Serbia by:

The Serbian Auxiliary Police under the command of the Nedic Government, with its affiliated formations (Town police, Gendarmes, Auxiliary Gendarmes, Cetniks). These uniforms correspond to the former Yugoslav uniforms but because of lack of raw materials – have different types of changes. Uniforms worn otherwise would expose the wearers to arrest and shooting. It can therefore be regarded only as belonging to the Insurgents.

"Inasmuch as officers on active duty, formerly with the Yugoslav Army, who are not in the service of the Nedic Government, were apprehended, they were transferred to German prisoner of war camps.

"7) Rumors about the division or the total occupation of the Serbian territory by Hungarians, Italians, or Bulgarians are repeatedly spread among the allied (Axis) nations and their newspapers. They do not help to quiet the country. So far arrogance or disregard towards the German Wehrmacht has not been shown. Moreover, it is confirmed that the Wehrmacht is respected everywhere. This also expressed by the fact that the insurgents presently try to evade any contact with German forces on the whole.

"II. Summing Up and Proposals.

"On view of the extraordinarily difficult terrain – at least half the country consists of wooded mountains 500 to 1800 meters high, more or less without roads – a complete suppression of the insurgent movement with the forces at present available seems impossible to accomplish. It must also be taken into consideration that at the present, for instance in the case of the 704th Division, 75 percent of the infantry is tied down by guard and security service at railways and industrial installations. An effective remedy can be brought about only in the following manner:

"a) through bringing in divisions which need to be re-fitted, or reserve troops, in order to station as many troops as possible in the country.

"b) by shifting the Serbo-Croatian frontier towards west as far as Bosnia, to give the Serbian state an indispensable basis for its economic and national development. At the present almost one-half of the Serbs (more than three million) live outside of the state frontiers. They are constantly being most heavily oppressed, especially in Eastern Bosnia, by the Ustascha units, and this disturbance, which expresses itself in a flow of thousands of refugees across the Drina frontier, by its very nature is transmitted to Serbian territory.

"c) through stopping the supply of weapons from the south across the German-Italian line of demarcation, which frustrates all attempts by troops and government to seize illegally owned weapons.

"As long as the forces available are weak, troops not tied down by security duties have to put in constant appearance in the country, at one time here, at one time there, changing strength according to the situation, to carry out careful search for weapons and bandits. If the enemy is encountered, he is attacked.

"At the moment, action is being taken according to the above principles."

Signed Bader, General of the Artillery.

Turn next to page 111 in the English, page 74 in the German, Document NOKW-1797, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 530. These are minutes of a staff meeting of Italian and German high commanders during the period 3 to 29 March 1942. At this time Your Honors will recall that the defendant Kuntze was Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and his Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch.

"Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Headquarters 3 March 42.

"Subject: Conference with Italian Second Army.

"Enclosed please find the agreement made with the Second Italian Army concerning combat methods in Croatia.

"The OKW reserves approval.

"Signed for the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast (Twelfth Army), "The Chief of the General Staff."

Your Honors will note the receipt stamp of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia in the middle of the first page of the document. The distribution list follows and then the minutes themselves:

"Minutes of the conference which took place in Abbazia on 3 March 1942 regarding the cooperation of the Italian, German, and Croatian forces for the final mopping up of the rebels in Croatia."

The participants in the conference are listed. Your Honors will note the General of Engineers Kuntze, Deputy Wehrmacht Commander South east as representative of the OKW, and General of Artillery Bader, Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, were among the participants.

Also Brigadier General Glaise von Horstenau, the German general in Zagreb.

I think we need not read the entire minutes. They concern themselves with a good deal of tactical and purely military operational material. I call Your Honors' attention to paragraph 3 of the minutes, which is on page 113 of the English, page 76 of the German, the forces which were available for the operations, the command operations of the Italian and German units.

Next on page 114 of the English and page 77 of the German, the general plan of operations:

"General Plan of Operations:

"It was established that the fight against the insurgents in Croatia had to be carried out according to a unified point of view; i.e., a concentric operation will have to be carried out on the basis of an estimate of the significance of the individual zones of insurrection. East Bosnia was called the most important zone of insurrection. The forces available will be employed here first. Later operations will extend in a northwest direction. The Commander-in-Chief of the Second Army will lay down the plan of operation and will agree with General Bader on the method by which these operations will be carried out in Bosnia. General Bader - subordinate to the Commander-in-Chief of the Second Army - will direct the operations himself. To this end the German, Italian, and Croatian army units assigned to the operations are subordinate to him."

Next skipping to paragraph 8, "Occupation of the Areas and Police Services", which is on page 115 of the English and page 78 of the German:

"Occupation troops will be left in the territories cleaned up by the operations in order to secure quiet and police services. This police service will be carried out by occupation troops and the corresponding police organs and in addition by the Croatian Gendarmerie. It was suggested that General Laxa see to the reinforcement of this gendarmerie.

"It is agreed that the administration (civil power) in the occupied territories will be carried out in the beginning by the military authorities.

After the pacification of the individual zones the Croatian civil authorities will be employed for administration pursuant to the decision of the Commander-in-Chief of the Second Italian Army."

Next follows the line of demarcation, which I think we need not read, but continuing with paragraph 10:

"Relation to Chetniks and to the Communists:

"It is agreed that no liaison of any sort will take place with the insurgents, neither with the Chetniks nor with the Communists.

"11) Treatment of the Rebels and of the Population:

"It is ordered that all rebels caught bearing weapons must be shot to death as well as any person in their employ or supporting them. Villages in which arms and ammunition are found or from which the rebels have been employed in any way whatsoever be burned down.

"During and after the operations the occupation units will treat the population with understanding and justly. Then the Croatian government will take measures to restore law and order. For this purpose it will immediately make the legal provisions necessary for the existence of the population."

Page 117 of the English and page 80 of the German, the minutes end. They are signed:

"Abbazia, the 3rd of March 1942, 1930 hours "By Vladimir Laxa, Major General, "By Kuntze and "By General D. Ambrosio."

Continuing on page 117 of the English, page 81 of the German, a communication from Combat Group Bader dated 29 March 1942. Your Honors will note the receipt stamp of the Commanding General in Command in Serbia for the 30th of March 1942.

"On 28 March P.M. continuation of the conference with practically the same participants as in the morning. General Roatta asks numerous questions and as a result he establishes essentially the following:

"1. The Croatian administration actually carries out even toda sovereignty rights in the insurrection area.

"2. The territory between Save, Drina, and Bosna is declared operation area under the commanding officer of the German 718th Division. A representative of the Croatian government is with him who will transfer to Combat Group Bader with the transfer of command.

"3. The verbal note of the Croatian government according to which the taking over of the actual power by authorities other than the Croatian government signifies interference with the sovereignty of the Croatian state is based on mistaken assumptions. Not only according to German and Italian but also according to general international custom the commander of a unit exercises the executive power during an operation, in as far as the operation demands."

I think we need not spend too much time on the intervening pages of this report from Combat Group Bader. They are largely of a tactical and operational nature. I call Your Honors' attention to paragraph 14 of the communication which is on page 122 of the English and page 86 of the German:

"14. Attitude toward the Population:

"a. Insurgents encountered bearing arms or in combat.

"b. Insurgents whose participation in combat can be proven.

"c. Suspects.

"d. Unsuspected persons.

"The population under 'a' and 'b' is to be shot to death; under 'c' to be 'removed'; under 'd' to be released."

Then continuing on page 123 of the English, page 87 of the German, paragraph 19:

"19. At the conclusion, the Chetnik problem was again discussed and again very thoroughly. (As during the entire conference, each word was taken down by several stenographers.)

"General Roatta states:

"a. Communists are the enemy of all. Under no circumstances can negotiations be carried on with them.

"b. Chetniks, it is true, are enemies of Croatia but they are not enemies of the Axis. It would be practical therefore to negotiate at first with Chetniks only, of course, with the consent of the Croatian government."

And at the bottom of the page: "The conference was concluded approximately 1130 hours. Distribution as Ia 101/42 Top Secret." Signed Bader, Lieutenant General of Artillery.

Next turn to page 126 of the English, page 88 of the German document book, Document NOKW-1745, which becomes Prosecution Exhibit 531. This is an order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, dated Headquarters 18 April 1943. The order is to the "Chief of the 6th Company of 4th Regiment Brandenburg":

"1) In modification of the order of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia Ia, No. 1283/43 Secret of 14 April 43, the company is to be transferred to Trstenik on 20/21 April and to be subordinated to the I Royal Bulgarian Occupation Corps. Report of transport to be made by company.

"2) Task: Guarding of Goc area (bands Gordic and Keserovic) as well as the carrying out in cooperation with the SD of mopping up and punitive measures as proposed by the Serbian Minister of the Interior of the 16th of April; see enclosure. (Enclosure sent ahead to the Company Brandenburg) "3) In execution of paragraph one of the instructions, the commander of the security police shoots to death ten DM followers brought in from the district Trstenik during operation 'Heinrich'."4) The Commandant of the Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters 610 imposes a fine according to paragraph 2 of the proposal.

"5) Execution is to be reported. Publication and propagandists exploitation of the measures will be organized from here after conclusion."

Signed "Bader".

"Combat Group Western Bosnia, dated Staff Headquarters, 14 July 1942. Receipt Stamp: Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Operation Plan"

I think we need not read it. It is largely of a tactical nature. I call your Honors' attention to paragraph 6 of page 129 of the English, page 90 of the German Document Book:

"Behavior towards the Population.

"Partisans and persons who aid them are to be shot by the forces after interrogation. Important persons will be sent for detailed interrogation to higher headquarters.

"All men over 14 years old, except frail old men, of the ARE to be mopped up between Una and Sana, are to be arrested and taken to Collection Camps. Women and children are to be left in their villages or ordered to return there.

Signed Stahl," Who is Commander of Combat Group Western Bosnia.

We return next to page 131 in the English, page 91 in the German, Document NOKW 1721, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 533. These are a series of reports and orders of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. First, is a report from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia dated - Headquarters, 1 August 1942 to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

Your Honors will recall at this time 1 August 1942 Commanding General and Commander in Serbia is General Bader, and his Chief of Staff is the defendant Gaitner and on 1 August 1942 the defendant Kunze is still Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and his Chief of Staff is the defendant Foertsch.

"TO Wehrmacht Commander Southeast Stamp:

SECRET 1. Enemy Situation.

Losses up to date incurred during mopping up of the Una-Sana bend (final report not yet available):

Germans: 6 dead, 11 wounded Croatian:

11 dead, 24 wounded Enemy:

450 dead, 1946 prisoners (of this 269 were shot as convicted partisans) The German Battalions subordinated to the Railway Security Staff (for special service) BROD conducted successful mopping up operations on both sides of the railroad Zagreb-Belgrad.

Enemy sabotage is diminishing in the Fruska Gora. The enemy suffered losses, 90 convicted partisans were shot by the Croatian Police. North of the Line Nova Gradiska - Nevska the enemy was forced to move North by German operations. An additional battalion will arrive at Popovaca today."

Next is the distribution list and we might as well note on the distribution list Wehrmacht Commander Southeast and Higher SS and Police Commanders.

Continuing with the report of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia:

"Own Losses during the period 16 - 25 July 1942:"

I call your Honors attention simply to total losses, under own losses: 85 dead, 55 wounded, 131 missing. Total under enemy losses, 1,600/dead, 49 wounded, 2,177 arrested.

Page 133 of the English, and page 92 of the German, there is another report of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia. This one is dated Headquarters: 11 August 1942, to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. The Wehrmacht Commander Southeast at this time, 11 August 1942, is General Loehr, whose Chief of Staff is the defendant Foertsch. The defendant Geitner continues to be Chief of Staff of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia:

"I. ENEMY SITUATION

c) Area Vrbas - Sana - Una:

In the Kozara area dispersed enemy forces of about 500 men have to be taken into consideration. Total enemy losses during the Kozara operation amount to about 4300 dead and 10,600 prisoners and people taken into temporary custody.

.....

The strength of the Serbian State Guard (Racial Germans and Hungarian origin) in the Banat amounts to 39 officers and 1063 E.M. During raids in the BANAT 60 Communists were arrested

VII. Administration No events occurred worth noticing.

In detention camps there are 102 hostages and 1481 retaliation prisoners.

Signed for the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, Chief of Staff von Geitner."

Continuing with the bottom of page 134 of the English, and 93 of the German, I call your Donors' attention to the total losses under "Own Losses:" 96 dead, 159 wounded, 23 missing, as compared to enemy losses during the same period: 1,494 dead, 119 wounded, 1,946 prisoners.

We turn next to page 136 of the English, page 95 of the German ----

The next follows on page 139 of the English and 98 of the German:

The requested answer could only now be submitted because of the leave and subsequent commitment of Lieutenant Colonel von Wedel.

The Combat Group Westbosnia of Lieutenant Colonel von Wedel did not give an order either in writing or orally to shoot to death women and children.

During the operation of the Company Demonstration Regiment Brandenburg the deputy company commander once drew the attention of Lieutenant Colonel von Wedel to the fact that women were often encountered among the fighting partisans. Thereupon Lieutenant Colonel von Wedel answered that no clemency could be shown to such rifle women. Children on the other hand were not mentioned:

To stress the presence of German troops was not necessary as their performances and successes were sufficiently known to the partisans as well as to the population.

Continuing a communication from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia Local Headquarters dated 23 September 1942.

At the bottom of page 141 of the English and 101 of the German is a communication from the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia dated 17 November 1942:

To the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. After conversation with the Commander of the 714 Infantry Division it was confirmed that his attitude of 18 September 42 Ia No 328/42 top secret is entirely maintained. This attitude is given literally in the letter of the Commanding General and Commander of 23 September 42.

The character of Lieutenant Colonel von Wedel guarantees that an order, in the style of the order issued by the 7th company of the Demonstration Regiment Brandenburg was not issued.

and the letter is initialed "B" The next document NOKW 722 has already been introduced in evidence, in document book IX so we will pass it, and continue on page 153 of the English and 110 of the German, NOKW 793 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 535.

This is an order of the XXII Infantry Division of 13 December 1942. At the time that division was operating on Crete, the Wehrmacht was directly subordinated to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast who at the time was General Loehr whose Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch.

"Subject: Alert Plan, Arrest of Hostages.

"1. The arrest of hostages is to be considered in the alert plans, according to the order referred to. The setting-up of lists of hostages serves for the preparation of this measure. The lists of hostages are to be set up and presented by the section and sub-section heads, according to expert and local suggestions of the Secret Field Police and the District Headquarters. This is to be carried out according to the following principles:

"a) Lists of hostages are to be set up for all localities and their neighboring localities occupied by troops. The section heads are to determine which localities are to be considered as neighboring localities. The concept 'neighboring locality' is to be construed as narrowly as possible with regard for the strong load on the fighting units. Localities which lie more than three kilometers away from the quarters of the troops are not, in general, to be regarded as neighboring localities.

"b) Those persons, if occasion arises also of the female sex, are especially to be regarded as hostages who have shown an attitude inimical to the Germans or allow such to be expected. Mayors in office and local clergy are not to be utilized as hostages.

"c) In general one percent of the local residents, however not less than 5 and not more than 150 per locality, are to be considered for hostages. The arrest of substitute hostages is to be prepared for hostages who have fled.

"d) The lists of hostages are to be presented to the division, branch Ic, by 1 Jan 43 for examination by the counter intelligence agencies.

"II. Arrest and collection of hostages in prepared shelters (churches, schools, and similar) is to be ordered by the section and subsection heads. The arrest and guarding of the hostages is to be carried out by the unit. The feeding of the hostages is to be the obligation of the communities.

"III. The section commanders are to decide about the further use of hostages. Shooting may take place only with the approval of the division. The section commanders have the right to decide about the lives of the hostages only in the prospect of danger.

"IV. The arresting of hostages according to special decree (in searches for weapons and similar measures) remains unaffected by this.

"(Signed) Mueller."

The order is signed by Mueller, Commanding Officer 22nd Infantry Division, who Your Honors will recall was executed in Greece as a war criminal sometime in May of this year.

The next document is NOKW-1710, which has previously been submitted in evidence in Document Book 9, so we will pass it at this time and continue instead to page 158 of the English and page 114 of the German. This exhibit is NOKW-1807, offered as Prosecution Exhibit 536. This is a photograph which we were unable to put into the document book itself. We have put into the document book the translation of the writing which appeared on the photograph. I now hand Your Honors three copies of the photograph which is to be inserted at page 158 of the document book, and copies for the Secretary General. Attached to it is a certificate issued by Vincent Zeisler, a research analyst in charge of the Washington screening team, which certifies the photograph showing a group of soldiers in the Yugoslav Army was secured by him from the files of the XV Mountain Corps and that the file at the present time is located in the Document Center in the Pentagon Building, Washington, D.C. On the back of the photograph there is certain writing in the Yugoslav language which we have translated. It reads:

"VIS to 2 January 1943 - souvenir from a trip of a group of Likanians. Starcevic, Stjel...? Miskovic, Antic, Uselac."

We call Your Honors attention to the full uniform which the men in the photograph are wearing and to the red stars appearing on their capes. The photograph was found in the files of the XV Mountain Corps, and from the writing on the back of the photograph, "2 January 1943," we may feel that this was the date on or about which the photograph was taken.

I call Your Honors' attention to the date and type of uniform which the men in the photograph were wearing at that time.

We turn next to page 159 of the English and page 115 of the German document book, NOKW-1755, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 537. This exhibit is a series of excerpts from the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander of Serbia, February 2, 1943. At that time the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia was Bader, and his Chief of Staff was the defendant Geitner. The Commanding General and Commander in Serbia was subordinate to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, who at that time was Loehr, and whose Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch. The entry in the War Diary is:

"2 February 1943.

"Teletype orders to 610th Administrative Sub Area Headquarters to shoot to death a total of 16 communists and D.M. followers in reprisal for destruction of telephone line Krusevac-Aleksandrovac 25 and 27 January. The above to be made known publicly and the execution to be reported. The Chief of the Security Police---"

THE PRESIDENT: From what page are you reading?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 159 English, page 115 the German document book. The entry in the War Diary for the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, February 2, 1943.

"---will see that prisoners for reprisal measures are available.

"Teletype reprisal orders to the 610th Administrative Sub Area Headquarters for the blasting of the line Lajkovac-Cacak on 31 January for the shooting to death 20 communists and 20 D.M. followers, additional reprisal orders for the murder of the official in the taxation department in Boljkovac for the shooting to death of five communists and five followers of D.M."

Next, the entry for 3 February 1943:

"The Commandant of District Headquarters of Zajecar complains about independent arrest of hostages by the SD and proposes the removal of the confidential agent Arsenijevic.

The Chief orders a settling of the matter by personal conversation with SS-Standartenfuehrer Schaefer (compare enclosure)."

Continuing the entry for 16 February 1943:

"The civilians arrested after the murder of Colonel Hens of the 704th Infantry Division are not to be shot to death as reprisal as formerly intended but deported for work as most of them are innocent. Four hundred communists from the camp in Belgrade are to be shot to death as reprisal measure. Corresponding teletype instructions to the Commander of the 704th Infantry Division and the Commander of the Security Police."

Finally, the entry in the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia for 18 February 1943:

"Teletype message to 809th Administrative Sub Area Headquarters that there is no objection to the use of the 2000 male persons considered as hostages in the District Leskovac, as workers for B, provided that a sufficient number of reprisal prisoners remain available."

Turning next to page 161 of the English, page 117 of the German, NOKW-1748, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 538. This is a telephone message from Reserve Grenadier Battalion of 135th Regiment to Group West, dated 7 February 1947.

"Yesterday the area of the group Hofmann was combed according to orders. In Novi Grabovac and in Subockigrad three partisans were encountered with weapons and communist papers, and were shot to death. In the rest of the area no bands were encountered. Novi Grabovac was half burned down and fifty percent of the population was sent to the transit camp in Sisak as partisan suspects. The number of hostages from this place, including women and children, amounts to about 70 persons; the exact number will follow.

"The communist papers as well as a list will be forwarded to the division via the courier service.

"Group Hofmann requests information where requisitioned cattle is evacuated."

Signed "Captain Hofmann".

On page 162 of English, page 118 of the German, is a document NOKW1806, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 539. This exhibit contains excerpts from a booklet on the Draza Mihajlovic movement, which was issued by the OKH, the Army High Command in Berlin. I call Your Honors' attention to the date of this booklet, February 9, 1943.

"The Draza Mihajlovic Movement as of 1 February 1943.

"The present report issued in limited distribution may not be forwarded to other offices."

Signed "Commander-in-Chief Southeast (High Command Army Group E)".

Your Honors will recall at this time, February 9, 1943, General Loehr was Commander-in-Chief Southeast, and his Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch.

Your Honors will note from the table of contents which appears on page 163 a complete report on this partisan movement. This booklet is broken down into:

"General Information.

"1) Development.

"2) Aims of the Movement.

"3) The Personality of Draza Mihajlovic.

"B) Political Relations.

"C) Military Organization.

"D) 'The General Revolt'.

"E) Final Conclusions."

I think we need not read it all. I should like to find out as we go through certain dates, I should like your Honors to pay particular attention to.

Part II contains a series of enclosures. Your Honors will note one section of Part II "Brigades ascertained up until now," that is until February 1, 1943. Also a section on "Commanders and Confidential Agents."

I should like to begin on page 164 of the English, page 121 of the German. Since the Draza Mihajlovic Movement is one of the two Draza movements which was operated during the entire German occupation in Yugoslavia, the German report on the movement is of particular importance.

"A) General Information

1.) Development "Among the various Insurgent Movements which increasingly cause trouble in the area of the former Yugoslav State, the Movement of Draza Mihajlovic stands in first place with regard to leadership, organization and activity.

It is composed of the following groups:

1.) "Cetnic-Units"

2.) "Followers of DM".

"In the former Yugoslavia the "Cetnici" were a reliable voluntary Combat Organization which however was organized by the State and supported with arms and money. At the beginning of the war they were organized as Shock- (Jurisni) - Battalions for the carrying out of special tasks. Immediately after the capitulation of the Yugoslavian Army most of these Cetnici grouped together in Great Serbian Combat Units under the leadership of their officers thus forming the foundation of the DM Movement.

In order to be able to work unmolested in the scope of their overall organization they camouflage themselves in Serbia under the cover of "Cetnik-Units loyal to the Government", in Montenegro as "National Militia", in Dalmatia as "Anti-communists" and in Bosnia as "Loyal Cetnik-units". "The Followers of DM come from all classes of the population and at present comprise about 80% of the Serbian people.

Hoping for the liberation from the "alien yoke" and for a better new order and an economical and social new balance their number is continuously increasing.

"2.) Aims of the Movement "The aim of the DM-Movement is the creation of a Great-Serbian State which is to comprise former Yugoslavia as well as the frontier regions of Hungary, Albania and Bulgaria under the leadership of King Peter II, from the House Karadjordje.

The DM-Movement the attitude of which is more great-serbiannational than Yugoslav conceives as its primary task the liberation of the Serbian people.

The future State shall therefore be governed by Serbian Leaders only. To all other peoples being "Minorities" rising to leading positions in the new State is to be made impossible.

"3.) The Personality of Draza Mihajlovic.

Draza Mihajlovic was born in 1893 as the son of a Serbian Officer in Cacak. His ancestors were Serbian peasants. Shortly after he had joined the Serbian Army the Balkan Wars began in the course of which he was twice decorated and rose to the grade of 2nd Lieutenant. On 1 September 1918 he was promoted Lieutenant and took part in that rank in the combats at the Salonika front. After being wounded he was decorated by the King for his courage with the order of "White Eagle".

He was taken over into the Yugoslav Army, graduated from the War Academy and was then employed alternately in offices of the General Staff and with the troops.

"As Military Attache in Prague and Sofia he was able to gain a good insight into the political relations in the Balkans.

"In 1937 DM was relieved as Colonel in the General Staff. The reason presumably for this were his continuous differences of opinion with his superiors and his morbid ambition and selfwilledness.

Soon after the breaking up of Yugoslavia he tried to take into his own hands the fate of his people.

"As a fanatic fighter for the Great-Serbian idea and enthusiastic follower of the Royal House he began to build in Western Serbia a movement which today extends over all of Serbia, Bosnia, Dalmatia as well as into the frontier areas of Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria.

"The center of the movement is located in Montenegro. There DM believes himself to be out of danger of being caught by the German occupations troops.

"In January 1942 the Yugoslav Government in Exile appointed DM General of the Army, and at the same time he was appointed "Commander -in -Chief of the Yugoslav Home-Army"; a short time afterwards he was appointed Minister of War.

"On account of his absolute undisputed position as Military Leader the large majority of the Serbian people also look towards him as the coming political leader of the new Yugoslavia."

-Then follows the Political Relations, and Political Organization of the DM- Movement.

I should like to pick up the text on page 167 of English, and page 124 of the German:

"Each Region is under the orders of a "Regional Commander". He supervises within his region the entire political and military organization and propaganda. At the time of the "General Revolt" he is responsible for the quick reestablishing of peace and order.

"The regions are subdivided according to their size into districts. The District Commanders have in their areas essentially the same tasks as the Regional Commanders. In addition at the time of the General Revolt they are commissioned to take over the office of Heads of Community.

"The political organization of the regions:

Dalmatia Slovenia Montenegro Syrmia Backa Banate is not completely known at present".Turning to page 168 of the English, page 125 of the German, page 2 of the report of the DM movement, dealing with "2.) Relation to the Yugoslav Government.

DM depends only partially on the Yugoslav Government in Exile in London. Therefore he takes the decisive political and military measures on his own.

"3.) Relation to the Allies.

England aids the Movement by supporting it with funds, war materials and by sending officers and men. For this reason DM approves of the relation of his government to England. He is however opposed to English attempts to gain stronger political influence on the Movement.

"The relations to Russia are at present characterized by the combating of communist bands. DM however regards this conflict as an Internal-Yugoslavian affair and he himself strives to achieve good relations with Soviet-Russian Government. Therein he is supported by the efforts of the Yugoslav Government in Exile in London.

"At the time of the General Revolt therefore one must count on large parts of the Communist Bands joining DM.

"4.) Relations to the Occupying Powers.

"Germany is considered to be the main adversary. Her occupation troops must as the occupiers be destroyed. In order to avoid measures of reprisal against the Serbian population DM however always warns against premature single operations.

"The Serbian Government headed by General Nedic is considered a traitor towards the Serbian people. The removal of this Government is therefore one of the first demands.

"The Italian Forces of Occupation either tolerate the DMMovement or even support it. Often Cetnik-Units employed by the Italians for combatting Communists.

"The Bulgarian Troops of Occupation are also considered to be "Occupiers". In an increasing measure the attempt is becoming apparent to destroy their morale by a planned inflammatory propaganda."

We now come to the most important part of this report on the DM Movement on page 169 of the English, page 127 of the German, the portion of the report which deals with military organization. Again Your Honors' attention is called to the report dated February 1, 1943.

"Overall Organization of the armed DM-Units.

"Within the DM-Movement there are armed units organized militarily (see Enclosure 3) which form the Yugoslavian Home Army".

This has at present a strength of about 150,000 men in the entire Yugoslavian Area and is composed as follows:

"a) High Command of the Yugoslav Home Army

b) Higher Commanders of Insurgents.

c) Corps of Insurgents.

d) Brigades of Insurgents.

e) Mobile Brigades.

f) Other Units.

To a) DM being the Chief of the High Command of the Yugoslav Home Army is the Commander-in-Chief of the Yugoslav Home Army. He has unlimited authority over all armed units of the Movement, appoints all Commanders and is the supreme Judiciary. He orders the establishing of new units and negotiates with foreign countries. He gives the signal for the "General Revolt".

"The High Command of the Yugoslav Army is composed of:" --I think here we need only point out the following:

"Operations Department Adjutant's Office Administration Department Chief Propaganda Department Signal Officer Liaison Staff of the British Army Bodyguard of DM Organization Staff Serbia:

Sphere of Work: Competent for all military and political matters (sabotage included) in the oldSerbia area.

to b) The "Higher Commanders of Insurgents" being "Commanders" of "Regions" have military functions.

"All armed units and military installations belonging to them which are in their region are subordinated to them.

"Their authority is in general small. All political and military measures in their area must be approved by the Commander-in-Chief.

to c) The largest military units of the DM-Movement are the Corps of Insurgents (see enclosure5). They are designated as a rule by the name of the range of mountains where they are located. Each Corps is composed of the Staff and 3-8 Brigades.

to d) The Brigade of Insurgents is the real combat unit. It is composed of 3 companies, of which only two are regularly organized and armed. The third appears to serve as a reserve unit. to e) The Mobile Brigades are mobile units which are directly subordinated to the Higher Commanders of Insurgents. They are composed in general of 2 Battalions each having a strength of 500 to 1000 men and when employed are subordinated to a corps, to f) In a few regions according to the situation temporary smaller units having a strength of 100 to 5000 men are formed, and are not listed in the Overall Organization".

Then follows a portion of the report which deals with Armament and Equipment of the DM organization.' The report states, page 172 of the English, page 130 of the German, that the Armament and Equipment DM movement is continually supplemented by, "a) Arms of the former Yugoslav Army.

b) Arms of the Italian Army of Occupation.

c) Arms dropped by British airplanes.

d) Arms captured."

I think we need only point out a few of the remaining sections in this very complete German report on the DM Movement. Section 3, dealing with Commanders and Confidential Agents, Section 4, dealing with Signal Communications.

Your Honors will note on page 173 of the English, and page 131 of the German:

"The following means of signal communications are in use:

Radio Couriers Enemy (British) Broadcasting.

"Up until now 14 working Radio transmitting stations have been ascertained which are in direct connection with star traffic with the main office of the High Command in Montenegro. In the future every regional Commander is to have his radio transmitting station.

"In many cases British soldiers are employed as personnel for the transmitting apparatus. Supplementary supplies of radio installations and new supplies of radio apparatus and personnel are effected nearly exclusively by supplies - dropped by British planes.

"Couriers are employed for the transmission of important orders and to send money. Up to now courier connections were ascertained to:

"Cairo Ankara Greece Bulgaria". Roumania, Poland, Switzerland, and on to London.

Section 5 deals with supplies, 6 with propaganda, 7 with sabotage and espionage.

I should like to direct your Honors' attention to the next portion of the report, beginning on page 176 of the English, 134 of the German:

D) "The General Revolt" By the General Revolt the occupying powers are to be chased away, the present governments overthrown and the new Yugoslavia established.

The order for the General Revolt will be given by the leader Draza Mihajlovic. He alone after having taken into consideration the situation determines the right time. The signal will be given by radio to all the Higher Commanders of Insurgents.

Strengths and Units At the beginning of the General Revolt the following approximate strengths may be presumed in the entire territory of the former Yugoslav area:

a) Serbia 318 000 men

b) Croatia 35 000 men

c) Montenegro 30 000 men these will be presumably joined by Elements of the Pecanac-Cetnik-Units *) 5 000 men Elements of the Serbian State Guards ) 16 000 men Elements of the Ljotic Movement ) 3 000 men Elements of the Communist Bands in all regions 40 000 men Elements of smaller minorities (Poles, Czechs, Mohammedans) 10 000 men Total Strength 457 000 men Of these about 250,000 men will be armed with rifles."

Your Honors will note on page 177 of the English, and 135 of the German, the various units listed. You will notice a total altogether of 56 Brigades.

On page 178 of the English and 136 of the German, is a list of operational units of the Draza Mihailovic movement known up until now which is 1 February 1943.

On page 179 of the English, of the German, the total units available, giving one division 27 corps, with 15 brigades:

"When the order "General Revolt" is issued all units will assemble in their mobilization areas.

Final Conclusions By the creation of the DM-Movement an organization has been formed which based on the fanatic will of every individual may gain as revolutionary movement a considerable political and military importance in critical situations in the Balkans.

The combatants' excellent knowledge of the country and the positive attitude of the majority of the Serbian population favor the movement.

The fighting value of the DM-Movement does not correspond to that of a modern unit. The reason for this lies in their insufficient leadership, armament and equipment.

The leaders are young and have little military training. They have no experience in the command of large units.

The armament is insufficient except for rifles. Heavy infantry weapons and artillery exist only in small numbers, anti-tank weapons and anti-aircraft are almost completely lacking.

In its present composition the DM-Movement is inferior to the occupying powers if the latter employ sufficient forces.

In order to suppress successfully a revolt started suddenly and at the right moment supplementary forces in addition to the present occupation forces will be necessary."

Then follows a list of the units of the Draja Mihailovic organization which were known to the Germans as of 1 February 1943, and the various areas of the occupied territories in which those units were operating.

Your Honors will note that there is a total of 75 individual brigades listed on page 182 of the English, 140 of the German, the Commanders and Confidential Agents of the DM-Movement, The Co-Workers in the Staff of DM, the Liaison men of the DM-Movement in Foreign Countries, and finally the Liaison men of the DM-Movement in the Serbian Government.

Turning next to page 184 in the English Document Book, page 142 in the German Document Book, NOKW 1757, it is offered as Prosecution 540. These are various situation reports from the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast during the month of March, 1943. Your Honors will recall that during that period the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia was General Bader, whose Chief of Staff was the defendant Geitner, Commander-in-Chief Southeast Loehr, who was then simultaneously commander of Army Group E.

The first report is dated 1 March 1943. Headquarters, Commanding General, Commander in Serbia. It is a situation report from the period 21 February, 28 February, 1943. The report is sent to the Commander-in-Chief, Southeast, High Command Army Group E:

"I. Political Situation The mood of the broad masses of the population is depressed, expectant.

The Goebbels speech and the proclamation of the Fuehrer have had favorable repercussions for us, from a fear that after the collapse of Germany the Balkans would be inundated by Bolshevism. In the Nedic government a certain crisis-mood is again to be perceived as its hopes for an increase of independence, especially with regard to its own executive have so far not been fulfilled.

II. Enemy Situation The increase of enemy activity which occurred at the end of the last report period has again diminished a little during this report period.

The number of cases of sabotage and surprise attacks fell from 125 to 99. In these the Communists were essentially the main participants."

I call your Honors' attention to the next paragraph, page 185 of the English, 142 of the German:

"The sudden severe reaction of the occupying powers of shooting to death nearly 600 persons as reprisal during the report period, has prevented for the present an increased effect of the appeals for sabotage of Tito and DM. Those bands which are still active are probably not to be influenced however serious the reprisal measures. They can only be destroyed by an offensive battle.

The center of the DM movement lies at present in the Herzegowinian and Bosnian area. In Serbia during the report period only the railway staff of DM tried for the first time to damage rolling stock to a greater extent by building infernal machines along the line NischSkoplje. The supervision measures which were ordered after the intentions became known, proved themselves completely. All attempts except one were discovered in time."

Then follows a report on the sabotage and surprise attacks, and finally the losses from 16 February to 25 February, 1943. Again I call your Honors attention to a comparison of the losses suffered by the occupying forces: 39 dead, 31 wounded, 24 missing.

Losses suffered by the enemy: 291 dead, 12 wounded, 945 taken prisoner and arrested.

Turning next to page 188 of the English, page 144 in the German Document Book, NOKW 1750, which is offered as Prosecutions' Exhibit 541, this is a letter from the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, dated 3 March 1943, to the President of the Serbian Council of Ministers:

"Subject: Reprisal measures.

1.) On 23 February the commander Marenkovic of the rural guard in Krcevac, North of Topola, and the Serbian State Guard man Kikic were murdered there by Communists.

2.) On 28 February Communists attacked the station of Dedina near Krusevac, destroyed the telephone and telegraph lines and wounded nearby guard of the Serbian State Guard by shots.

3.) On 28 February the power center of the Soko mine, Soko Banja district was destroyed by Communists.

Since the perpetrators were not apprehended, I have ordered the shooting of 10 Communists for each of them.

4.) During the night of 27/28 February, the cable-car of Majdan Pek was destroyed in an attack of DM - Chetniks on the intermediary station of Rajkovo.

As retaliation for this sabotage act I have ordered the shooting of 30 DM-followers from the Negotin camp.

Signed: Bader General, Artillery" At this time, March, 1943, the defendant, Geitner, was Chief-of-Staff for General Bader.

Next, on page 189 of the English, and 145 of the German, Document NOKW 1756, is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 542. These are a series of orders of the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, to the various area units under his command and jurisdiction.

The first is dated 2 May 1943, to the 610th Administrative subarea Headquarters:

"1.) For the reprisal measures ordered for destructions in the Morava mine on 13 April 1943 prisoners can also be drawn from other districts. Burning of houses does not have to be carried out in this case. In the future only proposals for retaliation are to be presented which, after approval, can be carried out within a reasonable time.

2.) As reprisal measures for the attack on the railway station Dedina and for sawing off telephone poles between Kalanjevci and Zivkovci the communities concerned will be fined in proportion to their competence.

(Signed) Commanding General and Commander in Serbia" Next is a communication from the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, dated 5 May 1943, to the Senior SS and Police Commander:

"On 4 May 1943 2 tugs on the Danube were fired on 6 km Southeast of Drencova. 1 Captain was seriously wounded and 1 machinist lightly wounded. The guilt of D.M. followers has been established.

In retaliation and to discourage further plots directed against traffic on the Danube 50 D.M. followers from the Homolje area are to be shot immediately.

The draft for a poster concerning the retaliation is to be submitted. Public notice will be issued by this headquarters.

(signature) Bader" I direct your Honors attention to the fact that this order was sent to the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, and to the Senior SS and Police Commander.

Continuing with the next order, dated 5 May, 1943, Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, to the 809th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"In retaliation for the murder of the Head of the village on 27 April by Communists, as well as for the murder of the former platoon leader of the village militia, G. Jeschanitza, 10 Communists are to be shot.

Execution is to be reported together with enclosure of a copy of the public notice."

The next is an order dated 6 May 1943 to the 610th Sub-Area Headquarters:

"In retaliation for the attack on the station at Kosevi on 2 May 10 Communists are to be shot.

Execution is to be reported together with inclusion of a copy of the public notice."

Continuing with the daily report of the 7th of May, 1943, bottom of page 191 of the English, page 147 of the German, Daily report of 7 May 1943, sent from the Commanding General Commander in Serbia, to the Commander in Chief Southeast:

Communists: dead 34, of these 27 shot as reprisal, wounded 4, captured 4, arrested 10. D.M. Supporters: 62 dead, of these 50 shot as reprisal, 3 captured, 112 arrested.

Continuing on page 192 of the English, 147 of the German, the daily report of the 8 of May, 1943, from the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, to Commander-in-Chief Southeast:

"Communists: dead 38 (reprisal shootings) arrested 38; DM followers 17 (reprisal shootings) captured 1, arrested 3." Next an order dated 11 May 1943 to the Commanding General Commander in Serbia, to the 599th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

Subject: Retaliation measures In retaliation for the murder of 4 and the wounding of 5 German soldiers as well as for the killing of 12 Serbian Police in the district of Smederevo on 23 April 1943 a total of 150 Communist reprisal prisoners, if possible from the districts of Mladenovac, Arandjelovac, and Palanka, are to be shot.

The public notice must lay special emphasis on the treacherous and cruel execution of the deed. Also it must be mentioned that the villages in the neighborhood were only saved from being burned because the inhabitants, according to their duty, informed German and Serbian headquarters of the presence of the band.

Execution is to be reported together with enclosure of a copy of the public notice.

Continuing daily report 15 May 1943, sent from the Commanding General Commander in Serbia, to the Commander in Chief Southeast:

"Communists: 34 dead (including 20 shot in reprisal) 11 captured, 6 arrested."

On the bottom of the page 194 of the English, and 149 of the German, from the Commanding General Commander in Serbia, to the 823rd District Headquarters, dated 19 May 1943:

"In retaliation for the murder of the two Custom Officials, Wolf and Gahner, of the Frontier Guard Station at Rebenberg during the night of 12/13 May 1943, 100 Communists are to be shot."

Your Honors will note the ratio there of 50 to 1.

Next, the order from the Commanding General Commander in Serbia, dated 20 May 1943, to the 809th Administrative Sub-area Headquarters:

In retaliation for the Bulgarian soldier murdered while carrying out Railway Security duties, on 1 May 1943 by Communists 8 km South of Leskovac, 50 Communists are to be shot."

There, your Honors, will note the application of a ratio of 50 to 1.

Next on page 196 of the English, page 150 of the German, another order dated 21 May, 1943, Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, to 809th Administrative Sub-Area Headquarters:

"In retaliation for the murder of the Serbian Chief of Police in Leskovac 10 Communists are to be shot."

At the bottom of the page 196 of the English, and 150 of the German, Daily report 25 May 1943, Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, and Commander in Chief, Southeast:

"Communists: 103 dead, including 100 reprisal prisoners, 5 arrested. DM followers: 2 captured, 2 dead.

At Zajecar 25 persons arrested. (As yet not known to whom they belong.)" On page 197 of the English, 151 of the German, is a survey of reprisal measures carried out during the period 1 January, 28 May, 1943:

"Cases avenged by human lives (execution by firing squad) during the period: 80 4 more cases of telephone sabotage are being avenged by monetary fine or extra guard duty."

Then there follows a breakdown of the types of attacks which make up the 80 cases mentioned.

Finally, at the bottom of page 197 of the English, and 152 of the German:

"In retaliation for the 80 attacks and plots, during the period 1 January - 28 May, 1943, 2332 persons were shot, i.e. 1628 Communists, 704 DM followers.

The shooting of 235 Communists and 105 DM followers is ordered but not yet carried out. The total will then be 2672."

Continuing with the daily report of the Commanding General Commander in Serbia, Commander in Chief Southeast, for the 28 May, 1943;

"Communists: 25 dead, including 20 shot in reprisal, 1 wounded, 1 captured, 1 arrested.

DM followers: 1 dead, 23 arrested."

Continuing now on page 200 of the English Document Book, page 153 of the German, Document NOKW 1759, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 543, these are directives of the 118th Jaeger Division for the behavior of troops in operation.

The order is dated Division Staff Headquarters 12 May 1943:

2.) "Prisoners:

Whoever openly participated in combat against the German Wehrmacht and is captured is to be shot to death after interrogation. Deserters and other arrested persons (suspect persons) are to be delivered to the prisoner collecting points. Sufficient guards! Leaders and persons who are able to make important statements are to be presented to the Division (point 1). Prisoners and those arrested should be interrogated briefly. The minutes of the interrogation are to be delivered when the persons are transferred. When the statements are the same, a collective interrogation is sufficient. The interrogations must also contain personal data, place of the arrest or capture. The delivering office is also to be noted down.

3.) Cetniks:

All Cetniks without exception are to be disarmed; if necessary by using force. In compliance with the orders of the Duce, all Cetniks bound by duty to the Italians up until now or under Italian leadership are also to be disarmed, if necessary by force. In case of Intervention of Italian offices against the disarming of Cetniks which is to be carried out ruthlessly all German commanders are to refer to the order of the Duce to disarm Cetniks which is known to all German troops. Non-execution of this order of the Duce is to be designated as treason. All offices are to be informed about this on x - 1 day. Report of execution to the Division on x day. Cetniks who have used arms against German troops are to be treated like Communist bands, otherwise they are to be transferred as prisoners of war to the prisoner collection points.

DM followers who are not directly under the leadership of Italian troops are to be considered completely as enemies to which the regulations of point 2 of these instructions are applicable.

.....

8.) Attitude toward the population:

The unit has to operate without consideration and with brutal severity against the population which proves hostile and is to take away from the enemy every possibility of existence by destroying abandoned villages and securing existing food supplies. Important water points which are not destroyed because of our own needs and the *ds of the peaceful population must be guarded. The peaceful population in the occupied area is to be treated kindly and to be employed in the service of the purpose as far as possible. For guide and scouting services rewards in money or kind up to 100 Reichsmark may be offered. The customs of the population and especially religious customs of the Moslems must be taken into consideration. Churches, Mosques, and church yards are never to be used as billets or for horse stables or warehouses. Rooms and their furnishings used for billets are to be treated with consideration and are to be handed over in a proper and clean state."

"Severest measures must be taken from the very beginning against plundering even if it is carried out in a camouflaged form ("requisitioning" "organizing" etc.)

11.) The commanders are responsible to me, that these important directions are made known immediately and most clearly to all members of the division and of the 4th Croatian Jaeger Brigade and especially to all Commanders."

Signed: "Kuebler Brigadier General" Commander of the 118th Infantry Division.

We continue now on page 203 of the English, page 155 of the German, Document NOKW 1761, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 544. These are excerpts from the War Diary of the 1st Panzer Division, and your Honors will note at the top of the page 203 of the English, and 155 of the German, the 1st Panzer Division was subordinated from one June 1943 to 16 October 1943 to the Corps Headquarters of the 68th Infantry Corps for Special Employment. Entry in the War Diary for 12 July 1943:

In the night of the 11th to 12th July two members of bands were captured by the 1st Panzer Grenadier Regiment. By negotiations with the civilian population they tried to draw over to their side a Russian voluntary helper who was with the 1st Panzer Grenadier Regiment. According to their statements the bands consist of groups which in part are well equipped, they have radio etc. The 2 partisans were shot to death in compliance with the Fuehrer's order.

I think we may skip the entry of 20 July 1943 at this time, and continue on page 205 of the English, and 156 of the German.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The entry of 29 July 1943 in the War Diary of the 1st Panzer Division:

"29 July 43:

"The relief group led by Colonel Neumeister at first reaches Kalandritsa where a Carabinieri post was also attacked by bandits. The place has been evacuated by the civilian population members of bands could not be captured. As a reprisal measure the place was destroyed by fire. In Erimanthia which was reached at 1300 hours several dead and wounded Italians were found. In other respects, the situation resembles that in Kaladritsa. Erimanthia too is being destroyed. According to statements of an escaped Italian, 25 Italian soldiers are supposed to be in the hands of the bandits. The bands are said to have expressed the intention of killing these prisoners in case any relief group approaches Erimanthia, Therefore, by order of the division several hostages were picked up from the vicinity and later on turned over to the jurisdiction of the Italians. Furthermore all civilians mayors in the neighborhood were told that for every German or Italian soldier killed the severest reprisal measures will be taken against the civilian Greek population."

Continuing with the entry in the War Diary for 22 August 1943 at the bottom of Page 206 in the English, Page 158 in the German:

"In the evening two serious incidents occurred with civilians. An NCO, of the auxiliary anti-aircraft detachment 299 was molested, a corporal of the same detachment was attacked. His bayonet was taken from him. The garrison commander immediately had 10 hostages arrested.

"At the same time he ordered the mayor to find out the actual perpetrators and to hand them over the next day."

Next, the entry for 24 August 1943:

"24 August 43:

"At 1800 hours three of the arrested were shot to death after a partial confession, the others were released.

As the Italians continue to complicate matters, among others things they abrogate orders of the German garrison Commanders to the Greek civilian population, the Division demanded the subordination of the Settere Argolide, Hqs. The request was granted at 2400 hours."

I think we may skip the intervening entries and pick up again on Page 208 of the English, Page 159 of the German, the entry for 5 October 1943. "As the weapons of the German soldiers were attacked near Dimena were not delivered according to the imposed conditions 4 hostages were hanged at 1300 hours in Chiliomedon." Finally, at the bottom of Page 208 in the English, Page 159 in the German, the entry for 9 October 1943: "At 1030 hours the 5th company reached the villages of Charma and Kathara (12 kilometers southeast of Molov) they were destroyed because weapons and ammunition were found there." That, if Your Honors please, completes the reading of the excerpts from the War Diary of the 1st Panzer Division, which, during the period mentioned, was under the command which was subordinate to the Defendant Felmy. We continue now on Page 209 of the English, Page 160 of the German, Document NOKW-1751, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 545. This exhibit consists of extracts from the War Diary of the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia during the month of June, 1943. During that period the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia was General Bader, and his Chief of Staff was the Defendant Geitner. The entry for the 19th of June 1943: "Telephone authorization to Senior SS and Police Leader for the execution 550 hostages for attack on Auxiliary Police Detachment (8 dead, 7 wounded)." And then the entry for the 27th of June 1943: "Commanding Officer of District Headquarters Krusevac reports by telephone that 320 guilty persona are available by the SD from other areas." And the entry in the War Diary for the 28th of June 1943: "Order for execution by shooting of 25 Communists to Administrative Sub-area Headquarters 599 for the German Police Sergeant wounded during an attack Ralja on 24 May 1943."

Your Honors will note the retaliation quota applied in that case 25 to 1 for the wounding of a German soldier. Next, on Page 211 of the English document book, Page 161 of the German, Document NOKW-1762, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 546. This exhibit consists of a series of three reports which were sent by the Commander of Southern Greece to the Commander in Chief Southeast, who was simultaneously Commander in Chief Army Group E. The first report is dated 4 June 1943; the Commander in Southern Greece at that time was the Defendant Speidel. The first portion of the report deals with the political situation. Yours Honors will recall that at this time, June, 1943, when the Defendant Speidel was Commander of Southern Greece, the Defendant Foertsch was the Chief of Staff to the Commander in Chief Southeast, to whom the report of the Commander in Southern Greece was sent.

I. Overall impression:

"The abandonment of the North African front has made a profound impression on the Greek populace. Enemy propaganda which started immediately has tried to exploit the success of this so-called "boxing of the Germans and Italians out of Africa" in every respect and liberation of Greece from its "conquerors".

"The Greeks are thereby kept in a state of excitement this psychological effect seems to be carefully calculated - and their sense of resistance and desire for liberty is constantly being whetted. This also explains why the appeal for a cessation of bandit warfare has met with no decisive or tangible success.

"Outwardly, the situation - irrespective of political attacks on the present Government - remains perfectly quiet. The steady rise in prices on all vital consumer goods which is due to the rise of the gold Pound, is cleverly exploited in the form of strike slogans by the Communists.

In the Italian area the onset of strikes has been detected. The Rallis Government order, peace and security, to reinforce the police and gendarmerie and to purge it of unreliable elements.

"The relative peace in the "State of Athens" is to be attributed to a great extent to the energetic measures taken by Rallis. A vehement struggle has started on the part of all political parties in order to assume the leadership and patronage of the two police battalions. Democrats, royalists, Denizelists and even Communists are trying to take over the leadership."

The next portion of the report from Commander of Southern Greece, at that time, the defendant Speidel, deals with strikes and demonstration: "Food supplies for the population were plentiful to be sure at very high prices and therefore despite all instigations there was no reason for strikes and demonstration. The following incidents have been reported during the period covered by this report:" I am calling Your Honors' attention to sub-paragraph "b" of this section, dealing with strikes and demonstrations:

"The workers of the Chemical Plant "Lipasmata" in Pirieus staged a sit down strike on 24 May 1943; other employees joined the next day.

"District Headquarters Piraeus had ten hostages seized from among the workers and ordered the resumption of work. The order was followed immediately.

"In Athens, bank employees started a sit down strike. When on 29 May 1943, almost all banks had gone on strike, the Greek Prime Minister decreed the closing of all banks in Athens on 31 May 1943.

"In Piraeus work was not interrupted again. The officials were informed by District Headquarters that all strikes would be considered as directed against the German Occupation authorities and would be dealt with accordingly."

Finally on Page 214 of the English, Page 162 of the German, the section of the report from the Commander in Southern Greece dealing with economic development enemy situation?

"Overall impression: The bandit amnesty was proclaimed at a most unfavorable time. The fall of Tunis has incited the will to resist of the Greek populace and even of those people who have thus far looked on passively. It has convinced the insurgents that they would be able to vanquish the axis Troops just like the "Sacred army of the Greeks" which fought in Tunis had done. Nevertheless, the opinion was expressed that after 20 May 1943, the German occupation troops in particular would carry out an extensive operation against the bandits.

"The successful mopping up operations in the Olympus and Othry's area were not the least important factors which contributed to this belief. This is the only way of explaining the movement of the bandits from the more open area of Eastern Greece to the less accessible mountains of the middle and of the West. Apparently, the Giona Massif has become the central headquarters of the bandits.

"It is possible that this movement to the West Coast was prompted by an English directive in preparation for an eventual landing in these somewhat inaccessible areas.

"Bands have been observed on the Pelopennesus. They crossed the ocean East of Patras near Lepanto and infiltrated to the Southern tip of the Pelopennesus."

I think we need not read the remainder of this particular report. Your Honors will note what full exposition the activities in Greece are given by the Commander of Southern Greece, the Defendant Speidel at this time, in his report to the Commander in Chief Southeast, who at this time was General Loehr, whose Chief of Staff was the Defendant Foertsch. I call Your Honors' attention to Page 219 in the English, Page 165 in the German, which is the estimate of the situation made in his report by the Commander of Southern Greece:

"Expecting a sudden large scale action by German Troops after 20 May 1943 - the last day of the amnesty - the bands have withdrawn West into more inaccessible areas.

"The Giena Mountains must be regarded as their central headquarters. The reputation of the German troops has suffered considerably because no operation has taken place. In general Greek circles define this attitude of the German troops as weakness. Thus the door has been left wide open for British propaganda. The blasting of the tunnel located near 255 kilometers during the night of the first be the second of the month in the course of which an Italian Troop Transport Train has been destroyed completely and the railroad line Saloniki Athens was interrupted for two days must be regarded as a sign that the resistance will of the bandits has flared up. The threat to the only supply line Saloniki Athens and continuing to the Pelopennesus, will presumably increase during the next period. Even the German troops recently brought into the area of Southern Greece are unable to suppress the bands and the insurrection movement on the area of Attica and Boeotia because the greater part of them has been assigned to the Pelopennesus which has also become a center of unrest.

"The reputation of the German Occupation Troops and ultimate peace and order (which in view of an eventual English landing is more necessary than ever) and the reputation of the German occupation can be established and maintained only by the ruthless resistance of bandits which has been demanded repeatedly."

And the report is signed for the Commander South Greece, by the Chief of Staff.

THE PRESIDENT: We'll take our afternoon recess at this time.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(The Tribunal recessed at 1500)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, prior to the recess, we were looking at Exhibit 546, which is a series of three reports from the Commander of Southern Greece to the Commander in Chief Southeast. We had finished the first report and now we look at the second, which is on page 221 of the English and page 166 of the German. This is a report from the Commanding General and Commander of Southern Greece, dated 5 July 1943. At this time, the defendant Speidel is the Commander Southern Greece. The report covers the period 4 June to 3 July 1943.

"Political Situation Overall impression:

The rapid defeat of the Italian Isles of Panetelleria and Lampadusa, the almost undisturbed control of the Mediterranean Area by allied naval and air forces, the decrease of German U-boat successes as well as the constantly increasing air attacks on Germany and Italy were exploited by enemy radio and whisper propaganda, by dropping of pertinent illustrated papers and leaflets which try to prove the superiority of the Allies. The greater part of the Greek population at this time is convinced of the imminent landing of the Allies in Greece and in particular of the final victory of the Democratic Powers. The lack of any larger operation against the bandits contributes to this opinion. It is also interpreted as a weakness of the Germans that the Allies were successful in attacking the important air fields of Kalamaki and Eleusis without suffering any losses.

"Any visible success of the Allies, no matter how small, now is exaggerated because of the total situation and is considered to be a weakness of the Axis Powers.

Only thus can it be understood that the anti-axis movement in the Greek population increases more and more.

"90 per cent of the Greeks today are unanimously hostile toward the Axis Powers and are ready for open revolt. The fact that all strike attempts and all strikes up to now were camouflaged with economic reasons, and that the general strike attempted on 25 July 1943 was carried out openly under the slogan of a protest against the hostage shootings of 17 July 1943, prove the correctness of the statement. The extent which this strike seemed to achieve at first, made its political significance perfectly clear.

"Those Greeks who are still pro-Axis --- they usually make money by supplying the German or Italian Wehrmacht decrease more and more or they do not dare to confess themselves to be friends of the Axis. The enemy radio publishes the names of Greeks working in German offices. If people are particularly prominent, their death sentences, pronounced in absentia, are published.

The EAM also publishes the names of the Greeks working for the Axis powers in its numerous party papers and party leaflets. It warns and exhorts the to join their ranks. An additional important argument expounded to the Greeks who are still willing to work is the small wages paid by German offices.

"The indigenous volunteer forces serving with German units -- identifiable as such by their uniform -- are being molested and threatened right out in the streets. The Communists movement has gained in strength impact, and reputation in particular by its indisputably great political successes in all of Greece, mainly however in and around Athens.

By use of clever camouflage, the EAM including all its subsidiary groups has succeeded in gaining the direct support of the British Secret Service. A major contributing factor to an abatement of the struggle against Communism is the belief that England will be strong enough after the war to keep Communism out of Greece at least. This has made the EAM with its combat organizations the main bearers of the entire resistance movement against the Axis powers. The greater part of the bands is subordinated to it. It is in a leading position, politically speaking and, because it is very active and enjoys a co-ordinated leadership it represents the greatest danger to the occupying powers."

Then follows a section on Strikes and demonstrations.

"The food supply for the indigenous population is asbefore--more than sufficient and to a great degree it is better than that of the German soldiers. However, wages are unable to keep up with the rapid rise in prices. Nevertheless, economic reasons are the decisive factors for only a very few of the attempts at strikes. All strikes carried out thus far have been organized and led by Communists. They have tried to shake the reputation of the occupying powers and to weaken whichever Greek Government was in power. Simultaneously, however, they were endeavoring to determine the resistance power of the Axis. Unfulfillable demands such as a 7 hour day, granting of credits, supplying shoes, garments, food stuff, were to serve as camouflage for these operations. Thus it was all the more surprising that all camouflage was dropped when the general strike of 25 June 1943 was called and the political strike was proclaimed openly. It is true that only minor strike attempts have been observed in the entire area which is under German Sovereignty because the careful interference by German offices prevented any outbreak.

Yet, the reputation of the occupying powers was greatly impaired because the Italians in Athens did not apply the same severe measures as was the case in the area of German Sovereignty. The Greek does not differentiate between the German and Italian occupying power. He only knows the axis powers.

"The shooting of hostages on 17 June 1943 and the ensuing strikes must be considered from that point of view. On 25 June many plants in Athens actually went on strike and the owners were compelled by the Strike leaders to close their factories. Several columns of demonstrators tried to march through the city but they were dispersed within a short time. The political impetus of the strike called by the Communists in protest against the shooting of hostages was particularly emphasized by the fact that most of Athens Police Officials (about 1200 men) went on strike. On 2 July 1943, the Police returned to duty after the Government had disarmed 395 officials and dismissed them from the service. 35 of these striking officials were arrested by the Italians. The table enclosed shows the strikes which occurred in the month of June. The decree issued by the Commanding General and Commander South Greece -- and that, if Your Honors please, is the defendant Speidel --- "on 27 June 1943 which threatened particularly severe procedure in case of strikes in the area of German Sovereignty - - - - - was revealing and served as a deterrent.

" The report next deals with enemy propaganda, economic development, and finally we have a portion on the enemy situation.

I ask Your Honors to pay particular attention to this next portion because it is quite a good description of the ELAS organization, one of the two large Greek partisan organizations which came into being during the German occupation of Greece. Your Honors will recall the oral testimony of the witness Triandaphylidis on the nature, size, military structure, and organization of the EDES partisan organization, and now we have in the report from the Commander of Southern Greece, the defendant Speidel, an account of the ELAS partisan organization.

"Enemy Situation.

"Overall Impression.

"The ELAS (Greek National Army of Liberation) includes about 70 percent of all the bands. About 20 percent of the bandits consist of so-called nationalist bands, leader, Colonel Zervas." This is on page 226 of the English, Your Honors, page 168 of the German. "About 20 percent' of the bandits consist of so-called nationalist bands, leader, Colonel Zervas, The rest must be considered as politically uncertain. According to a report received here, the ELAS is organized as follows:"

Then Your Honors will note the diagram which appears on page 227 of the English document book, page 109 of the German document book, showing the organization of the ELAS units: General Leader Athanasios Klaras, Lamia, and the 1st, 2nd, 3rd General Staffs.

And on page 228 of the English and 169 of the German, the numerical strength of the ELAS:

"RED Andartes in action - 7,000 men.

"RED Adnartes in reserve - 24,000 men.

"All of these are armed, but for practical reasons the majority of them remains hidden in the guise of 'peaceful, working' population.

"The bandit situation is as follows:

"The majority of the bands controls the high mountain range of Pinbos-Giona Massif. Staffs and main forces are located in a switch position which extends through north and central Greece from northwest to southeast.

"The nationalist bands under Colonel Zervas, whose English advisor is Colonel 'Eddy', are situated north of the line Agrinion-MacrokomUpper Sperohia Valley. Headquarters is in Metsovon. The communist bands under their leader Aris - whose deputy is Belis - have their headquarters on the east side of the Giona Mountains. The bands have no uniform equipment. There is a lack of uniforms and shoes. Armament is of English, Italian, and German origin. Every large bandit group has radio equipment. U-boats and small sailing boats take care of the supply. The northeast coast of Euboea, the northern coast of the Gulf of Corinth, south of Parnassus and of Helikon, as well as the west coast from Preveza to Astakos, are the main landing places. Frequently the population procures the foodstuff.

"Since the German counter measures expected after the amnesty period had expired did not occur, a considerable number of the bandits have been returning since about the middle of July to the territory which they occupied before. The movement is coming from the west and the east. The greater number of the bandits still continues to remain in the Goina Mountains.

"Communication with the English, who fly in almost every night to bring supplies, takes place by means of light signals. About 4,000 bandits are in the villages of Kukuvista, Diaselon, and Sideroport on the eastern slope of the Giona Massif.

"An attempt was made to blow up the steamer 'Citta di Savona' in the harbor of Piraeus by a magnetic mine fastened to the bow of the ship. A leak 50 x 70 was sprung. The bow sank about two meters and then touched bottom. Sixty-nine horses were drowned. No casualties. After a few days the ship was serviceable again. There is a possibility that the mine was put in at the port of Patras on 11 June. Investigations still under way. As a counter measure from the German side, ten hostages -- mostly communist leaders -- were shot to death on 17 June.

The Italians shot to death nine hostages. The impression on the population was strong, as proven by the demonstrations on 25 June 1943."

The next portion of the report deals with railroad and cable sabotage. On page 231 of the English and 170 of the German, counter intelligence situation.

Now, turning to page 232 of the English and 171 of the German, that first portion of the Commander Southern Greece's report which deals with his estimate of the situation:

"The increased activity of the RAF, the serious cases of sabotage against the transport 'Citta di Savona' and against the railroad line Saloniki-Athens, the attempted general strike and the demonstration on 25 June 1943 prove that there is cooperation between saboteurs, communists, and bands in all spheres. The central direction of these operations rests in the hands of the English officers, who are with the bands and who certainly are also temporarily with the direction of the EAM in Athens. This coordinated leadership leads one to expect coordinated measures in the event of an enemy landing either on the Peloponnesus or on the west coast of central Greece. These measures will have a dangerous effect, the more so because only minor units of German troops can be used in the Command Area against the insurgent movement which is at least 50 to 20,000 men strong. In addition, it must be expected that a general strike will be proclaimed in Athens and immediate vicinity by the EAM followers (estimated strength about 20,000 men according to Greek sources). Also that the EAM followers - pursuant to directives of the EAM and of English band leadership - will carry out pillaging and attempt sabotage in the objects hit even while the attacks are still in progress. The intimidation of the Greek workers in German plants is disturbing slowing up all important war work. The occupying powers can no longer look on passively at such activities. In view of the known weakness of the Italian occupation, it must be made possible for the German commander to intercede effectively in the Italian area as well, in order that the aforementioned dangers might be averted. He should be able to do this by exploiting the fear for the German soldier and his resolute behavior which is still prevalent among the Greeks.

The authority he holds at present is insufficient. If the German Wehrmacht is not to suffer heavy losses in Greece, the bandits must be opposed forcibly and with the employment of strong forces. The inner political and the economic situation is in the last analysis dependent also on the result of the battle against the bandits.

"Notwithstanding certain initial successes, the Rallis Government was unable to maintain itself among the population. Without effective support by the occupying powers, its days seem numbered. It is a moot point whether it will be succeeded after its fall by a capable government which is willing to cooperate honestly with the occupying powers."

And the report is signed: "For the Commanding General and Commander South Greece, The Chief of General Staff."

On page 235 of the English and 173 of the German we have the final report. Your Honors will recall that in the end of August 1943 the whole Southeast Command was reorganized and in line with that reorganization the title of the defendant Speidel as Commanding General and Commander in Southern Greece was changed to Military Commander Greece. In the document which begins on page 235 of the English and 173 of the German we find the defendant Speidel now Military Commander Greece sending a report on the date of the 4th of September 1943 to the Military Commander Southeast who at this time was General Felber. Your Honors will recall that Felber's Chief of Staff was the defendant Geitner. This is a report from the Military Commander Greece for the period from 1 September to 3 October 1943:

"Political Situation.

"Survey.

"The conclusion of the armistice by Badoglio caused open joy among the entire Greek population. The collapse of the European defense front seemed to be very imminent. The speedy disarmament of the Italian Wehrmacht by numerically inferior German forces which took place mostly with out friction caused dismay and fear.

The liberation of Mussolini was taken for what it actually was: a courageous coup and the fulfillment of a friend's word. The departure of the Italians, who frequently were hated because of their unjust behavior, their lack of military demeanor, and because they were defeated in the Albanian campaign, evoked joy and even pity in the widest circles. Those Greeks who had the right attitude rejoiced when the Germans assumed control of the security and administration of all Greece. They expected a just procedure and performance in particular in the economic sphere, in the black market, and hoped for an improvement of the situation and of the economic problem."

The next portion of the report deals with:

"Strike Situation:

"After the collapse of the general strike of 31 August 1943 work was resumed almost everywhere on 1 September 1943. Only the employees of the small banks continued to strike, and a part of the office force of the gas and electricity works and the majority of workers in the tobacco industry. On 5 September 1943 work was fully resumed everywhere.

"Up to now there were hardly any strikes in the area of German sovereignty. Now that the Germans had taken over executive power in all of Greece the strike instigators were fearful lest the same rigid procedure be applied to them as was done hitherto in the area which was formerly under German sovereignty. The decree of the Military Commander Greece" -- and that, if Your Honors please, is the defendant Speidel -- "stating that any strike would be considered as directed against the German Wehrmacht and would be treated accordingly, was an additional factor.

"The strike which broke out on 1 October 1943 in the Athens gas works - 160 men and four women of the entire force stopped working - was suppressed by the immediate interference of the field gendarmarie. This strike must be regarded as an attempt to determine whether the Germans would actually apply their severe measures against striking workers."

Next is an account of the enemy situation. I think we need not read the portion dealing with the Italians but continue on page 238 of the English, 174 of the German, with the account of the Military Commander Greece on the insurgent movement. Paragraph B, Insurgent Movement:

"The distribution of bandit groups has remained essentially unchanged. Pursuant to orders of the English High Command, the bands evade larger operations. They limit themselves to acts of sabotage on march roads and to occasional attacks on columns. Larger combat actions did not develop anywhere.

"The bandit movement has been strengthened essentially by the collapse of the Italian Wehrmacht. Considerable supplies of arms and ammunition and some rations also have been placed into the hands of the bands by the Italians. On Euboea the Italians turned over almost all their equipment to the bands and some of the Italians joined the bands.

"The main areas of band activity are situated in the Pindus and in the mountain ranges closing off the Hiakmon valley, further southwest and northwest of Thebes on both sides of the railroad line Thebes-Lamia. On the Peloponnesus the area northwest of Tripoli primarily is endangered by bands. Smaller bandit territories are situated in the area of Parnis, north of Athens, and in the southeast Peloponnesus. In the area of Agrinion and Arta also, bands have been observed with a changing circle of activity. It is of special importance that according to reports of confidential agents the opposition between nationalist and communist bands at this time is increasing. Even the English threat of withdrawal of all supplies unless hostilities cease has removed the tension only superficially. In addition, the English Colonel 'Eddy', the actual leader of the Greek band movement, has been recalled to Egypt because he is too pro-communist (reports from reliable confidential agents)."

And next follows a section of the report dealing with counter intelligence situation. I think we need not read it at this time but I call Your Honors' attention to the final paragraph of that portion of the report which appears on page 240 of the English and 176 of the German:

"According to a careful estimate the number of armed insurgents situated in Athens and neighborhood is supposed to be somewhere between 20 and 30,000. The RO was newly established during the period covered by this report. The Greek Minister of the Interior Tavoularis is said to have founded this organization."

The report deals next with sabotage activity, enemy propaganda, and finally the important section of the report dealing with the estimate of the situation by the Military Commander Greece:

"Greece at this time is in a state of economic, political, and financial disintegration. It is a widely held belief that the AngloAmerican troops, once they have arrived, will stop this disintegration and make Greece into a great and great country. That is why the three largest political parties, the Democrats, the Royalists, and the Communists, are preparing to seize power during the period which will elapse from the departure of the Germans until the arrival of Allied troops. Each one of the groups mentioned above is trying to arm its followers. At this time, the Democrats, who still hold certain elements of the state authority, are in the best position to retain power with the help of the gendarmerie and the police. Inter--politically, the Communists are the most dangerous because they represent the most active group, and because they have considerable forces available and are very well organized. Mainly, however, they can call attention to the catastrophic economic development which has brought the Greek people to the brink of an abyss. Consequently, it does not lack followers. The other political parties are slowly permeated with the thought that a further development of the Communist Party signifies the greatest danger. In this connection, it is significant to note that it is the so-called Anglophiles who are most persistent in demanding that the Germans take action against the Communists.

"Since 15 September 1943 the economic situation is becoming increasingly worse. The gold pound rose to almost 600,000 Drachmas.

The most important foodstuffs have become three to four times as expensive. One oka of oil now costs 60,000 Drachmas. The general increase of wages and salaries as decreed by the Greek Government with the support of the Special Plenipotentiary on 2 September also contributes to the deterioration of prices and to the increase of the inflation. Economic measures alone can no longer stop this price development which is leading to chaos. The German occupying power will interfere with draconic measures in order to stop the black market which increases prices and to check the hoarding of basic consumer goods. The economic situation can be stabilized only if continued inflation and additional price rises are stopped.

"The political danger inherent in this development is very great.

"The bands all over Greece are the advance guards of an AngloAmerican landing. To smash them is as important as it is to improve the economic and social situation."

The report is signed: "For the Military Commander Greece, The Chief of General Staff, v. Bogen."

The next document, NOKW 1494, has already been introduced into evidence in Document Book XII so we pass it at this time and turn instead to page 246 in the English, 180 of the German, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 547.

DR. BERGLER (Deputizing for Dr. Weisgerber, attorney for defendant Speidel): Your Honor, I object to the introduction of NOKW 1783, which document is a report of the 611th secret police, detachment, Iraklion 5 July 1943, to the Commander of the 22nd Infantry Division, Fortress Command Post. The 22nd Infantry Division was at that time in Crete, Iraklion is likewise situated on Crete. Crete, however, is not part of the authority command of the Commander in Greece who at that time was Speidel.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, we have no intention of offering this document against the defendant Speidel. The 22nd Division which was operating on Crete was subordinate to the Commander in Chief Southeast Who was simultaneously subordinate to the Commander of Army Group E, and we offer it against the defendant Foertsch, who was Chief of Staff to the Commander in Chief Southeast, and we do not offer it against the defendant Speidel.

THE PRESIDENT: By reason of the statements made by the Prosecution, the objection will be overruled.

Dated Iraklion 5 July 1943, Sent to the Commander of the 22nd Infantry Division.

"Subject: Report on the executions ordered.

The undersigned offices submit the persons hereafter named for execution, according to order:"

I think we need not read the remarks which appear beside the first several names, your Honors. I will just read the first ones. The following ones are similar.

"Fundukidis, Georges: of Michael, born 1916 at Sechum, Soviet Russia, resident at Chania, carpenter, single, 1 child, was always active as Communist. Suspected spy."

The next man, Pronakis, Dimitries, was discovered with leaflets, enemy propaganda, communist activity.

Third, Pronakis, Johann, was also discovered with leaflets, enemy propaganda and communist activity.

The fifth, sixth and seventh men were suspected spies. The eighth, ninth, and tenth are labeled brutal criminals, punished several times previously, as is the eleventh person listed. The 12th is said to be a law breaker, punished several times previously.

I call your Honors' attention to the remarks after the following men on the list: No. 13, on page 248 of the English, 181 of the German:

13. Heim, Michael of Isaak, born 1904 in Kerkira, resident at Iraklion, hat maker, married, 2 children, Politically suspect Jew.

14. Sambaton, Elias of Samboton, born 1902 in Chaina, resident at Iraklion, Pedler, married, 2 children, Politically suspect Jew.

15. Elchai, Abraham of Isaak, born 1870 at Iraklion, resident at Iraklion, plumber, married, 11 children. Politically suspect Jew.

16. Welenis, David of Samuel, born 1902 at Kerkira, resident at Iraklion, cabinetmaker, married, 2 children. Politically suspect Jew.

17. Elchais, Jakob of Abraham, born 1900 at Iraklion.

18. Abigador, Simon of Matthaeus, born 1911 at Chania, resident at Iraklion, official, married, 3 children, Politically suspect Jew.

Your Honors will note in the left hand portion of the document, "District Headquarters Commander, Approved 6 July 1943, signed Mueller."

Your Honors will recall that Frederick Wilhelm Mueller was at this time the Commander of the 22nd Infantry Division, the same Mueller who was executed in May of this year in Greece as a war criminal.

"The execution was finished at 0525 hours. Death was sealed by shooting. Signed: Knebel. 6 July 43."

If Your Honors please, I have been asked by My. Rapp to state for the record, the Prosecution today has handed to Defense Counsel for the defendant Foertsch, one copy of a handbook for the General Staff Officer, a German Army publication which is commonly referred to as "Roter Esel."

We continue now on 250 of the English Document Book, page 183 of the German, Document NOKW 1760, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 548.

This is a report from the First Mountain Division to the Commander Saloniki Aegean, dated 25 July 1943. Your Honors will recall that at this time the Commander Saloniki Aegean was subordinate to the Commander in Chief Southeast who at this time was General Loehr, with his Chief of Staff General Foertsch. This is an Intermediate Report for the period from 24 July 1700 hours to 25 July 0900 hours.

I think the only portion of the report which I need call to your Honors attention is paragraph under c.

"c) 24 July 0400 and 6700 hours 2 counterattacks of bands in strength of 30 to 50 man against Eleftheron. The bands in the area of Eleftheron are mostly uniformed."

The report is signed First Mountain Division, by the I A, and operations officer.

Turning next to page 251 of the English Document Book, page 184 of the German, Document NOKW 1758 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 549. Those are a series of daily reports from the 187th Infantry Reserve Division to Higher Headquarters. The first is the daily report for the 24 August 1943.

187th Reserve Division 462nd Reserve Infantry RegimentIn retaliation for an attack on a truck at Paljevina (see Daily Report 21 August 1943) and on gendarmes at Cazma, hostages were taken in both placesI think we need not read the rest of the report at this time but turn next to page 252 of the English, page 185 of the German, Daily Report for 9 September 1943, from the 187th Reserve Division, to Higher Headquarters.

Your Honors will recall that the 137th Reserve Division was at this time subordinate to the 69th Special Reserve Corps which at that time was under the command of the defendant Dehner, and the 69th Corps was in turn subordinate to the 2nd Panzer Army under the Command of the defendant Rendulic and continuing with the military pyramid, the 2nd Panzer Army at this time, was subordinate to the Commander in Chief Southeast who was simultaneously Commander of Army Group F, defendant Weichs, and his chief of staff, the defendant Foertsch.

Daily Report for 9 September 1943, 0900 "Take 10 hostages each at Mucna and Rijeka, 20 at Spisic Bukovi Comply with order for counter intelligence and retaliation measures Section Ic No. 5379/43 secret dated 24 August.

Notify the villages that another attack on the railway will result in being hanged or shot at the scene of attack."

The report is signed 187th Reserve Division.

Next the 187th Reserve Division for 20th September 1943.

In retaliation for an attack on a truck of the 202nd Panzer Regiment the entire village of Trnava will be burned down. Population deported. 10 hostages from Medari and Trnavagn will be hanged at the scene of the attack. Large posters in the Croatian language are to give the reasons as being constant surprise attacks and to threaten further such measures.

187th Reserve Division Finally an entry in the war diary for the 24th of September 1943, Headquarters 69th Reserve Corps:

"For information by teletype to: 187th Reserve Division."

DAILY REPORT FOR 24 SEPTEMBER 1943

187th Reserve Division, 462nd Infantry Reserve Regiment Attack on Virovitica (see Daily Report 23rd September) repulsed.

Since shots were fired from private homes, 100 hostages will be taken at Virovitica. Own losses: 1 German Gendarme dead. Enemy losses unknown.

187th Reserve Division Section Ia,

DR. VON TAGWITZ: (Attorney for defendant Rendulic):

Your Honor, regret to have to object against the words of the representative of the Prosecution which he used to connect those various documents, or rather which he used to connect the document he just read, Exhibit 548, inasmuch as he said that the defendant Rendulic was the Commander in Chief of the 2nd Panzer Army at this time. Earlier the Prosecution had always named the correct date at which he took over the command, that is, the 26th of August 1943, whereas now I assume that the Prosecutor made a slight error inasmuch as he said that already in July, as a fixed date, the defendant Rendulic was Commander in Chief of the 2nd Army.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I don't believe I said that. The first report in this exhibit is a daily report for 24 August 1943. I carefully refrained from mentioning any of the defendant's names in connection with the report of that date. However, the next report was for 9 September 1943 and it was in connection with that report at that I remanded that the 187th Division was subordinate to the 69th Corps under command of the defendant Dehner at that time and that the corps was in turn subordinate to the 2nd Panzer Army in command of the defendant Rendulic at that time.

I carefully limited my remarks to the period for the end of August 1943.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be over-ruled. If the defense wishes to make any further showing in respect to this document, and as it may apply to this defendant he may do so as to the case in chief.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors will turn to page 97 in your document book, page 62 in the German. I believe defense counsel opposed the introduction of this document this morning on the ground that it had been previously introduced. During a conference with defense counsel we determined that it had not been introduced.

THE PRESIDENT: Well you kindly give the page again.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 97 of the English, page 62 of the German. Document NOKW 1712. The Prosecution now offers this as Exhibit 550. These are various extracts from the war diary, 342 Infantry Division, for the month of January 1942.

Your Honors will recall that at this time the 342nd Division was subordinate to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, General Bader, and that General Bader was in turn subordinate to the Commander in Chief Southeast; he was at that time the Commander of the 12th Army; at that time the Commander in Chief was defendant Kuntze and his chief of staff the defendant Foertsch. I direct your Honor's attention to the entry in the war diary for 19th of January 1942:

"09.15 hours; Group 698 reports: Rogitaca mopped up. Enemy losses on 17th and 18th: 85 dead; 12 wounded, 230 prisoners, 29 shot to death. Own losses: 1 wounded. Booty: 25 rifles, 50,000 rounds rifle ammunition."

The entry next in the war diary:

"1920 hours: Group 689 reports: Connection with IInd Battalion established. Regiment in the Area Kram-Ziljebovi. Enemy today 24 dead, 15 shot to death, Booty; 39 rifles.

I call your Honors attention to the description: "24 dead, 15 shot to death."

We offer next, if your Honors please, as Prosecution Exhibit 551, a series of photographs which we have received from the Yugoslav National War Crimes Commission, certified by them as having been captured by them and brought to us by the Yugoslavian delegation to the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes. This is a series of six photographs and I suggest that your Honors paginate them 1 through 6 putting the figures on the English page which accompanies the photograph.

I call your Honors attention to the inscription which is found on the back portion of the first photograph. The captured prisoners.....

THE PRESIDENT: What is the exhibit number, please?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Exhibit 551 your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: How do you propose to paginate these?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I would suggest paginating them 1 through 6.

THE PRESIDENT: All of them?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, page 1 on the first English page; then the second picture will be page 2 and so on.

JUDGE CARTER: Why not call them 551-1 etc?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We can do that, call them 551-1; through 6. The first photograph bears the inscription on the back:

"Captured partisan, who does not know what Communism is and who fights on the side of Comrade Tito in spite of this."

I direct your Honors attention to the cap and the red star on the cap which the person in the photograph is wearing—despite the fact that the rest of his garb seems to be civilian clothes.

The next photograph is 551-2, and bears the inscription on the back:

"A captured partisan with Serbian cap and Soviet star, student of technology by profession, orthodox."

And, I call your Honors attention to the uniform which the person on the photograph seems to be wearing, especially to the red star on his cap.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor I would only like to point out that in the first picture which has been presented I could not discover the soviet star, and in this second picture – it is quite obvious that it is a Germany Army coat.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, if the deputy Secretary General will pass the original photographs of the Exhibit to the Tribunal and then to Dr. Laterner?

Dr. Laterner has raised the question about the star on the cap in the first photograph.

Referring to the next photograph, 551-3. The photograph bears the inscription on the back:

"The Cetnik Communist Jovo Suvic from Prnjavora, photograph after he was captured. On his cap and on the butt of his rifle has the Bolshevich Red Star."

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, not even on the original, can I see it, It says here the person on the picture is a Cetnik after capture. This is a prisoner with ammunition and arms.

THE PRESIDENT: You are now referring, Dr. Laternser, to 551-3. The comments made by counsel will be considered in connection with the conception of this exhibit. The objection such as made will be over-ruled.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning to the next photograph, 551-4, it bears the inscription on the back: "Partisan Commissar, Serb, captured on Croatian Territory."

I again call your Honors' attention to the insignia on the cap.

Turning next to Photograph 551-5, the photograph bears the following inscription on the back:

"One of the captured. Serbian partisans with Serbian Army cap and red star."

I simply want to call Your Honors' attention to the star on the cap.

The next photograph, 551-6, bears on the back the inscription "Partisans". May I call Your Honors' attention to the uniforms which the men were wearing and to the red stars on their caps.

The final photograph is 551-7; it is of a German poster which according to the chairman of the Legal Section of the State Commission of the Yugoslav National Commission for Investigation of War Crimes was found in the collection of Josef Getz, a former member of the German Wehrmacht. It was posted on January 6, 1941, by the German occupation authorities in Serbia. Your Honors will note it is printed in both the German and Serbian-Croatian languages. The text reads as follows:

"The irresponsible acts of the bandits cause the greatest troubles to the Serbian people. Many innocent people have to suffer for it.

"Bandit warfare is contrary to international law and compels the German Wehrmacht to use the most severe measures. The Wehrmacht has only the good intention of preventing the downfall of Serbia.

"The German Wehrmacht is not responsible for the misery being caused to Serbia. The following measures will be carried out and are hereby announced publicly:

"If a German soldier is killed in an attack, 100 Serbs will be shot. Any family providing bandits with shelter or food will be shot, the house burned down, the property confiscated by the Wehrmacht.

"For each demolition attempted or carried out 50 Serbs will be shot. If German soldiers are fired on from a village, the village will be burned down, the male population arrested, and every other man shot. The property will be confiscated by the German Wehrmacht.

"Anyone who fails to give information about bandits, or gives false or delayed information, will pay forfeit with his life and his family will be imprisoned.

"Whoever favors or aids communists in any way pays forfeit with his life."

The poster is dated 6 October 1941, signed "The Commander of Post Headquarters".

Your Honors will recall on the date October 6, 1941, General Boehme was Commanding General in Serbia, subordinate to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast and Commander-in-Chief Twelfth Army, the defendant List, whose Chief of Staff was the defendant Foertsch.

The next document, Your Honors, is a series of documents which we have again received from the Yugoslav National Commission for War Crimes. They are documents which were captured in Yugoslavia or else documents which were a part of the files of the Yugoslavian partisan movement during the German occupation. The first is headed "Independent State of Croatia". Headquarters, Field Gendarmerie Regiment, dated Banja Luka, 1 September 1941, sent to the Main Security Department of the Independent State of Croatia.

THE PRESIDENT: What exhibit is this?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I beg pardon, it is offered as Exhibit 552.

THE PRESIDENT: It is Yugoslav J-116?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That is correct, Your Honor. And I suggest we paginate the first document pages 1 and 2 in both the English and German and call it 552/1.

This is dated Banja Luka, 1 September 1941:

"The head of the Gen. Station Skender Vakuff in his written report dated 20 August 1941 notified as follows:

"The aggressors had five-cornered red stars on their sleeves, caps, and hats."

I direct Your Honors' attention to the date of the document, 1 September 1941.

The next document should be marked pages 3, 4, and 5 in the English and German document books, and should be marked Exhibit 552/2. This is a bulletin of the Supreme Command of the Yugoslav People Partisan Units of Liberation. It is dated October 1, 1941:

"Official Order.

"It is requested that all headquarters and commandants of partisan Yugoslav units have immediate measures in order to provide all partisans, as far as it is possible, with uniform clothes and appropriate insignia on the caps:

"1. Throughout Yugoslavia partisans have to wear on the caps the anti-fascist insignia: red five-cornered star.

"2. In Serbia, apart from the red star, partisans have to put a Serbian tricolored band, 3 cm long and 1½ cm wide. The band is to be put below the star, in horizontal position.

"3. In Bosnia and Herzegovine, apart from the red star, partisans have to wear on their caps above the red star a Croatian tricolored band in the form of a triangle.

"4. In Croatian areas, where the population is pure Croatian, partisans have to wear apart from red star, Croatian band tricolor below the star. In the areas where Serbian and Croatian population is mixed, partisans have to wear, apart from the star, Serbian and Croatian band tricolor of the same kind as in Bosnia.

"5. In Slovenia, apart from the red star, partisans have to wear Slovenian band tricolor below the star.

"6. In Montenegro, apart from the red star, partisans have to wear Montenegro tricolor below the star.

"II. All partisan headquarters and commandants have to take immediate steps in order to provide their units with national banners. In the middle of the colors is a five-cornered red star.

"The headquarters of the Supreme Command of the People Partisan Units of Liberation has following banner: red, with Yugoslav tricolor and five-cornered star in the right upper corner.

"III. Salute for all fighters of the National Movement of Liberation is a tight fist put at the temple."

Signed "For the Supreme Command of the Yugoslav People Partisan Units of Liberation, Tito."

Then follows the certification by the head of the Legal Department of the State Commission that this is a true and correct excerpt of the original bulletin issued by the Supreme Command of the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation.

THE PRESIDENT: Before you proceed any further, Mr. Fenstermacher, may I inquire as to whether or not you are in a position to tell us when the prosecution will complete its case?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I believe, Your Honor, we will be able to finish sometime tomorrow afternoon. There are only two or three more documents to be inserted and Document Book 25, which I think we can put in tomorrow afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: That being true, I suggest the Tribunal will discontinue the reading of any further documents at this time. We have some matters which I believe should be called to the attention of counsel for the prosecution and the defense. There was submitted to the Tribunal yesterday a memorandum presented by the prosecution in connection with Exhibit 338-A. Heretofore, the Tribunal refused to admit this document. The memorandum as presented gives certain reasons why it should be admitted and we have given consideration to this document as submitted, rather the memorandum. Inasmuch as this is a captured document and applies somewhat to the questions involved, it will be admitted subject to the statement that the Tribunal will give it such consideration as it deems it merits when it shall give full and final consideration to the full record. That completes the matter of the Exhibit 338-A.

Inasmuch as we are coming down near the close of the prosecution's case, I have certain things which I believe should be commented upon. In order that there may be no question as to where the documents are and what may have happened to them, will the Deputy Secretary General advise me in the morning, or the Tribunal, as to whether or not all documents have been returned to your office that may have been offered in evidence?

I should also like to be advised by the prosecution and the defense counsel as to whether or not there has been a ruling made by the Tribunal on all applications that have been submitted to it. Now, I know there are one or two in my office which are in the process of being handled and disposed of, but in order that nothing will be overlooked I would like to have counsel both for the defense and the prosecution submit a list of any applications that have not been ruled on by the Tribunal.

The third matter I think perhaps should be brought to the attention particularly of the defense counsel is that we have received, as a result of conversations and requests, what might be termed a bibliography or a list of books, articles, and authorities which bear upon the case that is now being tried. There are no quotations, just a list of the books and a list of articles and authorities. The Tribunal is of the opinion that this fact should be called to the attention of the defense counsel and perhaps they may be in a position also to furnish us a list of books or articles, we hope in English, that we may read during the next month or so, and prepare so that we may make a proper decision in connection with this case.

I am calling this to your attention so that you may submit to us, if you care to, not quotations from these articles, but the list of the articles themselves. At a later time if you wish to submit a brief quoting from these articles we will be happy to receive that. If you can submit such a list or care to do so -- that refers to any English documents or translations from German documents or any other publications that may have been translated into or published in English -- we will appreciate it.

The Tribunal will adjourn until tomorrow morning at 9:30.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until 0930 hours, 28 August 1947.)

THE MARSHALL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the court.

THE PRESIDENT: The Marshall will ascertain if all defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE MARSHALL: May it please Your Honor all defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge George J. Burke will preside at this days session.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I just want to submit a request from the defense counsel as follows: Before the Tribunal rules on the duration of the adjournment I request that the defense be heard on this point once more.

JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal will be glad to entertain the views of defense counsel presented briefly.

DR. LATERNSEER: (For defendant List.) Your Honor, I shall try to be as brief as possible. In the preparation for the defense it is first of all of the greatest importance to know whether the defense counsel will be in a position to send two delegates to Washington, or whether the material will be brought to Nurnberg by the Prosecution. If it should be possible to send these delegates to Washington, then a normal time should be taken as a basis which is necessary for the trip itself, and for carrying out of the task in Washington. Then the result of the investigation of the files would have to be made use of in order to be put down in the form of document books.

This will take a considerable period of time, and I believe that the defense can only then start to work once it has its own document books in its hands, in order to determine the course its defense will take.

Your Honor, I want to point out the following points, for even if, which we do not hope, we should not be able to carry out this trip, the defense cannot start before the expiration of four weeks. As a sample reason for this, I have made inquiries from colleagues who are acting as defense counsel in a common trial, and I was told that from the time the document book in German is submitted it takes three weeks until the defense counsel has come into the possession of the necessary copies, and into possession of the necessary copies, and into possession of the document book translated into English. That is to say, from the date the document book has been submitted at the competent quarters it takes until the carrying out of the technical processes, the multigraphing and translations, at least three weeks.

I have already drawn the Tribunal's attention to the fact that we, as regards the procuring of evidence, are experiencing the greatest difficulties. The time mail takes and the return of an affidavit which we have requested, all takes considerable time. For instance, when making inquiries in Austria where some of the witnesses live, only a very few answers were returned. We were told, for instance, that a questionnaire which we had enclosed had not arrived, this was apparently taken out by the censorship or some other authorities.

JUDGE BURKE: Will you repeat your observation about the abstraction of things from your communication?

MR. LATERNSEER: I said that letters which we had, for instance, sent to Austria and which had contained questionnaires and instructions how to make affidavits, the enclosures were taken out of the envelopes. Whether they were taken out by the censorship or some other postal authorities, I don't know. We have gotten word that the letters arrived, but not the questionnaires.

After all, the prosecution only started its case on July 15, and only five to six weeks have elapsed up until now, and the time is not sufficient for us to get all our evidence.

I should further like to ask you to take into account, that during the whole duration of this trial the climatic conditions were very unfavorable for mental activities. All those concerned in this trial know how tiring these sessions have been. The defense counsel only had time in the evening between 1800 and 2000 hours during which they could talk to their clients, not only the defense but also the defendants, who are also in most cases of an advanced age, were so tired that the time at their disposal could only be used for discussion of current matters which had just happened in the trial. A preparation of the defense was not possible in this time in the measure required.

It would be interesting for the Court to find out under what conditions we have to work. The rooms in which our discussions take place are as well equipped as they could be equipped under the conditions obtaining here. But we are certainly confined, and the room was exceedingly hot during that time we discussed these matters, so it was very difficult to carry them out at all.

Another point which I want to make here, the Prosecution has arranged its evidence in a chronological order, I certainly don't want to criticize this arrangements but I am of the view that a purely chronological order is not something which eases the work of the defense. May I just quote one point, if for instance the defense wants to refute a statement of the prosecution which stated that the bands appeared in uniforms, the defense must look for the material offered in this context, not in one document book but may have to go through all the 25 document books in order to extract what may be of use to itself. The way the subject matter of this trial was ordered, this chronological arrangement, has made things exceedingly difficult for the defense.

I can only explain to the Tribunal that a briefer adjournment than four weeks would provide the greatest difficulties for the defense in this connection.

I ask the High Tribunal to take into account that the defense itself only began its case after the prosecution had finished its preparations, and as far as I know the prosecution had at least one year at its disposal to make its preparations. For this reason the defense cannot be expected to cope with 25 document books in a period of time of about two weeks. I believe that according to the principles of justice it is justified that the defense obtain at least four weeks for the preparation of its case.

DR. RAUSCHENBACH: (for the defendant Foertsch) Your Honor, may I permit myself to add one point to what my colleague, Dr. Laternser, has said. I am referring to the translation of the document books. As defense counsel in Case IV against Pohl and others, I have observed how unfavorable it may be and at least how difficult it is if the defendants sitting in the first benches of the dock at the beginning of the evidence are not in a possession of the document book, that is, their document books have not been translated. If the documents are given later, that is after the defendant has been for sometime on the witness stand, then the case is so severed that it is very difficult to present it to the court in some kind of completeness, and since the material cannot be submitted in a unified form it is to be feared the defense cannot present its case in a successful manner. For this reason, too, the adjournment should be extended until such time as those defendants who appear on the witness stand at the beginning, are in possession of most of the translated documents, so that they can be used when these defendants are testifying. This does not exclude that further document books or additions are submitted at a later date.

DR. MENZEL: (For defendant Kuntze) Your Honors, I want to add to the reasons which my colleagues have presented here, one point which often appears, and which is additional to the previous reasons. I have, for instance, found a witness who was a Yugoslav National, and for that reason knew well the conditions in the Balkans. I have written to him and this witness answered, and a number of points in evidence were submitted by him. When I wrote to him the second time in regard to an affidavit he refused all statements, and the reason he gave was that he was afraid of reprisals. He writes to me that he is still a Yugoslav National, that his dependents are still living in Yugoslavia, and he adds "how can he under such circumstances state or testify without hindrance, in view of what might happen to my family." He writes further "who can give me a guarantee today that my statements do not bring distress to my family and my acquaintances and friends." I could submit further points from this letter which are of a much grosser nature, but I want consciously to avoid this. You will surely see from this, the psychological difficulties with which the witnesses have to contend, and I don't have to tell you how long it takes to overcome these obstacles and to dispel the doubts of these witnesses, and to convince them they will not be prosecuted because they tell the truth before this Tribunal.

DR. FRITSCH: (for the defendant Rendulic) I only want to mention one quite brief point. My colleagues have spoken about the difficulties of procuring witnesses. But there are other difficulties as well which should be possible to overcome quite easily. First of all, I must state that the prosecution has certainly endeavored to help us by making material available to us as far as it seemed expedient to the prosecution. I applied for, and the Tribunal has granted it to me, that the bandit regulations of 1942 should be handed out to us. These bandit regulations are necessary for us. These bandit regulations have been submitted by the prosecution to one or another of the defendants, but now they can't get hold of them. And it is necessary for me now to take up a lot of writing work, and even to travel in order to obtain these regulations.

In order to submit them to the Tribunal. Apart from these regulations other material also has to be submitted, and I should like to ask the Court to consider that a journey, only for instance to Hanover, that is a distance which took two days formerly requires at least a week under today's conditions. Here again there are considerable difficulties present, which in the six weeks which have been at our disposal from the date when we heard of the prosecution's charges, could not be overcome. We need for these things the time limit which we have requested.

JUDGE BURKE: Are there other remarks from defense counsel on the subject?

(No response.)

Mr. Denney, the court would be pleased to have your views with the same limitation of brevity which I suggested to the defense counsel.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, I don't think we should try to tell the Court how long defense counsel should take. I should like, however, with reference to Dr. Fritsch's remark to make this comment, he requested the regulations of which he spoke. We did not oppose the request. We as yet have been unable to find them. We are trying to find them. I saw Dr. Fritsch in the hall last night, and I suggested that he go to the document room -- or perhaps it was his assistant, Dr. Jagwitz, -- I suggested he go to the document room with the blank, that is the blank form filled in which indicated we had approved the request, and he asked me where the document room was. This in the sixth week of the trial, the indictment having been served in early May. Now we are doing everything we can to get the book for him. I have never seen it myself. I don't think it is relevant. But we have not objected. We have said he can have it. I certainly think when he gets up and makes a statement with reference to application they make, he should state all the facts to the Tribunal, and not indicate by under-statement that we are complying insofar as we find it expedient, because that is certainly not our attitude and we are not trying in any way to forestall them or impede them.

JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal will make an announcement on the matter after the noon recess.

You may proceed, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor. If your Honors, please, I should like to state that I have been very remiss with reference to the Greek documents. It suddenly occurs to me they have no page numbers in the document book. Of course, the documents are all separate by number, and they are all paginated within themselves. However, I shall endeavor to work out some arrangement whereby we can run them serratim at the close of the document book, where they were offered, which I believe is 21, and as soon as I work something out if we are still here, I will make a statement on the record, and if not I will send a memo to all Your Honors' secretaries so that they can be advised, and I will personally explain the pagination problem to them, and also the Secretary General.

JUDGE BURKE: Very well, Mr. Denney. You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: I am sorry that has happened. If your Honors will recall that at the time the first part of the Yugoslav report, which was Exhibit 100, was put in evidence, there were certain portions which I agreed with Dr. Laternser in Yugoslav to have translated to German, which we were not using. People speaking Yugoslav, German and English are somewhat few and far between locally, and we have now been able to get copies of them, and for the convenience of defense counsel I will give them two copies of each of the additional German portions, and will hand one copy to the Secretary General. This is the balance, Dr. Laternser which I am giving you now. I believe it will be apparent from the material as to what it covers. And Dr. Laternser agreed, on behalf of the defense counsel, that we did not have to submit the long list of names that were in the reports. There were several pages of names and he said that it would be all right to omit them.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is that your understanding, Dr. Laternser? Dr. Laternser indicates that it is his judgment as well.

MR. DENNEY: And this is for the Secretary General. This is the balance of the exhibit. Now, with reference to the exhibit which was appended at the end of Document Book 21, I now have a final page for each of Your Honors' document books, which should be put in instead of the last page which is presently there. I believe the exhibit number is 498-A, and I'm sorry I don't have the page number. The only thing is to list these brief documents here which I neglected to do.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: 498-A, Mr. Denney?

MR. DENNEY: Yes, Your Honor. That's that sheet that we always put in at the close of the document book. That's the one from Document Book 21, and this page should be substituted. I have copies here for the translators and interpreters and for the Secretary General, and the defense counsel copies will be right up. I just sent for those. This one which goes at the close of Document Book 22 should be marked "510-A for Identification" and called Page 27. And then on the next document book, this should be marked 525-A and inserted at the close of Document Book 23, and there again I have neglected to paginate the certificate of General Taylor's which is Exhibit No. 525; and I will do that and then advise the Court as to the page numbers which this should get. Your Honors will notice one thing--that is at the close of Document Book 22 there is an Exhibit 510, which was the Norwegian film, and at the beginning of Document Book 23 there is another Exhibit 510, which is Norway 13B. Well, 13B is the sub-title of Exhibit No. 510. That is the reason that it is done that way. The other copies for defense counsel of the insert in Document Book 21 have not been received; however, rather than delay the Court I will withdraw, and I shall be sure that they get the balance of these copies this morning. It should be a matter of moments until they get here. Mr. Fenstermacher will continue with the last document book.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Fenstermacher.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Thank you, Your Honor. Yesterday, prior to the adjournment, we were discussing some Yugoslavian documents which had been given the Exhibit No. 552, and we had completed, I believe, the first two of those portions of Exhibit 552,--one and two. Now, if Your Honors will turn please to Page 6 of Exhibit 552--this will be Exhibit No. 552/3. Do Your Honors have it?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: NOKW-1660?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, Your Honor, this is a Yugoslavian document. J-116 is on the cover page of the document. This is a report from Police Headquarters Sarajevo, dated Sarajevo 20 October 1941. Tchetniks in Srednje wear uniforms like our soldiers. The only difference is that they wear stars on headgears." And the report is signed "Police Chief." Certification on the document is to the effect that "this is a true and correct excerpt of the original document, captured by the Yugoslavian Army of Liberation in files of the Main Security Department of the Independent State of Croatia." We call Your Honors' attention to the date of the document, 20 October 1941. Turning next then to Page 8 of this exhibit, document labelled Y-114. It can be identified more readily as Exhibit No. 552/4. This is an order from the Headquarters of the Kalinovic Detachment of the People Partisan Army of Liberation, dated 28 October 1941, Treskavica, sent to the Headquarters of the Precansky Battalion.

In compliance with the general order of the High Command of the Partisan Detachment of Bosnia and Herzegovine, all partisan units have immediately to give allegiance.

Accordingly, your Hqs. has to do so without delay. Enclosed are several copies of allegiance text. Before giving allegiance partisans should be instructed about its contents and meaning. Commanding officer and political commissar, or at least one of them, have to be present at the ceremony.

New partisans joining detachment after given allegiance have to be immediately instructed about the contents of allegiance obligations and meaning of it, and have to give allegiance also.

Insignia and Salute. In Serbian areas of Bosnia and Herzegovina our banner is Serbian and in Croatian areas - Croatian, with the five-cornered star in the middle. Five-cornered star with Serbian respectively Croatian, band tri-color has to be worn on headgear. Salute - tight fist as follows:

Military: fist at temple Civilian:

fist slightly above shoulder (Circular of the High Command of the Partisan Detachment of Bosnka and Herzegovina, dated 19 Oct.

1941.)

Banners will be supplied as soon as we receive them. If impossible to provide partisans with insignia -- send request to our Hqs.

Regards Death to fascism - Liberty to the people.

Pol. Commissar Commandant Scepan Rade The certificate of the Head of the Legal Department of the State commission is to the effect that "this is a true and correct excerpt of an original document issued by the Headquarters of the Kalinovic Detachment of the Peoples Partisan Army of Liberation."

And again I call Your Honors' attention to the reference in the document to insignia and to the date of the document, 28 October 1941.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, may I look at the original?

(Dr. Laternser examining document) Thank you very much.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors, will turn now to page 10 of this particular document, that page marked J 129, it should be marked as Exhibit 552/5. This document is addressed to the Bailiff of the village of Totchionik:

"In order to activate the Peoples Liberation Committee there will be a meeting tomorrow in the village of Totchionik. Your task is to gather all farmers near some of the buildings. Our comrades will come and activate a Peoples Liberation Committee. The farmers have to be on the spot at 12 o'clock."

It is dated, "Battlefield 1 April 1942" and is signed "Commander R. Rovatchevitch."

The certificate is to the effect that "this is a true and correct copy of the original document issued by the Hqs of the 1 Battalion the II Proletarian Shock Brigade."

I call your Honors attention to the date of the document 1 April 1942.

Turning to the next page, page 11, Document Y 117, it should be marked Exhibit 552/6. This is General Order No. 8, issued by the Commandant of Croatian Partisan People Detachments of Liberation on the 20 May 1942:

"I In compliance with the general order of the Supreme Hqs. of the Yugoslav Partisan People and Volunteer Army of Liberation, commanders have to wear the following insignia:

Section Leader: One red five-cornered star on the left sleeve above elbow.

Platoon Leader: Two red five-cornered star on the left sleeve above elbow.

Company Commander: One red five-cornered star and one stripe below it.

(6 cm. long and 1½ cm. width.)

Battalion Commander: One red five-cornered star and two stripes below it. (6 cm. long and 1½ width.)

Detachment Commander: One red five-cornered star and three stripes below it. (6 cm. long and 1½ width) Commander of Group of Detachments:

and brigade commander as well as members of Highest Hqa, have to wear on left sleeve above elbow a stripe like Roman V turned down. Between points of V is a red five-cornered star.

Political Commissars: wear the same, above-mentioned insignias, and in addition, sickle and hammer on the red star.

This Hqs will prescribe special insignia for deputy commanders, deputy political commissars and chiefs of staff of small detachments.

II Group's and Detachment's Commanders will issue necessary orders to all subordinated units to provide their men as soon as possible with aforementioned insignia wearing of which is obligatory."

"This order has to be made public in front of formation.

Death to fascism -- Liberty to the People (Signed): Commander Ivo Vladitch.

Political Commissar Vlado Katitch."

The certificate states that, "this is a true and correct copy of the original document issued by this Higher Hqs of the Croatian Partisan People Detachments of Liberation."

I call your Honors attention to the date of this document, 20 May 1942.

Turning next to page 13, Document J/127, it should be marked Exhibit 552/7. This is an order from, the Headquarters of the Third Zone of Operations of the People Partisan Detachments:

"2 December 1942 To the:

Hqs of the 1 Slavonian Shock Brigade of the N.O.P. Hqs of the I and II Detachments of the III Zone of Operation.

Our Circular No. 767 of 28 November 1942, and circular entitled "To all Political Commissars" dated 19 November 1942, - subject of wearing of national insignia - tri-colored stripes on partisans caps, - is amended as follows:

The tri-colored stripe is to be worn in form of letter V turned down, according to instruction given in circular, and not in the way as it was explained in our letter of the same No. that it is to be worn below the five-cornered star.

It is emphasized again that wearing of this tripe is not obligatory. It is requested to put the aforementioned amendment into practice. Death to Fascism - Liberty to the People."

Turning next to page 15, document labelled Y/128, this should be marked Exhibit 552/8, and introducing this deposition of a witness taken in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, the prosecution is mindful of the fact that should there be an application by the defense, the witness should be produced for cross examination purposes.

"Deposition of witness "Comrade Vlade Zetchevitch, Minister of Public Buildings of the F.N.R.Y. on subject of collecting evidence against former German Genarals and Commanders in the South Eastern Territories Field Marshals List, von Weichs and others, now on trial in Nuremburg.

Deposition made on the 5 June 1947.

Mr. Milan Markovitch, representative of the Head of Legal Department of the Yugoslav State Commission is present at the interrogation.

Questioned with respect to the subject of this interrogation -- i.e. treatment of German PWs captured during the war by partisan detachments and units of Yugoslav National Army of Liberation - witness made the following deposition:

"I remember that in battles in the Podzinsky area, conducted for the liberation of the cities of Loznica, Matchva, Etolica (miners settlement 4 miles from Krupanj), Krupnja and other localities, our detachments have captured a great number of German soldiers.

This happened in September or October of 1941. Even at that time our detachments were formed according to rules which applied to a regular army. The organization was carried out according to the regulations of the Hague Convention and units had commanders appointed, soldiers wore prescribed insignia and bore arms quite openly. The regulations of the Hague Convention were applied with respect to PWs and our men treated German PWs strictly according to the rules of International Law and Conventions concerning treatment of PWs. In spite of the fact that the German Commanders and German Army did not adhere to the Hague Convention and the regulations of International Law with respect to land warfare, and were killing innocent population, bombing open cities, murdering our PWs -- we have always treated German PWs in a human way, strictly according to the Hague Convention. The German PWs were always sent to the rear zone and collected in Uzice. A number of German PWs was kept that time in a temporary camp in the apartment building of the monastery of Petkovitza in Jadar County -- and was about to be transported further to the rear zone. The German fliers, not caring for the Hague Convention, bombed this monastery and killed on this occasion most of the PWs (about 60 German PWs and some of our military guards.)

I remember also, that there was a number of German PWs in a camp in Krupanj. German PWs, knowing well that their fliers were to bomb open cities and PW camps, put on the meadow of the camp, a warning appeal to their fliers written in large white letters: "Do not fire. We are German PWs."

At the end of 1941, when the Yugoslav territory liberated this year, had to be evacuated by our Army, -- the partisan detachments could not evacuate German PWs from Uzice. Appropriate measures were taken and these PWs were left in a school building at Zlatibora near Uzice. Later they were liberated by the German units.

With regard to the general treatment applied to German PWs, I have to say that it was very humane -- for instance they were getting the same food as partisans.

I do not know whether there were in 1941 some cases of exchange of German PWs for our prisoners, but this does not mean that such a practice was not applied at some later date. There are even some documents testifying that such procedure was applied during the later period of the National fight for Liberation.

I have nothing more to tell on the subject."

Read, checked and approved.

Signed Vlada Zetchevitch.

Certified: Head of the Legal Department Legal Adviser Urosh Bjelitch M.D. Markovitch."

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I move to have this witness called for cross examination.

DR. FENSTERMACHER: I think, if your Honors please, there was a ruling from the Tribunal yesterday, that such an application had to be in writing, and could not be made orally on the record.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I made this motion right now, and I shall be glad to do it in writing also.

PRESIDING JUSTICE BURKE: I think that would be the desirable thing for the record.

DR. FENSTERMACHER: That, if your Honors, please, completes Exhibit 552.

PRESIDENT WENNERSTRUM: Mr. Fenstermacher, in what book is this to be attached?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, I think it can just be kept separate, after Book 24.

The next document, which is NOKW-1639, consists of several parts, all of which have been sent to us by the Yugoslav National Commission for the Investigation of War Crimes. It is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 553 and should be paginated 1 and following. The first portion of the document is an interrogation consisting of five pages and should be marked 125, and also marked Exhibit 553/1.

We are offering this interrogation, which is in the German language. We are mindful of the fact that, should defense counsel request, we will have to produce the witness for cross examination.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I object to the introduction of this document. This is not an affidavit or testimony. Instead it is a responsive interrogation, I assume, of a defendant. Therefore this is not evidence of a witness. It cannot be used.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, I do not share Dr. Laternser's assumption that this is an interrogation of a defendant. This is simply an interrogation of a German soldier, if Your Honors please; it is in the proper form, certified, and has the stamp of the Yugoslav National War Crimes Commission.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I believe that this whole document has several faults. For instance, the interrogation could not have been carried out in German for in this interrogation there is one sentence which really does not make sense.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You are referring now to an error in translation, Dr. Laternser?

DR. LATERNSEER: In case that this document should be admitted, in that case I shall then point out these errors when the prosecution reaches these pages in the document. In any case, Your Honor, I object against the introduction of this document because it is not a statement of a witness.

It can be seen from the document itself that it is the interrogation of a defendant, of an accused person, for it states "from protective custody", that such and such a person was presented, and then the name follows.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: For the reasons given by the Presiding Judge at yesterday's session, the document will be received with the definite limitations indicated by his views on the subject at that time. You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER:

"Interrogation.

"Made on 12 March 1947 on behalf of the city of Belgrade in a court martial procedure by members of the National Commission for the Investigation of Crimes committed by the occupation forces and their accomplices, Belgrade.

"Present:

"Sambaher Vladislav, Referent of the National Commission as interpreter.

"Mihailovic Lepasava, stenographer and interpreter.

"Josef Selmayr, former German Army colonel and Chief (IA) of the Operations Branch of Army Group F was brought in from the detention prison. He answered the questions put to him as follows:

"My name is Josef Selmayr. I was born on 7 July 1905 in Straubing/ Danube (Southern Bavaria). I am married and have three children. My family residence is in Wiesbaden, Idsteinerstrasse 16. My religion is Catholic. I was a colonel in the German Army.

"I came to Yugoslavia from the Russian Theater of Operations. In August 1943, I reported to General Alezander Loehr in Saloniki. He informed me of the impending organization of Army Group F which was to include territorially the Southeast Area of that period. According to plan, Field Marshal Rommel originally was to become Commander-in-Chief Southeast. However, it was decided later on that Field Marshal Freiherr Maximilian von Weichs was to take over High Command Southeast. Thus, Army Group F was organized 26 August 1943. It was composed of the following elements:

"1) Army Group E, which included the troops in area Greece, under the command of General Alexander Loehr.

"2) The Second Panzer Army which until June (?) 1944 was commanded by General Lothar Rendulic. He was relieved by General Boehme at the beginning of June 1944 who in turn was relieved by General Maximilian de Angelis in the second half of the month of July 1944. This Panzer Army included the following corps: the V SS Mountain Corps, XV Mountain Corps, XXI Mountain Corps, and the LXIX Corps. The territorial authority of the Second Panzer Army extended to Albania, Montenegro, and NDH (including the territories coming under its authority after the surrender of Italy). Area Serbia did not come within the competency of the Second Panzer Army except as far as the provisioning of the units of the Army and the securing of these supplies from the railroad unloading points to the Army limits was concerned.

"3) The command authority over those troops which were stationed in Serbia, which was headed by Commander Serbia. Subordinated to him were: the Bulgarian Occupation Corps, the Russian Defense Corps, and the indigenous armed units. Commander Serbia was subordinated to Army Group F only tactically. This organization of Commander-in-Chief Southeast was based on the situation at that time, i.e., light defense of the expected landing of the Anglo Americans on the Balkan and the withdrawal of Italy from the war which was being counted on. The duty of Army Group F was: defense of the Adriatic and Aegean coast in the event of an enemy landing and the protection of signal communications within this area, in connection with the fight against the People's Liberation Army(NOVJ) and against other insurgent groups in the Balkans.

"The Chief of Staff of Army Group F up to 25 April 1944 was General Foertsch. He was succeeded by General Winter. I was Chief of the Operation Branch of the Staff (Ia). Colonel Zorn was Oberquartiermeister (Qu). The subordinate command authorities had the same staff organization as that of Army Group F, however, on a smaller scale.

"During the period of my activity in Yugoslavia, three sizable operations against the Yugoslavian People's Liberation Army took place. The first of these operations was executed in fall 1943 with the cover name 'Kugelblitz'. Since the majority of the enemy was not annihilated in this operation, an additional operation was undertaken toward the end of May 1944 with the cover name 'Roesselsprung'. Its mission was to destroy the headquarters of the People's Liberation Army (NOVJ). The third operation took place in July/August 1944 from the Ibar Valley under the cover name 'Ruebezahl'. These three operations were executed pursuant to the suggestion and order of Army Group F, naturally in agreement with the OKW because the OKW had to approve all plans for the execution of large scale operations.

During the last years, it was a regulation in the German Army that the OKW had to approve any operation of this kind before its execution, notwithstanding the adverse effect of this procedure if the situation required rapid action. However, if it was a question of a operation, the execution of which required troops not over one division strong, the OKW generally did not have to be notified in advance, but afterwards via Commander-in-Chief Southeast.

"For operations, the execution of which required troops up to one regiment strong, the approval of Army Group F generally was not needed in advance. Of course, in both cases High Command Southeast had to be informed subsequently. The plan for the 'Roesselsprung' Operation was drafted by the staff of the Second Panzer Army. General Lothar Rendulic submitted this plan to Field Marshal von Weichs who on his part transmitted the plan to OKW. After approval by the OKW von Weichs issued the order for the start of the operation. General Lothar Rendulic was responsible for its execution. Von Weichs was 100 percent informed regarding the course of this and of the other two operations in as far as it was of an operational significance, since reports from the field arrived every 24 hours. The command of Operation 'Kugelblitz' was transferred by General Rendulic to the Commanding Officer of the V SS Mountain Corps, General Arthur Phleps."

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, this sentence which has just been read, and which reads, "...regarding the course of the action..., since reports from the field came in every 24 hours" -- this is a sentence which in German does not make sense.

I can definitely assume that the witness Selmayr had never uttered this sentence as it reads here. I assert that this testimony is wrong.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is your contention the testimony is wrong because of your conclusion or because of an error in translation?

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I am not asserting that the witness has made a wrong testimony. That would be an objection against the probative value which I cannot make at this point. I am merely saying that the interrogation -- the witness cannot have said that. That is, that the record must have been taken down mistakenly.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is it a matter, Dr. Laternser, that you would care to have submitted to a competent interpreter?

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, may I have a look at the original for a moment?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Surely.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I can just see here that the signature Selmayr is written under this interrogation. Therefore he has only signed it in the way as it is in this document here.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Will you repeat that, please.

INTERPRETER: I just notice here that Selmayr's signature is under this interrogation. Therefore he has signed the document as we see it here.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I cannot explain this at all, and will have to hear about it when he is here for cross examination.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Continuing with the fifth line at the bottom of page 3:

"Pursuant to a basic Hitler Order of the year 1941, the partisans fighting behind the German lines were not to be called this 'honorable name'. They were to be designated as bands and to be treated as such. This was valid for all theaters of operation and until the end of the war, "De jure, this also applied to the People's Liberation Army since for political reasons Hitler refused to recognize it as a belligerent power.

"De facto, there was no doubt within the Staff of Army Group E from the first day on of my activity in the Southeast that the People's Liberation Army, as a whole, now fulfilled all the requirements of international law. Hence, all orders of the Commander-in-Chief Southeast provided for the same methods of warfare as in any other theater of operation against regular enemy forces. I know that the problem of reprisal measures against the civilian population was discussed during the conferences participated in by Field Marshal von Weichs, Hermann Neubacher, and Commander Serbia Felber. Accordingly, as also on the basis of the orders issued by the troop commanders, as, for instance, by General Fritz Neidhold, General Josef Brauner, and others, I believe that these reprisal measures in the field were carried out by the troops. The issuance of such orders by the individual commanders and the carrying out of such orders in fact, as far as they surpassed collective punishment as permissible and customary in international law, is contrary to the principles of humanity. However, it is a fact that this corresponded to the generally known ruthlessness of Hitler who recognized in that sort of commander, people of his own way of thinking, people who were always willing to transform his intentions into fact. The above mentioned orders were not passed on via me because, according to my office, I carried on work of an operational character exclusively. As far as they were handled at all in the staff of High Command of Army Group F, they pertained by their nature to the duties of the Quartiermeister. I personally, even if I had received such an order, would never have carried it out or transmitted it.

"Further, I am aware that there was talk of cessation of reprisal measures against the civilian population during the above mentioned conferences. However, its result was only a certain mitigation of these reprisal measures as, for instance, that 50 civilians were permitted to be shot for one German soldier instead of 100 as before.

"I was Chief of the Operation Branch of the Staff of Army Group F until March 1944.

"The above has been read to me and I state that all of it corresponds to my statement which I made voluntarily and without compulsion.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Mr. Fenstermacher, at this time the Court will stand in recess until 11:05.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Fenstermacher.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, prior to the recess, we were looking at Exhibit 553 and we had completed the first part of that 553/1. If your Honors will now turn to page 6, Document NOKW-1639, and mark this 553/2, this and the next part of the Exhibit reflect the relationship between the German troops and the Croatian Wehrmacht in the Southeast area. This first document is an order from the Headquarters of the 6th Infantry Regiment, dated Brcko, 5 February 1943;

"To Headquarters, I, II, III, IV, V. Battalion of the 6th Infantry Regiment and of the 13, 14, 15, 25 and 27 Company of the 6th Infantry Regiment."

These are Croatian units.

The Subject is:

"Proclamation of General Fortner to the Croatian Officers in the Operations Area of the 718th German Infantry Division.

The Headquarters of the 3rd Infantry Division under No. 693/Secret of 31 January 1943 has transmitted the following:

The Headquarters of the IIInd Home Guard Corps under No. 1075/ Secret of 28 January 1943 has transmitted the following:

Enclosed, please find the Proclamation of General Fortner to the Croatian Officers in the Operations Area of the 718th German Infantry Division.

Please transmit this proclamation to all subordinate units so that there is no Croatian Officer who has not read this proclamation. The above is transmitted in order that the previously mentioned order will be carried out exactly in all details.

Signed; Executive Officer, 1st Lieutenant Radej" Then turning to the next page is the enclosure, which was forwarded to the Croatian subordinate units.

This is the order, the proclamation of General Fortner, dated 718 Infantry Division, Headquarters, 21 January 1943.

"Commanding Officer Headquarters, 21 January 1943 To all Croatian Officers of my Area of Command Gentlemen:

With this letter, I am addressing you directly because I feel that many of you are not conscious of the great significance of our common struggle and of the great danger in which your homeland finds itself.

What is at stake?

Briefly, the existence or non-existence of Croatia, the happiness or misery of your Nation, of your families, you cities and villages. Will Croatia remain an independent, free and proud state or will it decline to a Communist Bolshevich province, administered by Jews and dominated by a still greater poverty than the one which already has been caused by the senseless murders, the looting and the pillaging by Bolshevist criminal hands of Tito, the Stalin Mercenary?

I believe the choice is not hard between a "Free Independent Proud Croatia in a New Europe" and "devastated Bolshevist Province in the service of Stalin". You gentlemen carry the main weight of responsibility. You are the exponents in this struggle and it will be your heroism, your attitude and your appreciation of the situation which will serve as to yardstick by which history will measure the value of the Croatian nation.

What is to be done?

Comrades of the Croatian Officer Corps.

During the first World War, the Croatian and Bosnian Regiments were among the very best. Why should it be different today. Your homeguard and Ustasha is composed of hard, courageous, tenacious and modest and to a great part single people, which means that they want to be led by someone.

They look to their leaders with unlimited confidence. No wonder they fail in battle when their leader is the first one to withdraw. Wherever the officers were resilient and tenacious, the soldiers fought in an exemplary manner. I will mention only TESLIC where units of the 8th Infantry Regiments together with the Jaeger Battalion of the German Volksgruppe under the Command of MIFEKA, the Commander of the 8th Infantry Regiment who was killed in battle from 8 to 19 January 1943 successfully repelled with insignificant losses to themselves and great to the enemy the exceedingly strong attacks of Communist Bands which outnumbered them.

3) In my area of Command, battle will be avoided or withdrawal executed by my personal order. Not otherwise! During the movements which up to now have been executed with the purpose of avoiding battle and during withdrawals dictated by ordinary panic and cowardice, the troops have suffered great losses of men, arms and supplies.

In the future, any commanding officer who without my written order avoids battle, or orders or tolerates withdrawal will be held fully responsible by me and will face a court martial. According to German Law, cowardice in the face of the enemy is punishable by death.

4) Great losses can only be avoided by heroism and activity. The defense too must be active. Steady, well-distributed action, which has momentum and which comes from the defense position, must cause the enemy to incur losses and destroy his preparations for attack.

5) The heroic deeds of Croatian Officers and men performed to date, have, up until now, not been sufficiently recognized and rewarded. In this respect, too, I want help. The opinion that a subordinate cannot receive a decoration which his superior has not earned as yet, is entirely mistaken.

All of you are asked to co-operate and to make suggestions so that the deeds of courageous soldiers may be properly rewarded possibly also with German decorations.

Comrades -- Croatian Officers.

Take these lines to heart and with our old tried Comradeship-inarms we shall repel and annihilate the Communist enemy wherever we meet him.

Ready for the Poglavnik and the Homeland.

H e i l H i t l e r.

Sgd. F O R T N E R Major General and Division Commander" Then at the bottom of the document appears the staff:

INDEPENDENT STATE OF CROATIA STAFF Turning next to page 11 for the final part of this exhibit, it should be marked 553/3. This is another order from the headquarters of the 6th Infantry Regiment to various subordinate Croatian units.

"Subject: Transmission in translation of the order of the 718th German Division."

The last paragraph states: "Enclosed, please find the above mentioned translation. Commanders concerned will disseminate this order among all offices and the entire Home Guard personnel concerned."

Turning to the next page is a copy of the translation which was forwarded. This is at the bottom of page 12 of the English Document Look:

C O P Y T R A N S L A T I O N S E C R E T 718 Infantry Division Branch Ia The Commander of German Troops in Croatia issued the following directives are applicable:

1) Any measure is justified which is necessary for the security of the troops and which simultaneously serves to pacify the country."

"2) Extensive and responsible cooperation by Croatian Military and Civilian Offices is desired.

"3) No one is to be called to account for over-severe measures, of course this does not cover any action showing a dishonorable attitude (for instance personal profit, mistreatment of women and children); against such cases severe measures will have to be taken.

"4) Treatment of the Population:

Anybody who participates or has participated in the fight against the defense groups or against the Croatian State is to be hanged or to be shot to death. This also includes all non-residents or anyone else encountered on the field of battle. People suspected of participation are to be arrested. Leaders are to be kept with the Division as exchange prisoners, the other suspects for shooting to death in case of reprisal measures. All other men capable of bearing arms (from 15 years of age) are to be deported under guard from territories where there is danger that they will desert to the partisans into special collection camps. The Division is responsible for guard, rations, etc. until they are transferred to the collection camp.

"5) Villages which are inaccessible as well as other points established as partisan support points or otherwise suitable (caves, barrack camps, etc.) are to be destroyed. The same applies to villages from which shots were fired. Beyond that, villages are to be destroyed only if the Division Commander has ordered this especially as a reprisal measure."

I think we may skip over the next part of the order and continue with the last paragraph which is on page 14 of the English:

"Implementation by Division:

"I am again pointing out that everybody who has acted energetically and decisively will be covered by me but that officers and men who have harmed or caused disadvantage to the Croatian State, to the German or Croatian Army by cowardice, inability of decision or inactivity will be called to account by me ruthlessly, will come before a court martial and without regard to rank, social standing or origin will be sentenced without mercy."

This order was signed by:

Fortner If your Honors will now turn to Book 24, there is one more document from that book which we would like to introduce.

This is Document NOKW 1664.

I beg your pardon, your Honors, If you will just hold that one minute, I have one other one first. The next document your Honors, we offer for judicial notice only and not as evidence. This consists of excerpts from an official publication of the U. S. Government entitled:

"UNITED STATES AND ITALY 1936-1946 Documentary Record Published by UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE Washington, 1946."

I think, for purposes of identification, however, we might mark it Exhibit 554.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You are not anticipating reading it, I take.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, I just want to go through it very briefly, your Honors, and point out just a very few things. I shan't spend very much time on it at all.

On the second page, page 1-A, your Honors will note there a communication:

"Churches and Religious Institutions Spared Devastations of War:

"President Roosevelt to Pope Pius XII, July 10, 1943.

"Released to the press by the White House July 16.

"By the time this message reaches your Holiness a landing in force by American and British troops will have taken place on Italian soil."

And then the footnote: Next on page 2:

"Developments in Italy: Statement by Secretary of State Hull, July 26, 1943.

"At his press conference on July 26, 1943 the Secretary of State was asked whether he anticipated any change in our policy of unconditional surrender in respect to Italy as a result of the conditions that had taken place. Mr. Hull said that he had no information to that effect from either the president or the War Department, who are dealing immediately with that matter. He added that he was not anticipating anything from them to the contrary."

I call your Honors' attention only to footnote 55:

"King Victor Emmanuel announced on July 25 the resignation of Prime Minister Mussolini and his cabinet. Field Marshal Pietro Badoglio was appointed Prime Minister, Head of the Government."

Next on the bottom of page 2, Document entitled No. 38:

"Allied Occupation of Italy: Statement by Secretary of State Hull, September 3, 1943.

"We are all observing the occupation of a portion of continental Europe."

Then the footnote 62: "General Eisenhower reported.....Nine months after the first landings in North Africa, the Allied Force had not merely cleared its shore of enemy forces, but had wrested from him the Sicilian bridge to use as our own in an advance onto the Italian mainland."

Then we come to No. 39: "Italian Military Armistice: Radio Announcement by General Eisenhower September 8, 1943.

"COUNTRIES IN A STATE OF ARMISTICE RELATIONS "Italy "An announcement which was issued by the Allied headquarters in North Africa at noon on September 8, 1943, and which was read over the radio by General Eisenhower beginning at noon on September 8, 1943, reads in part as follows:"

I think we need not read that but I call your Honors' attention to footnote 63a: "ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA. Sept. 8." I ask your Honors to make note of that date because I am sure it will come up in the future, September 8, 1943.

"A special communique: The unconditional surrender of the Italian armed forces was announced today by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The following statement from the Allied Commander in Chief was broadcast at 16:30 G.M.T. on the United Nations Radio:

"The Italian Government has surrendered its armed forces unconditionally. As Allied Commander in Chief I have granted a military armistice, the terms of which have been approved by the Government of the United Kingdom, the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

"Thus I am acting in the interest of the United Nations. The Italian Government has bound itself to abide by these terms without reservation. The armistice was signed by my representative and representative of Marshal Badoglio, and it becomes effective this instant.

"Hostilities between the armed forces of the United Nations and those of Italy terminate at once.

"All Italians who now act to help eject the German aggressor from Italian soil will have the assistance and the support of the United Nations."

Document 40 consists of a series of documents relating to the Italian Armistice. We call your Honors' attention only to a few of the conditions of the Armistice which was presented on September 3, 1943.

"The following conditions of an Armistice are presented by GENERAL DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Forces, acting by authority of the Government of the United States and Great Britain and in the interest of the United Nations, and are accepted by MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO Head of the Italian Government "1. Immediate cessation of all hostile activity by the Italian armed forces.

"2. Italy will use its best endeavors to deny, to the Germans, facilities that might be used against the United Nations.

"3. All prisoners or internees of the United Nations to be immediately turned over to the Allied Commander in Chief, and none of these may now or at any time be evacuated to Germany."

And I call your Honors' attention especially to paragraph 8, which is on page 5 of the English, termed No. 8 of the Armistice.

"8. Immediate withdrawal to Italy of Italian armed forces from all participation in the current war from whatever areas in which they may be now engaged.

"9. Guarantee by the Italian Government that if necessary it will employ all its available armed forces to insure prompt and exact compliance with all the provisions of this armistice."

On page 6, the signatures of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Head of the Italian Government, and General Eisenhower, appear and then in Document, Subject 3: "ADDITIONAL CONDITIONS OF THE ARMISTICE WITH ITALY, September 29, 1943."

I call your Honors' attention only to sub-paragraph 1, which is on page 7:

"1. (A) Italian participation in the war in all Theaters will cease immediately. There will be no opposition to landings, movements or other operations of the Land, Sea and Air Forces of the United Nations. Accordingly, the Italian Supreme Command will order the immediate cessation of hostilities of any kind against the Forces of the United Nations and will direct the Italian Navy, Military and Air Force authorities in all Theaters to issue forthwith the appropriate instructions to those under their Command."

And, on page 13 of the English, sub-paragraph 25, the Armistice terms:

"Relations with countries at war with any of the United Nations, or occupied by any such country, will be broken off. Italian diplomatic consular and other officials and members of the Italian Land, Sea and Air Forces accredited to or serving on missions with any such country or in any other territory specified by the United Nations will be recalled. Diplomatic and consular officials of such countries will be dealt with as the United Nations may prescribe."

Then turning to page 20 of the Declaration of War by Italy against Germany, and the message of Marshall Badoglio to General Eisenhower, October 13, 1943:

DECLARATION OF WAR BY ITALY AGAINST GERMANY (1) MESSAGE OF MARSHAL BADOGLIO TO GENERAL EISENHOWER, OCTOBER 13, 1943 I take great pleasure in informing you that His Majesty the King of Italy has declared war on Germany.

The declaration will be handed by our Ambassador in Madrid to the German Ambassador, at 3 o'clock p.m. (Greenwich time) on October thirteenth. By this act all ties with the dreadful past are broken and my Government will be proud to be able to march with you on to the inevitable victory. Will you be good enough, my dear General, to communicate the foregoing to the Anglo-American, Russian and the other United Nations Governments. I should also be grateful to you if you would be kind enough to inform the Italian Embassies in Ankara, in Buenos Aires and the Legations in Bern, Stockholm, Dublin and Lisbon.

(2) PROCLAMATION BY MARSHAL BADOGLIO TO THE ITALIAN TROOPS TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE:

Italians, with the declaration made September 8th, 1943, the Government headed by me, in announcing that the Commander in Chief of the Anglo-American Forces in the Mediterranean had accepted the Armistice requested by us, ordered the Italian troops to remain with their arms at rest but prepared to repel any act of violence directed at them from whatever other source it might come. With a synchronized action, which clearly reversed an order previously given by some high authority, German troops compelled some of our units to disarm, while, in most cases, they proceeded to a decisive attack against our troops. But German arrogance and ferocity did not stop here. We had already seen some examples of their behavior in the abuses of power, robbery, and violence of all kinds perpetrated in Catania while they were still our allies. Even more savage incidents against our unarmed populations took place in Calabria, in the Puglie and in the area of Salerne. But where the ferocity of the enemy surpassed every limit of the human imagination was at Naples. The heroic population of that city, which for weeks suffered every form of torment, strongly cooperated with the Anglo-American troops in putting the hated Germans to flight. Italians! There will not be peace in Italy as long as a single German remains upon our soil. Shoulder to shoulder, we must march forward with our friends of the United States, of Great Britain, of Russia, and of all the other United Nations. Wherever Italian troops may be, in the Balkans, Yugoslavia, Albania, and in Greece, they have witnessed similar acts of aggression and cruelty and they must fight against the Germans to the last man.

I think we need not read the remainder of the document, your Honors.

Now, if your Honors will turn to Document Book XXIV, for one final document from that book, NOKW 1664 which is on page 82 of the English, and page 53 of the German Document Book.

Your Honors will recall that ten documents were passed from Document Book XXIV because they had previously been introduced into evidence. The Prosecution is prepared now to offer seven of those because they checked and discovered the error of itself, and of the other three, one was pointed out by Dr. Latenser and was admitted in part and withheld in part, the other two, upon recheck were found to have been errors made by the defense counsel in protesting so we offered one yesterday and we offer the final one today. I make this statement only that our hard working research staff may be protected from any allegations of carelessness in the compilation.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The best proof of their evidence is to present that document in proper form and shape and let the Tribunal attempt to judge for itself.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 82 of the English, page 53 of the German, a series of reports from the 65th Special Corps Command to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. The first is War Diary of the Commanding General, Commander in Serbia, to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, Daily Report, under Wehrmacht activity.

I think we can skip most of paragraph 1 and pick it up again on page 83 of the English, page 33 of the German:

"As reprisal for the soldier shot to death on 3 September in Belgrade on the open road 50 Communists executed."

The report is signed Commander in Serbia, Command Staff, Department Ia, 4 September 1941.

And on page 84 of the English, and page 54 of the German, daily report of the 8 September 1941 from the 65th Corps Command to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, who at that time was the defendant List and his Chief of Staff the defendant Foertsch; that section of the report dealing with activities of the 714th Infantry Division.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Will you kindly orient the Tribunal as to the page.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I am reading now from page 84 of the English, your Honor, page 54 of the German.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Document Book XXIV?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Document Book XXIV.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Designated Exhibit number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: NOKW 1664.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: 1664?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, your Honor.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: The page 84 I have is NOKW 1660.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Perhaps we can get you another copy of your Honor, of NOKW 1664. Is it in your other copy?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It will be a matter of some convenience to the Tribunal to be able to refer to the appropriate page designated by Council and not some other page, upon personal investigation.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Go ahead.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This is daily report of 8 September 1941 for the 65th Corps Command of the Wehrmacht Corps Commander Southeast, 714th Infantry Division:

"One-half armored train 23 guards the repairing of the place of the explosive attempt on railway near Mala Krana.

"By order of the Commander in Serbia in the Benat in Mokrin, Melenci, Kumane 10 Communists hanged in each place by 721st Infantry Regiment as reprisal measure."

Next, the daily report from the Commander in Serbia, to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, bottom of page 84, of the English 54 of the German:

"Daily Report:

"Appeal of Prime Minister Nedic repeated on the radio since it evidently had good effect. Distribution by leaflets.

"Decree concerning civilian court martial available.

"Encircled works at Baric (East of Obrenovac) was liberated by Stuka attacks. 50 guilty communists executed as reprisal for attack on soldier at the station Belgrade-Topicer."

I think we need not read the rest of the report, signed on page 86 of the English, 55 of the German, Commander in Serbia, Command Staff Ia, 16 September 1941.

Next the report of the Commander Serbia dated Belgrade 29 September 1941, to Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Belgrade, at bottom of page 86 of the English, page 56 of the German, Daily Report: which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 556. These are a series of extracts from the war diary of the 22nd Infantry Division. The entry in the war diary for 8 October 1943. Your Honors will recall that the 22nd Infantry Division was active on Crete at this time and was directly subordinate to the Commander in Chief Southeast simultaneously Commander of Army Group F, defendant Weichs.

The Schubert Detachment was able to arrest 50 suspicious men who were not resident in the locality in the upper Rethimnon sector during the pursuit bands in the locality of Kalikrates. The following was secured in weapons: 7 rifles, 1 hunting rifle, 7 pistols, among them 1 Italian army pistol. The 50 men, bandit suspects, were shot by the Schubert Special Detachment.

Next on page 2 of the English, page 2 of the German, Document NOK W 812, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 557. This is an extract from the War Diary XXI Army Corps. Your Honors will note the XXI Mountain Corps was from 5 September, and those words crossed out and 25 August inserted instead in the blame under the command of the 2nd Panzer Army. The 2nd Panzer Army at this time was commanded by the defendant Rendulic. Headquarters, 12 March 1944. Down at the bottom of the English page 2 and German page 2, handwritten in pencil, Enclosures 57;

"225 Serbian Concentration camp prisoners are being brought by truck via Skutari - Urvsevac to Mitrovica to work in the Trapca mines."

Court5 , Case 7 Enclosure to 114th Jaeger Division Section, Ic No.1339/43 secret, dated 15 October 1943.

The mission is:

To advance from the Slavica plant into the area South of the road Mandio-Drnis, to discover the bandits living here and to ascertain their intentions.

On 10 October 1943, 2100, the squad left the plant by truck and was brought to a point on the road to Dranis, about 500 m East of Mandic. The squad set up camp in the area Knesic (see map). The inhabitants of Knesic were very careful in their statements. No information could be obtained from them. However, it was clearly established that inhabitants of this village went in and out with weapons. Furthermore, it was established without a count that inhabitants participated in the attack on the Slavica plant during the morning of 11 October 1943, for several of them returned individually with arms.

Unfortunately, it was not possible to apprehend these bandits since because of the deficiency of cover in the terrain and many stone walls it was impossible to effect a speedy approach.

During the morning of the 11 October 1943 the camp site was moved East of Pekas (see map.). During this 3 civilians whom the squad met on the way were eliminated. When my scouts appeared the male inhabitants of the small village of Pekas stated that they were ready at any time to fight with us (bandits) so that Yugoslavia would be free again, that one should kill the "German pigs" whenever they were met, what do the Germans really want in our country. These men were eliminated.

Through personal observation and through scouts it was ascertained that patrol activity exists between Knesic across height 274 (1½ km South of Konjevrate) and that there are local bandits in this sector.

Furthermore bandit positions and sentries were confirmed on the heights 270 (Glavica) and 384.

On the basis of these findings the local partisans from the village of Knesic were asked to build road blocks in the evening of 12 October 1943 and to bring their arms along. They enthusiastically responded to this request but without weapons. Hereupon they were shot at a distance from the village. In spite of searches no weapons were seized because the hiding places are very well made (probably underneath stones, etc.) A total of 19 (nineteen) bandits from the village were shot.

I abstained from advancing in to the villages of Goris - Labori as well as Brnjica of Sv. Ivan (Konjevrate).

The squad returned at 2000 hrs on 12 December 1943 to the strongpoint at Slavica.

Next on page 6 of the English, page 5 of the German, the report To 2nd Panzer Army Ic/Counter Intelligence, dated 14 October 1943:

Daily Report 14 October:

114th Jaeger Division Strong bands around Gospic.

Croatian units yielded Bilaj (Southeast of Gospic) on account of enemy Artillery fire (crosses out: on account of enemy pressure). According to prisoners' statements, on 10 October a band 2000 strong (presumably North Dalmatian Division) crosses over by ship from Razanac to Stari Grad (20 km and 28 km Northeast of Zara). Strong band with truck 22 km Northwest of Drnis. During mopping Southeast of Sibenik 30 enemy dead.

Then under that section of the report, 15th Army Corps, 2nd Panzer Army which deals with 373rd Infantry Division:

122 counted and 360 estimated enemy dead, 3 prisoners, 42 arrests Reprisal measures: 7 hostages arrested, 2 villages burned down.

Next is the Daily report from the XVth Mountain Corps, to the 2nd Panzer Army for 16 October 1943, on page 8 of the English, page 6 of the German, that section of the report which reads as follows:

369th Infantry Division and IIInd Croatian Corps:

Enemy was unable to prevent us from bringing strong forces to Travnik (in course of this a band 500 men strong was repelled Northwest of Vitez partly in close combat), but attacked Travnik in spite of this during the night with Artillery and Panzer support.

20 arrestees were hanged for attempting to blow up the railway (near Metkovic).

Signed: XVth Mountain Corps, Page 9 of the English, and page 8 of the German, Document NOKW 1747, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 559.

This is an order from the Commander in Chief of the 2nd Panzer Army to the Commanding General of the XV Mountain Corps.

"I agree with the measures taken. In case of capture the three escaped officers are to be shot dead."

The order is signed Rendulic.

DR. VON TAGWITZ: (Attorney for defendant Rendulic):

Your Honor, I would like to interrupt here on principle to object on the following grounds: In my opinion there has to be a border line, that is, a border line according to which documents, which belong together, should be submitted under one exhibit number together and presented that way; the document which has just been presented, Exhibit 559, NOW 1747, consists as we can see here, of only one page, and thus is not incomprehensible only in itself but it becomes apart of the section where it belongs, and it belongs to a document which has already been submitted, and that is, NOKW 1242, Exhibit 328 that is contained in Document Book XIII, and I move this document NOKW 1747 not to be admitted as Exhibit 559, But instead it be incorporated as a page of Exhibit 328, NOKW 1242, contained in Document Book XIII.

MR FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honor pleases, this particular document was only received from Washington last week. We put it in here and I think it speaks for itself.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is it a part of the document which has previously been admitted by the Tribunal under another exhibit number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That I don't know; I only had the same information that was given by Dr. Tagwitz just now.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: For the reasons heretofore assigned by the Tribunal it will be admitted. The objection is over-ruled.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Next on page 10 of the English, page 9 of the German Document Book NOKW 1784, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 560. This is a report from the 22nd Infantry Division, dated Division Staff 20 October 1943; this is a situation report to the Commandant of the Crete Fortress. I think we need not read much of this report into the record at this time. I call Your Honors attention to sub-paragraph c, Intelligence Situation, which is on page 12 of the English, and page 10 of the German.

c) Intelligence Situation:

3 cases of cable sabotage were reported, in the report period; of these, 2 in upper Rethimnon sector where it was a matter of a repetition. In the Eastern upper Sector the telephone line of Lazida was out by the means of a cloud trust. It is supposed that the sabotage there was carried out by Italian soldiers.

A total of 5 Italian officers and 18 men who tried to resist when arrested when captured in a raid action in the mountains. The officers were shot by sentence of a court-martial; the soldiers were evacuated as prisoners of war.

The report is signed on page 13 of the English, page 11 of the German: "For the Division Headquarters, the first General Staff Officer."

Next, on page 14 of the English, page 12 of the German, Document NOKW-1796 which is offered as Prosecution exhibit 561. These are various extracts from the War Diary of the 15th Mountain Corps and, as is indicated on the first page of the document "the 15th Mountain Corps was subordinate from 26 August 1943 until further notice to the 2nd Panzer Army."

On page 15 of the English and page 12 of the German under the entry in the War Diary for the 22nd of October 1943:

"Banja Luka: Lieutenant General Infantry von Leyser (now Commanding General) arrived."

And then under the entry for the 23rd of October, 1943:

"Banja Luka: The Germany Ambassador in Zagreb, SA Obergruppenfuehrer Kasche, Croatian Minister of the Interior Lorkovic and Croatian Minister for the Devastated Territories Dr. Alajbegovic for conference at headquarters.

Present: Lt. General Infantry von Leyser, Chief of the General Staff Chief of the Civil Administration with the XV Mtn. Corps, Dr. Benak."

And then the entry for the 23rd of October 1943, Banja Luka, continuation:

"In case of increase in tension of the situation, Lieutenant General Inf. von Leyser demands unilateral, concise executive authority, which was confirmed to him on the part of the Ministers (draft of the Law of the XV Mtn. Corps Adm. No. 154/43 Secret of 29 Oct. 43).

Next the entry in the War Diary for the 27th of October 1943:

"Banja Luka: Lt. Gen. von Leyser flies to Sink-Split. Farewell evening of Commanding General Lueters."

Entry for the 26th of October 1943, Banja Luka:

"Return of the Commanding General from Sinj-Split because of the weather situation not possible.

Transfer of command General Lueters General von Leyser delayed accordingly."

Finally, the entry of November 1, 1943, "Turning over the headquarters to Lieutenant General Infantry von Leyser by Lieutenant General Infantry Lueters."

If your Honors will make note of that date, 1 November 1943, as the date when the defendant Leyser took over command of the 15th Mountain Corps -- the war diary which is enclosed on 31 December 1943 is signed in his own hand by the Commanding General of the 15th Mountain Corps, "Lieutenant General Infantry von Leyser."

Next document NOKW-1754 has already been introduced in evidence so we do not offer it. We turn instead to page 25 of the English, page 21 of the German document book, NOKW-1746, which is offered as Prosecution exhibit 562.

DR. GAWLIK (Counsel for defendant Dehner): Your Honors, I ask you not to admit the document 1746 because this document has no probative value. It is not relevant and for the following reasons:

The document originates from the 187th Reserve Division and is addressed to the Commanding General of the 69th Reserve Corps. This is merely a proposal which the 187th Reserve Division made and I draw the attention of the Tribunal to the first sentence and that is: "The Division suggests." It is not quite relevant what somebody else suggests. The only decisive point is what the Commanding General of the 69th Corps did subsequently and that, unfortunately, we do not have here.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It should be a comparatively simple matter for defense counsel at an appropriate time to point out the deficiency as shown by the offered exhibit and if a portion of the document is not available to you, it should be made available to you at the appropriate time also.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 25 of the English, page 21 of the German, from the 187th Reserve Division, dated "Staff Headquarters 1 November 1943", "Subject:

Application for transfer of a reinforced battalion of 367th Infantry Division to Dubrava", and the application is sent to "Corps Headquarters 69th Reserve Corps", which on this date, 1 November 1943, was commanded by the defendant Dehner.

I call your Honors' attention only to the reference in the middle of the page, 25 of the English, 21 of the German, to:

"Communist brigades have begun to transfer from the Moslavine into the Kalnik Mountains and vice versa via Dubrava. The attack with about 5000 men on Xv. Ivan Zabno on 21 September during which the police headquarters were destroyed by direct artillery hits started from there. Numerous blastings of the railroad line Krizevci-Bjelovar and Dugo Sel-Ivanic Grad were carried out from Dubrava."

I call your Honors' attention only to the final paragraph of the application which is on page 26 of the English, page 21 of the German:

"The population of the villages around Dubrava are up to 80% house partisans. Large scale seizure of hostages by a fairly large operation is necessary."

"Signed in draft: Brauner, Major General."

Next on page 27 of the English and page 22 of the German Document Book is NOKW-1808 which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 543.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I think you are in error. That number should be 563, should it not?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I beg your pardon, your Honor?

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Isn't that Exhibit No. 563?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That is what I thought I said, your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: We understood you to say "543".

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I am sorry, your Honors. It should be Exhibit No. 563.

This, if Your Honors please, is a military identification card of Miles Uzelac of the National Liberation Army, Croatia.

It gives his name, date of birth, place of birth, rank and profession, as well as the unit or organization to which he belonged, Staff of the 19th S.D. (North Dalmatian) Division of the N.O.V. (National Liberation Army) Yugoslavia. It also lists the personal characteristics of the man, his identification number -- he entered the National Liberation Army 27 July 1941.

Your Honors will note the date at the bottom of the document, 24 November 1943 and on the final page of the document; which is 28 of the English and page 22 of the German, is the stamp of the 19th North Dalmatian Division, National Liberation Army Croatia, signed: "Kommandant Lieutenant Colonel Kupresanin."

Signed: "Political Commissar: Petar Babic."

Turning now to page 29 of the English, 24 of the German -

THE PRESIDENT: Before you get to that, where is this to be inserted?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That's the photograph, your Honors, which accompanies, which is NOKW-1808 and it should be inserted at page 27 of the English Document Book.

THE PRESIDENT: All right.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Next, on page 29 of the English, 24 of the German, NOKW-1752, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 564. This is an order of the Military Commander Southeast to a subordinate unit, the administrative sub-area headquarters 610. The order Appears in the bar Diary of the Military Commander Southeast under the entry for the 1st of December, 1943. Your Honors will recall that at this time the Military Commander Southeast is General Felber as Chief of Staff of the defendant Geitner. I call your Honors' attention only to the final 4 lines of the document which is on page 30 of the English, page 24 of the German;

"610th Administrative sub-area headquarters receives a teletype to shoot 10 Communist reprisal prisoners in retaliation for the murder of the Mayor of Lemmica on 15 November 1943". That is on page 31 of the English.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: At this point, Mr. Fenstermacher, we will recess until one--thirty this afternoon.

THE MARSHAL: The Court will recess until one-thirty this afternoon.

(A recess was taken until 1330 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours, 22 May 1947)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal is prepared at this time to dispose of the matter of the application of the defendants for recess at the conclusion of today's session.

The application of the defendants for a four weeks recess has received the very serious consideration of this Tribunal. We desire to afford the defendants every reasonable opportunity to present all evidence favorable to the defendants. On the other hand, unnecessary delay must be avoided.

It appears that the principal impediment to an immediate presentation of the defense is the failure of the prosecution to have present the documents and war diaries which have heretofore occupied the attention of this Tribunal. The uncertainty of the time of their production, if they are to be produced at all, does appear to be an uncertainty which troubles the Tribunal as well as the defense. On the other hand, these defendants have a general knowledge of the contents of these documents. Defendants either prepared them, were responsible for their preparation or had notice of their contents, otherwise they have no probative value. Anything contained in these documents and diaries, if favorable to the defendants, can only be corroborative of the knowledge that the defendants already have. Under such a situation, it is not essential that these documents and diaries be in the court room at the commencement of the defense. If the defendants know that these diaries and documents contained evidence in support of their defense, they should, of course, have made application for their production long ago. Their production under the rule announced by the Tribunal is for the purpose of determining the meaning of the portions offered is in no way changed when the document or diary is considered as a whole.

It's purpose is more in the nature of impeachment and an attack on the credibility of the prosecution's evidence than defensive in the strict sense.

The prosecution is obligated to comply with the order to produce the documents and diaries in accordance with the previous ruling of this court at as early a date as possible in order to escape the alternative therein stated. We do not hereby intend to recede from the effect of that order.

We do feel, however, that the defense should be prepared to present its opening statements on September 12, 1947 at 9:30 a.m. and with the presentation of evidence of September 15, 1947 at 9:30 a.m. This order is subject to the consideration of any changed conditions which may arise subsequent to this date.

You may proceed.

MR. DENNEY: May it please your Honors, with reference to Exhibit 525, which was the certificate of General Taylor dated 22 August with the attachments, which is the last document in Book XXIII, if that could be paginated from 90 to 97 inclusive -- that's exhibit 525, Book XXIII pages 90 to 97 inclusive --- and then 525 which is the insert which was given to the Court this morning -- then we get on to pages 98 and 99. That disposes of it with reference to the Greek report, your Honors. I find that we have already inserted at the close of Document Book XXI Exhibit 493 which is the usual insertion for identification at the close of the document books and, in view of the thickness of the Greek report, I was wondering if the Tribunal would find it convenient to just put it in an envelope which we will be glad to furnish if the Tribunal doesn't have them.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal sees no objection to that procedure.

MR. DENNEY: That will be fine, your Honor, and then if we just label it, "The Greek Documents" and carry it along with Book XXI -- and in that list of Greek documents will be Exhibit 4991 which is the letter with reference to the concentration camp Chaidari, Exhibit 4992 which is an affidavit of 5 May 1945, Exhibit 4993 which is the report of the findings of a Greek Tribunal of 3 December 1946, Exhibit 4994 which is the sound -- that is withdrawn -- which is the list of subtitles of the Greek film, 4995 which is the certificate of Dimitrios Kosapoulas, and 4996 which is an affidavit; and then we won't have to bother to paginate those.

MR. DENNEY: In connection with the statement made by Dr. Fritsch, counsel for defendant Rendulic, this morning concerning the 1942 publication, "Directions for Combating Bands in the East," I have here a photostatic copy of it I now hand to the associate counsel for defendant Rendulic.

If Your Honors, please, that I believe takes care of the outstanding questions with reference to the document, except for Mr. Fenstermacher's conclusion of this book.

JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Mr. Fenstermacher.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Prior to the luncheon recess, we had concluded NOKW-1752, which was admitted in evidence as Exhibit 564, and we turn now to page 31 of the English and page 25 of the German, NOKW-1753, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 565. This is a report from the Military Commander Southeast, dated 1 December 1943. Your Honor will recall at that time General Felber was Military Commander Southeast, and the defendant Geitner his Chief of Staff. The report is a Daily Report for 1 December 1943, and is sent to Army Group F, commanded at that time by the defendant Weichs, Chief of Staff of the Defendant Foertsch.

In the section of the report dealing with defense in Serbia, I call your Honors' attention only to the last paragraph of the report:

"In retaliation for an attack on the train Negotin-Nisch (See Daily Report for 27th October) 27 Communists reprisal prisoners were shot."

This report is signed "Military Commander Southeast.

Page 33 of the English, page 26 of the German, NOKW-1766, is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 566. These are reports from the Plenipotentiary of the Reichsfuehrer SS for Croatia. First is a Situation Report for the month of December 1943, which is dated "Local Headquarters 4 January 1944", Your Honors will recall the commander of the German troops in Croatia at this time was the defendant Rendulic.

..... Situation Report for the month-December 1943 An over-all view of the band situation in the Command area especially stressing the existing centers of bands.

.....

The morale among the individual groups of bands differs. In areas which they have conquered and which they have been able to maintain, the positive morale has been essentially preserved. In these areas too propaganda activity (meetings, leaflets) has developed in a lively way. A propaganda directed against the new orientation of the Draza Minajlovic movement (compare Enclosure 3) has come to the fore. Organization, as far as the administration of the so-called liberated area is concerned, has made further progress by the establishing of Gendarmerie posts, law courts, post offices and railway service. It appears important to the bands to establish a well functioning communications and postal traffic (compare Enclosure "). In areas where attacks by bands on towns and villages have miscarried, (Virovitica, Djahovo, Slatina and Gorjani) the bandits are in a comparatively depressed mood.

An intensification of the Communist propaganda is especially conspicuous since the establishing of the Provisional Government of Tito - headquarters in Srijem 30 kilometers northeast of Jajce - became known. The efforts of the bandits to give to their combattants practical instructions for the conducting of the fight of liberation of the people has become especially apparent.

.....

I think we may skip the last portion of this document, and pick up on page 34 of the English and page 27 of the German at the bottom "Total Losses for the last month": Your Honors will notice the totals under "Own Losses", - 451 Fallen in Combat; 548 Wounded; 619 Missing, 14 prisoners.

.....Enemy Losses:

The enemy losses for the period covered by the communique were reported as 696 counted dead and 1423 estimated dead, 147 prisoners were brought in and 2 hostages executed.

.....

Police Area V (Zagreb) On 28 November 43 the Gendarmerie, District Cazna A 808 was attacked by strong forces of bandits.

During the relief attempt made by the 3./P.G.V. it was obvious that the bandits no longer content themselves with small local actions but that they want to achieve great successes for the prestige which these would yield. The bandits appear with strong forces (8000 to 10000 men) they are well equipped and have ammunition in abundance. In view of this situation one can no longer speak of a war of Partisans in the ordinary sense. The combats fought here are combats against a regular enemy militia which is uniformed and has good arms at its disposal. The leadership too is in the hands of military experts. During these combats it can also be seen that the forces of the country participate with interest and enthusiasm, but that the majority of the Croatian Wehrmacht however is unreliable.

In the month of December the village Lug A 519 was attacked and fired upon several times by strong forces of bandits, aided in part by tanks and artillery. On the 20 December there was also an attack on the Gendarmerie district Samober A 519.

From the attacks on both villages mentioned above the intention of the bandits of cutting off Zagreb according to plan, from the frontier of the Reich, in order to cut its supplies can be recognized.

There is no doubt that all those operations of bandits are directed from a central office.

4.) Special experiences or information on the subject of banditry.

We refer to the general part of the report. In the course of our own operations it was found that all essential operations of the bandits were synchronized and directed from a central office. As in the previous month they preferred attacks on larger towns and carters of economy which were carried out with considerable forces, as a rule with 3 to 5 Brigades of bands, that is, with 2 to 6000 bandits. Hereby it was found that the most powerful units of bands were used tactically in a very clever fashion to ward off relief troops.

In addition to the usual road blockades, barricades and fortified field positions the bandits have recently also laid mine blockades mainly with the purpose of preventing the use of patrol cars and tanks.

.....

Then the report is signed "Kammerhofer" Gruppen and Major General at the Police. He was plenipotentiary of the Reichsfuehrer SS for Croatia.

At the bottom of page 37 of the English and page 29 of the German is another Situation Report from the same man, Kammerhofer, Plenipotentiary of the Reichsfuehrer SS for Croatia, Situation Report for the month of January 1944.

..... Among the bands a certain combat weariness seems to be visible less on account of the influence of the weather but more on account of the lack of success which the bands themselves expected. The reconstruction in administrative and economic affairs planned together with the reconstruction of the Communist party and an enlarging of general propaganda in the band area has made certain progress, however, the reconstruction is evidently too much in its infancy to determine already especially favorable effects for the bands.

The terrorizing of the population continues. A strongly intimidating effect emanates from the intelligence service of the bandits which serves the special purpose of reaching all adversaries of the bands in order to deliver them to the bandit courts when the band units arrive. It is remarkable that with the existence of such commissions for the liberation of the people, such courts are organized the activities and competency of which are codified in a species of judicial organization.

.....

I think we need not read the remainder of this report at this time, Your Honor, except for pointing out on Page 40 of the English, page 30 of the German, under "Total Losses of the Last Month", under "Own Losses", -- this is on page 40, -- 517 fallen in combat; 626 Wounded; 647 Missing; 17 Prisoners.

Under "Enemy Losses":

"The enemy losses during the period covered by the communique were reported as 946 counted and 140 estimated dead, 400 prisoners were captured and 4 hostages executed."

Then page 42 of the English and page 31 of the German, the last paragraph of the report, Paragraph 5, Sub-paragraph b), "Persons transferred for work separated according to sex:

The following were transferred to the offices of the German Plenipotentiary for the utilization of labor:

Men: 47 Women:

20 In All:

67."

This report is also signed "Kammerhofer, SS-Gruppenfuehrer and Major General of the Police."

On page 43 of the English, page 33 of the German, is another Situation Report of the plenipotentiary Reichsfuehrer SS for Croatia for the month of April 1944.

Under Total Losses of the last month, "Own losses," 710 fallen in combat; 855 wounded; 678 missing, 22 prisoners.

"Enemy losses:

The enemy losses for the period covered the communique are reported as being 619 counted and 450 estimated dead, 270 prisoners were captured, 69 hostages were executed," On the last page under "Police Area V (Zagreb)", Sub-Paragraph B)Police Area V _(Zaggreb)

b) Persons delivered for work separated according to sex:

The following persons were transferred to tire offices of the German Plenipotentiary for the employment of labor:

Men: 39 Women:

43 The report is again signed "Kammerhofer". Turning next to page 45 of the English, page 35 of the German, Document NOKW-1769, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 567.

These are several Daily Reports from the 15th Mountain Corps to the 2nd Panzer Army.

The 15th Mountain Corps was commanded by the defendant Leyser, and the 2nd Panzer Army by the defendant Rendulic.

On the bottom of page 45 of the English, page 35 of the German, is a Daily Report 15th Mountain Corps to the 2nd Panzer Army, dated January 27, 1944.

"Because of blasting on the road northwest of Sisak (25 January) 22 hostages were hanged on the site of the blasting."

The report is signed "15th Mountain Corps."

Next on page 47 of the English, page 37 of the German, NOKW-1770, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 568. This is a report of the Corps Headquarters, 15th Mountain Corps and Enclosure to War Diary. Released to "Niberlungenfahrt" 114th Infantry Division, 13 January to 30 January 1944. Also "Dreznica", 23 January to 29 January 1944.

I call your Honors attention only to the portion of the report which deals with the activities of the 114th Infantry Division, on page 48 of the English and page 37 of the German.

The following was destroyed in Dreszuica: 20 bandit quarters 1 complete printing outfit and an armory. In Mosune: A hospital with 50 beds, a sawmill including the machines 4 barracks consisting of billets and workshop, ammunition and food depot. Own losses: 3 dead 10 wounded.

And next on page 49 of the English, page 38 of the German, NOKW 1768, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 569. This is a report from the Quartermaster of the 15th Infantry Corps to the Quartermaster 2nd Panzer Army.

"Total of Prisoners of war on 1 Jan 1944 1. Prisoners of war Total 1418, of these Italians:

2. Officers, 1 physician, 1296 men."

Under Paragraph 3, 3 Hostages:

Total 27, of those Serbs: 11 men Croats:

13 men and 3 women.

The report is signed "XV Infantry Corps, Qu 130/44 of 20 January." The 15th Infantry Corps was commanded at this time by the defendant Leyser, and the 2nd Panzer Army by the defendant Rendulic.

On page 50 of the English, page 39 of the German, NOKW 1772, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 570. These are a series of orders and reports from and to the 2nd Panzer Army and the 15th Mountain Corps.

The first report is from the 15th Mountain Corps, dated 4 February 1944, sent to Headquarters 2nd Panzer Army, and to various other units with which we are not particularly concerned.

This is the 2nd Supplement to the Daily report for 4 February 1944. I call Your Honors attention to the first line under the Supplementary Report, 1st Mountain Division:

"During the reported fighting on 2 February 74 enemy dead in British uniforms."

Then dropping down to the "Concluding report on Operations at Dreznica."

"156 enemy dead, 16 prisoners, 25 horses dead; 11 machine guns, one light mortar, 1 truck, 1 motorcycle, 1 car, food and fodder captured.

"The following was destroyed: 20 band billets, 1 complete printing shop, 1 armory, 1 hospital with 50 beds."

I think we need not concern ourselves with the remainder of the report, and will turn next to page 5 of the English and page 40 of the German, Daily Report from the 15th Mountain Corps 8 February 1944.

"392nd Division:

Mission; Attack with one battalion each on village 10 km. North and 8 km. Northeast of SENJ and on the area northwest of RINKE with rather weak forces. Advance on NOVI and East of BRINJE. Occupation of SV. JURAJ (km South of SENJ). Retaliation measures in return for attack on Battery Commander Northeast of OTOCA."

The report is signed 15th Mountain Corps.

At the bottom of page 52 of the English and page 41 of the German, is the 15th Mountain Corps Daily Report of the 2nd Panzer army 9 February 1944.

"Cetnik reconnaissance detachment on 7 February met small band North of Skradin, 15 prisoners, of these 12 were shot 3 released."

I call your Honors attention to the date this appears, 9 February 1944.

And out of the same report on the next page, under "Activities of the 392 Division."

"In retaliation for the stabbing of an officer the Western sector of PODUM 3.5 km. Northeast of OTOCAC) was taken in spite of resistance and burned down."

The report is signed "15th Mountain Corps."

Page 53 of the English, page 42 of the German, is message from the Commander in Chief of the 2nd Panzer Army to the Commanding General 15th Mountain Corps.

The 2nd Panzer Army at this time, 28 December 1943, was commanded by the defendant Rendulic and the 15th Mountain Corps by the defendant Leyser.

"I hold the following view in regard to the train of thought contained in above mentioned reference. I request that my remarks be made the unequivocal basis for the future conduct of the war by Corps Headquarters."

On the basis of orders issued it has always been obvious that the coast is the main line of resistance, hence the "main front", and that furthermore not the protection of supply lines and combating of bands in the Interior is of primary importance, but always the fortification and defense of the coast. If troops within the Corps area had another assignment and this resulted also, with regard to construction of positions along the coast, that the fortifications face the rear, the Corps itself should already have made the necessary corrections on its own a long time ago. And I expect, that this will be done in the future with all energy.

Likewise the attitude of all headquarters towards Balkan politics is finally to be oriented in the sense of the orders issued. If necessary, I expect that an example will be made in order to demonstrate most effectively to all headquarters the necessity to comply with orders issued also in this sphere.

The present conduct of the war to eliminate the threat of bands is primarily dependent on the strength of available forces. The main target of the fighting must be the armed forces of the enemy. Accordingly, operations must be conducted in such a manner that the armed forces of the enemy are caught, destroyed, or at least seriously damaged. Furthermore, in addition to weakening the enemy by means of operations, disturbance of peaceful organizing activities, destruction of supply installations, such as hospitals, ammunition depots, etc. must be effected.

Hence under present conditions the fight is not to be conducted to seize terrain but with the aim of damaging the strength of the enemy." I think we need no read much more of this report, Your Honor but turn to page 56 of the English and page 44 of the German, in the middle of the page, to paragraph "To VII."

To VII:

If it is stated that the aim of the operations had not been accomplished, then this is incorrect, as soon as it is established what was intended with these operations. The purpose of the operations so far (weakening the fighting strength of the enemy, interference with its organizing activity) had not only been fully accomplished but showed unexpected large results. Between 1 September and 31 December 1943 the enemy lost 30,000 counted dead and 12,000 prisoners.

If for every dead one counts one wounded, not convalescing within reasonable time considering conditions among the bands, and considerable time considering that in many cases numerous dead were excluded from our own count, enemy losses of 80,000 men must be assumed. In addition numerous hospitals, field bakeries, and enemy supply bases were destroyed.

And the message is signed, page 57 of the English, page 44 of the German, by Rendulic.

I think we may skip the intervening pages, and turn next to page 59 of the English, page 46 of the German, Daily Report on the 15th Mountain Corps for 29 January 1944.

"373rd Division:

Band movements in the area PRIJEDOR. Railway Line PRIJEDOR -NOVI again blown up, work interrupted by employment of mortars. Area RUDICEOTO 29 hostages taken on both side of the railroad."

I think, if Your Honors, please, at this time might omit reading into the record the intervening pages and turn instead to a new document, which is on page 65 of the English, page 49 of the German. This is document NOKW 1667, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 571.

These are a series of reports from the 68th Corps to the Army Corps R, covering the period February to May 1944. During all this period the defendant Felmy was in command of the 68th Corps.

- a.) Shotting of 200 hostages from hostage camp Tripolis at the scene of the allack.
- b.) Martial Law in Tripolis and Megalopolis during day and night till 7 March inclusive. No civilian allowed on the street ruthless use of arms.

The report is signed "68th Corps,"

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Turning next to Page 70 of the English, Page 54 of the German, is the Supplementary Report from the 68th Corps, transmitted to Army Group E on the 12th of March 1944, Subject: Supplement to Daily Report for 12 March 1944: "In return for the band attack on the convoy of the 1st Battalion 737th Light Infantry Regiment the following reprisal measures are ordered." I direct Your Honors' attention to Paragraphs 3 and 4 of the report: "Everybody found in the terrain South of the line indicated in Paragraph 1 up to a distance of 2 km off the remaining roads will be shot. Duration: 8 days , upon preliminary announcement. Shooting of 200 hostages (Communists) from all hostage camps. Execution by members of the Greek volunteer formations with German supervision." Next on Page 71 of the English, Page 54 of the German, Daily Report of the 68th Corps:

"Pelopponesus: (117th Jaeger Division) 2. As reprisal measure for the band attack on 12 March 1944 the following villages, confirmed to be nests of the band, were released to the 117th Jaeger Division for destruction:

Karie, Wresthena, Kato – and Ano-Kolline, Skortsinon , Kaltese, Mavrojianni, Vlachokerassia, Arwanitokerassia, Manari."

I think the next several reports are of a similar nature and need not be read at this time. If Your Honors will please turn to Page 78 of the English, Page 61 of the German, another Daily Report from the 68th Corps transmitted on the 26th of April 1944, to High Command of Army Group E:

"Dairy report Boeotia:

1.) Bandit raid on motor vehicle column (2 armoured cars and 2 motor bikes) of the 18 the SS Police near Keresi (15 kilometers west of Lewadia). Own Losses: 2 Officers dead, 1 Officer 4 enlisted men missing, According to the statements of three arrested persons the bandits, in a strength of from 50 to 70 men equipped with 5 machine guns, machine pistols and rifles, withdrew in direction of Kiriak.

Reprisal measures: At the place where the raid occurred 50 Communists were immediately shot. Reconnaissance of a reinforced company up until now without results."

The report is signed "LXVIII Infantry Corps." Next on Page 79 of the English, Page 62 of the German, Daily Report of the 68th Infantry Corps, transmitted on the 29th of April 1944 to its higher headquarters. Under Boeotia:

"In reprisal for the raid on the motor vehicle convoy of the 18 SS Police Regiment 60 more communists were shot to death at the place where the raid took place."

Next on Page 80 of the English, Page 62 of the German, Daily Report of the 68th Corps, transmitted on the 11th of May 1944:

"Boeotia: In reprisal for raid on motor vehicle convoy (see Daily Report of 26 April Boeotia 1.) 100 hostages shot to death in Athens."

Next on Page 82 of the English, Page 64 f the German, Daily Report from the 68th Corps, transmitted on the 2nd of May 1944:

"In reprisal for the raid on the motor vehicle of the staff of the 41. Signed "LXVIII Infantry Corps," and the Corps at this time was commanded by the Defendant Felmy. Page 84 of the English, Page 66 cf the German, is the last report in this series from the 68th Infantry Corps, transmitted on the 18th of May 1944:

"Peloponnesus: (117. Jaeger Division) In reprisal for repeated acts of sabotage on telephone lines 17 well known communists were hanged on telephone poles along the road Kamari-Deweni (northwest of Xylokastron)." Turning next to Page 86 in the English, Page 67 in the German, Document NOKW-1771 , which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 572.

This is a report of the 373rd Division to the 2nd Panzer Army and relates to Operation "Morgenstern." I think we need not spend much time on it at this time. Your Honors will note on Page 88 of the English, Page 68 of the German: "In Seganovac a hospital was destroyed."

Continuing now on Page 89 of the English, Page 69 of the German, Document NOKW-1640, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 573. These are a series of reports from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH in Berlin, covering a certain period in May, 1944. During that time the Commander in Chief Southeast was the Defendant Weichs. We Call Your Honors' attention to just one or two of these particular Daily Reports -- one on Page 94 of the English, Page 74 of the German, Daily Report from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH Army General Staff Operations Section for the 14th of May 1944: "Group Siegfried: Easing of the "tension in the area Prijepolje-Plevlja 12 May , 25 hostages shot as reprisal measures for German soldiers not released by the bands.

Enemy losses: 10 counted dead."

Next on Page 93 of the English, Page 75 of the German, the Daily Report from the Commander in Chief Southeast for the 13th of May 1944, under 369th Division. If Your Honors please, that Division was subordinate to the 2nd Panzer at that time, which was commanded by the Defendant Rendulic. "369th Division" -- and then certain portions are crossed out -- "In the area Konjic-Gacko local clashes mopping -up "operations in the Dabarsko Polje area have started.

As reprisal measure for an attack on the railway near Zeplanik (see daily "Report for 11 May) 6 hostages were hanged."

DR. GROSS: Dr. Gross deputizing for Dr. Tipp, for the Defendant Leyser. Your Honor, I must object against the remarks of the Prosecutor regarding Document NOKW-1640, Exhibit No. 572. The Prosecutor has said that this exhibit is a document of the 2nd Panzer Army. This cannot be seen from the document itself. It is also incorrect, as can be seen from the contents of the document. In the list attached to the document the place of Sarajevo is mentioned. Sarajevo never belonged to the Command of the 373rd Division not to the 15th A.K. either. At least, it did not belong at that time. I ask that this remark be stricken from the record.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honors please, the first page of the document indicates that it is art enclosure to the War Diary, Operation Morgenstern, 10 May to 19 May 1944, teletype to 2nd panzer Army.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is there anything further to be said?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I have nothing more, Your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Objection is over-ruled.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If Your Honor will turn next to Page 97 of the English, Page 77 of the German, continuing with the Daily Reports from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH Headquarters in Berlin, this is the Daily Report from the Commander in Chief Southeast for the 10th of May 1944. Under the section of the report dealing with activities in the area of the 68th Corps -- and that corps was, at that time, commanded by the defendant Felmy: "Because of Communists activities at Patras 10 hostages were hanged. Limitations have been imposed upon the population." The report is, as were all others, signed "Commander in Chief Southeast." We pass the next document, NOKW-1670, and turn next to Page 101 in the English, Page 79 in the German, Document NOKW 1773) which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 574.

This is an order of the 264th Infantry Division, dated Divisional Battle Headquarters, 21 May 1944:

"Orders of the Division to mop up the islands of Dugi Otok and Kornat

2.) 891st Grenadier Regiment is to mop up these islands. Thereby all provisions and installations of all kinds serving the enemy are either to be secured or destroyed, enemy tonnage is to be brought in and as far as possible the islands must be evacuated of the male civilian population capable of bearing arms at least all suspicious persons must be arrested. " I think we need not bother with the distribution list which appears on the next page.

But on Page 102 of the English and page 79 of the German begins a report from the 15th Mountain Corps to the 2nd Panzer Army Ia and Ic. On Page 103 of the English , Page 80 of the German, is the "Final report of 'Morgenstern.'" We call Your Honors' attention only to the second portion of the final report of "Morgenstern": "In addition the following was destroyed: 2 hospitals...." And that report is signed "XV Mountain Corps," and that Corps, at this time, was commanded by the Defendant Leyser.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Next, on Page 104 of the English, Page 81 of the German, Document NOKW-1767, which is offered as prosecution's Exhibit No. 575. This is, again, various reports from the 15th Mountain Corps to Headquarters of the 2nd Panzer Army. The first is the Daily Report of the Corps for the 12th of June 1944. Under 373rd Division there is a notation that this is crossed out in the original document: "At the band hospital discovered on 10 June by Southern Group 'Utwald' 4 rifles and medical dressing materials were seized. 170,000 rounds infantry ammunition, 300 mortar shells, 9 hospital barracks with 500 beds and various" -- it's on page 104 of the English, page 81 of the German--"9 hospital barracks with 500 beds and various medical equipment were destroyed." The report is signed 15th Mountain Corps. I think we need not spend any particular time with the next several pages of the reports from the 15th Mountain Corps. If Your Honors will observe on page 105 of the English, page 81 of the German under "The following was destroyed" -- "1 hospital." And on page 107 of the English, page 82 of the German, the report of the 15th Mountain Corps to the 2nd Panzer Army for the 3rd of June 1944: "1 hospital destroyed." We will turn next to page 108 of the English, page 83 of the German, Document NOKW1777, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 576. These, again, are reports from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH in Berlin. On Page 109 of the English, Page 83 of the German, the portion of the report for the 5th of June 1944 which deals with activities in the area of the 373rd Division: "Croatian Combat Team destroyed band hospital Southeast of Udbina. Supposedly 115 enemy dead." Next on Page 110 of the English, Page 84 of the German, the Daily Report from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH for the 6th of June 1944 under Serbia: "Enemy losses during the past week: Cetniks: 1 dead, 2 captured, Communists: 390 dead, 170 captured, 50 shot as reprisals." I call Your Honors' attention to the late date of this event--6 June 1944. The Commander in Chief Southeast at that time was the Defendant Weichs, and in Serbia Felber was Military Commander, and his Chief of Staff was the Defendant Geitner.

I think we need not read the remainder of the exhibit at this time, but instead turn to Page 113 of the English, Page 86 of the German, Document NOKW-1775, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 577. This is a Daily Report from the Commander in Chief Southeast to OKH for the 11th of July 1944. Under Serbia: "Local band activity. In the Banat 40 Communists were shot as reprisal for an attack on a resettlement train," The report is signed "Commander in Chief Southeast." Again I direct Your Honors' attention to the late date of this report--11th July 1944. Turning next to Page 115 of the English, Page 87 of the German, Document NOKW-1803, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit No. 578, This is a report from the Commandant of the Sea Defense of Attica to the 11th Luftwaffe Field Division. Your Honors' will note the receipt stamp of the Corps Headquarters, 68th Army Corps. The report is dated Headquarters, 31st May 1944, subject: "Band situation in the area of Marathon." I call Your Honors' attention to Paragraph 2 of the report: "Shooting to death of 50 Communists from Marathon and employment for compulsory labor of all other men fit for work. Examination and information concerning intention is requested," signed "Hans Hartmann." On the next page -- Page 116 of the English, Page 87 of the German: "Reprisal measures: Burned down houses K:14, Burned down villages: 1 (Koliaki), Hostages: 107." Next a report from the 11th Luftwaffe Field Division to Corps Headquarters 68th Infantry Corps, subject: "Operation 'Falke'", at the bottom of Page 116 of the English, Page 88 of the German. Your Honors will note the receipt stamp of the 68th Corps for the 26th of June 1944. On Page 117 of the English, Page 88 of the German, the report continues:

"The prisoners and arrestees consist mostly of pronounced criminal types for whom treatment as prisoners of war is much too mild. It is not practical to employ them for work in Germany because they will certainly try to propagate their communist tendencies there.

"It is not permissible under any circumstances to transfer the prisoners to Creek prison camps because they would find their way to freedom either by bribery or by other means. It is suggested to use by the prisoners and arrestees in the area here as hostages."

And then it is written in hand, an initial "K", and the word, "Yes," and the report is signed "Kohler." I think we need not spend any time on the remainder of the document at this time. We will turn to Page

119 of the English, Page 90 of the German, Document NOKW-1804, which is offered as Prosecutions Exhibit No. 579. Those, again, are Daily Reports of the 68th Corps for the months of January, February, and March, 1944; during the time the Defendant Felmy was Commander of the 68th Corps. The first is Daily Report of the 15th of January 1944: "In Tripolis on 13 January a sergeant of the Secret Field Police was shot to death in the open street, 1 Greek policeman and 1 Greek interpreter were wounded. In reprisal 15 January execution of 10 Communists at the place of the surprise attack." Next the Ic Daily Report of 18 January 1944: "Band surprise attack on German officer in Psili-Wrisi (12 Southeast Tripolis). In reprisal 20 communists executed." Continuing the Daily Report for the 8th of January 1944: "As a reprisal measure for the surprise attack near Skala 3 villages destroyed, the shooting to death of 100 hostages intended. In Petras band leader (Italian Lt. Commander) arrested." Most of these reports pertain to material of a similar nature. I think we need not spend any particular amount of time on them at this point. Do call Your Honors' attention to the Daily reports of the Corps, which appear on Page 122 of the English, Page 92 of the German, Daily Report of the 20th of April 1944:

"Intended as reprisal measure for surprise attack Molai:

"1) Shooting to death of about 200 communists in Athens.

"2) Shooting to death of all men encountered outside of the villages in the area of Molai - Sparta by the unit returning to Sparta.

"3) Shooting to death of about 100 band suspects who will be selected by the Greek volunteer Detachments."

On the same page--Page 122 of the English, but 93 of the German, the Daily Report for the 2nd of May 1944: "As reprisal measure for the surprise attack near Molai (Ic Daily Report of 28 April) 200 communists in Athens and 100 EAM members and band suspects on the Peloponnese shot to death by Greek Volunteers." On Page 125 of the English, Page 95 of the German, are two reports to which I call Your Honors' attention. First the Daily Report for the 17th of June 1944: "As reprisal measure for surprise attack on Major in Kalamata (Ic-Daily Report 10 June) 27 communists shot to death at the locality of the incident. For attack on Waltetsi shooting to death of 10 communists." And then the final report in the series, the Daily Report for the 30th of June 1944: "Enemy losses June: 791 dead, 135 wounded (in addition 150 estimated), 218 prisoners (some shot to death in the course of reprisal measures or later combat actions." I will call Your Honors' attention again to the late date of this incident--30th June 1944. This report, as were all others, is signed "LXVIII Infantry Corps."

(Mr. Fenstermacher) Next on page 126 of the English, and 96 of the German, Document NOKW 1795, which is offered as Prosecution Exhibit 580, this is a report, - an Activity Report, for the month of August, 1944, sent to the Assault Division Rhodes, Section Ic. It concerns actions against the Jews on the Island of Rhodes. I think we need not read all of it into the record, but I ask your Honors to turn, please, to page 129 of the English, page 98 of the German:

Furnishing of Quarters and the Italian Government.

With regard to this I repeat the text of the report of the Quarteers Official (Quartieramtsleiter), Sergeant and Interpreter Dr. Thutewehl:

In spite of the great expectations held about the Jewish action, the procurement of furniture encounters greatest difficulties. During the month of August only the Air Force Signal Company, for special-duty, Dodekanes, Assault Division Rhodes IVd, Fusilier Battalion Rhodes, and the crew of the boat M.S. Iro could be furnished individual pieces which, however did not originate from the Jewish Action. From the Jewish Action so far only Assault Division Rhoes, Ia/N, Sea Transportation Branch, Flotilla Command, and Submarine Chasers, received something; to be sure of these the last three only by the fact that houses were made available as billets.

The procurement of furniture from the stocks of deported Jews is evidently sabotaged by the Government. The prescribed procedure for the District Headquarters is to request furniture from the Town Mayor, who, if he cannot supply it, forwards the requests to the Italian Government, which procedure has been followed for months already. The Italian Government has received the requests of the District Headquarters for furniture already more than a month ago, but has not done anything so far.

The Government is not even in the position to state at all what the Jews have left behind. Lately the Government insists that according to an agreement between the Vice Governor and the Chief of the German Military Administration the supplying of the District Headquarters with furniture can only be considered if the Military Administration adds a stamp of approval. The Military Administration, on the other hand, stated that it had nothing to do with this, and is not inclined to affix this stamp to the requests. The Government, with whom the District Headquarters cannot negotiate, because this is entirely a task of the Military Administration, stubbornly answers all inquiries from the Town Mayor's Office, which supports the District Headquarters in every respect, with the assertion that a stamp of approval is necessary. The Chief of the German Military Administration whom I questioned again yesterday about this, held out prospects that he would discuss this matter again with the Government. Up until now we could only obtain furniture if an entire Jewish house was requested by the District Headquarters. As is known, no objection is possible against vacating houses; I myself was witness when a house was transferred by a Government representative to Inspector Sommer from the Sea Transportation Branch. The official who appeared as the representative of the Italian Government disgraced himself to the extent of begging (in the truest sense of the word) to German Official to give him a small table and a curtain because these were still needed in his quarters.

This state of mind is by no means a singular occurrence, and the civilian population is very discontented with the functioning of the Government and of the Commissions for Jews. It has gone so far that the civilian population considers it a mistake that the Jewish property was transferred at all to the Italian Government. To a large extent the Government did not turn the houses over to families which had suffered from air raids but to its friends.

In this respect Minister Toni who gave away several houses is especially mentioned. If people then came who really needed houses they received the answer that they had all be distributed already. Houses were said still to be available in the Turkish section. Repeatedly the applicants received the answer that the houses had all been confiscated by the Germans, although the Wehrmacht is using only 4 Jewish houses. The unfairness of the Italian authorities and of the Commissions is known throughout the town, so that the matter has become a common joke and the Commissions for Jews are called "Shipboarding Parties". Public opinion fore goes mentioning names in connection with the irregularities of unimportant officials. However , the rumor persists that Vice-Governor Faralli is said to show special interest for soap, perfume, and clothing left by the Jews and that Minister Toni is looking for more carpets. Today the opinion is widely spread that one should have turned over the belongings to the Germans and not to the Italian Government.

Your Honors will recall in connection with Jewish deportation from the Island of Rhodes, the affidavit which the prosecution introduced of a man named Lenz.

Turning now to page 133 of the English, and page 100 of the German, Document NOKW 1809 which is offered as Prosecution 581, this is an Activity Report for the month of August 1944 from Group Secret Field Police 611, dated Command Post 27 August 1944. Your Honors will note the receipt stamp of the Commandant of the Fortress Crete, dated 31 August 1944.

The Commandant of Fortress Crete was at this time subordinate to the Commander-in--Chief Southeast, at that time the defendant Weichs:

"I, General review of the Activity of the Group District of Lassith On 17 August 15 bandits armed with Italian carbines and wearing Italian field caps with the writning ELAS appeared 20 kilometers southwest of Ag. Nikoloas" Then on the next page, 134 of the English, page 101 of the German, under section report dealing with the District of Iraklion:

"Two separate operations were carried out against the band group of Petrako Georgios in Conjunction with the unit on 13 - 14 August. The resistance by the bands was so strong that artillery had to be employed. A total of 56 band suspect persons was arrested and given over to the unit for execution.

Resistance movement EANIn the Messara Plain the headquarters of this district was established in the village of Sokara (31 kilometers south Iraklion). On 16 - 17 August during an operation in conjunction with the unit the village was surrounded and 29 communists were arrested.

As reprisal for surprise attacks on members of the unit employed 27 men were shot to death. The instigators will like wise be transferred to the unit for execution as reprisal after interrogation is concluded."

Your Honors will note the distribution:

"Wehrmacht Field Police via Chief Field police Officer with High Command Army Group F.?

Next, on page 135 of the English, page 102 of the German, the report from the 382nd Front Reconnaissance Troop, dated Command Post, 26 August 1944 - asserted that this Group of the Secret Field Police had been the field police of Army Group F. I don't know if I have misunderstood him.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I just understood the last remark as if the Prosecutor had.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I said the Distribution list, the report is to the effect that it went to Wehrmacht Field Police via Chief Field Police Officer with High Command Army Group F. But the main importance of the document, from the Prosecution's standpoint, is the receipt stamp of the report. On the report of the Commandant of Fortress Crete, which the prosecution submits was subordinate to Commander-in-Chief Southeast at this time.

DR. LATERNSEER: The last I do not know, and that would have to be proved.

PRESIDING JUSTICE BURKE: Very well, you may proceed.

DR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 135 of the English, 103 of the German, the report from the 382nd Front Reconnaissance Troop, again Your Honors will note the receipt stamp of the Commandant of Fortress Crete and the date 29 August 1944. The subject of the report is, "Activity and situation report for the month of August. I call Your Honors attention only to paragraph 3:

"III. General SituationThereupon on 12 August the commander ordered that the communist-English bandit terror be broken by reprisal measures.

Then the troops started to act. The numerous operations and reprisal measures which had been carried out more strongly since then have effected speedy improvement of the situation."

The next is on page 137 of the English, 104 of the German, the activity report from the 382nd Front Reconnaissance Troop to Leader of 390th Front Reconnaissance Troop Saloniki for the information of the Commandant of Fortress Crete.

Again Your Honors will note the stamp of the Commandant of Fortress Crete, 7 September 1944. Under the section of the report dealing with, General Situation, Political Observations:

"General situation (Political) observations)

2) By energetic German counter-measures in the second part of the month which up until 9 September lead to the destruction of 13 villages, the shooting to death of approximately 500 bandits and persons adding and abetting bandits and the arrest of about a thousand persons.

For the actions of the unit extensive material was made available concerning band members and their families, persons supplying the bands and for the protection the pro-German population also lists of persons friendly to the Germans. In many cases reprisal measures were carried out on the basis of this material. Unfortunately notwithstanding these precautions 15 Greeks from Sarchos pro-German beyond a doubt who had surrendered to the unit were shot to death by the 6/65 for reasons not as yet clarified."

On page 139 of the English, and 105 of the German, document dated Headquarters 12 September 1944, Subject, Supplement to War Diary from the period from 13 August to 10 September 1944, I call Your Honor's attention to the last paragraph:

"The following thirteen villages were destroyed: Kuneni, Limni, Floria, Anojia, Sokara, Wrysses, Kriaa-Wrissi, Gurgudi, Jerakari, Ano Meros, Siridari, Faleriana and Koxare."

We turn next to page 140 of the English, and page 106 of the German Document, NOKW 051, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 582. This is a directive of the 2nd Panzer Army to the Commander-in-Chief Southeast, High Command Army Group F, and Your Honors will note the receipt stamp of the letter unit dated 20 September, 2205 hours.

"REFERENCE: Bridge Guard "Gipsy Baron" The Panzer Army intends to issue the following order:

Preparations are to be made in such a manner that the Hungarians will not become suspicious in any way and thereby the situation may possibly deteriorate. All possibilities of surprise, for instance employment camouflaged in civilian clothing or Hungarian uniforms, having means available for crossing over, are to be considered in the preparation."

The message is signed, "Chief of Staff, 2nd panzer Army."

Finally on page 142 of the English, page 107 of the German, Document NOKW 1774, which is offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 583, this is a report from Army Unit Serbia, dated Headquarters 4 November 1944, and its title is:

"The battles of Army unit Serbia (Military Commander Southeast) From August, 1944" On page 143 of the English, and 108 of the German is a covering letter, dated Berlin 27 November 1944:

"Dear General:

Pursuant to the request of General Felber, I am submitting to you a short excerpt from the War Diary of the Army Unit Serbia. I had to produce this brief summary after the dissolution of our staff under great pressure of time. I apologize if the style is not beyond reproach but I hope at least that it does not contain errors."

I think we need not read the second paragraph. The letter is signed, "V. Zawaezky, Lt. Colonel GSC".

The report itself begins on page 144 of the English, and 109 of the German, after the creation of the position i August 1943, Military Commander Southeast had a two-fold task:

"On one hand, he was the territorial Commander-in-Chief of Commanders employed in the Southeast (Commander Greece, German General- Plenipotentiary in Albania, Independent Sub-Area Administrative Headquarters Montenegro, German-General-Plenipotentiary in Croatia) and as such was subordinated directly to the OKW.

On the other hand he was subordinated to the Command Staff in Serbia and received his directives concerning problems of the security of the country from the Commander in Chief Southeast (High Command Army Group F).....

A basic change, politically and militarily, was caused by the surrender of Rumania on 23 August.

.....

The Senior SS and Police Leader Serbia was charged with the security of the Banat. For this purpose, he had only two German Police Battalions available besides the Emergency Units of the Luftwaffe and Waffen SS. He fulfilled this task without enemy pressure until the 4th SS Panzer Grenadier Division - brought up Greece and subordinated immediately to Army Group F - was committed from the Northern Banat for an attack on Temeschburg."

I think we may skip from there, Your Honor, to page 145 of the English, 110 of the German, the middle of the page:

"The evacuation of 20,000 foreign workers, 12000 wounded and several hundred Reich German Specialists was made possible by the liberation in battle of Zajecar and the road to Bor. Since no more transport possibilities existed, the plant stopped production.

"The development of the situation caused the administrative tasks of the Military Commander Southeast to recede into the background. Even the transfer of the "executive power" after the "Nedic" Government had left for Germany, had no practical significance. However tactical tasks came completely to the fore. Consequently, the order of Commander in Chief Southeast of 6 Oct. with simultaneous change of Chief of Staff eased the burden on the Operation Staff.

The Operation Staff was renamed "Army Unit Serbia (Military Commander Southeast". Corps Headquarters F.W. Muller, Commanding South of the Danube and Corps Headquarters Schneckenburger, Commanding North of the Danube were subordinated to it at that time on the East Front."

There are two signatures on the document, "Freiherr v. Weichs, Field Marshal, and Felber, Lt. General of Infantry."

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, may I ask how on page 109 of the German document book, and on page 144 of the English Document book, the words: "in Frangen der Sicherung des Landes" are translated?

May I request that this sentence be submitted to the interpreters for checking the translation?

The sentence in question is on page 144 of the English document book.

PRESIDING JUSTICE BURKE: At this time the Tribunal will stand in recess for 15 minutes.

(In recess until three twenty)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will be seated.

The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, just before the recess, I asked that the expression contained on page 144 in the English Document Book in the second paragraph, the last sentence there, should be retranslated.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: That may be done.

THE INTERPRETER: Page 144 of the English Document Book, the sentence reads: "On the other hand, he was subordinated to the Command Staff in Serbia and received his directives concerning problems of the securing of the country from the Commander in Chief Southeast, High Command Army Group F." That is the end of the sentence.

DR. LATERNSEER: If I understood correctly, the English text now has been changed, the word "security" has been changed to "securing". Is that correct?

THE INTERPRETER: That is correct.

DR. LATERNSEER: In this connection, may I point out that a short time ago, I had moved that the words "Sicherheit" and "Sicherung" should be translated by the Chief of the Translation Branch. The answer has so far not been received.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Has the prosecution any explanation for the delay?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I don't think the prosecution understood that it was its duty to forward Dr. Laternseer's application, your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Has the application been forwarded?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We have had no notice of any written application to that effect.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I am now being advised that this motion has to be put in writing. I shall do that. Up to now, I had assumed that motions made during the proceedings would be transmitted by the General Secretary to the competent authority.

However, now I shall put this motion in writing.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I should think it would be to the interest of all concerned that a simple matter of an honest translation for the Tribunal could be procured by the cooperation of all parties interested in this: counsel for defense, counsel for prosecution, and the interpreter. I should suggest that it be done without further formality and without further delay.

The Tribunal desires to offer the following suggestion for the record with respect to the application made on behalf of the defendant Felmy with the request that certain interrogatories be sent to Bishop Spiridinos in Greece.

The ruling previously made by the Tribunal in respect to a similar application on the part of other defendants and after considering the objections made on behalf of the prosecution, the same ruling will be made for the same reasons and the interrogatories may be forwarded for answer. A formal order by the Tribunal will be written and filed with the Secretary General.

You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, the lists which go at the end of Document Book 24 being a list of the documents, the exhibits and the counts of the indictment with which they are offered, and the defendant in connection with which they are offered are now ready for distribution. Three copies to your Honors.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: They will be marked for identification by what number, Hr. Fenstermacher?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Since the last document in Document Book 24 was Exhibit 555, your Honor, this should be marked Exhibit 555-A for identification. The page numbers in the English Document Book will be page 255 and 256, and in the German Document Book page 187 and 188. There is also an addendum to Document Book 24 which will take care of those documents which were submitted at the end of that book, and I now pass a similar list to your Honors containing the material and table on that list. I will pass 24 copies to defense counsel and copies to the Secretary General, court interpreters and court stenographers. This addendum, if your Honors please, should be marked 555-A/1 and is page 257 in the English and page 189 in the German.

There is just one further document which prosecution would like to submit at this time.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, since the prosecution has finished Document Book 25, I ask to be allowed to put a question which has been touched already at an earlier time. I would like to ask what now has become subject of the proceedings with respect to Document Book 25 and even generally speaking.

The parts that have been read -- have only those parts become subject of the proceedings or the whole document book? The answer to this question is very important for the preparation of our defense.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is the opinion of the Tribunal that the entire document whether translated or not is submitted for the consideration of the Tribunal and for the defense counsel.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, not only then the total contents of a document book but beyond that the Exhibit becomes subject of the proceedings -- that is, the exhibit that the prosecution has submitted, even if it hasn't been completely translated.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: That is correct.

DR. LATERNERS: Thank you very much.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, in this connection, may I ask a favor? Unfortunately, in recent days -- maybe that is because of a technical disturbance. We do not receive photostats of the documents. According to what Dr. Laternser has just mentioned, the following would result. Those documents are submitted to the General Secretary are not in verbal agreement with what is contained in the German or English Document Book. Therefore, at least we should be in a position to have the text just as it is submitted to the General Secretary, but I believe it will not be technically possible, your Honor, that we ask the General Secretary to put at our disposal exhibits which have been given to him; and therefore I would like to ask the prosecution to let us have at our request photostats of those exhibits which they have submitted.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, it has always been my understanding that there is a copy of each document which is put into evidence by the prosecution always available at the defense information center. Now if that procedure has not been honored, prosecution will certainly investigate it but I know that just two or three weeks prior to the indictment, practically all of the documents which the prosecution intended to submit in its direct case were given to the defense information center.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I think that is the information that has been conveyed to the Tribunal from time to time. At least, that is the impression that I have had of it.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, that is how it used to be earlier on, but I just permitted myself to point out that there have been difficulties in this respect, and therefore since we have only now a comparatively short period at our disposal -

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I am waiting for the interpretation for the last minute or so.

DR. FRITSCH: Your Honor, that has been so up till now but, recently there have apparently been technical difficulties. Therefore, I put this request, that the prosecution should try to help us and overcome and solve these technical difficulties. At the present time, I do not receive any photostats.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, prosecution will be very glad to investigate and see that a copy, a photostatic copy of every document which the prosecution has introduced as part of the direct case is placed in the defense information center for the use of defense counsel.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It was the information of the Tribunal that such a course had been followed and it must be followed if it has not.

DR. SAUTER: Your Honor, maybe I can explain this difficulty. Generally, it is handled the way the prosecutor explained it. That is, one photostat comes to the defense information center and is then at the disposal of the defense. Now, about ten days ago, there were difficulties. I couldn't ascertain why, but all of a sudden we were told that these photostats could only be looked at at the office of the defense administrator and I protested against this and I demanded that we should be allowed to take the photostats with us because quite often we had to show them to the defendants so that their signatures or other people's signatures could be glanced at and identified.

In answer to my request, this has been rectified and now we receive these documents.

If my colleague shakes his head, that is to be explained by the fact that always only one photostat is at our disposal but the majority of the defense counsel has an interest to look at this one photostat or show it to their clients. Now if, for instance, I have this photostat and another one of my colleagues gets it afterwards, then the fifth or sixth or seventh colleague gets into the awkward situation at a time when he requests the document it is not available.

That follows from the fact, of course, that there are about ten defense counsel and only one photostat. That is what I wanted to say in order to inform the Tribunal about the actual facts.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: If it is a matter of cooperation which will result in the fair distribution in the use of the photostat, I should think it might easily be arrived at; if it is a matter of cooperation on the part of the Prosecution. I'm sure there should be no hesitation in affording that cooperation because after all what the Tribunal is interested in ultimately is the determination of the facts on the basis of evidence fairly and justly presented. You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: As the final document which the Prosecution offers, we offer Document NOKW 1898 as Prosecution Exhibit 584. This is a very voluminous document but I believe highly readable and very valuable and most interesting report, written by the Chief Counsel of Army Archives, Ernst Wisshaupt, by order of the Chief of the General Staff. The title is "The Combatting of the Insurgent Movement in the Southeast Area," and the document which we have, the only document which we could find in regard to this, is part 1, June 1941 to August 1942. We do not know whether there was a second part. If so we have been unable to find such a succeeding part. The first part of the work comprises pages 1 to 247, 1 outline map, and sketches. The work is to serve as a basis for a future historical documentation. It is secret material, only to be used in line of duty and is subject to the orders regarding security."

Your Honors will note the stamp of the Commander in Chief Southeast, High Command Army Group F, 1 February 1944 on the first page of the document.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Do you wish to designate it as a new document number or new book number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I should suggest giving it a new document number which would be 584 and it comes at the end of course of Document Book XXV.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Is it a part of Document Book XXV in that respect?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, it could be considered an addendum to Document Book XXV. The first 75 pages of the report are of the most importance from the Prosecution's standpoint but the whole document gives a very revealing picture of political and military events in the Southeast area from the period which the report covers that is June 1941 to August 1942.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Mr. Fenstermacher, has the photostat of the original been made available to defense counsel?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I am not sure about that your Honor. It is a terribly voluminous job to photostat this long report and I am told in the last week or two there has been quite a shortage of photostat paper in the photostat room but there is a standing order that all documents which we would

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Noise, hammering outdoors. The competition is rather keen Mr. Fenstermacher.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The Prosecution has a standing order with the document room that any document which it sends up to it for a document number should be photostated immediately. I am not sure precisely whether this was done in this particular case. If it was not it was probably because of this shortage of photostat paper but I shall check on it and see that it is furnished the defense as soon as possible.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Will that arrangement be satisfactory to you, Dr. Laternser? Dr. Laternser has indicated that that will be satisfactory to him. You may proceed.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: With your Honors permission I should begin to read the first few pages of this document. I don't know how far I will be able to get but I think it is all highly readable and most interesting and most relevant.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Were you anticipating the privilege of reading the entire document?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, I was asking simply if I might read the first 20 or 25 pages which I believe I can finish before 4:30.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well. Will we complete the assignment today?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, your Honor, that will complete the Prosecution's direct case, your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well, you may proceed. It has been intimated to me by my distinguished colleague that ultimately we will read it ourselves; we might save you the time and save ourselves the necessity of listening to repetition on it.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well, your Honor.

JUDGE CARTER: Unless it is your thought that what you are planning to read is all we should look for in the case.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I'm afraid not; I am afraid I will have to ask your Honors to read all of it. I simply wanted to read the introduction to give you the framework, and if there are any questions that you had they could be answered at this time but I am perfectly willing to let it go by the board.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I think we will concur in your request to consider that we will read it ourselves.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well, your Honors. I think then your Honor that completes the Prosecution's direct case. We intend to present during the next succeeding days, as soon as they are typed and mimeographed, a list with the counts, with the document numbers and exhibit numbers, counts of indictment and defense against whom the documents are offered, for Document Book XXV, and we are also preparing individual lists for each of the individual defendants, giving a list of the documents which were offered against each defendant, their exhibit number and the counts of the indictment with respect to which they were offered. They will be ready I think in two or three days and we can either distribute them to the defense counsel and your Honors at that time or hold off offering them until we reconvene.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is the opinion of the Tribunal that they should be given to the defense counsel as soon as they may be properly prepared.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well, we will do that your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: We assume you are referring to the additional pages usually included at the end of the each of document books.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: That is correct, your Honor, for Document Book XXV and we are making individual lists, dividing the documents and the exhibit numbers for each individual defendant.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: And they will be furnished to the counsel for the defendants?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors, the Prosecution Rests.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The record may show that the Prosecution has rested.

(PROSECUTION RESTS)

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, the Tribunal will surely understand that the defense has the wish to clarify one particular point. I am asking to have the Prosecution explain when or if at all the two delegates of the defense will be allowed to make their trip or whether the Prosecution intends to carry out point 2 of the ruling and get the material required here to Nurnberg. The defense wishes to have this particular point clarified so that it knows where they stand.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Mr. Fenstermacher, does the Prosecution have any comment on that?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, I know that a copy of all the incomplete documents which the Prosecution offered as a part of the direct case was sent to the proper authorities in the War Department in Washington, D.C. We have not yet heard from them. We do not know whether they have begun the task of photostating this material or not but in that regard we have done everything that is possible from the Prosecution's standpoint at this end. With respect to the trip of the defense representatives to Washington: I know the matter has been taken up with Military Government authorities in Berlin and we are awaiting their opinion in that respect but again the Prosecution has taken all the procedural steps from this end which it has been possible to do so up to this time.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: I might state that I was advised during the recess by Mr. Denney that he had written two or three letters within the last three or four days to the War Department, that there has been also several cablegrams sent to the War Department by the office of the Chief of Counsel for War Crimes here in Nurnberg, particularly by Mr. Denney, that also there has been cablegrams sent by the Legal Department at Berlin and as yet there has been no definite reply from Washington. The matter is apparently receiving attention. Now as to what course will be followed Mr. Denney does not know. It is quite possible that they may bring the documents over here to Nurnberg by special courier and if that course is followed then that will meet the requirements of the ruling heretofore made. If that isn't followed then we can either send one or two representatives of the defense there or take the effect of the third alternative of the ruling. But, there has been very several letters and a number of cablegrams sent within the last three or four days.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I would like you to ask the Prosecution approximately when we can count on the arrival of the material which they have requested.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: I think it will be almost impossible to answer that question, Dr. Laternser. From personal experiences with the War Department I would say that it would not be too prompt.

JUDGE CARTER: I do think, Mr. Fenstermacher, at your very earliest convenience you ought to tell them which method is to be pursued even though you can't give them the detail.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We will certainly be able to do that.

JUDGE CARTER: The War Department ought to be able to make that decision without too much trouble and really it should have been done by now.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We will certainly be glad to inform the defense as soon as we hear.

DR. LATERNSEER: Thank you, your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Are there any further matters on behalf of the Prosecution?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No further matters at this time.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal will stand adjourned----

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Pardon me, Judge Burke, may I inquire as to whether or not there are any undisposed of applications or matters which have not received the attention of the Tribunal? I am asking this because we are adjourning for several days and I want to see that everything is taken care of before we leave.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The Prosecution knows of no such matters, your Honor.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Are there any applications on behalf of the defense that have not received attention. I might say as far as everything coming to my desk is concerned, everything has been disposed of. There may be other matters not gone through the channels and received the attention of other departments but everything up to date that has been received by the Tribunal has been disposed of. Now if there is anything else we would like to know it.

DR. GAWLIK (Attorney for the defendant Dehner): Your Honor, I have requested a number of witnesses, and also made application for documents. I have received no decision in answer to this application. I don't know whether these applications are still pending, or whether a decision has already been made. I have only been in a position to make the application a few days ago because I have only recently taken over the case of the defendant Dehner.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Mr. Denney was in my office during the recess and had several of the applications in his hand, and apparently there will be no objections on the part of the Prosecution and we shall endeavor to take care of those before we leave. Now, I might ask Dr. Gawlik whether or not these witnesses will all testify to the same matter or will they testify to different matters?

We do not want to bring a lot of witnesses on matters that will be purely accumulative.

DR. GAWLIK: Your Honor, they are going to testify to various matters, to various points of the indictment. I have endeavored never to call two witnesses to testify on the same point.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Very well.

DR. SAUTER (Attorney for the defendants Lanz and von Geitner): About eight or ten days ago I sent in three questionnaires for three witnesses in Greece on behalf of the defendant von Geitner. I have not requested the witnesses to come here because the distance is too great but I send in questionnaires in the same manner as it was done during the first trial. These questionnaires of the three witnesses were properly sent by me to the General Secretary. Whether this application has now been sent to the Tribunal by the General Secretary I do not know.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Dr. Sauter, I think I can save you some time and perhaps some time for the Tribunal. The request was forwarded to the Tribunal; the Tribunal has considered it; the Tribunal has acted favorably on it and the report of the Tribunal to the Secretary-General has been typed and it is in his possession, the same as that procedure followed in the case of the defendant Felmy, as announced in today's session. The objections of the Prosecution were overruled and your interrogatories should promptly be on their way.

DR. GAWLIK: Thank you, your Honor.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: If there is nothing else, the Tribunal will stand adjourned until 12 September 1947, at 9:30 o'clock A.M.

(The Tribunal will recess until 0930 o'clock, 12 Sept 47)

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List, et al., defendants sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 15 September 1947, Judge Wennerstrum presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, will you ascertain if all the defendants are present in the Courtroom?

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honors, all the defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal is advised that three of the eleven opening statements -- three or four of the eleven opening statements have been prepared and have been submitted to the Translation Department and are ready for delivery to this Tribunal. This Tribunal adjourned and was to convene on September the 13th. This is now September the 15th. The Tribunal finds no excuse for counsel not having their opening statements ready, prepared, submitted to the Translation Department and ready for delivery to this Tribunal.

We shall hear the three or four opening statements which have been prepared and are ready for delivery in their English translation and shall proceed then with the evidence as to those cases or defendants whose translations are completed.

I again wish to repeat that the Tribunal does not look with favor at this inconvenience on the part of defense counsel not to have their translations ready and submitted to this Tribunal at this time. We shall now proceed to the opening statements on behalf of the defense and for such defendants as there are translations completed and ready.

Mr. Denney, did you have some matter?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, there is just one matter for the record with reference to the Geneva Convention of 1929 governing the treatment of prisoners-of-war and the Hague regulations with amendments, parts of which ---that is, the Hague regulations with amendments, parts of these have been read into the record.

I wonder if at this time it would be convenient for the Tribunal to indicate whether or not they desire that copies of these Hague and Geneva regulations be physically offered or whether the Court will judicially notice them and consider that as sufficient.

I believe all defense counsel are familiar with the regulations in question.

THE PRESIDENT: These matters to which you refer, Mr. Denney, are merely authorities for such guidance or interpretation as the Court may wish to make use of them in its final decision, and the Tribunal will take judicial notice of them and accept them as authorities and consider them in our final determination of the case.

Court No. V, Case No. VII.

MR. DENNEY: And it will not be necessary then to physically submit them?

THE PRESIDENT: It will not.

MR. DENNEY: Thank you, your Honor.

And Mr. Fenstermacher has several matters with reference to inquiries which the Court have made. I believe one with reference to a statement by an affiant which was offered as part of Exhibit 100-B in evidence, which he would like to clear up at this time.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: If the Tribunal please, I have received this morning from the Yugoslav delegation a memorandum which I would like to read on the record, addressed to me from Lt. Col. Svonimir Ostric, Chief of the Yugoslav delegation attached to the Office of Chief of Counsel for War Crimes, dated Nurnberg, 13 September 1947.

"In connection with your inquiry, this delegation is informed by the Yugoslav War Crimes Commission in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, as follows:

"Kiesel, Dr. Georg, a high war adviser in Turner's staff in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, was by the Yugoslav Military Tribunal on 10 March 1946 in Belgrade, Yugoslavia sentenced to death. The death sentence has been carried out."

Signed, Chief of Yugoslav Delegation, Lt. Col. Svonimir Ostric.

I should like to hand Dr. Laternser a copy of this memorandum at this time. Your Honors will recall that an affidavit of Kiesel was introduced into evidence as part of Exhibit 100-B and that defense counsel then applied to have Kiesel brought here for cross-examination purposes.

During the period during which the Tribunal was in recess, the prosecution prepared and distributed to your Honors and to all of defense counsel lists of exhibits which were offered against each of the individual defendants and the counts of the indictment to which the exhibits and the documents pertained.

We also prepared and distributed to your Honors and to defense counsel a table of all of the exhibit numbers both in chronological order and in the order of the document number so that at any time if any of the interested parties know only the document number, they will be able to turn quickly to the precise exhibit number and vice versa.

THE PRESIDENT: Are defense counsel ready to present their opening statements?

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I have been asked by my colleagues to ascertain which ones of the translations of the opening statements are available and ready and which ones are not. Is the General Secretary informed of this?

THE PRESIDENT: Can you give us any information as to that, Mr. Deputy Secretary General?

DEPUTY SECRETARY GENERAL: Last Friday we were informed that there was just one prepared from the defense center. That was Dr. Laternser's pertaining to defendant List. I have received no further information, sir.

THE PRESIDENT: And the Tribunal was informed there were four that were now completed. I understand that Dr. Laternser's was one of them. As to which of the others are included in the three, I am not able to ascertain.

Mr. Marshal, will you find out which of the translations are completed and inform me and the respective counsel without interrupting Dr. Laternser in his opening statement. Perhaps there are some of them that were just delivered here now.

DEPUTY SECRETARY GENERAL: These are German copies.

THE PRESIDENT: If you will ascertain from the Translation Department either by telephone or by going up there and then advise me and the respective counsel and get them down here so that we can make use of them as soon as possible, it will be appreciated and which are completed in their translation are ready for delivery here.

The respective counsel will be advised as to whether or not their translations are ready for delivery. In the meantime, you may proceed with your opening statement, Dr. Laternser.

DR. LATERNSE: Defense Counsel for defendants List and Weichs.

"Your Honors:

In his essay in the British Yearbook for International law (1944, Pages 58-95), which has already been quoted by the prosecution in the opening statement professor LAUTERPACHT has made reference to a problem which is peculiar for the proceedings against alleged war criminals. It is the problem of the uncertainties of laws of war. These uncertainties of the laws of war make it imperative that the defense as well already at the present stage of the trial explain its conception regarding the problems of international law, which will be of importance for the judgments of the actions of the defendants especially since the prosecution has already presented its concept of the law to the court. For the law is the framework within which the prosecution and the defense present their evidence before the court and within which the court assembles the facts which are offered not at the time of the determining of the judgment but also during the course of the evidence proceedings.

"The problems on which the matter hinges have been mentioned in principal by the prosecutor in his opening "statement and I intend to treat them in the same sequence as has the prosecution.

"To begin with I wish to emphasize that I purposely am quoting in the main sources from the anglo-american legal circles using such material as a guide in the interpretation of international law insofar as this is of importance in this trial for it cannot be denied that in the field of science and practice of international law the onus now lies upon these minds.

"The first problem which I wish to take up is that of acting upon orders. Logically enough, it is not the primary one, but by far the factual and psychological key for the conduct of the defendants which forms the subject of this trial. The prosecutor passed this point very quickly. I shall treat it more in detail not simply because, as I have already stated, it offers the explanation for many events which are being discussed here but because from the standpoint of international law it is much more complicated than one can infer from the opening statement of the prosecution.

"The sole basis for the punishment of war crimes is international law, for war crimes are transgressions of international law, which is to be differentiated from the law of the states against which the war crimes have been committed. Prof. Lauterpacht particularly emphasized this point in his essay 'The Law of Nations and the Punishment of War Crimes' in the British Yearbook for International Law (1944, Page 59) which essay has already been quoted:

"I quote:

'For the cause of international law demands not only the punishment of persons guilty of war crimes. It requires that such punishment shall take place in accordance with international law.'

"And further on he states again:

'That law is, and must be, primarily, the law of nations. For, it must be repeated, it is only to the extent that the acts of these offenders are prohibited by international law, that they can at all be considered as crimes according to the law of the individual states.'

"Prof. Kelsen, the founder of the so-called Vienna School for state and International Law, now Professor of International Law in the United States, expresses himself similarly in his book 'Peace Through Law' published in 1944, he writes:

'These acts, that is, war crimes are forbidden directly by international law. The military court, by punishing the acts, executes international Law even if it applies at the same time forms of its own military law.'

"In this sense must the sentence from the verdict of the International Military Tribunal also be interpreted since the London Statute is the expression of existing international law at the time of the creation of the statute.

"From this it follows:

"The prosecution and punishment of war crimes is an exercise of law only insofar as this takes place within the framework of international law. What transpires beyond that point is the utilization of power and not law. That is the reason why in the proceedings before the International Military Tribunal the British Chief Prosecutor examined as the fundamental problem of his statements how the statute was in accord with valid international law. For general international law cannot be altered through unilateral action of the victorious powers or through special agreements amongst one another even when these may appear in the form of statutes or laws.

How is the plea of superior orders in the commission of war crimes to be evaluated according to international law?

Prof. OPPENHEIM, who was for many years senior consultant of the British Admiralty and who must be regarded in the field of international law as the criterion during the past decades, stated the following in this respect in his book "International Law" "Violations of rules regarding Warfare are War Crimes only when committed without an order of the belligerent Government concerned.

If members of the armed forces commit violations by order of their Government they are not war criminals and cannot be punished by the enemy; the latter can, however, resort to reprisals. In case members of forces commit violations ordered by their commanders, the members cannot be punished for the commanders are alone responsible and the latter may, therefore, be punished as war criminals on their capture by the enemy."

Prof. OFPENHEIM maintained this opinion during his entire life, from the first to the fifth edition of his "International Law", which is a standard text in international law literature throughout the world. Like many authors he does not differentiate between the plea of an act of the state, as is being discussed and the plea of an order of an otherwise military superior.

George Manner, the American International Law expert, who treats the subject of plea of superior orders and act of state in the article "The Legal Nature and Punishment of Criminal Acts of Violence Contrary to the Laws of War". I quote as follows:

"The maxim that members of the armed services of a country are not personally responsible and liable to penal punishment for acts perpetrated by them in contravention of the rules of warfare under the orders or sanction of their governmental or military superiors does not form part of the codified law of war.

Nevertheless, it appears to be a recognized principle of this law. Since 1914, at least the maxim has been incorporated in the war manuals of the Powers as a rule of the customary laws of war."

Also in further passages he again characterizes the above pleas of superior orders, and by act of state as a generally recognized maxims of positive law which limit the punishment of war crimes because they are components of the rules of warfare. I believe that the opinion expressed in the opening statement of the prosecution with reference to the plea of military orders that the recognition of this excuse is the result of a perverted view regarding military discipline does not get at the root of the problem.

The question of military discipline in actions that are committed under orders is of importance only in the national penal laws of different states. Here in this trial, however, the matter under debate is the norm of positive international law independent of its cause, that acting upon military orders excludes the prosecution of war crimes by courts of the enemy states against whoever acted upon orders. This extremely important difference can easily be overlooked.

Section 347 of the American Rules of Land-Warfare, which was edited under the direction of the Judge Advocate General and published by the War Department of the United States in 1940 and is still valid today, explains, following the enumeration of the possible war crimes, and I quote:

"Individuals of the armed forces will not be punished for these offenses in case they are committed under the orders or sanction of their government or commanders.

The commanders ordering the commission of such acts, or under whose authority they are committed by their troops, may be Punished by the belligerent into whose hands they may fall."

There can be no doubt that the official interpretation of the War Department of the United States is represented by this decree with reference to the status of International Law in the question of actions under military orders in cases of war crimes.

The same point of view was held until 1944 by the competent British offices in the British Manual of Military Law, No. 443, of which, after enumerating the possible war crimes, continued: and I quote:

"It is important, however, to note that members of the armed forces who commit such violations of the recognized rules of warfare as are ordered by their Government, or by their commander, are not war criminals and cannot therefore be punished by the enemy. He may punish the officials or commanders responsible for such orders if they fall into his hands, but otherwise he may only resort to the other means of obtaining regress which are dealt with in this chapter."

In this respect Prof. LAUTERBACHT, writes in his essay in the English Yearbook of International Law 1944:

("Although Chapter XIV of the military Manual has not been given statutory force it is, in general an exposition of the conventional and customary rules of international law as understood by Great Britain.") It is my opinion that the plea of superior orders is a generally recognized maxim of international law demonstrated by excellent authors on the subject of International Law and by the military handbooks of the United States and Great Britain.

This principle was already generally recognized 100 years ago, as is shown by the famous case of Mac Leod. During an insurrection against the British administration in Canada in 1837, members of the British Colonial forces attacked an American ship, the Caroline, which was moored on the American side of Niagara Falls, because they suspected the passengers were insurgents. They burned the ship and let it be carried over the falls. An American citizen lost his life in this incident. In 1840, Mac Leod, a British subject, was arrested by the New York officials for participation in the act against the "Caroline" and brought before the Court. The British Ambassador in Washington demanded the immediate release of Mac Leod on the basis that the destruction of the Caroline "was a public act by persons in the service of their majesty and who were obeying the orders of their superiors." The American Secretary of State Webster recognized the validity of the British argument and declared: "That an individual who is a member of a public armed force and who acts under powers invested in him by his government cannot be held responsible as a transgressor of the law, is a principle of public law which is sanctioned by the customs of all civilized nations and which the the government of the United States is not inclined to contest."

This was brought further into practice in the well-known case of the sinking of the British steamship Lusitania by a German submarine during the first World War. At that time the British Prime Asquith declared himself against a prosecution of the perpetrators since they had acted under orders. (This attitude of Prime Minister Asquith is quoted in De. Lapradelle-Larnaude, Examen de la responsabilite "Journal de Droit International," Attempts have been made to deviate from this maxim of International law.

In Section 228 of the Versailles Treaty the German Government recognized the right of the Allied and Associated powers "to bring those persons accused of having committed actions in violation of the laws and customs of war before before military courts."

The American expert in International Law, Prof. FENWICK, in his book "International Law" characterizes as one of the reasons why this decree of the Versailles Treaty was not executed, ".....The obvious legal difficulty that many of the accused persons had acted in obedience to higher authority."

These legal difficulties could have only been eliminated by a conventional rule on the problem. Therefore, and I quote Prof. FENWICK again, efforts were made to create a new conventional rule with regard to this subject.

At the Washington Conference in 1922 the following provision was incorporated into the treaty in Section 3 regarding the use of submarines; that a violation of the treaty provisions regarding the attack, seizure or destruction of commercial ships should be punished as "piracy" regardless whether the perpetrator acted under orders of a superior. This treaty was never ratified.

This question was taken up again in 1930 at the London Naval Conference. In Part IV of the Naval Treaty of 22 April 1930 it was decreed that submarines had to observe the same rules of international law in their actions against commercial ships as were observed by surface craft. The clause that the perpetrator be held responsible for actions which have been committed under orders in violation of these rules is not to be found in the text of this treaty. From this one must conclude that the appendix contained in the Washington version is not in agreement with the opinion of the signatories of the London Submarine Protocol.

The Jurists Commission which was assigned to the task of revising the rules of warfare by the powers participant in the Washington Treaty expressly stated in their report in a provision that persons acting unders are free from any responsibility for those crimes against the rules of warfare contained in their report.

The attempts to incorporate into international law in a manner effective under international law the principle of prosecution of war crimes committed under orders were thereby unsuccessful. It is of importance that in spite of the efforts to initiate amendments the American Rules of Land Warfare as well as the British Military Manual adhered to the earlier principle of non-punishment.

The provision of the American Rules of Land Warfare that individuals may not be prosecuted for war crimes committed under orders is still valid today. In contrast, 443 of the British Military Manual was re-edited in 1944 by which the interpretation of the problem according to the international law up to that time was supplanted by the maxims which were developed within national British law covering illegal actions committed under military orders.

If one examines the events to which this amendment can be traced, then one finds that the Moscow Declaration of October 1943 had set the precedent. In this the punishment of War Crimes without regard to the possible orders of military superiors was made certain. I do not believe it is necessary to make particular emphasis of the fact that this declaration was a political act and presented no effective source of new international law.

Officially the circumstances that in the posthumous edition of the textbook of Professor OPPENHEIM (6th edition, 1940) prepared during the war by Professor LAUTERPACHT, the attitude had shifted towards the question of prosecution of war crimes committed under orders, was stated as the reason for amending Article 443 of the British Military Manual.

Prof. LAUTERPACHT had further expressed an opinion against Article 443 of the Military Manual in his essay "International Law and the Punishment of War Crimes".

Prof. LAUTERPACHT certainly is a very modern scholar and his essay is excellent, but I believe it cannot remain unnoticed in a critical analysis that his reasons for the above-mentioned opinion from the point of view of international law are very weak.

The view of Professor LAUTERPACHT, shared by a few others, is in any case also termed "more than questionable" by Professor Kelsen. Concerning the opinion set forth in the five previous editions of OPPENHEIM's textbook and of Article 443 of the British Military Manual, Professor LAUTERPACHT maintains that they represent no sound principle of military law, requiring for this reason a definite amendment of article 443: I quote:

"Unless the scope of persecutions for war crimes is to be drastically and unduly curtailed", but this reminds us, the defense counsels, of a certain phase of the legal development within the state, which has in the meantime become a thing of the past, and in which prevalence is given to the idea of the justifying end and the so-called sound popular feeling as against the norms of positive law.

And as regards the "sound legal principle" which is supposed to be provided by reason, the following view expressed by Professor OPPENHEIM about "reason" applies: I quote:

"I cannot agree reason being a source of law. Reason is a means of interpreting law, but it cannot call law into existence."

It is just as much out of the question that reason alone can modify existing international law.

The fact that the Supreme Court of the United States, as pointed out by Professor LAUTERPACHT in one case concerning espionage and sabotage maintained emphatically the direct criminal responsibility of individuals for violation of military laws, can by no means be taken as a precedent applying to the problem under discussion. For as soon as espionage and wartime treason are involved, the prosecution of offenders acting by order has always been recognized as lawful in international law contrary to the general law.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

DR. LATERNSEER: The Prosecution maintains that if the defendants would plead that their acts were committed by order of higher authority, they would find a stumbling block already in Article 47 of their own Military Penal Code. Here, however, they fail to consider that the plea of acting by order is judged in different ways in international law, which has to be applied when alleged war criminals are prosecuted by an enemy state, and in the national, law of the individual states. According to the principles of national law of civilized states the possibility of carrying through a criminal procedure will with certain differences in each district of jurisdiction -- be dependent upon whether and how far the offender perceived his actions to be unlawful, or whether and how far his guilt was neutralized or mitigated through duress. From the point of view of international law, on the other hand, one acting by order I adopt.

the view of the American Rules of Land Warfare - is a fact excluding as a matter of principle the prosecution for war crimes by a foreign state. This basic difference is also stressed by Professor LAUTERPACHT in his essay "International Law and Punishment of War Crimes" being summarized in the following words:

"It is an interesting gloss on the complexity of the problem that in Great Britain and in the United States the plea of superior orders is, on the whole, without decisive effect in internal criminal or constitutional law, although it is apparently treated as a full justification in relation to war crimes."

For this reason it is impossible to adduce the verdict of the German Supreme Court in the case of Llandovery Castle pronounced in the time following the first world war, in justification of the re-drafting of Article 443, as it is done in Amendment 34 of the British Military Manual, in Footnote 4 to Article 443. In the examination of the question whether and how far the accused German U-boat officers could plead action by order of superiors the Supreme Court had to apply not international law, but only national German law.

Article 47 of the German Military Penal Code can moreover be used as foundation for the punishment of military subordinate only in case the order issued by the superior was in violation of German law. As orders issued by Hitler in Germany and for German authorities and law-courts were law, a soldier acting by force of an order from Hitler could not be punished not even in pursuance of Article 47 of the Military Penal Code, even when Hitler's order constituted violations of generally recognized ideas of law or of international law.

I conclude my statements concerning this problem with a reference to the words of Professor OPPENHEIM, the firm champion of the version to which I appeal, which are to be found in the foreword to the second volume of his work.

"I have tried to write this volume in a truly international spirit, neither taking any one nation's part nor denouncing any other. It is to be deplored that many writers on the Law of war and neutrality should take every opportunity of displaying their political sympathies and antipathies and should confuse their own ideas of justice, humanity, and morality with the universally recognized rules of warfare and neutrality."

I have shown that the plea of superior orders is a long recognized basic maxim of international law, which limits the punishing of war crimes. But Control Council Law No. 10, which decrees something different, is binding for the court, says the Public Prosecution. I believe that the court is only bound by international law. Control Council Law No. 10 is based upon the combined authority of four victor nations, and this authority goes no further than the powers with which the sovereignty of each individual state invests it in the community of international law. The general international law, which, as has been said, recognized the plea of superior orders was effective, may only be revised by general conventions or by an administration of law based upon general recognition, not, however, by unilateral acts of the victor nations which are directed against a conquered nation. To be sure, an occupying power has the power to issue laws for the occupied territory; but it is just as certain that these laws may not interfere in the sphere of international law. For who military occupation does not transfer the sovereignty of the conquered nation to the occupying power, by virtue of which a nation acts in the sphere of international law, but it bestows only that part of the governing power which is necessary to make it possible for the occupying force to have an effective control over the occupied territory during the length of the occupation.

The rights of the occupying power are established and limited as binding in the Hague Convention, and we find a detailed definition of the powers of an occupying force in Chapter 10 of the American Rules of Land warfare. Not only is every authority lacking for empowering an occupying force to create, suspend or alter international law while acting for the conquered state. Rather, we establish the fact that it was never doubtful that an occupying force did not have this right and that this limitation of its powers proceeds quite clearly from the Hague Convention. Such powers of an occupying force could only arise through annexation, which, however, was expressly disapproved of in the London Declaration of 5 August 1945.

I believe that here there is a special reason for referring to the basic difference between the ideas of justice and humanity and the recognized terms of international law, because from the opening speech of the prosecution, the attempt to bring the charges against the defendants to a simplified common denominator, may be perceived thereby effacing this difference. In the opening speech of the prosecution, which we have heard here, it was said that those men are indicted because they have denied and undermined the fundamental basis of civilization, namely the principle that human life shall not be unnecessarily destroyed.

Regarding this principle, I am of the opinion that it is a noble principle and is not only a result of humanity's instinct for self-preservation. It is, however, only a principle of ethics and a demand of humanity. I can not agree with the concept that it is a recognized maxim of international law, now in the age of the atom bomb and the mass air attacks upon the civilian population, the frightfulness of which we experienced only a short time ago.

Air attacks, in which within a single city in 24 hours more than 200,000 people, mostly women and children, were killed, as in Dresden, AND THAT AT A TIME IN WHICH THE WAR WAS ALREADY CERTAINLY WON FOR THE OTHER SIDE. I do not mention this in order to raise counter reproaches, by which, as I know, the situation of the defendants can not be bettered. I only want to investigate the basis for the difference which the public opinion of the world and the jurist of international law make obvious in these questions. For it is necessary that in such important matters as are the accusations raised against the defendants, one sees quite clearly, if one wants to judge them correctly. Thus, for example, Prof. LAUTERPACHT writes in his essay in the English Yearbook for International Law 1944, already cited several times, it is difficult to answer the question of the legality of the air attacks by means of penal prosecution of individual persons, while, as we must establish these difficulties obviously do not exist, in the case of the charges which have been raised against the defendants. The difference certainly does not lie in the fact that in reprisal measures in the occupied territories, More people were killed than by air attacks upon the civilian population; or that men die MORE EASILY by serial bombs, serial mines and phosphorous bombs than did the executed hostages; and also not in the fact that the women and children who were buried under the wreckage of the houses or in the cellars, or burned to death on the streets as living torches, were MORE GUILTY than the partisans and insurgents shot in reprisal.

The divers judgment and treatment is rather connected, as it seems to me, simply with the fact that it is a matter of executions in the case of the actions indicted here, that is, of killing men whom a belligerent had in his power. There is no point in pursuing further reasons upon which the divers judgment is possibly based. It is sufficient to establish the fact that this difference is present. I must therefore proceed from the facts as they are; that in contrast to all other procedures, by which in war people, even civilian persons, are killed in great numbers, executions establish prima facie the suspicion of war crimes, and that, as the practice of the war crimes trials shows, without consideration here of the number of the victims.

I believe that the principle maintained by the indictment, that people may not be killed unnecessarily, must be traced back to the extent which agrees with the current practice of international law. Later, when I come to speak of the actual situation in the Balkans, I will take up the further efforts of the prosecution to substitute the ordered investigation or which of the measures indicted here were necessary and which were not, by the general principle that all the measures of the German Commanders were arbitrary crimes, while on the other hand the actions of the partisans and insurgents were patriotic acts and justifiable self-defense.

First I return to the executions. I intentionally did not say more than that they usually establish the suspicion of war crimes prima facie. I do not say, of course, that this suspicion is in general justified. This suspicion obviously is connected with the fact that the conviction that executions may only be undertaken on the basis of a judicial judgment is wide-spread in the ideas and concepts of man, while with regard to the exceptions to this principle, which come under the concept "retaliatory measures", obscurities and differences of opinion predominate even among the authors of international law.

"A tribunal confronted with the plea of reprisals as a justification of the offense will be faced with a task of considerable difficulty. International law regulates, in a necessarily rough and indeterminate manner, the occasion for and the use of reprisals both in peace and in war," --.

says Prof. LAUTERPACHT in his essay in the British Yearbook for International Law 1944 (p.76), after he has established directly before:

"But, as a rule, an act committed in pursuance of reprisals, as limited by international law, can not properly be treated as a war crime."

The concept of reprisals is defined in Art. 358, par. a) of the American "Rules of Land Warfare" (US General Staff, Basic Field Manual, 1940) and in Art. 452 of the British "Manual of Military Law." I agree with the prosecution that reprisals are retaliatory measures which are committed by a nation or its agents in order to hinder the enemy in further violation of the rules of war. Reprisals are coercive measures. I cannot recognize that they may be applied only in the relationships between nations or between their opposing armed forces, as the prosecution argued. The action according to plan of inciting the civilian population to acts of sabotage and attacks upon members of the German occupation forces and the fight of the partisans in violation of international law in the occupied territories had the result that -during the second world war reprisals had to be resorted to above all against illegal actions of the civilian population, in order to force the latter to desist from its illegal conduct. It would be absurd to assume that the commanders of the armed forces of a belligerent party had to endure acts of an enemy civilian population in violation of international law, without being able to protect their troops, when necessary, by retaliatory measures.

The admissibility of reprisals against illegal acts of enemy civilian population is therefore expressly recognized by the military Handbook of the United States and Great Britain. Art. 358c of the American "Rules of Land Warfare" answers the question:

"Who may commit acts justifying reprisals" as follows:

"Illegal acts of warfare justifying reprisals may be committed by a government, by its military commanders, or by a community or individuals thereof, whom it is impossible to apprehend, try, and punish."

Art. 358 d decrees:

"The offending Forces or populations generally may lawfully be subjected to appropriate reprisals. Hostages taken and held for the declared purpose of insuring against unlawful acts by the enemy forces or people may be punished or put to death if the unlawful acts are nevertheless committed."

The British Military Handbook contains the following decree concerning this:

Art. 386:

"If, contrary to the duty of the inhabitants to remain peaceful, hostile acts are committed by individual inhabitants, a belligerent is justified in requiring the aid of the population to prevent their recurrence, and, in serious and urgent cases, in resorting to reprisals."

Art. 453:

"The illegitimate acts may be committed by a government, by its military commanders, or by some person or persons whom it is obviously impossible to apprehend, try, and punish."

Art. 458:

"Although collective punishment of the population is forbidden for the acts of individuals for which it cannot be regarded as collectively responsible, it may be necessary to resort to reprisals against a locality or community, for some act committed by its inhabitants, or members, who can not be identified."

These provisions of the American and British Military Handbooks are based, as it may well be assumed, just as much upon practical military experience as upon consideration of the laws and customs of war, just as these latter are conceived by the governments which published these handbooks. By these provisions, the claim is therefore refuted that such steps remain ineffective if they are directed against the inhabitants of an occupied territory and not against the enemy government or its armed forces. In the trial against Field Marshal KESSELRING before a British Military Court in Venice, the defense proved that the shooting of 335 Italians, which was undertaken on 24 March 1944 in Rome as a retaliatory measure for an attempted bombing of a German police company, prevented any further attempt against the German Wehrmacht for the period following, until the surrender of Rome at the beginning of June 1944, whereas before these reprisals, attempts of that sort had occurred to a constantly rising degree and at shorter and shorter intervals.

I believe that the prosecution also cannot appeal to Prof. LAUTERPACHT for its conception that reprisals against the civilian population are ineffective and for this reason, inadmissible. The passage cited by me from the essay of Prof. LAUTERPACHT refer in my opinion, does not refer the actual effects of retaliatory measures, but to the effect of the protest of the reprisals upon the juridical judgment of a case according to international law. The first sentence of the passage cited reads completely: I quote:

"On the other hand, as in the matter of the uncertainty of the law of warfare, the impact of the operation of reprisals is not as considerable as would appear at first sight."

By referring to the preceding legal statements concerning the problem of the uncertainty of military law the meaning of the citation becomes clear. Deliberations which take into consideration the actual situation in the occupied territories and the military necessities resulting from it, and the concepts laid down in the American and British Military handbooks of the governments in question concerning the condition of martial law, show, therefore, that reprisals may also be applied against the civilian population, in order to force the latter to conduct commensurate with international law.

The main question then immediately follows, whether in the course of such reprisals people may also be killed, that is, also people who cannot be proved to have had any connection with the illegal acts for which the reprisals are a retribution. The English and American authors available to me are silent concerning this question. I disregard the citation of German authors, world-renowned scholars, who answer in the affirmative. But I cite again the British and American Military Handbooks. Art. 459 of the British Manual of Military Law provides:

"What kinds of acts should be resorted to as reprisals is a matter for the consideration of the injured party. Acts done by way of reprisals must not, however, be excessive, and must not exceed the degree of violation committed by the enemy."

Reprisals, are, as established, coercive measures, by which the opponent is to be brought to desist from conduct contrary to international law. But how can an enemy population in an occupied territory, which in opposition to its duty to maintain a peaceful attitude and in no way to take part in the hostilities, maliciously commits murder on members of the occupying military forces, be forced in any other way to conduct in accordance with international law, than by answering their acts with equally heavy measures, when, as almost always in such cases, the guilty parties can not be seized and punished? What can the commander of an occupation army do, when an enemy population systematically murders his soldiers and is prepared any moment for open insurrection?

It is left to his deliberation which measures he wants to apply, says the British Military Handbook, and only adds that retaliatory measures may not be immoderate and may not overstep the degree of the violation committed by the opponent. That means that the party forced to take retaliatory measures may do everything but not more than the nature of the reprisals demand according to what they consider to be their duty. The British Military Handbook answers the question whether in such a case people may even be killed in reprisal indirectly by not forbidding such a killing, while it expressly excludes the killing of hostages in Art. 461 who serve to guarantee a treaty.

I believe a British officer would be told he had violated his duty if, in a case where the security of his men demanded, he would not have understood the indirect instruction of his military manual in that way.

In this connection, I must again refer to the proceedings against Field Marshal KESSELRING. The Associate Judge Advocate General at the British Military Tribunal in summarizing expressed his opinion on this question as follows: "It cannot be excluded entirely that innocent persons may be shot by way of reprisals; the international law is very flexible."

In addition, it is of SPECIAL importance that neither in the London Statutes nor in the control Council Law No. 10 is the killing of persons by way of reprisal designated as a war crime although this problem had no lesser practical importance during World War II than the problem of killing hostages.

In article 358 d of the American "Rules of Land Warfare" a quite clear answer is given to the question whether innocent persons may also be killed by way of reprisals. I have already quoted this rule:

"Hostages taken and held for the declared purpose of insuring against unlawful acts by the enemy forces or people may be punished or put to death if the unlawful acts are nevertheless committed."

I now add the American Rules of Land Warfare, according to the International Law expert Plueck--that is on Page 41--are legally valid. He expresses it in the following words, "Rules having the force of law."

This is the most important sentence that has ever been written in more recent times with regard to reprisals and hostages. It is not only the key to the entire problem of reprisals and hostages; it also denotes the point where these two institutions overlap.

The Prosecution has already pointed out the close connection existing between the problem of reprisals and the question of hostages and with regard to the modern practice connected with hostages I agree with the Prosecution in that respect that the purpose of taking hostages is to place oneself in the position of having the possibility of carrying out reprisals.

Hostages have always been exchanged, given or taken for quite varying purposes. The two main objects were always the guarantying of treaties in war and peacetime and the protection against hostile acts by the population in an occupied territory. THE TWO FORMS HAVE DEVELOPED INDEPENDENTLY OF EACH OTHER AND ARE QUITE DIFFERENT IN THEIR CHARACTER.

The classical form for guarantying treaties which was the original one has been out of practice for a considerable time. It was abandoned after the opinion had been accepted in international law that such TREATY HOSTAGES must not be killed and, in addition, the importance, extent and complexity of the more modern international agreements necessitated other guarantees in the form of material and territorial securities. It is not my intention to make extensive investigation into the historical development of the hostages problem. However, I do think it necessary to make it clear that the sentence of Grotius:

"Hostages should not be killed if they have not themselves committed an injustice", quoted in the Opening Statement of the Prosecution ONLY refers to the classical form of hostageship viz.

to hostages serving for the guarantying of treaties. In addition, Grotius ONLY regarded it as a DEMAND which in his opinion followed from natural right; whereas, AS GROTIUS STATES

HIMSELF, the execution of treaty hostages was regarded as admissible according to the external or positive international law based on the accordance of will of the states which we call the practice of the states. The principle that treaty hostages must not be killed was not given universal formulation before DE VATTEL in the sentence:

"La Liberte seule des hotages est engagee".

From this time on we may regard the principle that hostages serving as a guaranty of a treaty must not be killed as a recognized standard of customary international law.

As already mentioned, it referred, however, ONLY to treaties and in the beginning only to treaties concluded for the termination of a war or in peace-time. Hostages destined for guarantying war conventions were still subject to the more rigorous martial law. To begin with, the statement we find of VON MOSER applied to them:

"If the promise is not kept the hostages may, according to more rigid laws, be treated with such a severity as is appropriate in view of the circumstances of the case."

However, also in their case killing was later generally rejected. Insofar as hostages still should be designated at all for guarantying treaties, which is still conceivable only during the war, the statement contained in the British Military Manual in No. 461 therefore applies at present;

"...and if hostages nowadays are taken at all they have to suffer a captivity and not death in case the enemy violates the agreements in question."

This principle must surely also be applied to a form of taking hostages still exercised today for guarantying service claims based on international law which is closely related to the institution of treaty hostages viz. to hostages taken by an occupying power as security for requisitions and contributions. They do not serve as security for contractual services but for service claims based on a unilateral levy by an occupying force. Also in these cases nonperformance does NOT grant the right to put the hostages to death.

As regards the second main form of taking hostages we have the statement of the American "Rules of Land Warfare" of 1940 that hostages taken and held for the declared purpose of insuring against unlawful acts by the enemy civilian population MAY BE punished or PUT TO DEATH if the unlawful Acts are nevertheless committed.

With this sentence the competent American Government authorities have summed up the development which we can follow since THIS form of taking hostages has developed into an important institution of martial law in the course of the last 150 years. The taking of hostages as a security for the troops in the occupied territory was already practised in former times. It could, however, only become a legal institution after martial law in its development had arrived at the point of protecting in principle the civilian population. Since only from that time on reprisals against the civilian population became a problem of law. The above quoted sentence from the American "Rules of Land Warfare" is a clear acknowledgment of the facts which may confront an occupying force in modern Warfare with partisan activity and underground movements.

Only at first sight is the fact peculiar that the modern form of taking hostages for the purpose of reprisals developed into their full severity only at a time when the classic form of insuring treaties had been abandoned after its practice had become even milder. It is the necessary consequence of the fact that in the modern wars, as we could observe, the civilian population in the occupied territory in an ever increasing degree participates contrary to international law in the fight against the occupying power - of its own accord as well as due to systematic inciting by exile governments or other enemy powers.

It is a peculiarity of the hostage problem that the separate forms of this institution have developed separately and have separate contents so that they cannot be treated analogously to which LUTTEROTH already has referred in his treaties on hostages. It makes a great difference for the actual contemplation of things whether hostages are to be put to death because a levy was not paid at all or not paid in time or whether a commander in the occupied territory is faced by the fact that his soldiers are being murdered contrary to international law by a fanatical population in spite of its having been warned.

The analysis of the problems of law show that a corresponding difference also exists from the viewpoint of law. It lies in the reason justifying the measures taken against the hostages. In the classical form of hostageship the right of punishing the hostage in case of contravention of the treaty or the duty to pay the levy originated from the ancient institution of the hostageship itself where the measures adopted against the hostage are a kind of punishment; with criminal punishment it has in common the purpose of general prevention less that of expiation. In the modern hostage form, however, the killing or other punishment of the hostages are at least preponderantly reprisals, that is, compulsory measures adopted against acts of the civilian population or the enemy forces committed contrary to international law in order to force them to abide by martial law. The Prosecutor already said in his opening statement that "the purpose of taking hostages is to place oneself into a position of being able to adopt retaliatory measures." The nature of reprisals of the modern hostage practice has been recognized especially clearly in composing the American "Rules of Land Warfare" as follows from the incorporation of # 358 d, which deals with hostages, into the rules on reprisals.

Together with this designation of the modern hostages of becoming possible subjects of reprisals the conception of a hostage has changed its meaning. In the classical sense of the word hostages were persons who were formally exchanged or taken as such which resulted in certain legal relations between the interested parties. Hostages in the sense of # 358 d of the "Rules of Land Warfare" are, however, all persons taken or held for the purpose of making them subjects of reprisals in case of necessity, whether they be formally recognized as hostages and actually be called hostages, or, as in several orders of the defendants are called "expiatory prisoners" or the like.

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt, Doctor, please? We'll take our morning recess at this time.

(A recess was taken).

THE MARSHALL: Tribunal V is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor I have just talked about the explanation of paragraph 358 d, and I proceed:

"Hostages in the sense of the expression as used in No. 358 d of the "Rules of Land Warfare" are not only persons taken by a belligerent for the sole purpose of placing himself in a position to be able to carry out reprisals in the case of acts on the part of the enemy contrary to international law. Mostly several purposes are interwoven with one another: persons are being arrested because they are suspected of illegal activity or of connection with partisans or rebels or for other reasons seem dangerous to the occupying power. It is especially natural that they—from the moment of their arrest also serve the declared purpose of being subjects of reprisals in the future.

In the order to read here they were frequently called expiatory prisoners. Other persons were arrested because of the influence, which they possessed due to their profession or their economic or political position, and by their arrest alone the paralyzation of the population's activities was frequently achieved, which is still increased by the threat of being put to death. For these persons generally only the expression of hostage is customary; likewise for those who from the outset were taken solely for the declared purpose of serving as subjects for reprisals in the case of future violations of international law by the opposite side. All these various groups are covered by the stipulations of # 358 d of the American "Rules of Land Warfare", according to which they may be punished or put to death, if the unlawful acts are committed by the opposite side in spite of warnings.

The opinion has been expressed that in the American "Rules of Land Warfare" due to the placing of hostages on an equal level with prisoners of war and due to the stipulation that prisoners of war must not be put to death, and "unfortunate contradiction" exists with regard to the fact that the killing of hostages is expressly permitted in # 358 d; this was held by authors who stress that it is permissible to put hostages to death in case of necessity.

The prosecution also hinted at that. I do not share the opinion that such a contradiction regulations of the American "Rules of Land Warfare" permit an absolutely clear solution of most aspects of the modern problem of hostages: as a consequence of their being accorded treatment equal to that of prisoners of war, persons who formally have been taken as hostages shall, for the duration of their arrest, be kept and treated as prisoners-of-war. Another consequence is that such persons may, in-as-far as they were not, as mentioned in par. 358, taken for the purpose of being the objects of reprisals, be submitted to reprisals only under the same conditions as prisoners of war, if for example, hostages taken by the other side are killed in violation of international law. As for the rest, those hostages mentioned under par. 359 of the "Rule of Land Warfare" who were taken to insure a correct treatment of the wounded and sick and to protect the lives of prisoners of war who have fallen into the hands of irregular troops, are also to be counted among those hostages who in contrast to the prisoners of war, may generally be made objects of reprisals.

These hostages, too, were taken, as it says in Par. 358a. of the "Rules of Land Warfare", as a protection against unlawful acts of the enemy, and may, therefore, be punished or killed if those unlawful acts are nevertheless committed. I cannot see where, as HAMMAR & SALVIN and the prosecution claim, there exists an unsolved contradiction. All that is necessary is to observe the fundamental difference between hostages in the classical sense of the word and persons who are being taken or kept in order to become objects of reprisals if the enemy violates international law, and who often are also called hostages.

I mentioned already that neither the London statute nor Control Council Law No. 10 considers the killing of people by way of reprisals as a war crime. They obviously refrain from doing so because reprisals might be a necessary means to force the opposing armed forces and the enemy population to observe the rules of warfare and to prevent them especially from crimes against members of the occupying power. Since the London Statute and Control Council Law No. 10 do not declare reprisals being forbidden, they do not apply to the killing of persons who were taken or kept for the purpose of becoming objects of reprisals, even if these persons are called hostages. This becomes evident through the fact that the army of occupation of the Soviet Union, that means, of one of the three principal powers who on 8 August 1945 signed the London Statute, shortly before that date decreed and publicly announced in Berlin the killing of hostages on a proportional basis of 1:50 as a reprisal for attacks against members of the army of occupation. This I shall prove.

IV It is obvious that the question of the status of the irregular combatants in Yugoslavia and Greece plays an important part in this trial.

First of all it is important in connection with Count 3 of the bill of indictment but it also touches the other points of the indictment as far as they deal with the problem of reprisals.

I agree with the prosecution that this is the question: Under which circumstances must combatants, if they are captured, be treated as prisoners of war, and under which circumstances can they be treated as armed bandits and be summarily executed?

The legal status of the resistance forces has also been discussed during the trial of Field Marshal KESSELRING before the British Military Tribunal in Venice. That trial dealt not only with resistance activities equal or similar to those, in Yugoslavia and Greece, but partly even with the same forces since, as is probably known to the court, TITO's units expanded, since 1944, their operations in Venezia Giulia and in the Eastern Alps far into Italian territory. In his opening statement the British prosecutor Colonel R.C. HALSE also dealt with them. Let me read what he said about them:

"There are some war crimes which are only war crimes in respect to one side. The partisans, for instance (and I say it quite openly), by attacking the German forces in the rear, were guilty of a crime against the German law: I say advisedly against the German law. So far as the Italian and Allied law was concerned they were heroes. They did commit a war crime and if they were captured by the Germans; the Germans were undoubtedly entitled to try them for committing a war crime, and if found guilty of committing that war crime, the Germans were entitled to sentence them to death." Record 2. day, page 6.

The records of the trial before the British Military Tribunal are, as far as I know, available here in Nuernberg, and can therefore be consulted. If not, I shall submit to the Court an extract of the trial transcript as an exhibit. Do we not find here a surprising difference of opinion between both prosecutors as far as the legality or illegality of the irregular combatants is concerned, if we remember what we heard in the prosecution's opening statement to this trial about the same problem and, as I said before, partly about the same resistance forces?

The problem of the status of the irregular combatants is very complex and needs a thorough analysis which must also examine if, and to which extent, the reasons for the legality of the resistance forces, which the prosecution submitted in their opening statement, hold true only for the evaluation of the latter from a patriotic and historical point of view, or whether they are also of consequence in connection with legal considerations.

The starting-point for legal considerations is provided by sections 1 and 2 of the appendix to the Hague Convention which contain the conditions, agreed to by treaty, for the recognition of irregular combatants as belligerents.

The prosecution has characterized the conditions stated in Section 1 as traditional and generally acceptable necessities, and has admitted that the Germans were justified in denying the status of belligerents to, and executing, captured partisans who had not observed these conditions. With this, such partisan activities as were not carried out in the form of larger military operations, have been taken out of the problem, because it is characteristic of all activities of the bands in Croatia, Serbia and Greece, as far as they were carried out in the form of guerilla warfare, that the requirements of Article 1 were not fulfilled. You will yet hear about origin, development, organization and way of fighting of the irregular troops in the Balcans. Here I want to state in advance in condensed form only a few important points.

Guerilla fighting developed some time after the cessation of hostilities in Yugoslavia and Greece and the occupation of these countries. In the course of time it constantly increased in intensity.

First it was waged against the army of occupation by nationalist groups, in Yugoslavia by the Chetniks under DRAHA. Mihailovitch and in Greece by the organizations of the Edes under ZERVAS. Soon there appeared Communist groups with the same aim: TITO in Yugoslavia, and the organizations of EAM and ELAS in Greece.

First all of them waged war against the army of occupation only in small irregular units and in the form of guerilla-fighting which consisted mainly of surprise attacks and sabotage. On account of growing numerical strength and thanks to the equipment he received from the Allies, TITO later on succeeded in organizing larger military units with which he tried to carry out regular military operations. At the same time, however, actual guerilla-fighting in the form of surprise attacks and sabotage in the rear of the front continued with undiminished ferocity. Even if part of the resistance movement organized themselves into military units, large parts of the movement in Yugoslavia and almost all parts in Greece continued to fight in a way which robbed the resistance forces of the protection of the Hague Convention and made them irregulars (Freischaerler).

It was characteristic that, regardless of whether they acted individually or in smaller or larger units, they did not carry their weapons openly, did not wear uniforms or insignia recognizable at a distance and did not observe, during their operations the laws and customs of war. During their actions they often wore German or Allied uniforms for the purpose of deception. After surprise attacks or acts of sabotage they assumed the appearance of peaceful peasants, their weapons were well hidden. All these groups of the resistance movement, those organized on a military basis as well as the irregulars, conducted the struggle in an unusually cruel way which contradicted all international law. Horrible murder and mutilation of German soldiers and torturing of prisoners were proved beyond doubt by affidavits and partly by photographs.

The general historical experience which the authors NURICK and BARRET formulated, with regard to the guerilla-bands which appeared during the Mexican War, in the article "Legality of Guerilla forces under the Laws of War" in the words quoted below, applies also to them:

"As has usually been the case in guerilla warfare, many bands of guerillas degenerated into little more than murderers and highway-robbers. They mutilated wounded American soldiers, divided among themselves the goods taken from the enemy, and carried on "war without pity in every manner imaginable."

What does it matter in view of this, in connection with the legal evaluation that these partisans in the Balkans were patriots as the prosecution claims? The guerillas to whom Section 82 of the American instructions of 1863 for the leading armies in the field referred, were patriots, too. And nevertheless they, too, at that time already lacked the status of lawful combatants and were, on the contrary, to be treated as highway-robbers or pirates, as ordered by the American regulation.

As soon as we deal with the resistance forces, organized on a military basis, which attempted to carry out regular military operations, we find that they, too, could not claim the status of lawful combatants because they did not conduct their operations in accordance with the laws and customs of war. I already pointed this out when I mentioned the cruel manner of fighting, which violated international law, which all parts of the resistance movement carried on in the Balkans. For the moment, however, I shall disregard this fact, that is subsection 4 of Section 1 of the Hague Convention. The problem of the status of the above-mentioned Military organizations and the question of the status of the remnants of regular troops after the capitulation of the government or, at least, the cessation of organized resistance, are very complicated if one presupposes, for the sake of the investigation, that they conformed to all four clauses of Section 1 of the Hague Convention on Land Warfare. In that case four facts are of importance in the evaluation of the legality of the resistance forces:

1. That a war can be waged between states or governments only;
2. That an actual state of war is terminated by capitulation or by the cessation of organized resistance after the destruction of the main forces;
3. The actual occupation, and 4. The rights and duties of the population in the occupied territory.

An individual does not become a lawful belligerent by wearing a uniform, carrying weapons openly and being under the command of a person, responsible for his subordinates. On the contrary, before the members of a military force are entitled to be treated as lawful belligerents, it is also requisited that, in addition to the requirements set forth in the Hague Convention, they serve a political entity which is a state de jure or de facto or which at least exhibits certain evidence of such status. WESTLAKE makes absolutely clear that combatants can be treated as belligerents only if there is reason to identify them with their state or government. He says virtually:

"If they are treated as parties to a war, that can only be justly done when there is reason for their being identified with their state or government."

If these points of view are applied to the resistance groups in Yugoslavia and Greece, one finds that all of them lacked the status of lawful combatants, if for nothing else but the fact that after the capitulation of the Yugoslav government and the capitulation of the Greek armed forces a belligerent state and a belligerent government, the existence of which could have justified the claim of any person in those countries for the continuation of their being treated as lawful belligerents existed no longer. The fact that later on governments in exile for both countries were formed in London does not affect the status of the irregular forces. It affects the status of the main agent of the struggle against the German army of occupation, that is the TITO-units in Yugoslavia and the EAM and ELAS units in Greece, which were also Communist, the less as they obviously cannot be identified with the above-mentioned governments in exile.

TITO did not serve this government in exile but tried to replace it by the Communist regime, an attempt in which he succeeded on 8 May 1945 with the overthrow of the Yugoslav king. He and, like him, the Greek Communist resistance movements, did not receive his orders from the existing government but from a third power. It is correct, that he also received material support from the Allies, but we can find nowhere that this can establish the status of a legal combatant. During a war all kinds of methods are employed to damage the enemy. Thus one has already often plotted popular uprisings in occupied territories and supported them materially. This, however, does not force the opponent to recognize the uprising supported this way, as an action of a belligerent power. While arguing about the problem of the status of unlawful resistance, we may incidentally not lose sight of one quite simple and clear fact, which is more important than all arguments; It is the FACT, that the YUGOSLAV GOVERNMENT unconditionally SURRENDERED on 15 April 1941. The capitulation was signed by the Yugoslav fighting forces and by the minister MARKOVIC as the representative of the Yugoslav government. THE ENTIRE ARMY SURRENDERED IN GREECE during the last weeks of April.

I believe that this important fact was not considered in several arguments of the Prosecution, when the opening statement of the Prosecution charges the Germans with fact, that after overrunning Yugoslavia they withdrew the main body of their troops and then declared that any future resistance would be regarded as a violation of the laws of warfare. The Germans did not assume this right, this right was granted them by the unconditional surrender of the Yugoslav government, independent of the effects which resulted from the condition of the occupation according to the Hague convention.

When the former Prime Minister WINSTON CHURCHILL announced Germany's surrender on 8 May 1945, he declared:

"Hostilities will end officially at one minute after midnight tonight, Tuesday, the 8th May... The Germans are still in places resisting the Russian troops, but should they continue to do so after midnight they will of course deprive themselves of the protection of the laws of war and will be attacked from all quarters by the Allied troops."

This is a clear and justified conclusion drawn from a clear fact.

Generaloberst von WEICHS drew the same conclusion from the same fact in his order of 28 April 1941, when he declared:

"After the armistice, no Serbian soldier in the entire Serbian territory, has the right to carry arms. Whoever, in spite of this, is met in Serbian uniform with a weapon in hand, thus places himself outside of the law of warfare and is to be shot to death immediately."

The prosecution states, that the declaration made in this order of 28 April 1941, contains one of the two basic principles of German terrorism practiced in the Balkans, namely that not even the simple right to continued resistance was granted to the enemy, that his troops were no longer to be considered as combatants and thus should not enjoy the protection of the rules of warfare. When one hears this interpretation of the prosecution, I believe it is well, to remember simultaneously the statement made by Prime Minister CHURCHILL on 8 May 1945. The contrast is proof of the relativity to which law is subject in practice; especially international law, when it is applied unilaterally after a war by the victorious countries against the vanquished.

Both authors NURICK and BARRET have examined in the article which has already been quoted at various times, the status of unlawful combatants after the surrender of their government or after the complete defeat of the main fighting forces and the termination of organized resistance, on hand of a series of historical events of the last hundred years, in order to derive from these cases of precedent the norms of international law according to the law of custom, which exist with regard to the status of such unlawful forces. They declare, and I quote:

"If there is a formal surrender by the enemy government and capitulation of the main body of the armed forces there is noteworthy precedent, particularly in the position taken by General GRANT in the Civil War -- that is capitulation of the armies leeds and churnston's, for inst. in April 1945 -- regarding as unlawful combatants those who continue to resist, even though they may be substantial in number.....Although there is little authority the complete military defeat of the armed forces, the disintegration of the government and the occupation of its territory would seem to have the same consequence as upon the status of those who continue to resist as does a formal surrender."

OPPENHEIM also declares, that if the dispersed remains of the defeated army continue to fight with guerilla tactics after the defeat and capture of the main part of the enemy forces, after the occupation of the country and the disintegration of the enemy government, this guerilla war is not a real war in the strictest sense of the word. And he notes, that in strict law it is evident, that the opposing force no longer has to treat these guerilla bands as a combatant force and its members taken prisoner as soldiers.

SPAIGHT is of the same opinion.

Naturally it may be advisable for the opposing force, to recognize the unlawful combatants as legal combatants, if they are under the leadership of a responsible commander and follow the laws and customs of warfare, as OPPENHEIM states, and especially if the unlawful forces are a large number and have formed a de facto government, as NURICK and BARRET state. Regardless of this fact, however, according to strict law it remains up to the opposing force WHETHER and WHEN it wants to recognize the unlawful forces as legal combatants.

The above mentioned laws applying to unlawful combatants are connected with the surrender of a government or the capitulation of the main fighting forces and the termination of organized resistance. They refer back to the traditional principle, that war is a fight between governments, which the fighting forces serve and with which they have to be identified, so that one can speak of war in the strictest sense of the word, and so that they can claim to be regarded as legal combatants. The legal conclusion, that war has stopped with the surrender of the government or of the main body of the fighting forces, agrees with the practical recognizance, that, above all, it is in the interest of the population of the defeated country, if any further resistance is terminated as soon as possible.

Quite apart from these points of view, International Law combines with other facts a similar effect, as is contained in the Hague convention and in other laws and customs of warfare; namely with the actual OCCUPATION of enemy territory. Armed resistance within an occupied territory is rebellion; it deprives the resistant forces of the protection of the laws of warfare and grants the occupying force the right to execute them. This applies to popular uprising in an occupied territory, even if the arms are carried openly and the laws and customs of warfare are being observed. Only the inhabitants of a territory not yet occupied have any claim according to Section 2 of the Hague provisions to be recognized as legal combatants if they take up arms at the time of the approach of the enemy; but they naturally only have that right, if they carry these arms openly and observe the laws and customs of war. The following statement by Professor OPPENHEIM applies to uprisings in a territory occupied by the enemy, and I quote:

"But this case (Article") is totally different from a levy en masse by the population of a territory occupied by the enemy for the purpose of freeing the country of the invader.

The quoted stipulation of the Hague regulations does not cover this case, in which, therefore, the old customary rule of international law is valid, that those taking part in such a levy en masse, if captured, are liable to be shot."

We already find this rule of international law based on the law of custom in Section 85 of the American instructions on how to conduct armies in the field of 1863, which provides:

"War rebels are persons within an occupied territory who rise in arms against the occupying or conquering army or against the authorities established by the same. If captured, they may suffer death, whether they rise singly, in small or large bands, and whether called upon to do so by their own but expelled government or not."

We find this rule again in Paragraph 12 of the American "Rules of Land Warfare" of 1940:

"If the population of a country or a part of the same, which is already occupied by an enemy, rises up against the latter, it thereby violates the laws of warfare and has no claim to their protection."

It has always been difficult to determine, when an invasion ends and an occupation begins. Section 42 of the Hague convention is not very clear. We find a much more concrete and on the whole satisfying definition of an actual occupation in Section 276 of the American "Rules of Land Warfare", which states:

"Occupation must be effective. This is shown by the definition of the term, that military occupation must both be present and effective, which means, that organized resistance must have been overcome and the fighting forces, who have taken possession, must have instituted measures, to establish law and order. It suffices, if the occupying army is in the position, to send parts of troops in a given period of time, in order to make its authority to command felt within the occupied territory. It is immaterial how the authority of government is exercised, whether by fixed garrisons or by mobile columns, by small or large forces."

These prerequisites agree factually with those, which Professor OPPENHAIM considers necessary for an actual occupation:

"Reasonably no other conditions ought to be laid down as regards effective occupation in war than those under which in time of peace a Sovereign is able to assert his authority over a territory.....If, when the legal Sovereign is prevented from exercising his powers, the occupant is in the position to assert his authority and actually establishes an administration over a territory, it matters not with what means and in what ways his authority is exercised, if he only really keeps the territory concerned under control."

In the opening statement of the Prosecution you have already heard several indications about the conditions which the Germans established with regard to an actual occupation in Yugoslavia and Greece. You have, for example, heard that for the pacification of the civilian population, Serbia was divided into several field commands, which essentially corresponded to the larger cities and to the main strategic points in the country and that these field commands again were divided into smaller territorial units, which were called local commands. That was the organizational machinery used for the security of Serbia, the prosecution stated, and it became effective immediately if an act of sabotage had been committed. If you compare these facts with the demands made by Section 42 of the Hague Convention and by the # 276 of the American "Rules of Land Warfare" and in the above quoted sentences by Professor OPPENHEIM for an actual occupation, I believe from this alone the fact results: that the German occupation was actually effective. And if one has heard in the opening statement of the prosecution how the partisans, for example, in Croatia, acted during the first two years of the occupation; through surprise attacks on German guards or garrisons, and acts of sabotage against traffic installations, supply depots and munitions depots of the German Wehrmacht, already such side-lights give the picture of an effective occupation. It will be the job of the Defense to provide the court with detailed material in this respect, in order to show that an actual occupation had been established in Yugoslavia and Greece after cessation of operations in April 1941.

In connection with the question of the combatants, I must also deal with the problem of the Italian fighting forces, which went over to the partisans and fought against German troops after the surrender of the Italian government to the allied forces on 8 September 1943. The Prosecution states, that it was one of the most illegal and dishonorable acts in the history of warfare, that the Italian officers of such units were shot to death. However, we have heard, that combatants, who did not have the status of legal combatants could be executed according to the laws of warfare and up to now it has never been considered illegal or dishonorable to execute persons, who had been sentenced to death for wartime treason. One may not only consider the fact, that men who wore a uniform were executed, but one must also investigate, what these men had done before they were sentenced to death.

By the surrender of the Italian government, the Italian state ceased to be an ally of the German Reich. There existed, first of all no state of war between Italy and Germany. Therefore, none of the Italian divisions had the right to fight German troops, and the Italian soldiers who did this could not claim the status of legal combatants. Disarming of the Italian armed forces was an absolute military necessity. Because three effective Italian armies in the Balkans were a very serious danger for the German armed forces, since they could have come to be an effective bridge-head for the Allies. It was known, for example, that Admiral Cambioni in Rhodes had already initiated negotiations with the British. In the case of war between Italy and Germany, which was considered a certainty, and if the Italian armed forces had not been disarmed, the Balkans could not have been held, because the Italian troops had occupied almost all the coasts. The right to disarm the Italian soldiers, primarily resulted from the fact, that "within the territory of operations of a combatant only legal combatants have the right to carry arms. I have shown that the Italian troops no longer possessed the status of legal combatants after their government surrendered. The authority to disarm the Italians also resulted from the negotiations, which the German command authorities carried out with the Italian High Command in Athens and Tirana and on the basis of these, the Italian high command ordered its troops to deliver their arms without resistance and to let the Germans take them captive.

(The order of the Fuehrer distributed to the subordinate troops by the army groups, for the forwarding of which General Field Marschal von Weichs was held responsible, did not order that Italian officers were to be shot because they and their troops fought against the German armed forces without possessing the status of legal combatants, although this would have been in contravention to international law.)

I repeat again: "The order of the Fuehrer distributed to the subordinate troops by the army groups, for the forwarding of which General Feldmarschall von Weichs was held responsible, did not order that Italian officers were to be shot because they and their troops fought against the German armed forces without possessing the status of legal combatants, although this would have been in correspondence to international law.

Your Honor, I ask for a correction of the translation as I had the second half of the sentence. I said, "although this order would have corresponded with the rules of International Law, not contravention to international law.

What the order of the Fuehrer did decree, was, that Officers of those Italian units, who let arms fall into the hands of the insurgents or in any other way worked to either with the insurgents, are to be shot to death after they had been sentenced by court martial. Sentencing by a court presupposed a legal provision as basis for the punishment. In view of such clear facts, such as the turning over of arms to insurgents or supporting them, one does not have to look very hard for such a legal provision. Just as the American provisions, which are applicable in wartime the German provisions concerning warfare, also know the facts of wartime treason, which is punished by death. It was regulated in section 6 of the special Military Penal Code, and consisted of every kind of support to the enemy. It comprises the same fact as are enumerated in Articles 205 and 214 of the American Rules of Land Warfare.

Since here the unlawfulness of executing the Italian officers in spite of their wearing uniforms has been emphasized so much, I point out in particular Art. 205 subsection b of the American Rules of Land Warfare which states, that the American legal regulations on wartime treason within a territory under military control in general apply to persons of all classes without regard to nationality or military or civil status.

You have already heard from the Prosecution that at least two Italian divisions joined the partisans. The Defense will, within the framework of evidence, which it will submit to the Tribunal, produce more material about the behavior of these Italian units whose officers were called to account.

Among the Italian divisions that went over to the partisans and thus committed wartime treason was, above all, the "Bergamo" Division which from that time on called itself the "Garibaldi" Division. It has already been mentioned by the Prosecution in connection with the asserted shooting of a large number of officers of this division. General Gandin, who has likewise been quoted by the Prosecution had fought against the Germans although he and his troop were no longer entitled to the status of legal combatants. He had thus violated the agreements reached between the German and Italian high commands. Beyond that, he had committed a particularly serious act of treason by violating a special agreement which he had reached with the German commanding staffs with regard to his division. He had declared himself willing to deliver up arms. When the German troops wanted to receive the arms he ordered that they be attacked. The Germans not being prepared for that suffered considerable losses. General Gandin and the officers who were responsible together with him were sentenced to death by a court martial formed by the competent German commander.

I must now say something with regard to Counts 2 and 4 charging the defendants with wanton destruction of enemy property, devastation of enemy territory and encroachments upon the freedom of the civilian population, above all, with interning the population in concentration camps.

There is no doubt that only the willful destruction of towns, small towns and villages and only devastation not justified by military necessity can be war crimes. Thus it was expressed in Article 6 of the London Statutes in agreement with the standards of the Hague Convention. As regards the internment of the civilian population in collective camps it must be noticed that quite obviously the freedom of the individual has intentionally not been included in the fundamental rights of the civilian population to be respected by the occupying power in Article 46 of the Hague Convention. The reason for this is apparently that the security of the occupation power has always necessitated very extensive encroachments upon the personal freedom of the civilian population in the occupied territory. A corresponding right of the occupation power has up to now never been contested.

It is very easy to declare with regard to a conquered nation that its troops willfully destroyed enemy towns and villages and undertook devastations without military necessity. And it is very simple to designate the internment of parts of the civilian population in collective camps as war crime if it was carried out by the conquered state. Here the relativity of law is seen which I have already mentioned and I think it would be good to regard the things with which the defendants are being charged in the light of historical precedents and the opinion of important authors on international law.

The American Professor Fenwick writes in his International Law already quoted:

"General devastation of property as a means of covering the retreat of an army has, however, been a common practice of belligerents.

"A more difficult problem is to determine how far the destruction of enemy property is justified, not in connection with direct hostilities, but as a means of cutting off the enemy's lines of communication eliminating his subsequent sources of supply or intimidating the civilian population and inducing it to bring pressure upon the government to sue for peace."

Professor Fenwick then states:

"In 1864 General Sherman devastated a wide area from Atlanta to the sea in pursuance of an interpretation of military necessity which included the objects above mentioned, and shortly afterwards the devastation of the Shenandoah-valley to the same end."

I insert here, when General Sherman had finished the devastation of the Shenandoah Valley, he said, and he said himself then, "crow flying over that territory had to bring its own provisions with it." That is according to the General's own statement. This quotation is quoted by "Spaight."

I now go on quoting Fenwick:

I quote again Fenwick:

"In 1901 the British armies in South Africa interned the civilian population in "concentration-camps", with the result of serious loss of life (for details Spaight.). At the same time the country was laid waste far and wide as a means of cutting off the supplies of the guerilla forces.

Professor Fenwick also stresses that Article 23 G of the Hague Convention which prohibits the destruction of enemy property, unless it be imperatively demanded by the necessities of war, leaves to the determination of the belligerent army the circumstances under which military necessity demands such measures.

THE PRESIDENT: May I interrupt? We will take our adjournment at this time, but before....Repeating, we will take our adjournment at this time, but before we adjourn I should like to ask the cooperation of counsel and the prosecution and Secretary General's office and marshal to check on the status of the translation and report to me shortly before we convene for the afternoon session.

The Tribunal will be in recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

(A recess was taken until 1330 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The Tribunal reconvened at 1335 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: Tribunal No. V is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, shortly before the noon recess I had talked about the views of Professor Fenwick, regarding the question of destruction I am now quoting on page 52 on the top of page 52:

"Professor Fenwick also stresses that Article 23g of the Hague Convention, which prohibits the destruction of enemy property, unless it be imperatively demanded by the necessities of war, leaves to the determination of the belligerent army the circumstances under which military necessity demands such measures."

It continues on "You heard an unbiased American scientist and author on international law.

I now quote Professor Oppenheim". Oppenheim then continues:

"But the fact that a general devastation can be lawful must be admitted." (Vol. II, Art. 154) It continues:

"As regards captivity, the rule is, that private enemy persons may not be made prisoners of war. But this rule has exceptions conditioned by the carrying out of certain military operations, the safety of the armed forces, the order and tranquillity of occupied enemy territory---And even the whole population of a province may be imprisoned in case a levy en masse is threateningThat in case of general devastation the peaceful population may be interned in so-called concentration camps, there is no doubt." (Vol. 11 Art. 116).

Oppenheim continues:

"The purpose of war may even oblige a belligerent to confine a population forcibly in concentration camps."

In the court of the following weeks you will hear more details about the reasons why the establishment of concentration camps (Sammellager)...

I have just heard the translation of "Sammellager" to the words "concentration camps", I would like you to change this to "collection camps" on page 52 and not concentration camps. On page 53 of the 2nd and 3rd line of the 2nd paragraph.

Your Honors, you will hear more details about the reasons why the establishment of collection camps, (Sammellager) and the internment of parts of the civilian population of the enemy in the Balkans was ordered and likewise facts will be submitted to you which indicate the necessity for and entitled the German troops to carry out devastations. As regards the collection camps, I wish to note that they must not be confused with the concentration camps in Germany, which were subordinated to the Gestapo and have become a by-word. They were collection camps, such as they were also maintained by the occupation powers in Germany under the name of internment camp and in this connection, I wish to point out that the conception of endangering the security of the occupation troops has been subject to an entirely new interpretation by the introduction of the so-called automatic arrest, an interpretation which up to the present was unknown in the practice of international law.

With regard to the destructions which were carried out by way of reprisals in order to force the civilian population of the enemy and the partisans to abstain from acts contrary to international law, I refer to Art.

358 e of the American Rules of Land Warfare which stipulates:

"Villages or houses, etc., may be burned for acts of hostility committed from them, where the guilty individuals cannot be identified, tried and punished."

I conclude my statements to this count with a statement by Professor Lauterpacht in his treatise in the British Year Book for International Law, 1944, page 74:

"Such acts as general devastation .. may supply ample reason for condemnation and protest;they may, at the end of the war, justify the imposition of collective sanctions by way of compensation or otherwise as distinguished from individual penalties of a criminal nature. But criminal proceedings before the municipal courts of the victor may seem to many a questionable method of removing outstanding doubts and laying down authoritatively the existing law on subjects of controversy.

Total war has altered the complexion of many a rule. At a time when the "scorched earth" policy, with regard to the belligerent's own territory, has become part of a widespread practice, general destruction of property ordered as an incident of broad military strategy will not properly form the subject-matter of a criminal indictment."

In the case of the measures with which the defendants here are being charged the principle of military necessity plays an important role. This principle, which formed the basis of all German military measures, was formulated in Article 4 of the American Rules of Land Warfare as the highest general principle of warfare and recognized to a very farreaching degree.

This principle, however, must not be scrutinized in an abstract manner, but must be considered in connection with the conditions with which the accused were confronted and under which they had to discharge their task, i.e. to secure the Balkans militarily. Nothing at all of what forms the subject of this trial can be understood if considered apart from the fundamentals, as is done by the prosecution. The decisive fact was the geographic character of this country and the peculiarity of character of the Balkan population which favored a partisan and resistance activity experienced nowhere else to such an extent.

I believe this to be the proper time to give the high court in brief a picture of the special conditions in which the defendants were placed in the Balkans.

Every appraisal of the military-political measures in the SouthEast area will remain incomplete and inadequate with regard to the actual conditions as long as it is not based on knowledge of the completely abnormal circumstances in occupied territory. No historian would be able to name a political area that could measure up to the Balkan area as far as the entanglement of the problems, the multiplicity of the political currents and the fanatic sullenness of the contracts are concerned.

1. This begins already with the split-up character of the country; nowhere else in Europe do we find in an area of about 1600 kilometers so many heterogeneous, tiny self-contained life-cells laid out by the geographic nature of the country. Whereas, for instance, the United States in an equal stretch of 1600 kilometers between Wisconsin and the Mississippi delta uniformly cultivate gigantic plains, a conglomeration of highly contrastly landscapes is to be found here in the Balkans. Every one of has its own individuality. They are littered around in a confused fashion, as though a child had emptied out a couple of big boxes of building blocks and the many-colored cubes now were mixed up in a completely disorderly way on the floor of the room.

The mountains have steep slopes. They often have remote dens and lonely mountain forests and thus offer welcome hiding-places and secret corners. Shepherds and farmers in distress retreat there as do highway robbers, Komitatschis and revolutionaries of many kinds. That has been going on for thousands of years and since the waves of the migration of peoples, since the great population upheaval that came about with the invasion of the Osmanians and since the nationality struggles of the 19th and 20th centuries.

Partly in consequence of the geographical disruption appears also a far-reaching disruption of communications, commerce and population.

Communications lack transcontinental lines laid out by nature, only the Morowa-Wardar-furrow in the East might have provided such a connection. But even that trails through territories which despite their moderately favorable conditions, as far as lines of communication are concerned, developed rather centripetally than centrifugally. Not even the Adriatic-Ionian seashore in the West remains as a natural line of communication since the course of the mountains condemns the sea to inefficacy. The mountains mostly run parallel to the coastline and thus deprive the ocean of its influence on the interior. A very good map with a scale of 1:500 000 or even better of 1: 200 000 is needed in order to comprehend the splitting up of the South-East into Slovenia, Croatia, Serbia, Montenegro, Albania and Greece.

Railroad construction has only underscored the geographic disruption splitting-up of the lines of communications of the Western Balkans. It is not necessary to get lost in the many details of the territorial-political-economic-historic and ethnico-cultural disruptions: It suffices to state that to date the Balkans are lacking an even halfway efficient rail-road communications system. The only trunk line of European importance, the line Belgrade-Nisch with the extensions to Sofia-Istanbul and Saloniki-Athens is single-track; several territories such as the Peloponnesus have only narrow gauge tracks. Well-known mines have to content themselves with animals as a means of transportation and small cable cars.

Thus, in connection with all those facts always only small communication systems developed in the Western Balkan peninsula; therefore, also always only small economies and small isolated settlements. People live only in villages, small or medium size towns, and the only large cities such as Athens,

Saloniki and Belgrade are on the periphery. Hand in hand with nature the historical development, in particular the agrarian tendency at the beginning of Osmanian rule, has contributed its share; it has driven the Christian population into the mountains and has led to small dispersed settlements in the secret corners up there.

This difficult territory had always made it possible to escape the authorities and combat them.

The Balkans show an amazing conglomeration of nationalities. An understandable variety if one considers how landscape and economic lines of communication are split-up. This ethnic division comprises Pomakes and Muhadschirs, Kutzowlachs and Croats, Greeks and Slovenes, Serbs and Macedonians, Bulgars and Makedoslaves", Sarkatsaneans, and Albanians, Turks and Armenians, Gypsies and others. Until the redistributions of 1912/13 and the great resettlement of 1923 all of these lived intermingled to an extent that the ethnological map of the Balkans looked like the tangled mess of threads of an overcolored carpet. And it partly looks that way even today.

One must realize how a military government is faced with unending difficulties on account of such an ethnic division, particularly since there is no perfectly correct diagram of the existing division. The few top scientists who can at all survey the conditions have come to the conclusion that all statistics, and that includes all old and new statistics of Balkan nationalities, show more or less great inaccuracies.

In the still undetermined state of development hard and cruel battles occur about the nationality of the individual under the motto "if you don't choose to be my brother I am going to smash your skull".

We must imagine, though, that this struggle follows the forms of fighting in the cultural ways of Middle Europe or of the harmless skirmishes among the sects of the Anglo-Saxon area of culture. No, in the Balkans, from time immemorial all means are being used: Apart from pulpit addresses – be it in the Slav or Greek languages, apart from evening classes for adults and apart from all possibilities of fiscal policy, use is made of personal suspicions and, even in peace, of dagger and musket.

4. The result of such conditions are quite specific ways of life for the Balkans which are entirely different from those of the real European area of culture: different as far as their fervor, their impulsiveness are concerned, but also their sullenness and their cruelty. Always have there been all sorts of illegal fighters here and here especially; from the common highway robber to the fending sons and grandsons, from the religious fanatic to the gang leader and every kind of underground movement. Accordingly, it was quite normal that the Serbian kings died through assassinations. Europe, not to talk of the world, learned only little of what happened behind the mountain walls of the Balkans. In the seclusion of that part of the world revolts flared up again and again, and all efforts by the states, were unable to up subdue either the robberies or the cruel fight against and suppression of dissenters. What has not been said and written about the "Macedonian question"? Europe and the world shuddered when the scope of the Macedonian atrocities came to light and an International Commission published its report at the end of the Balkan Wars. Yet we must take into consideration the fact that the commission could only visit the localities that could easily be reached from the outside world and that the ruins of the remote hamlets and villages in the mountains remained unknown, ruins whose population for the most part had been murdered.

Under such conditions the war added new political and ideological groups to those already in existence. A wild battle of every group against the next one set in with all furor and the age old cruelty.

"In Greece, the revolting nationalist groups (Edes) under ZERVAS were in opposition to the communist movement of the E.A.M. and ELAS. The nationalist Cetniks in Yugoslavia under MIHAILOWITCH were the enemies of the Croatian Ustascha detachments, and the adversary of both of them was TITO, the leader of the communist bands.

Even the struggle against the outside enemy sometimes took second place in the efforts to finish off the political opponent in the own country.

With such conditions, however, the defendants had to cope; in the interest of the military tasks to be expected they had to establish tranquility and pacification in occupied countries, This military necessity alone required severest actions. It will be the task of the defense to show that the fight against the bands in the Balkans was dictated only by these military exigencies, but never—as is claimed by the prosecution in execution of a plan for the weakening and decimation of the Balkan population.

When I now proceed to explain to the High Court the line that I propose to follow in the defense of the Field Marshals List and von Weichs which I represent I would like to state the following at the very outset with particular emphasis:

1. Both defendants were during the time of their Balkan activity, which will have to be illustrated in detail as far as scope, authority and responsibility are concerned, the highest strategic leaders. Thus, it was they who before all others were responsible to the Supreme Military Command for the execution and preparation of operational tasks.

This most important task within the scope of the entire conduct of the war had to and was to commit a secondary place all other tasks resulting from the occupation of a country.

For a field commander, such as were Field Marshals List and von Weichs, actual warfare is the main thing once a war has broken out in consequence of a decision by the politicians.

All other tasks resulting from the occupation of the Balkan countries appear, within the scope of the strategic task that was assigned to my clients, to be of minor importance. These occupational tasks were transferred to territorial commanders for independent action, and their chain of command did not go through the strategic leader but through the Military Commander Southeast to the OKW. It follows quite naturally from the cooperation that is necessary for military command posts at the front that they inform one another whenever they are outside of the chain of commands. The fact that this principle was followed in itself explains the communication of the events that took place within the areas of the territorial commanders. On the whole they were bound to interest the strategical leader because they might be of importance connection with the initiating or carrying out of operational tasks. But this reporting of territorial events could in no case constitute a reason for establishing the competency or even the responsibility of the strategic leader as the Prosecution is trying to do.

2. Concerning the knowledge of all the happenings which make up the contents of the indictment, the Prosecution seems to hold the opinion that the defendants represented by me had full knowledge of all happenings during their term of assignment. It is inferred that these happenings were in accordance with a plan designed to weaken and decimate the population of the Balkans:

Gentlemen of the Court. Field Marshal List and von Weichs learned about this plan for the first time through the Prosecution, as I am going to prove subsequently.

As to the actual extent of the knowledge of the defendants, however the Prosecution in a way is charged with the onus probandi. It has to produce evidence to this effect through introducing certain reports issued by military offices in the Balkans. Apart from the fact that it still remains incumbent on the Prosecution to prove the connection and the relevance of many of the submitted documents as far as the defendants are concerned, the following circumstances ought not to be overlooked as easily happens in consequence of the documents being introduced according to purely chronological points of view and not to the proceedings of the case:

Generally, I maintain that the defendants represented by me can theoretically have knowledge of the reports and the accounts only when they were addressed to their office and had actually been received by the same.

I say deliberately: theoretically.

For in practice; Gentlemen, of the Court, you cannot presuppose even this amount of knowledge. A commander-in-chief, who does not receive incoming reports personally, will from these reports learn only the facts presented to him during the daily discussions with the officers of his staff. And this presentation is necessarily done with a view to the main tasks of a commander-in-chief, that means to the information that must be of interest to him in connection with his operational tasks. This makes the conclusion obvious that a commander in-chief in a certain theater of operations must be much more interested in the fact that his own troops have been assaulted than in the retaliatory measures which might have been ordered, and which, moreover, were subject to the competency of another command. As to these measures he could assume that they had been carried out in accordance with existing regulations, as long as no special facts which had actually been reported to him, gave him reason for a different conclusion.

For, after all, the appropriate quarters issuing the orders directing retaliatory measures had the same authority as a commander-in-chief of an army or an army corps.

When these important points of view are considered, it becomes quite obvious how the situation at that time must appear to the defendants List and von Weichs represented by me.

Field Marshal Wilhelm Li s t, for whom I shall now present the defense in broad outline, was by no means a Nazi general as the prosecution is trying to make him appear, in complete misrepresentation of the real facts of the case. He was an unpolitical, especially efficient officer and army commander with a strictly Christian attitude. Towards National Socialism he had no sympathy at all; his premature separation from active service in the year 1942 is evidence of this.

His activity in the Balkans was only of brief duration. At that time he watched with anxiety the growth of the resistance movement which he in his capacity as chief of operations of the German forces in the Balkans was bound to prevent and combat.

That was his task and his duty and by no means a culpability.

a.) As evidence justifying Count 1 of the indictment the Prosecution presents above all the directives issued by Field Marshal List dated 5 September 1941, Exhibit 42.

I am going to prove that these directives had their origin only in consideration of military exigencies.

In this document murder of the civilian population is ordered with no word or sentence, which circumstance solely could make it pertain to Count 1 of the Indictment.

Gentlemen, of the Court, I may ask you to read the document in full, instead of only the passage underlined by the Prosecution. You will then receive the impression that it is a question of directives serving the purpose of repressing insidious attacks by ambush.

A "pacification through terror" is nowhere mentioned.

Further I shall prove that the subsequent orders issued by subordinate quarters were based not on these directives of Field Marshal List, but on the order issued by the Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht dated 16 September, Exhibit 49.

b.) In no case did Field Marshal List order or allow the wanton destruction of towns or villages, and only if this had happened could he be charged with Count 2 of the indictment.

c.) Concerning Count 3 of the indictment the Prosecution has not yet proved that the commissarial order Exhibit 13 (12b of the indictment) and the order issued by the Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht dated 23 July 1941, Exhibit 25 (12c of the indictment) were effective for the Balkan theater of operations, Murder of prisoners of war, as alleged in 12 d, e, and f of the indictment, has not been proved by the Prosecution; it was here a question of reprisals in the course of which insurgents were killed.

d.) Concerning Count 4 of the Indictment I intended to prove that Field Marshal List only considered the internment justified of such persons as had participated in or supported the resistance movement. And to do so was his right and his duty.

Field Marshal von Weichs, by nature perhaps more a scholar than a soldier, also repudiated National Socialism and its methods. He was a Catholic of profound devoutness, and for this reason he was never completely trusted by HITLER.

I have already brought to the attention of the Tribunal – and I still advocate the opinion – that Field Marshal von Weichs because of his physical condition is incapacitated for appearing in court. I base this opinion on

1.) on the expert opinion of Dr. Riffard who confirms the danger of a sudden perilous complication as does also

2.) the American prison physician Dr. MARTIN who, it is true, subsequently considers this danger more certain to the same extent as in his report made on his own initiative and dated 29 July 1947.

In a short time I shall submit a new petition for examination since in the meantime additional symptoms of a severe illness have appeared.

Gentlemen of the Court:

At the beginning of the campaign in the year 1941 Field Marshal von Weichs was only for a brief period in the Balkans as commander-in-chief of the 2. Army.

A.) Within this period (April 1941) the shooting, alleged by the Prosecution, of 100 Serbs in retaliation for the death of assaulted German soldiers took place.

I maintain that this shooting of 100 Serbs in a proclamation, still unproven, was only proclaimed as a threat but was never executed.

Neither did Field Marshal von Weichs within this period ever issue an order according to which 100 Serbs would be shot in retaliation for every German soldier killed. The Prosecution had introduced no such order. The document submitted (Exhibit 7) is only a proclamation to the Serbian population, threatening with shootings in this ratio only, in order to warn against assaults on German soldiers. This is all that so far has been proved concerning this count.

When at the end of August 1943 Field Marshal von Weichs was again transferred to the Balkans – this time as strategic leader – the situation in this theater of operations had become much more critical. In spite of this he used his influence only for the purpose of mitigation, as I am going to prove. His order dated 22 December 1943 (Exhibit 379) is evidence to this effect.

Against occurrences reported to him and constituting misbehavior on the part of the troops Field Marshal von Weichs took action in every way possible.

Besides, he in no case ordered or allowed civilians to be killed, as alleged by the Prosecution.

This is what I have to say concerning Count 1.) of the indictment.

b.) Concerning Count 2 of the indictment the Prosecution has proved no case in which Field Marshal von Weichs ordered or knowingly tolerated a w a n t o n d e s t r u c t i o n of towns or villages.

c.) In count 3 of the indictment Field Marshal von Weichs is charged with having forwarded or complied with unlawful orders, but such orders wrer partly not issued, partly disregarded.

Under 12 a) of the indictment Field Marshal von Weichs is charged with having ordered that persons being caught in uniform and in possession of weapons after the conclusion of the armistice should be shot.

This refers to a stipulation contained in the armistice conditions which had been laid down through agreement with the state of Yugoslavia. In this connection it will be sufficient to refer to previous explanations in my address.

The commissarial order mentioned under 12b) of the indictment did not apply to the Balkans, as I am going to prove.

The executive order dated 18 October 1942 (12 h of the indictment, Exhibit 225) was forwarded to the Balkan theater of operations, and the army corps was unable to prevent this order from being received. As I am going to prove, Field Marshal von Weichs raised an objection to this order. In no case was the order carried out, as I likewise intend to prove.

The measures against the Italian officers and troops following the capitulation (12 i - 1 of the indictment) were necessary from a military point of view. Executions of Italians took place only by virtue of sentences pronounced by military courts or courts martial for wartime treason committed through surrender of weapons to the partisans, support of the same in other ways, and of the illegal resistance in connection therewith.

Concerning Count 4 of the indictment I intend to prove that also during the time at which Field Marshal von Weichs was the highest strategic leader in the Balkans only such persons were and were supposed to be interned as had connections with or supported the partisan movement.

I am at the end of my statement and hope to have presented to the Tribunal the following evidence in broad outlines.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, I have just been advised that the statement for counsel on behalf of the defendant Lanz is being mimeographed and should be ready shortly.

THE PRESIDENT: There was word sent to the desk here that the address for counsel Kuntze is now prepared and has been delivered.

MR. DENNEY: I have been sent a copy here in the courtroom, Your Honors. I will be glad to see if they have delivered one to Your Honors' secretary; I will see if it has been brought in.

THE PRESIDENT: If you will check that, Mr. Denney, we will appreciate it.

The Tribunal is informed that Dr. Sauter, counsel for von Geitner, is ready and prepared to present his opening statement at this time. Is that correct?

DR. SAUTER: Yes, it is.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Sauter, may I inquire as to whether or not there will be two opening statements, one on behalf of the defendant von Geitner and one on behalf of the defendant Lanz.

DR. SAUTER: Two, yes. One for von Geitner and the other for Lanz.

THE PRESIDENT: You are now prepared to present your statement for the defendant von Geitner?

DR. SAUTER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: And the one for the defendant Lanz we are informed will be up here shortly and if it is here by the time you complete your statement for von Geitner you can then proceed with the one for the defendant Lanz.

DR. SAUTER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: If that is not true, we will take it up when it is reached or brought to the Tribunal.

DR. SAUTER: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, you may then proceed. May I inquire of the Marshal as to where the English translations are of Dr. Sauter's opening statement concerning the defendant von Geitner. Is there more than one copy?

THE MARSHAL: Yes, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Sauter.

DR. SAUTER: It is undisputed that the defendant v. Geitner is accused in his character of Chief of the Commanding Staff (Operation Staff) to the Commanding General and Military Commander in Serbia and afterwards in his character as Chief of the Commanding Staff (Operation Staff) to the Military Commander Southeast and that his former military activity is also not debated in those counts of the indictment in which the prosecution does not cite summarily a longer space of time of the Second World War.

He held the first position in the time from 12 July 1942 to 26 August 1943, the latter position in the time from 26 August 1943 to 6 October 1944.

V. Geitner was in these positions during the time of July 1942 to August 1943 under General Paul Bader, in the time from August 1943 to October 1944 under General Hans Gustav Felber, who gave the affidavits of 19 February 1947 and was interrogated as a witness before court on 11 to 13 August 1947.

Consequently the responsibility of the defendant v. Geitner could not be in question for the cases of the indictment of 10 May 1947 for reasons of timing already.

In the cases concerning the defendant Geitner I need not repeat this summary and I continue on page 3 under Roman 2.

II The attitude of the defendant v. Geitner towards these accusations is as follows:

1) In general:

a) V. Geitner was never during the given time commanding officer of a unit, but always only Chief of the Operation Staff. As such he never had any commanding power. The responsibility for the orders directed to the troops rested according to German conception always and only with the commanding officer; this is also unequivocally recognized in the "Handbuch fuer den Generalstabsdienst in Krieg" (Handbook for the Service of the General Staff in War) of 1 August 1939. The Chief of Staff of a commanding authority is merely the first collaborator of a commanding officer in questions of tactical leadership and supplying of troops and had to organize the staff of his commanding officer besides.

It was his responsibility to turn the decisions taken by his commanding officer into orders, which were technically unobjectionable from the General Staff's point of view and to secure their execution. But the orders issued to the troops were always only orders of the commanding officer, never orders of the Chief of Staff. If the commanding officer instructed the Chief of his Staff to issue an order, so was according to the German conception only the commanding officer responsible for it. This legal position found its expression in the German service of the General Staff also in the fact that the Chief of Staff, it is true, had the right to express his dissenting conception towards the commander in case of differences of opinion, but that the decision rested solely and exclusively with the commanding officer; the Chief of Staff had in such cases not even the right to have his conception recorded and registered in the files. He had, on the contrary, to use all his power for executing the will of the superior leader.

b) In consequence of this fundamental conception it was not the commanding officer's Chief of Staff who acted for him in case he was prevented, but the highest ranking troop leader of his territory; only in exceptional cases when the commanding officer was really only quite temporarily absent the Chief of Staff could act for him, then, namely, when the commanding officer could not be reached immediately but when the situation demanded an immediate decision. But the orders were to be considered as orders of the commanding authority even in these exceptional cases, not orders issued by the person of the Chief of Staff. Such exceptional orders did not occur in the case v. Geitner and can, therefore, be left out of consideration.

c) V. Geitner in his character as Chief of Staff had nothing to do with the work (report, establishing, and decreeing) on retaliation measures. These measures are no tactical actions but are derived from the "executive power". V. Geitner and his two commanding officers, Bader and Felber, always also took the stand that its release be tied to the character of the commanding officer as "Supreme Judicial Authority" (Gerichtsherr). The sphere of retaliation measures was out of the field of the Chief of Staff's advisory duties.

This goes especially for all questions in the field of the justice which undisputedly was and is a part of the "executive power". Although the commanding officers have talked about the "fundamental" of the retaliation measures with the Chief v. Geitner, General Bader as well as General Felber reserved the decision on retaliation measures and the decreeing of them exclusively for themselves. They used for work on the cases the service of an officer destined for this purpose. This was never v. Geitner, but in the office of the Commanding General and Military Commander in Serbia and later in the office of the Military Commander Southeast of the 0 1 an administrative jurist.

d) The fact that v. Geitner in his character as Chief of Staff had to put his sign (Signum) also under such orders of the commanding officer which decreed retaliation measures and similar things is not in contradiction to this regulation. Such a sign by the Chief of Staff meant within the service according to undisputed German conception only that the Chief of Staff expressed by it that the order corresponded according to his personal opinion to the commanding officer's views and to the directions of the superior office and was formally all right.

On the basis of orders from the top the proscribed daily reports were signed by the Chief from a certain time on. But the Chief of Staff assumed merely the responsibility for the correctness of the report, with the signing of a daily report that means the responsibility for the correct rendering in the report of events, happening in the report time within the territory of the order. But the Chief of Staff did absolutely not assume the responsibility for the measures given in the report which were taken by the commanding officer or the troop or intended by them. The daily reports were submitted to the commanding officer every day before delivery through the operational department (Fuehrungsabteilung) and signed by him.

If retaliation measures had been undertaken they had to be told of in the next report, and it made no difference who had decreed them and who was responsible for them and no difference, whether the Chief of Staff approved of them or had previous knowledge of them. Absolutely not all happenings were reported (sabotages, attacks from the ambush). the reports of such happenings were frequently suppressed with the knowledge and approval, partly even at the inducement of v. GEITNER in order to evade the retaliation measures decreed from the top.

e) The fundamental attitude of the defendant v. GEITNER towards retaliation measures and similar things was absolutely negative. He also expressed the conception of his towards his commanding officers (General BADER and General FELBER) from the beginning to the end over and over again, emphasized always the principle of a "winning administration" (gewinnende Verwaltung) and turned aside every thought of a permanent domination of the Serbian people by the Germans. V. GEITNER never even heard of a plan to exterminate the Serbian people, as the prosecution asserts, much less did he agree to it. Both his commanders however saw themselves forced, despite inner hesitations, to carry out such retaliatory-measures, not only on account of compelling orders which the commanders received from their superiors, but most of all because of the totally illegal and often cruel fighting methods of the partisan units and because of the hostile attitude of a part of the population, which again and again allowed itself to be carried away to commit acts of sabotage and terrorism.

When GEITNER took over his position as Chief of Staff to the Commanding General and Commander in Serbia, the question of retaliatory measures was generally regulated by reason of superior orders, through an order of General BADER, dated 20 February 42. This order made the carrying out of retaliation measures of killing of human lives principally depending on the assent of the commander. By this all violations and arbitrary acts of the troops were to be prevented. On 28 February 43 General BADER had this order issued in a new form (NOKW No. 382, exhibit 263) without that GEITNER assisted thereby.

f) GEITNER'S attitude towards the Serbs (serbophile attitude) put him in a considerable contrast to the Higher SS and Police Leader MEIYSZNER: the latter acted in matters of police-security but only according to direct instructions issued to him by Reichfuehrer SS HIMMLER, Therefore v. GEITNER had no influence on that.

2) In particular:

Pertaining to the cases mentioned and under I, the defendant v. GEITNER intends to submit as evidence the following facts:

To No 5 e:

Had not been ordered by v. GEITNER To No. 5 f: The same.

Moreover, it has to be remarked that this measure was not only carried out for the assassination of 3 German soldiers but also on account of a shooting attack on a Bulgarian leave train, whereby another 3 were killed and 2 wounded. The orders themselves were issued by General BADER and are to be found in document NOKW No 340 exhibit 276 document book XI page 44 To No 5 g: Had not been ordered by v. GEITNER.

Those shot, were not "hostages" as assumed in the indictment, but retaliation prisoners.

To No 5 h:

Had not been ordered by v. GEITNER.

To No 9 d:

Had not been ordered by v. GEITNER. Moreover, no "retaliation" is in Question in this case, but it concerns a battle action on a larger scale in the course of a continuous series of military operations on both sides of the Moravica against the DM Main Staff and against the DM bands, by the 24. Bulgarian Division and the German Police Regiment No 5. Nor did v. GEITNER order any destruction of inhabited places.

To No 12 b:

The "Commissar order" of 6 June 41 resp. 8 June 41 had been issued long before the activity of v. GEITNER in Belgrade. In any case, v. GEITNER did not forward this order to the troops or brought this order to the recollection of the troops.

As a precaution, it is remarked, that the order of 10 October 42 (document NOKW No 1722, exhibit 228, document book IX, page 66) was not issued by the defendant v. GEITNER, but by the Commander, General BADER (in understanding with the Higher SS and Police Leader) and that this order, which refers to the general treatment of all rebels (insurgents), only states that Commissars who are found with weapons in their hands among the bands, are to be treated just s the other insurgents, yet are to be interrogated before shooting. This order has therefore no connection with the "Commissar order" of 6 June 41.

To No 12 h:

Order of the Command of 18 October 42:

v. GEITNER is absolutely unable to recollect, that the so-called order of the Command of 18 October 42 was ever received or forwarded by the Commander for Serbia; the detailed reasons given by HITLER, as stated in Document C-81 PS, exhibit 225, were unknown to him.

V. GEITNER assumes that this Commissar order never reached the Commander for Serbia. This Commissar order had also no validity for the battle against the guerilla bands, as follows from document PS No 1279, exhibit 487, document book XXI, page 57. It never was applied in Serbia.

V. GEITNER can also not recollect an order of the Chief of the OKW of 30 July 41 regarding the treatment of Military Missions with the bands in the South-East; it was not applied in Serbia and was certainly not forwarded, because according to an explicit "regulation" it was not to be distributed beyond the General Commands and Staffs of equal rank of other Wehrmacht parts. The forwarding of this order to subordinated units was therefore quite out of the question for v. GEITNER, just as he had nothing to do with the carrying out of this special Command order.

To No 12 i:

The order concerning the Italians, of 11 September 43 (document NOKW No 910 exhibit 327 document book XIII page 41) had not been carried out in the Serbian territory of the Military Commander South-East. Much more so, the Italians in Serbia had been transported according to rule as prisoners of war into camps; besides, the prosecution has already acknowledged, that this order concerns only the defendant RENDULIC but not the other defendants.

(Minutes of the session of 31 July 47, page 1931)

To No 14:

In SEMLIN (North of Belgrad, on croatian territory) existed a camp of the Higher SS and Police Leader Serbia, which sometimes was defined as a collecting camp and sometimes as a concentration camp, but, to be sure, was never a concentration camp in the sense of to-days interpretation. It served for the detention of prisoners from guerilla band fightings. V. GEITNER had nothing to do with this camp.

The Higher SS and Police Leader was not subordinated to the Chief of the Command Staff (v. GEITNER) but directly to the military Commander personally, who repeatedly intervened, partly upon proposal and instigation of v. GEITNER, when improprieties in the camp became known.

Besides that (camp)there existed in Serbia during the term of office of v. GEITNER various smaller camps for retaliation prisoners. Also for this camps v. GEITNER had no authority or responsibility whatsoever. The transfers to those camps, was always ordered by the district commands and the police offices. V. GEITNER as the Chief of the Command Staff had nothing to do with the transfer of retaliation prisoners.

The securing of workers (i.e. the putting at disposal of workers for Serbian plants, as well as for Germany) belonged in Serbia to the G.B.W. (Plenipotentiary for Economy) and as of September 1943 to the Administration Staff of the Military Commander South-East. The holder of these offices (by name of NEUHAUSEN) was at any given time subordinated directly to the Commander; v. GEITNER had no right whatsoever of giving directives to the latter.

To No 15 d:

The evacuation and transportation for work in Germany of the entire male population of especially important battle areas, as provided for by the order of the Supreme Commander South-East of 10 August 43(NOKW No 155, exhibit 306, document book XII, page 94) had not been carried out in Serbia.

It should be mentioned that in Serbia existed a, great lack of manpower. A deportation of manpower of entire battle areas would have been therefore senseless. The work allocation in Serbia belonged to the competence of the G.B.W. (Plenipotenciary for Economy) and as of September 1942 to that of the Administration Staff/Dept. Economy; both were not subordinated to v. GEITNER. The transport of captured bandits to Germany belonged to the competence of the Higher SS and Police Leader Serbia, who was not subordinated to the Chief of the Command Staff Serbia(v. GEITNER) either.

After receipt of the order of the OKW of 8 July 43, also captured bandits had later on been treated as prisoners of war and been deported to Germany.

III.

The defendant v. GEITNER intends on his part to base his arguments on the following:

1.) on his own interrogation under oath:

2.) on the testimony of various co-defendants, insofar as they will be called as witnesses;

3.) on a series of affidavits, partly from German, partly from foreign witnesses; some of these witnesses should be called to appear in person to testify; name and number of those witnesses of the defense which should be called personally, has not been established yet.

I have read the opening statement for my client.

THE PRESIDENT: As I understand, Dr. Sauter, the opening statement for defendant Lanz has not been delivered to the Tribunal as yet. Is that correct? The deputy Secretary General advises me that it has not been delivered. I understand that there is an effort being made to get it up here shortly. I am informed that the Marshal has gone for these papers now. In the meantime, while we are waiting for them to be brought here I am advised that the opening statement of Dr. Menzel for the defendant Kuntze is ready and can be presented at this time. Are the English translations here and do you have them, Doctor?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, I have sent down from some English translations for the Court and the interpreters and the court reporters and the secretary was just up and said they were on their way. I don't know by which means of transportation but they are somewhere between the assembling room and here at the moment but, not knowing where the assembling room is nor who is going to bring them, I don't think there is anything more I can do about it other than to wait.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will be in recess at this time, taking its noon recess.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

Tribunal V is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: Before the next opening statement is made I think that it might be well to read two communications that I have received from the Director of the Language Division. One was received this morning, dated September 15, 1947 which is as follows:

"Subject: Status of Opening Statements in Hostage Case.

"From: Thomas K. Hodges, Director Language Division.

"To: Charles F. Wennerstrum, Presiding Judge, Tribunal V.

"1) Already delivered to the Defense Information is the joint opening statement for the defendants List, von Weichs and von Geitner.

"2) The opening statements for the defendants Felmy, Kuntze, Lanz and von Leyser are in the process of translation and will be delivered to the Defense Information Center before the end of the work day, September 15, 1947.

"3) The opening statement for the defendant Dehner, Kuntze, Rendulic and Speidel have been turned over to the interpreter staff of Military Tribunal V and should be ready for presentation in Court by the end of work day, September 15, 1947.

"(Signed) Thomas K. Hodges, Director Language Division."

At the time of the recess I found on my desk a further communication from Mr. Hodges which is as follows, dated September 15 1947:

"From: Thomas K. Hodges, Director Language Division and Chief Translation Branch.

"To: Charles F. Wennerstrum, Presiding Judge, Tribunal V.

"Listed below are the names of the defendants in the hostages case with the date of the arrival in the Translation Branch of the opening statements on their behalf:

"Felmy -- Thursday, September 11, 1947; Kuntze -- Thursday, September 11, 1947; Lanz -- Tuesday, September 9, 1947; von Leyser -- Tuesday, September 9, 1947.

"1) At 12 o'clock September 5, 1947 the opening statements for Kuntze and Lanz had been delivered to the Defense Information Center.

The statements for Felmy and von Leyser will be delivered to the Defense Information Center in the course of the afternoon.

"2) --the opening statements for the defendants Foertsch, Dehner, Rendulic, and Speidel were received, I am told, at 1730 hours Friday, September 5. I should like to point out, however, that these statements did not reach my desk until 9 o'clock Monday, September 15. These statements are being translated at the moment by the interpreter staff of Military Tribunal V and will be ready for presentation in court by the end of the work day, September 15, 1947.

"Signed: Thomas K. Hodges, Director Language Division and Chief Translation Branch."

There was handed me by the Defense Center a statement, which indicated the information that had been given them, which shows that the opening statement for the defendant Dehner was received in the Defense Center on September 12th and I am advised by Dr. Laternser that the counsel for the defendant Dehner, Dr. Gawlik, states that he filed his opening statement on September 11th.

As to the defendant Geitner, the records in the Defense Center show it was received on September 10th and Dr. Sauter states he filed in on September 5th.

As to the defendant Felmy, that would show it was received in Defense Center on September 11th by counsel Dr. Mueller Tougow on September 11th.

As to the defendant Foertsch, it was filed in Defense Center on September 13th and the counsel, Dr. Rauschenbach, states that he filed it on September 13th.

As to the defendant Kuntze, it was filed in Defense Center on September 10th and Dr. Menzel states it was filed on September 10th.

As to the defendants List and Weichs there are no complaints.

As to the defendant Lanz, it was filed on September 8th and Dr. Sauter states it was filed on September 8th.

As to the defendant vonLeyser, it was filed in the Defense Center on September 9th and Dr. Tipp states it was filed on September 8th.

As to the defendant Rendulic, it shows that it was filed on September 12th and Dr. Fritsch states it was filed on September 10th.

As to the defendant Speidel, it shows that it was filed as on September 13th in the Defense Center and Dr. Weisgerber states that he filed it on September 12th.

As to all counsel, other than Dr. Fritsch, there does not seem to be any excuse for the delay that has been occasioned in the presentation of these opening statements. This Court originally adjourned to convene on September 12th and this Tribunal does not see where there is any excuse for the filing of any opening statements on September 13th, 12th, 10th or 11th or any of those days.

If there is any delay here occasioned by it, the Court will endeavor it by requiring the necessary translation by the interpreters themselves.

This statement is made for the record to show the occasion of the reason of any delays.

DR. SAUTER:(Counsel for the defendants Lanz and von Geitner.) Your Honor, the statements which have made to you by the Translation division are not correct with respect to my clients, but are incorrect. For sometime I have had the habit to always ask for a receipt, which shows the date when I have submitted certain material. I apply this precaution because I have had many sad experiences in the early days. I have here two receipts by the Defense Information Center, that is the roper authority where we defense counsel have to submit our documents. The confirmation for the opening statement for the defendant von Geitner says here expressly, "Delivered on 5 September, 1947." that is 5 September 1947, that was Friday, a week ago and it is signed "Mueller." She is the responsible employee for the Information Center for the Defense. Furthermore, I have here a receipt for the opening statement for General Lanz, which is a receipt showing that this statement was submitted in four copies, as is prescribed, on 8 September 1947, that is a week ago today.

I had assumed , and I assume even today, that one week should be sufficient to translate an opening statement to the extent of about ten pages. This second receipt is signed, regarding the statement for General Lanz, is signed by an employee, "Falkemeyer" of the Defense Information Center.

Your Honor, I attach importance to this last statement, because you can see from this that I should not be reproached because of a delay of the proceedings. These receipts can be submitted by me at any time in order to prove that the two opening statements were already submitted on the 5th and 8th of September, respectively.

May I add something else, Your Honor? During the course of the previous weeks, I have asked repeatedly at the Defense Information Center about the state of the translations. It is rather difficult to get information on this because the staff of the defense is not allowed to visit the rooms of the translation branch. We defense counsels can therefore only put our complaints or inquiries to the Defense Information Center of the General Secretary and I have done that. That is for my part, I have done everything I could and everything that has been said to you to the contrary can be repudiated by these receipts, which I have here.

Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Sauter, you have ---

(Dr. Sauter hands the receipts to the Tribunal.)

DR. SAUTER: This is for Lanz for the 8th of September and for von Geitner for the 5th.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Sauter, will you take one of the earphones so I can make a statement?

I think I avoided making any statement or criticism, which might apply to you, Doctor, I did endeavor to restrict any critical statements to any documents, which were filed prior to September 10th. I again repeat, however, that I can see no excuse for the documents being filed September 10th and afterwards. We were to have convened on September 12th and I cannot see how we could have been prepared to have opening statements when some were filed on September 10th, 11th, 12th, and 13th. The criticism was not directed to you, Dr. Sauter.

DR. SAUTER: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: I understand we are now prepared to have the opening statement for the defendant Kuntzby Dr. Menzel.

DR. MENZEL: (Counsel Menzel for the defendant General Kuntze.) Before I read my opening statement, I would like to say one thing concerning the reproach which we have heard concerning the delay of sub mitting our opening statements for translations.

I had submitted my opening statement on the morning of Wednesday, 10 September and I then pointed out that I was the second person to read the statement and that it would have to be finished on Monday morning. Thursday the 11th we made inquiries as to whether it would be ready in time on Monday morning and everyone was indignant that we should ask, as that would be a matter of course, that it would be finished on Monday if it was submitted on the previous Wednesday. Well, that finished the matter as far as we were concerned. This morning we again made inquiries and we were told it would not be ready until one o'clock as it had to be stapled, so that it would be at our disposal at 2:00 o'clock. At 1:30 we again made inquiries and we were told an error had occurred and two pages had been omitted and that was the reason that caused the delay.

I am of the opinion that we of the defense counsel, or at least my own person, is not at fault and we cannot be liable for other departments and for delays which occur there.

May I now turn to my opening statement?

Your Honors:

The accusations brought against General Walter KUNTZE in the indictment concern the time between the end of October 1941 and the beginning of August 1942, when General KUNTZE was acting commander-in-chief of the 12th Army and acting commander-in-chief in the occupied district South East.

This command of General KUNTZE had been limited by the Army Personal Office to the period of illness of Field Marshal LIST who was Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army and Commander-in-Chief South East. It was originally intended for 4 to 6 weeks only but as a result of the longer duration of Fieldmarshal LIST'S illness and his later re-assignment its extension was implied.

Respecting the duration, from a point of view of time, of his activity as acting Commander-in-Chief of the 12th Army and acting Commander-in-Chief in the occupied district South-East, according to the statement of the prosecution itself, it is established that General KUNTZE took over command on 27 October 1941 and held it until 8 August 1942.

From these established facts three deductions of a fundamental nature may be made to which I should like to call special attention at the beginning of my opening statement:

1. As a result of taking over the command on 27 October 1941, the defendant KUNTZE is freed from practically all responsibility for events in October 1941 and the beginning of November 1941, since General KUNTZE during the period after he assumed command had first of all to get a general idea of his territory and the position there before he could occupy himself with details at all.

2. As a result of being appointed merely as deputy for a period of time limited in advance, his direction was naturally within certain limits. This consisted above all in the initial stages of his command in the obligation to already existing situations created by the command before he took over.

3. The activity of General KUNTZE consisted in the first place in the carrying out of operative measures. General KUNTZE looked upon the success of these measures as his main task as is the case with every director of strategy conscious of his responsibility. Within the frame-work of this activity the task arising out of the occupation of the South East which were passed on to the Territorial commanders to be dealt with independently were only of secondary importance. From this point of view the characteristics of the offence which form the basis of the indictment must be assessed too.

In my closing speech I will go in more detail into the legal problems which have to be dealt with in these proceedings. Moreover, they have already been thoroughly discussed by my colleague Dr. LATERNER in his opening statement. Therefore I can limit myself to referring briefly to these questions in my opening statement:

The prosecution bases its accusations exclusively on the Control Council Law No. 10 of 20 December 1945 to prove the punishableness of these incidents. This law, however, was only proclaimed some years after the events with which the prosecution charges the defendant KUNTZE. Therefore, it endeavours with retroactive power to create a punishable characteristic of the offence. In accordance with the legal principles recognized in the criminal law of all civilized countries "nullum crimen sine lege" and "nulla poena sine lege" the subsequent standardisation of a punishable characteristic of an offence cannot, however, constitute punishableness if at the time the offence was committed no norm of punishment existed. If international law had wanted to punish these actions before 1939 the possibility of doing so would have existed for even then there were innumerable international agreements into which such norms of punishment might have been inserted. It will be stated further that other rules of international law too which are binding for a German citizen were not violated by the defendant KUNTZE.

In this connection, I shall demonstrate that international law, insofar as it has not been incorporated in German Reich Law, simply cannot incur a responsibility on the part of individuals. For international agreements entail obligations only on the part of the contracting countries themselves.

This applies also to the Geneva Convention and the Hague Convention, quite apart from the fact, that in these agreements any standardization of punishableness is lacking in the event of contravention of the rules by one of the partners to the treaty.

Therefore, the defendant KUNTZE could only be held responsible for violation of existing German laws. Since he is accused of acts which he is supposed to have committed as a soldier, the question of responsibility arises only if such exists for these acts according to the Military Penal Code. It will be demonstrated that the measures taken by the defendant KUNTZE were carried out on orders of the highest command of the Wehrmacht and within the frame-work on instructions issued by the latter which were binding for the defendant KUNTZE. In carrying out these orders the defendant had to assume that they were in accordance with the rules applied in Martial law. Accordingly the defendant KUNTZE is exonerated of responsibility in accordance with Par. 47 of the Military Penal Code as I shall demonstrate more fully in my closing speech.

In addition, in these proceedings, the right of admissibility of reprisals, in particular will remain to be thoroughly examined. I shall demonstrate in my closing speech that there is no international law concerning the taking of hostages. In international literature the right is disputed, is, however, extensively recognized as permissible and that also in the literature of Anglo-Saxon countries.

Therefore there can be no question of prohibition of the taking of hostages. Add to this that, as the nations' conduct of war proves, this right has been exercised until most recent times. The same holds for the right of execution of persons as reprisal hostages in connection with unbearable offences of the enemy against the conduct of the war for which the latter are made responsible.

From the point of view of proportionality I shall demonstrate and prove that in the literature pertaining to international law no limit is fixed for the proportion of atonement. The standard is rather dutiful assessment.

Further discussions in my closing speech will deal with the question of obedience to orders issued. I will go into the character of the military orders and show that these were binding and that non-adherence to them would have been tantamount to revolt against the supreme power. In this connection too, the question of responsibility for measures on the grounds of such order will have to be gone into. I shall demonstrate that orders of the highest command of the Wehrmacht constituted in principle no responsibility on the part of the organs carrying out the orders that rather the responsibility was borne exclusively by the commander in Chief of the Wehrmacht.

Such orders were not subject to checking so that the military rank of the person carrying out these orders was of no account.

In themselves simply they had the appearance of legality. In a material respect I shall demonstrate the following:

According to Count I of the Indictment General KUNTZE is accused of killing civilians of the South East Area, in so far as this was occupied by Germany, by collective punishing. On the contrary I shall prove that the defendant is not guilty of the charge brought by the prosecution. The execution of reprisals, especially killing reprisal hostages, cannot be traced back to the initiative of the defendant KUNTZE. He neither introduced them in the South East area, nor caused them to be carried out initially. When the defendant KUNTZE took over his duties as deputy military commander South East, he found many orders pertaining to collective punishment already in force. The defendant KUNTZE could not make any changes then, because these orders had already been issued to the subordinate military posts and besides, he was not familiar with conditions in the Balkans at the time he took over his duties. Furthermore, he was only sent to the South East as deputy military commander South East for the duration of his predecessors illness. Finally, the defendant KUNTZE had to accept, as legally binding, these orders that had been issued, and of which he only learned by and by because his position kept him very busy right after he took over his command, especially since he had to make official trips through the territory he controlled, because they had been issued by order of and in accordance with the directions of the superior office.

Therefore, these reprisal measures, which were carried out according to these orders, cannot be considered as a charge against the defendant Kuntze.

It can also not be said, as the prosecution says, that the defendant KUNTZE must have realized the "criminal nature" of those orders. As shall be proved, the execution of these orders during his command was no violation of existing national or international laws, and especially not a crime against international law or humanity, even though they necessitated severe measures, such as a war naturally brings to humanity.

In particular, the execution of these reprisal measures did in no way represent, either in purpose or goal, a plan to terrorize the civilian population, as the prosecution maintains. They were, rather, as shall be proved the result of acts in violation of international law on the part of a portion of the population of the occupied countries, who endangered the peace and security of the occupied South East area by attacks on the German occupation troops, by sabotage and by fighting amongst themselves. Therefore General KUNTZE must necessarily get the impression, from the continuously arriving reports from subordinate offices and commands, that quiet and security in the South East area could only be guaranteed by means of strong measures, as had been ordered by the High Command of the Army and through corresponding orders issued by the military commander South East before he (KUNTZE) took command. The restoration of order was also a duty of the occupation troops toward the civilian population. Even though General KUNTZE had to be convinced, after seeing local conditions and learning about the existing regulations, that stern measures were absolutely necessary, he none the less left no stone unturned, while he was in command to soften the prescribed measures for the benefit of the population. Thus he influenced General BADER in this respect, as will be proved, and arranged, among other things, to have the reprisal ratio reduced through General BADER.

It will further be proved that in the spring of 1942 General KUNTZE even personally requested the highest Army leaders, i.e. JODL and KEITEL, to have the measures softened. He did this even though he well knew that at that time such a request would have personal disadvantages. This is even more so, because he was already considered by the Army High Command as too mild and too soft. He cannot be blamed if his requests were not successful, but rather his attempt must be recognized. At any rate, he could not simply ignore the orders issued by the highest Army leaders, especially since these were issued by HITLER'S express order.

From then on his efforts were directed toward softening the execution of these orders in his area of command. It shall be proved that the orders concerning reprisals were not carried out to the extent ordered. On the contrary, many of his subordinate offices and commands deviated, with his consent, in many individual cases, from the reprisal ratios ordered by the Army High Command. I shall show the Court, by a comparison of the losses of the German troops, and their Allies, with the number of persons shot in reprisal during the time General KUNTZE was responsible, that only a fraction of the number ordered by the Army High Command was involved. Also, inaccurate reports of high losses of the Partisans were made to the military commander South East, and by him to the Army High Command. It will also be proved that wherever possible, cruelty was avoided in the selection of the persons to be used in the carrying out of the reprisals. This was especially done by almost exclusively using persons who, through their activities, already deserved the death sentence according to the laws of war. Apart from this it is pointed out that in the final analysis it is not possible to force an elementary incident such as a war, into a legal frame work. Every occupation force must be prepared to use the means that are deemed necessary to assure order and security in the countries it has occupied. The history of war of the past as well as of modern times proves that the application of the measures necessary to insure the security of the occupying force and of the population depend primarily on existing conditions and that the usual standards must necessarily be relegated to the accomplishment of these goals.

In so far as the defendant KUNTZE is accused, under count 2 of the indictment, of burning down homes, I shall prove that there can be no question of a "far-reaching devastation of the occupied country," as maintained by the prosecution. The prosecution has only submitted three documents in support of this statement, in which it is shown that homes were burned to the ground while the defendant KUNTZE was in command. I shall show later that two of these documents do not concern the defendant KUNTZE.

However, the burning of the house mentioned in the remaining document was, as I shall show, entirely justified by the existing regulations.

Up to this point the prosecution has offered no proof to support its charge that the economy and industry was ruined in order to lower the economic and industrial potential and to destroy the population. To refute these statements of the prosecution I will show that the German army commands did everything they could to bring the economy, which had above all been upset by the Partisans, on its feet again. Railroads, factories and mines were repaired. The German authorities also did all they could under the circumstances to intensify the agricultural program, Over and above that, relief measures for the population of the South East area were instituted, as I shall show in detail in final argument.

In so far as the prosecution looks on the Partisans as members of a regular army, and considers the measures carried out against them as crimes against members of Allied forces, as set forth in count 3 of the indictment, it is pointed out that the prosecution has not so far been able to prove the correctness of their contention.

I shall show that it was only in later years that Allied governments considered the question of whether or not they should recognize the Partisans in the Balkans as regular armed forces. The prosecution will not, on the basis of the evidence they have presented, be able to maintain the charge in the indictment that these bands fulfilled the requirements necessary for recognition as a regular army during the time up to August 1942, which is the period that the defendant KUNTZE held the positions of Deputy Commander in Chief of the 12th Army and Deputy Army Commander South East.

I shall prove that these bands or Partisans had nothing in common with a regular army. As shall be proved, they generally wore civilian clothes without any insignia that could be recognized from a distance, or also captured uniform pieces, often even German uniforms which they had taken off of dead German soldiers.

But what is most important, they did not fight according to any rules or customs of war. They did not carry their weapons openly and only fought from ambush. They evaded every open battle. They did not treat captured German soldiers according to the rules of international law or humanity. Captured German soldiers, including the wounded, were murdered. But their deceitful warfare affected not only the German occupation force but also their own people whom they harassed and often forced to tolerate and support their deceitful warfare. As a result of these violations of international law they had to be considered and treated as armed insurgents.

The activities and methods of such bands are known from World War I. This irregular activity of bands is also characteristic of the Balkans. As shall be shown, every foreign occupation force in the Balkans must count on this ambush warfare and meet it with appropriate measures. Even until this day the activity of bands is a source of trouble which does not allow peace to settle in the Balkans.

Therefore, this partisan movement in the Balkan, traceable through the whole course of history, could surely not have been a consequence of the German invasion, as the Prosecution contends. On the contrary, I am going to prove that it was just that Guerilla-bands activity which first engendered the counter-measures ordered by the German Army Chiefs. Consequently, the German Army was in a state of legitimate defense in combatting these bands by way of the measures ordered.

Moreover, I shall prove that the defendant KUNTZE was not the first to order those measures against the Guerilla-bands movement taken by the WB (Military Commander) South-East. Also in this respect there had already at the time, when General KUNTZE took over, various binding orders by the German Army Chiefs been in existence, which resulted in the orders issued by the offices charged with maintaining order and security. Though considering these measures as a legitimate counter-defense by the German Army Chiefs in view of all the reports he had received about the extent and nature of the Guerilla-movement, General KUNTZE nevertheless endeavoured to mitigate those measures in accordance with the situation and with his humane attitude, as I shall prove.

It will also be proved that his remonstrations with the German Army H.Qu. were in vain, and even considered as evidence for his weakness. I shall explain that the measures taken so far by the WB-South-East (Military Commander SouthEast) were, in a sharp manner quite unusual among military men, called inadequate and that orders were issued to take the harshest measures possible.

Moreover, the defendant KUNTZE also endeavoured to mitigate the measures he had to carry out in consequence of orders received, as I shall prove. I shall also prove that the defendant KUNTZE even allowed that captured partisans whom he ought, on account of the orders issued, to have shot, were not shot, but employed as laborers, thereby saving them from the death which in fact they would have deserved.

As far as the defendant KUNTZE is charged by the Prosecution with the responsibility for orders issued and measures taken by commands subordinated to him, it will be proved that not all the orders and measures of these commands were brought to the knowledge on the defendant KUNTZE. It will be explained that those orders and measures which came to the defendant KUNTZE's knowledge at all, did not allow any action on his part, as they did not exceed the binding orders of the (OKW) Supreme Command of the Armed Forces. On the other hand, the orders and measures which did not come to KUNTZE's knowledge, cannot be charged to his account. In this respect, any responsibility on his part is out of question.

Furthermore, I shall refute the allegation of the Prosecution that partisans had been shot without any judicial procedure. Contrary to what the Prosecution asserts I shall prove that, when the fighting subsided, at least a simplified summary court martial procedure has been instituted.

In as far as the Prosecution blames the defendant KUNTZE for the so-called "Commissary Order", it will be proved, that this order was issued exclusively for the Eastern theatre of war. But even in the East that order was not carried out by the defendant KUNTZE in the form submitted by the Prosecution. I shall prove that captured commissars were, by explicit order of the Supreme Commander of the 9th Army, under which the defendant KUNTZE was in the East, not to be shot, but to be treated as Prisoners-of-War. In accordance with this order the matter has then been treated in the area of the 9th Army.

As far as General KUNTZE is charged by the Prosecution with the so-called "Commando-order" it will be proved that the defendant KUNTZE was, at the time when that order arrived at the Military Commanded South-East already with the Reserve Army, and had, as Chief of the training in the Reserve Army, nothing to do with that order, so that he was not in a position to carry it out nor to pass it on.

Besides, in this respect, a conclusive statement on the part of the Prosecution is lacking.

Count 4 of the indictment refers to the charge to have terrorized the civilian population by deporting them for forced labor and detaining them in concentration camps. In opposition to the allegation that deportation of so-called unreliable elements into concentration camps had been ordered and carried out by the WB (Military Commander) South-East or by Commands Subordinated to him, I am first going to prove that those camps were no concentration camps as known today but only so-called Community Camps (Sammellager); so far the Prosecution has really in no way alleged, let alone proved, that the characteristics of a concentration camp in the currently accepted meaning of that word can be applied to these camps. The necessity to establish so-called Community Camps, however, is in no way incompatible with the rules of International Law, as I will explain in my closing speech, the more so, as also other states considered it necessary to establish camps of this kind even in recent times, and did, in fact, establish here.

Furthermore, I am going to prove what membership to a certain national group or, race or political grouping were, in themselves, no reasons for concentrating people in such community camps. It will be shown that on the Balkans, Communists, Jews and Gypsies were particularly active in the Intelligence Service of the partisans or helped them in other ways, thus proving themselves suspect of being connected with guerrillas and as unreliable elements. Besides, evidence will show that detention in these community camps was not ordered arbitrarily. On the contrary, explicit orders were issued to the effect that it had to depend on the results of the re-examination of the detained, whether they had to remain in these camps.

I will show that people who proved to be innocent were released. This is, as I will explain, clearly shown by various documents submitted by the Prosecution itself, where, in speaking of Community Camps, also releases are mentioned.

Moreover, I shall prove that the people left in these camps after reexamination were particularly after December 1941, almost exclusively captured partisans or their helpers, who would have deserved to be sentenced to death according to the laws in force. Therefore, it was only just to use these people in the first place when reprisal measures had to be carried out. Incidentally, the defendant Kuntze found those Community Camps, when he took over his official duties, already fully established, so that it was not he who ordered to establish them.

Never has the defendant Kuntze, as alleged by the Prosecution, ordered to establish Jewish Concentration Camps in the current meaning. The Prosecution has produced no evidence for that. Camps of that kind did not exist in the South-East.

Insofar as the defendant Kuntze is charged by the Prosecution with the crime of using partisans in Serbia as workers in the interest of the Germans, it must be replied that this measure was in the very interest of the persons concerned. This way they were saved from well-deserved death. Besides, the Prosecution neither conclusively contended nor proved that any facts about a treatment of these laborers in a manner contrary to human dignity had come to the defendant Kuntze's knowledge while he was in command.

Furthermore, it is asserted that only the Police was authorized in matters regarding employment of prisoners. The police received their orders from the quartermaster General and from Himmler himself, as I shall prove. In so far there is no responsibility on the part of the defendant Kuntze.

In this connection the partly overlapping command-channels will be demonstrated, as found by the defendant Kuntze when he took over. In the first place it will be proved that the Military Administration often acted quite arbitrarily and that repeated representations were made by the defendant Kuntze regarding the Administrative Staff of the Military Commander in Serbia, even, that frequently the relief of the Chief of the Administrative Staff had been demanded from the O.S.F. (Supreme Command of the armed forces). Having concluded my statements referring to the counts of the indictments I deem it my duty to point again to the difficulties confronting me as a counsel for the defense.

I can, at this moment, deal only with material that has been chosen and submitted by the Prosecution from the point of view, that of-course-suits it best. The evidence concerning the events that induced the defendants to take the various measures, is, on the other hands, generally not accessible to me. In as far as the documents submitted by the Prosecution do not yield circumstances apt to exonerate the defendant, I am in the main reduced to relying on my client's memory which has suffered in consequence of the long duration of the war and the frequent changes in his military appointments but particularly also as a result of his being psychically affected by the events of the post-war period, so that it has become deficient in a way. Thus, the defense is not in a position to contribute their share in clarifying the extensive material of the trial which would be necessary in the interest of conducting this trial objectively. In addition, the time available to the defense for preparing the evidence must be considered a very scanty one compared with the time at the disposal of the Prosecution for collecting their evidence and preparing their line of action. In this connection I well may point to the difficulties encountered on account of the prevailing state of affairs regarding mail and communications in Germany in carrying on the necessary correspondence in view to collecting evidence. Under these conditions I feel bound, by way of precaution, to reserve all those rights for the further conduct of the procedure which may result from that difficult position of the defense in the further course of this trial.

In conclusion, may I be permitted to mention the following facts concerning the personality of the defendant Kuntze, which I shall prove by submitting affidavits.

General Kuntze was a general of the old school, who was never eager to push himself to the foreground or to expose himself, but on the contrary did his duty with reserve and modesty. He was deeply religious and had a pronounced sense of duty. By all people who know him he is described as a just superior whose paternal care was appreciated by the soldiers entrusted to his care. His attitude to the population of the occupied countries was also humane, and to the best of his ability he looked after this population. It is significant that he never enjoyed the favour of the people then in power.

It was known that he was not in good repute either with Hitler, or with the Supreme Staff of the Wehrmacht, which is shown by the fact alone that he was not promoted during the whole war and was not appointed Supreme Commander of the 12th Army nor Military Commander South East.

Surely an officer of this type was not capable of consciously committing war crimes or crimes against humanity, such as he is charged with.

DR. RAUSCHENBACH (Counsel for the defendant General Foertsch): The interpreters have the translations –

THE PRESIDENT: Just a minute, please. I understand that the translation for the defendant Lanz has now been furnished to the Tribunal -- or can be furnished to the Tribunal – in its English translation. If Dr. Sauter is agreeable, we might hear it at this time.

DR. SAUTER: (For the defendant General Hubert Lanz) Your Honor, General Hubert Lanz has merely been indicted because of alleged incidents in the Epirus sector which was under his command (including the Jonian Islands). It is an established fact that Lanz was never military commander ("Militaerbefehlshaber") for Greece or her north-west districts but merely troop commander as commander of the XXII Mountain Corps.

He was given this post in Athens in the middle of August 1943, but in fact it was not until 9 Sept. 1943, that he took over the command in the Epirus sector (See Doc. Vol XIX; page 82) which he kept until 13 Oct. 1944 until the evacuation of German troops from Greece.

During this period he was absent for almost 4 months (i.e. from 11 Jan. 1944 to 25 Feb. 1944 on home leave and from 5 March 1944 to 4 May 1944 on assignment to Hungary) so that by this reason alone he is for the above mentioned periods, not responsible for actions which at that time were supposedly carried out in the Epirus sector.

DR. SAUTER: "Courts of the Indictment against General LANZ" The Prosecution charges all defendants, thus also General LANZ, with having PLANNED THE TERRORIZATION OF THE BALKAN PEOPLES and having made this plan the basis for their conduct.

Defendant LANZ knows nothing of such a plan, he neither received orders concerning such a plan nor did he ever hear of such a plan in the course of official or private conversation. The defendant encountered this supposed plan for the first time in the bill of indictment of this trial."

Then, Your Honors, on Pages 2, 3 and 4 I have compiled the individual points of the indictment which the Prosecution charges. And I have marked the individual documents to make it easier for the Tribunal. I do not want to read this compilation here; instead I shall turn to the second chapter on Page 4, under Roman numeral II.

"General-LANZ'S Reply to the Indictment LANZ makes the following reply to the individual counts of the indictment, reserving legal problems (such as the Tribunal's competence, the right to make reprisals, limitation of the binding force of military orders, etc.

etc.) to be dealt with at a later date.

A.) General remarks:

1.) In the Epirus sector, LANZ had the task to prevent a landing of Allied troops on the north-west coast of Greece and, for the purpose, to maintain peace, security and order in the country. It was his intention to fulfill that latter task in a peaceful manner, if possible, in order to save his troop from losses and at the same time to spare the country and the population of the occupied territory.

In the course of his efforts in this direction, during the whole period of his activities in the Epirus sector, LANZ

a) worked in Joannina on a peaceful footing with the authorities of the state, the towns and the church;

b) supported as far as possible the International Red Cross under direction of the Swiss BICKEL,

c) assisted the peaceful population and spared them as far as permitted by war conditions and

d) by mutual agreement avoided whenever possible fights against the national partisans (under General ZERVAS).

General LANZ' efforts were also successful and were recognized by the Greeks.

2.) In the course of his troop inspections which took place nearly every day as well as his numerous conferences with the commanding and line officers he continuously pointed out that all unnecessary severity towards loyal civilians should be avoided so as to ease the inhabitants' heavy burden.

Whenever he learnt that the troop had nevertheless taken measures which were unnecessary in the light of the military position he intervened rigorously and took steps for the punishment of the culprits.

3.) Defendant LANZ opposed the question of hostages on principle. On a single occasion only forced by conditions, did he order the taking of hostages; the hostages were released again as this measure had the desired results.

Besides, the above mentioned order was fully justified from a military point of view and it was also in keeping with American regulations since it was meant as a protection of lines of communication of special tactical importance.

LANZ never ordered any measures for reprisals.

He did, however, express the hope in an obituary notice for a regimental commander (Lieutenant Colonel SALMINGER) murdered by partisans (see order of the day to the Corps dated 1 Oct. 1943 contained in Doc. Book XIX page 128, NOKW 867 Exh. 453) that the division would avenge this murder by a ruthless action of retaliation.

With this he did not intend to hit innocent inhabitants but to send the culprits to their deserved punishment; as he must have thought that the latter were hiding near the place of murder, he ordered that the area for the carrying out of the action be restricted (20 km).

LANZ never ordered or approved of the destruction of localities unless such destruction was tactically necessary during a battle. The Prosecution's assertion referring to the existence of concentration camps does not apply to Gen. LANZ' command.

4.) As can be seen from Document Volume XIX p. 1104. NOKW 1104, Exh. 451 and Volume XIX p. 150 NOKW 864, Exh. 455, which have been submitted by the Prosecution, the first Mountain Division under the command of General LANZ issued in September and October 1943 "special orders" concerning the Ic-department (that is, enemy propaganda and counter intelligence) which, among other things, also contained instructions about measures to be taken with regard to hostages. General LANZ learned about these "special orders concerning the Ic-department" only now that these two above-mentioned documents have been submitted.

5.) With regard to the reports frequently mentioned in the documents, LANZ, in connection with the procedure and in order to clarify his sphere of responsibility, states the following:

Reports by battalions, regiments, etc, etc, to the divisions which were not transmitted by them to General Headquarters remained unknown to the latter. Therefore, the commanding general (LANZ) could not be expected to know about them.

Reports from the divisions to General Headquarters went to HQ Department Ia (operations), were coordinated there, and were then submitted to the chief-of-staff. The chief-of-staff in turn made an usually oral report to the commanding general about all the essentials in the sphere of daily tactical orientation. If at that time there were objections, uncertainties, or if it was necessary for General Headquarters to issue orders, the chief-of-staff was instructed to clarify the circumstances or to carry out the orders, respectively.

If the chief-of-staff, in the course of his examination of the circumstances, would establish that an offense against issued orders or another misdemeanor had been committed, the offenders were held responsible for their actions by the commanding general in the appropriate manner.

The relay of daily reports from the corps to the superior command (army or group of armies) took place usually by way of telephone or telegraph through Ia or his assistant (the 01) after having been read by the chief-of-staff, in important cases after having reported it to the commanding general.

The written daily reports which came into general Headquarters from the subordinate mixed forces were submitted to the commanding general only in exceptional cases, namely, if it was a question of matters which were important from a tactical point of view or of reports personally signed by the division commanders. Whether or not a division commander would personally sign a report was left to his discretion.

6.) General LANZ will prove further that at the time when he had dealings with them and within his sphere of jurisdiction, the majority of the partisan organizations did not act according to the provisions of the Hague Land Warfare Regulations, and, specifically, that their manner of warfare in many cases grossly violated the regulations of warfare and the law of humanity. In this connection, the civilian population in many cases illicitly supported the partisan organizations and participated in the fight against the German troops. The counter measures ordered or approved by LANZ were essential for maintaining order in the country and for the security of the German troops.

The warfare of the partisan organizations and of part of the civilian population, which ran counter to international law, also had the result that the troops themselves on their own initiative carried out retaliation measures in their indignation about the enemy's atrocities. However, since the troops knew that General LANZ was in principle opposed to such measures, they were sometimes not reported at all, or they were reported in such a manner that they appeared as having been taken solely in the course of battle, so that the General would not have any reason for interfering.

7.) On the occasion of the capitulation and disarming of the Italian army in Greece (September 1943) General LANZ, in contradiction to orders issued by the Fuehrer, took it upon himself to carry out measures favoring the Italians, which caused the disapproval of his superior officers at the time and his down-grading because of "lacking severity". Details are reserved for the actual presentation of evidence.

Specifically:

To the individual points mentioned above under I, General LANZ will bring evidence for the following facts:

To No. 5 j:

Not ordered by LANZ and not known to him at the time of execution. If he should have received a report about that from the First Mountain Div. dated 30 September 1943 afterwards -- a fact which he cannot recall -- this subsequent report obviously could not lead to the conclusion that it was here a case of subsequent revenge, but rather the report gave the impression that it was a question of a tactical measure, that is to say, of shooting partisans in the act of sabotage during fighting with parts of the First Mountain Division.

To No. 5 L:

It is here a case of a surprise attack by a gang of partisans on a part of the escort party of General LANZ which was overtaken and left behind on 3 October 1943, on the main road, 13 kilometers south of Joannina, General LANZ learned about that only during the day.

It is not a case of shooting "hostages" (that is, persons who had already been captured before the surprise attack), but, rather, it is a case of killing the attacking partisans in the course of action (surprise attack).

It is possible that further "retaliation measures on the part of the troops were instituted", but there is no further report on and about what is supposed to have constituted these "retaliation measures" and whether or not they were really carried out.

To No. 9 f:

The destruction of Akmotopos and the alleged execution of its entire population was not an act of reprisal, but was carried out in the course of a tactical "mopping-up operation" against a strong partisan group which had been operating from the area around Akmotopos for a long time, which carried out continuous attacks on the main communication road Joannina - Filippias, and which maliciously murdered first the chief of a bakery company (thus not of a fighting group but of a supply organization) by name of STITZINGER (father of five children) and soon after that the commander of the Mountain Infantry Regiment 98 (Oberstlt. SALMINGER).

The order for this mopping-up operation was given independently by the 1st Mountain Division on the strength of their knowledge about the enemy situation even before the "daily corps order" of 1 October 1943 at 1900 hours had been received by the Division. The daily corps order, by the way, did not contain any instructions about shooting hostages or any other concrete reprisal measures, but aimed only at punishing the malicious killing (murder of regiment commander Oberstlt. SALMINGER) in the person of the perpetrators whom General LANZ thought to be in hiding near the spot where the murder was committed. It was the duty of the General to protect his troops against continuing malicious partisan attacks from such supporting bases and from thereby suffering heavy losses.

According to the report of an eye-witness, the population of Akmotopos had left the village already before the fighting began; parts of the partisan group were fighting with rifles and machine guns in the village itself and nearby, so that the village had to be stormed by the attacking troops with mortar and artillery support.

To No. 9 j:

Was not ordered by LANZ nor did he know about it at the time of execution. The Korea area in Albania was always made insecure by Communist bands, and the civilian population regularly participated in the fighting on the side of the bands. The village in question was occupied by bands and was defended by them with the aid of the civilian population. The report of 1 December 1943 (NOKW 755 Exh. 449) expressly states that the village was taken "against resistance". Therefore, this is not a case of reprisal measures, but of house-to-house fighting in the course of a combat operation. The mopping-up operation taking place in the area of Korea at that time was aimed against the bands operating there. The corresponding order did not originate with LANZ, but was independently given by the local troop commander.

To No. 12 b:

The "Kommissar Order" dated 8 June 1941, was not issued by LANZ nor transmitted by him during the whole term of his activities in the Epirus.

To No. 12 h:

The "Kommando Order" dated 18 October 1942 was not issued to General LANZ nor transmitted by him during the whole of his term of activity in the Epirus.

To No. 12 i:

The so-called "Italian Order" of 11 September 1943 (Doc. Vol. XIII, p. 40, Doc. NOKW 910, Exh. 327) concerns Rendulic only. LANZ had nothing to do with it.

To No. 12 j:

The Italian General GANDIN had twice been ordered to lay down arms and to surrender to the German Wehrmacht. This order was once given by his Italian commander-in-chief, and the second time by General LANZ himself, after GANDIN had voluntarily surrendered to LANZ and had requested such an order. General GANDIN, however, did not execute these orders, but commanded his troops to fight, yes, even to attack the German troops on the island of Kephallonia. This was how General LANZ was forced to suppress the Italian revolt and at the same time, to relieve the German occupation force on the island Kephallonia who were in distress. In the course of this fighting which lasted several days, and which General LANZ had attempted to avoid, both sides suffered great losses. General GANDIN, contrary to his orders, commanded and tolerated this fight against the German troops, which went on without Italy being in a state of war with Germany at the time. In spite of this, General LANZ did not execute the order issued by his superior according to which at first every Italian and later at least every officer who offered resistance to the German troops was to be shot.

On the contrary, he ordered an investigation by a summary court martial against GANDIN and the other officers of his staff who were guilty. The shooting of General GANDIN and of a part of the officers who had been pronounced guilty then took place on the strength of the verdict of this summary court.

To No. 14:

General LANZ had nothing to do with this. These matters belonged into the sphere of competency of the Higher SS and Police Leader in Athens who was not subordinated to the commanding general of the XXII Mountain Army Command, General LANZ.

To No. 15:

General LANZ had nothing to do with this either.

In conclusion, Roman numeral III, "Presentation of Evidence by General LANZ", I have to state that "General LANZ intends to support his evidence on the following:

- 1.) his own interrogation under oath,
- 2.) the testimony of various co-defendants, insofar as they are called into the witness stand,
- 3.) a series of affidavits, partly from German and partly from foreign witnesses; some of these witnesses will be called into the witness stand; the names and the number of these defense witnesses who are to be heard in court is at present not yet established."

That is my Opening Statement for General LANZ. Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: Before the Tribunal adjourns, it might be well to state that the translations have been promised as to the Defendants Felmy and Leyser, and that they will undoubtedly be ready for delivery to the Tribunal and the translators, and the Reporters in the morning. The Opening Statements for the Defendants Dehner, Foertsch, Rendulich, and Speidel will undoubtedly have to be presented through the Interpreters of this Tribunal. However, they will be furnished in typewritten form to the Tribunal at a later date.

The Tribunal will adjourn until 0930 tomorrow morning.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess until tomorrow at 0930.

(The Tribunal adjourned at 1635 to resume session at 0930, Tuesday, 16 September 1947).

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the court room will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session, God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the court.

May it please your Honors, all defendants are present in the court room.

The persons in the court room will be seated.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Judge Carter will preside at today's session.

DR. RAUSCHENBACH(For the defendant Hermann Foertsch): The interpreters have a manuscript of the translation.

OPENING STATEMENT FOERTSCH Your Honor, the Honourable Judges, The Prosecution charges the Field-M Marshals and Generals who were active in the South-East area with having carried out a well-thought out unlimited program of terror and destruction, by denying and undermining the most fundamental principles of civilization and by arrogant contempt of human beings in enemy territory.

In that manner they madly let loose a senseless torrent of deaths in South-East Europe. In the course of this they are supposed to have shown themselves Henchmen and tools of Himmler, Sauckel and of other Nazi worthies. The Prosecution charges General Foertsch in particular with having played an important part in the realization of this so-called program of destruction and extermination stressing that he was an experienced chief of staff. This is shown by the assertion that the physical presence of Foertsch is supposed to have given the terms of authority of List, Kuntze, Loehr and Weichs a steady and tragic uniformity.

As against that I am going to prove that

1) the exposition of events in their totality as given by the prosecution with regard to South-East area does not correspond to the actual developments in any of the four counts, since the prosecution gives an incomplete and therefore incorrect picture of such events, which does not give sufficient consideration to conditions in the Balkans, to the actions perpetrated by the opponents, nor to the activities of those authorities which were not under the jurisdiction of military commanders, thus making no mention of the reasons for the measures of the German Army . With regard to above I agree to the argumentation of counsel for the defense, of the defendants List and Weichs and I shall add a few supplementary remarks thereto.

2) In order to refute the allegation that the defendant Foertsch disregarded and denied the most primitive principles of civilization I shall prove that he always considered the laws of morality and of the Christian religion as binding and that he also observed these laws in as far as he was free to do so during his term of office in the South East.

3) With regard to the further accusation that his attitude and behavior towards the people in enemy territory was distinguished by arrogant contemptuousness. I shall prove that he was in reality a man of varied interests and of comprehensive ideas whose aim it was to, by thorough research to acquire conception of land and soul of foreign nations in order to act to their advantage.

4) With regard to the accusation that the defendant permitted himself to be guided in his activities by a well-thought-out program of terror and destruction , I shall refute that by proving that in order to pacify the country it was all important to him to make the occupation bearable and as little oppressive, as possible, to take into account all desires in any manner reasonable and all needs of the population and further to do all in his power in order to exclude or limit the influence and activities of men and authorities which in ignorance of the problems prevalent in the Balkans aggravated conditions by their faulty measures.

5) To refute the allegation that the defendant proved himself a henchman and tool of Himmler, Sauckel and of other Nazi worthies, I shall give a true and complete picture of his personality, and thereby make clear his attitude to the dictatorship.

6) As to the accusation that the defendant Foertsch had proved himself the evil spirit who was responsible for the tragic uniformity of the terms of service of List, Loehr and Weichs, I shall refute that by giving an explicit picture of his activities as they really were. Therefore I shall first prove what tasks and authorities were not those of a chief of staff of an Army or of an Army Group according to the service regulation then in force. The following limits were set to the activities of the chief of staff:

- a) He had no authority to give orders or commands to the troops.
- b) He had no authority to supervise the troops nor did he have a disciplinary or judicial authority with regard to the troops.
- c) He had no right to decide in fundamental questions.
- d) Thus he had no responsibility with regard to the troops. I shall prove that the defendant Foertsch observed the limits which according to the existing regulations were set to his activities and that thus he never

- a) gave any orders himself
 - b) made any decisions himself exceeding his authority. I shall prove that according to the existing regulations his task was merely that of a first adviser to the commander-in-chief. He actually understood his responsibility in such a manner
 - a) that he never tried to provoke stringent measures
 - b) that it was rather his aim to help reasonableness to prevail
 - c) that in consequence he was not a bad but a good spirit.
- 7) But in order to point out the difficulties with which he had to cope, I shall describe the obstacles which he had to deal with. These were:
- a) The dictatorship which could be felt on all sides.
 - b) He was bound by his oaths.
 - c) The orders which were issued to the commander-in-chief by his superior authority and were considered by him himself as binding.
 - d) The orders which had to be issued directly to subordinate troops by these superior authorities which made their activities independent of the orders of the jurisdiction of the commander-in-chief.
 - e) The threat of punishment existing according to the laws then in force.
 - f) The small understanding which the High Command of the Army showed to his submissions and suggestions.
- 8) That General Foertsch in his capacity as chief of staff did not help bring about the tragic uniformity of the reprisal measures, which has been stressed by the prosecution I shall refute by proving that
- a) he was absent just during such times when incisive and fundamental orders were issued.
 - b) he did not consider the part which he had to play as in any manner satisfactory but he tried to be released from these tasks which he felt to be unpleasant and oppressive.

Count 1 of the Indictment charges the defendants with having madly unleashed a senseless torrent of death. This formulation implies 2 things, namely:

- a) That the defendants had instituted measures of hostage taking and shooting of hostages arbitrarily, that is without cause and without any necessity in blind madness.
- b) Disregarding the assertion that every reasonable cause for these measures is supposed to be lacking they are supposed to have been senseless also with regard to their alleged or asserted reasons which is obviously to be expressed in the words "senseless torrent of deaths".

with regard to these allegations and at the same time with regard to Count 2 of the Indictment I shall prove the following:

- a) From the very beginning it was the aim of the military leaders in the South-East area to achieve a real pacification of the country which was to be also in the clearly conceived interests of the population of the occupied territory.
- b) These reasonable endeavors of the military leaders were defeated for reasons for which not they but in the first place the opposition were responsible.
- c) The success which was to be achieved by these measures could in part not be realized because conditions occurred which could not have been for seen when the above measures were ordered.

Count 3 of the Indictment Shooting of prisoners of war.

Here we have to differentiate between the following:

- 1) Shooting of members of Yugoslav and Greek forces
- 2) Shooting of members of other Allied forces
 - a) by reason of the Command-Order.
 - b) by reason of the Commissar Order.
- 3) Shooting of members of the Italian Forces.

To 1:

As far as the Yugoslav and Greeks, who had been shot, were concerned they were not members of the Armed Forces of a Nation at war but insurgents who by fighting placed themselves outside of the realm of law, which is shown by the following:

- a) Capitulation of Yugoslav and Greek armies carried out by the commanders in charge.
- b) The actual power in these countries had been transferred to Germany as the occupying power.

- c) The fight was resumed in violation of international law.

- d) The internationally accepted land war regulations were not adhered to.
- e) Furthermore, the recognition of a power as a power at war is a political decision which was not the task of the military leaders in the South-East.
- f) The military leaders in the South----East endeavored to achieve political recognition of a state of war without being able to raise any legal claims with regard to that.
- g) In spite of the fact that this recognition which they were trying to achieve was refused, the captured partisans were treated as prisoners of war.

To 2:

- a) Shootings by reason of the command order were not carried out.
- b) The Commissar Order did not apply to the South-East.

To 3:

Shootings of members of the Italian Forces.

I shall prove that the individual shots were to be regarded as partisans according to international law because of the following facts:

- a) By breaking her alliance with Germany and by virtue of her capitulation Italy lost her authorities which she had enjoyed in her capacity as occupying power.
- b) The territories in the Balkans which had so far been occupied by Italy now became exclusively Germany operational territory.
- c) The organized Armed Forces of a power which had suddenly become hostile and which were in this territory constituted an extraordinary danger to the operational projects within the German operational sphere. Thus the German request to surrender all arms was justified.
- d) This request was consequently acceded to in the form of appropriate orders of the Italian commanders -in charge.

- e) The Italian soldiers or units which in spite of that continued to carry arms against the German troops were acting contrary to international law.

To Count 4 of the Indictment.

It is alleged that the defendant had without any reason connected with military operations helped to free Souther-eastern Europe from socalled inferior persons as for example: Jews, politically unreliabel individuals, e.g. democrats and nationalists. And that they helped to enslave and deport millions for forced labor.

As to that I am going to prove:

- a) That the internment of certain groups of individuals in collection camps and the evacuation have been approved by the military leaders in the South-East only insofar as this was necessary in order to pacify the country and to secure operational objects.
- b) That the military leaders in as far as they co-operated in the procurement of indigenous labor did that only because they considered this a way to pacify the country.
- c) In as far as such measures could not be justified by military necessity the military leaders had no influence on these matters.

The above mentioned points I shall prove:

- a) By examining the defendant as a witness on his own behalf.
- b) By presentation of documents.
- c) By examination of witnesses.

Already at this point I should like to mention that at the time when the defendant Foertsch will appear in the witness stand this evidentiary material will still be very incomplete. Besides the difficulties which are well known and which have been described in the motion for adjournment brought by my colleague Dr. Laternser as well as by me with regard to the procuring of affidavits as well as the translation of the document books must in this particular case be added that the defense has so far not had any opportunity to examine those documents which had been presented to the prosecution in the form of excerpts to the full extent.

This alone would give counsels for the defense the opportunity to prove the reasons for the shootings about which the prosecution has brought numerous examples from the same documents. So far it is not possible to say whether or not counsels for the defense will get the opportunity to do that at all. For that reason I must reserve the right even at this stage, to make this extraordinary limitation of the defense which in the case of the defendant Foertsch may possibly lead to grave incompleteness of his evidentiary material the subject of an appeal which may possibly have to be lodged in this case.

I refrain from legally arguing against the charges which have been brought in the case of Foertsch at this stage. I shall do that in the course of my plea, but I should at least like to point out that I shall base his defense in the first place on the problem of participation according to criminal law. This comprises the following legal problems:

- 1) Is a mere "knowledge" of and "being connected with" the retaliation measures which have been designated by the prosecution as criminal actions sufficient to condemn the defendant Foertsch. I should like to correct here that instead of retaliation it should simply be measures.
- 2) If that is not sufficient which positive actions or omissions contrary to his duties is he charged of which prove that he aided in any criminal actions. Did he as chief of the general staff have any responsibility according to criminal law for retaliation measures which were ordered by others than himself and in turn were carried out by others than himself.

This last word "retaliation" again I would like to have corrected to "measures."

JUDGE CARTER: Is counsel for the defendant Leyser ready to present the opening statement?

DR. TIPP (For the defendant von Leyser): Yes, your Honor.

In contrast to other cases which were conducted in this building before the High Tribunals of the United States, it is to be ascertained in this trial whether soldiers have committed in actual combat acts which are not consistent with the rules of international law and with the precepts of humanity. It is perhaps the first time in history at all that the military leaders of a vanquished nation are summoned before the tribunal of a victorious State in order to be tried for military matters, at least on the same scale as is done here.

The Prosecution has accused the Generals arraigned here, and with this the German Armed Forces in general, of a inhuman warfare on the largest scale. The Defense has consequently got the difficult task of refuting this general accusation and of proving that the German Armed Forces as a whole have showed themselves as chivalrous and fair as is required by the honor of every honest soldier.

In order to be able to refute these accusations, it will be necessary to give to the High Tribunal as a basis for its judgment first of all a picture of a general nature of the conditions under which the fight in the South-East took place. For only the knowledge of the conditions prevailing at a given time and place makes it possible to give an explanation for many a thing which as a matter of course perhaps seems to be incomprehensible for any one who is not informed of these conditions. As in any case, this general clearing up will also in the case of my client, General von Leyser, form a basis for refuting the individual accusations made by the Prosecution.

General von Leyser came on 1 November 1943 for the first time to the Croatian area as Commanding General of the XV, Mountain Corps. It will therefore be necessary to make clear to the High Tribunal in the course of the evidence to be taken, what situations and existing conditions General von Leyser had to face at that time.

At that date a uniform "national Yugoslav" army no longer existed in the theatre in Croatia. Therefore there were no clear front-lines as they exist as a rule in normal warfare. No complete military units were arrayed against each other, on the contrary everybody was fighting there against everybody else at that date. In the territory of Croatia which was occupied by the German Armed Forces groups of the most different political, religious and ethnic orientation were opposed to each other, which were fighting against each other and against the German Armed Forces. The weak German forces in this area were assisted by the Military Forces of the United State of Croatia which, however, were not likewise united among themselves. They were divided into the Ustascha, which were particularly hostile to Serbians, and the Domobrans. The fighting power and especially the discipline of these units left much to be desired. The enemies of these two groups were principally the Cetniks who in their turn were only hostile to the German army when the latter carried out operations together with Croatian units.

It is characteristic for the conditions prevailing in the Balkans and makes clear the difficult situation of a German commander that above all the Cetniks were not only enemies of the Croatian government, but that they opposed especially violently the Communist Tito bands which they combatted by all means. All these short allusions, which have to be cleared up in the course of the evidence to be taken by the defense as a whole as well as in the case of General von Leyser, show what enormous difficulties had to be overcome in the Croatian area in the military sphere alone.

These political contrasts are augmented by sharp religious and ethnic ones between Pravo-Slavs, Roman Catholics, and Mussulmen. The latter joined in most cases the party which predominated at the very moment so that in this connection the front lines were not clearly definable either. Add to this a certain antagonism between Serbs from the territory of Serbia proper and the Serbs from Croatia.

In order to make it a complete chaos, smaller groups of guerilla bands were of a fatal local importance, bands which were not part of a larger group, but joined for private raids. These were partly raids on their own account which have been customary in the Balkans for centuries, partly vendetta fights between individual families. Principally these groups were augmented by remnants of the capitulated Italian army which had stayed there.

All these groups and small groups waged war among themselves with the utmost cruelty and lack of consideration as well as against the civilian population who were not concerned in the matter. Respect for the laws of war was just as unknown to them as the sparing of property and human life. They created disorder wherever they could, because only in this disorder could they accomplish their own aims.

These are the obscure and confused conditions which confronted General von Leyser when he came to Croatia in November 1943. It was impossible for him as well as for anyone else to disentangle these conditions and to act as representative of the power of order.

An added difficulty was the fact that in all measures the competence of the Croatian state had to be taken into consideration, on whose officials General von Leyser had hardly any influence.

The Croatian armed forces did likewise not come under his command in principle and frequently frustrated his aims.

These circumstances, which necessitated the individual measures of General von Leyser, will have to be clarified in the course of the defense because only a thorough knowledge of these events enables the High Court to judge justly his way of acting.

It will further have to be pointed out on principle that General von Leyser had to submit to the command already established for years for the conduct of war in the Balkans. It was impossible just for him, newly arrived on the scene, to change these principles on his own initiative. He was further bound to the instructions and commands given him by his superior offices. His position was not so high that it was his business to determine the fundamentals of politics and conduct of war in his territory. All that he could do was to voice his opinion against commands which according to his mind did not answer the territorial conditions, thereby imposing his conception of humanity. It will be proved that he did this within the scope of the possibilities given him.

Before I touch upon the individual counts of the indictment brought against General von Leyser, one point for General von Leyser in my opinion has to be referred to, a point which already has been expressed in the speeches of my predecessors.

Without doubting the authority of the Honorable Court, conformable to duty, it must be pointed out that according to the conception of the defense the Honorable Court for international reasons is not competent to convict the defendants. In my opinion Regulation No. 7 of the Military Government for Germany, on which the formal competence of the Honorable Court is founded, is a violation of the Geneva agreement (Abkommen) as regards the protection of rights of war prisoners of 1929.

After the capitulation of the German armed forces, General von Leyser as well as the other generals were taken prisoners of war. Last January it was indeed attempted to release him as prisoner of war. But he did not agree to this release. Even if it would have been effected, it would have been without legal effect because it would violate the principles of the agreement just mentioned, chiefly because an actual discharge in freedom, a presumption for a discharge with legal effect of a prisoner of war, has not taken place.

General von Leyser therefore has to be treated according to the regulations of the agreement concerning war prisoners. Article 63 of this agreement, however, is worded as follows:

"A verdict against a prisoner of war must only be pronounced by the same court and according to the same procedure as a verdict against the persons belonging to the armed forces of the nation furnishing the custody."

Competent for the conviction of all defendants, including General von Leyser, would therefore be in my opinion only a court martial constituted of generals of the U.S. Army. The Tribunal, however, before which the defendant von Leyser has to stand trial is a civil court constituted of civilians.

I am of the opinion that the agreement concerning the rights of prisoners of war has an international character and therefore according to the guiding principles of international law cannot be altered by only one signatory power alone or likewise by the agreement of several signatory powers but alone and exclusively by the agreement of all the signatory nations. Such an agreement, however, is not present; the change only took place because of Regulation No. 7 of the Military Government for Germany. Said regulation thus far violates an international agreement and cannot have legal effect.

I therefore do not think the Honorable Court competent for the conviction of my client.

This conception of law had to be expressed at this place before the defense begins with the presentation of evidence to safeguard the rights of the defendant.

In the case of General von Leyser it will be first of all the concern of the defense to prove considering the different counts of the indictment that General von Leyser in his official position as commanding general of an army corps of the German Army could have committed the crimes charged by the prosecution just as little as in performing the tasks which were put before him particularly as commanding general in the Croatian territory.

As I have already mentioned in the beginning, General von Leyser took over the XV Mountain Corps from General Lueters in the beginning of November 1943. The predecessor of General von Leyser, General Lueters, was originally commander of the German troops in Croatia and had as such besides tactical also territorial tasks and powers. After the conversion of his staff to the XV Mountain Corps, he did not have these territorial powers and tasks theoretically any more, it is true, but practically they continued to be in existence. They ceased to exist on principle and finally only with the taking over of the XV Mountain Corps by a new man, namely General von Leyser. In contrast to his predecessor, General von Leyser had only tactical problems; his staff was completely converted to a tactical operation staff.

In the course of the defense this will have to be cleared up through testimony and affidavits.

The task to which General von Leyser was put on taking over the XV Mountain Corps was unequivocally limited and clear. It was the occupation of the territory between Karlovac and the coast, occupied by the Italian armed forces until then, and the preparation of the defense against anticipated attacks from the sea. These great and exclusive aspects determined all other measures. The war on the guerillas and the safeguarding of the roads and railways in the Croatian territory had an exclusively tactical meaning for General von Leyser. His measures in the field of guerilla warfare were directed only to the safeguarding of the supply routes in the event of an anticipated attack from the sea.

Everything he did and ordered was subordinated to this tactical task.

It is not so as generally represented in the indictment that the measures of General von Leyser were "a part of a certain plan for terrorizing and intimidation" or were even taken "to decimate the native population of these territories for coming generations". They likewise were not "arbitrary" or "senseless", but were based upon military requirements and were thereby justified. This will be cleared up in detail in the course of the defense. These great aspects, however, should not be disregarded when individual actions and individual regulations are judged.

I now come to the various counts of the indictment against General von Leyser. Under Count I of the indictment he is also blamed for the terrorizing, torturing, and murdering of persons who arbitrarily were designated as "partisans, communists, persons suspected of communist tendencies, bandits and persons suspected of banditry" or who were taken as hostages. I can keep the argumentation of this count very brief. The evidence presented by the prosecution does not contain any proof in this field. The prosecution has presented no documents which would testify the execution of such measures of General von Leyser. Just as little has evidence been presented that General von Leyser had proclaimed, passed on, or executed an order to shoot hostages in the ratio of 1:10, 1:50 or even 1:100. On the contrary the defense will be able to prove alone by reason of the evidence presented by the prosecution that the shooting of hostages was never personally ordered by General von Leyser. If such shootings were carried out at all by the troops under his command, they were only done in extremely rare cases and also in a proportion according to martial law adapted to the military necessities.

There is likewise no evidence that information of the so-called national army had been extorted from the population by using terror measures. On these two counts the indictment remains only a statement, without any attempt at proof.

As far as General von Leyser is charged, with acts of the 21st SS Division Skanderberg, the defense will prove that this unit was not subordinated to the disciplinary power of General von Leyser. He therefore was not responsible for the actions and omissions of this division. Disciplinary powers over this unit likewise did not belong to General von Leyser when in a particular, specific case a tactical subordination ensued.

In reference to Count II of the indictment, evidence will be shown that General von Leyser has never given or forwarded orders for the pillaging, destroying, and burning of localities. In reference to this allegation quite generally made by the prosecution, the indictment of General von Leyser lacked every proof. If troops under his command destroyed buildings, such acts were in no case arbitrarily directed against a peaceful civilian population, as alleged in the indictment. These destructive acts were rather a direct result of hostilities, because the guerillas preferred to use houses and localities as positions. It further happened that houses which evidently had been used by guerillas as protection and shelter during raids were destroyed immediately after these raids. This conformed entirely to martial law. If destructions on a bigger scale took place, it will be proven that these destructions were based on the tactical necessity of taking the supply bases and shelter possibilities from the guerillas. Only in this manner was it possible to end the raids on roads used for supplies, because it was impossible to even occupy the smallest locality due to the small size of occupation forces. The evidence on hand will show that the destroyed buildings had long been deserted by the peaceful civilian population and only served as shelter to the guerillas, who had already been fighting in these regions for years using the most brutal methods of terrorizing the civilian population.

The indictment under number 9 1 of Count II holds the commanding general of the XXI Mountain Corps responsible for the burning, robbing, and looting of the villages Dresnica, Pisac, Tuzovic, and Vojvodorsa by troops of the 392nd Infantry Division.

The time given is January 1944 to March 1945. To this it may be first of all said that the 392nd Infantry Division was never under the commanding power of the XXI Mountain Corps. This division was only under the command of the XV mountain Corps, whose commander General von Leyser was only until the end of July 1944. Therefore General von Leyser can only then be held responsible for the destruction of these villages if the destruction took place within this period.

Furthermore the prosecution has only produced evidence in reference to the village of Dreznica. Through the documents presented in the indictment the defense will prove, that this destruction took place in the course of heavy fighting, lasting for days, against strong guerilla groups, in other words during actions of hostilities, and that after all only 20 guerilla shelters and not the entire village were destroyed; looting did not take place.

On count III the indictment holds all the defendants responsible for illegal commands, namely the commissar order, the commando order and commands of general nature against the capitulated Italian army.

In reference to the commissar order, the defense will prove through affidavits, that General von Leyser, during the Russian campaign as commander of the 269th Infantry Division, neither received nor dispatched the commissar order nor caused its execution. It shall not be disputed that he knew of this order. But the knowledge alone is not punishable. Beyond this it will be proved that General von Leyser rejected this order as violating the honor of the soldier. Furthermore every evidence for the indictment of General von Leyser is missing on this count, on the contrary the documents presented by the prosecution show that this order was not carried out in the Croatian territory while General von Leyser was in command.

The commando order from 18 October 1942 was not intended for the Eastern theater. The command of 30 July 1944, which extends said decree to the foreign military missions in the Southeast theater, was neither forwarded by General von Leyser nor carried out in his sphere of influence.

Likewise on this count of indictment every actual evidence for the indictment of General von Leyser is missing. In spite of it, the defense will carefully prove that Englishmen as well as Americans were taken prisoners and were treated as prisoners of war.

In reference to the orders and measures against the capitulated Italian armed forces the following may be said:

The capitulation of the Italian armed forces took place in the beginning of September 1943. General von Leyser took over the XVth mountain corps on 1 November 1943. The orders presented by the indictment had at that time already been proclaimed, the measures against the Italian armed forces had for the biggest part been taken. Even if measures against parts of the Italian armed forces should have been carried out in the first days after General von Leyser took over the command, the defense will be able to prove, that basically he was not in a position to have any influence on the carrying out, by subordinates of orders proclaimed by higher authorities previous to his assumption of command.

If the prosecution accuses General von Leyser in Count IV of "inhuman" evacuations, the defense will prove with regard to this that those were no inhumanities, but military measures dictated by tactical requirements.

As the defense will prove with regard to this, it would have been necessary from tactical reasons to evacuate civilians from areas which in case of an enemy landing at the coast might have become focal points of fighting or especially endangered zones for supply, in the course of the actions which were to be foreseen. Such a measure corresponds to military habits and does not constitute an offense against the laws of war. For the basis of this assertion it is to be pointed to the fact that at the beginning of the war such evacuations were carried through by the German commanders in the Reich territory as well as by the French government in France, and that the American government also considered it necessary to evacuate, at the beginning of the war against Japan, large parts of the Japanese population from the Western coast of America. It was neither the task of General von Leyser in his capacity as Commanding General of a tactical operational staff to decide on the further destiny of the evacuated civilians, nor was he obliged to do this. He had nothing to do either with the civilians being committed to concentration camps, which was a purely police measure, or with the employment of parts of the population as compulsory workers or even with the deportation to the Reich for labor.

Such measures would have been taken by the German authorities endowed with territorial powers, in agreement with the offices of the United Croatian State. Such measures could neither be ordered by General von Leyser nor had he exerted any influence on them, as will be proved in particular by testimony and affidavits.

As far as workers were employed for the army, for the construction of fortifications and pillboxes, it was done as the defense will prove on the basis of free mutual agreement. There were people enough volunteering for work in the United State of Croatia, who were happy to have a possibility of earning money and to at the same time supplied with food.

It will be necessary, in this connection, to deal in detail with the operation "Panther". This operation is set forth by the Prosecution in Count IV, paragraph 15 g. As far as an evacuation of the civilian population was intended here by General von Leyser, it was based on military and tactical requirements. Even the documents of the Prosecution prove that the territory in question had for years been a centre for the activity of bands, from which continuous and increasing disturbances of indispensable supply roads and railroads were undertaken. In order to secure the line of retreat for the attack to be expected from the sea-side, it was necessary to remove finally the risk of being endangered by bands in this area. An order to deport the population to the Reich, as alleged by the Prosecution, had not been given by General von Leyser, as such a measure exceeding the more tactical field was outside his jurisdiction. Evidence that the operation "Panther" was indeed carried through in the sense alleged by the Prosecution, was not produced by the Prosecution.

In order to refute the individual Counts of the Indictment, the Defense will prove that General von Leyser has done everything in his power to guarantee chivalrous warfare in accordance with the precepts of the laws of war, even in the confused and complicated conditions of guerilla-warfare in Croatia.

He strictly supervised the troops under his command by all possible means as to their conduct and proceeded with rigour against excesses and enroachments. In this endeavor to fulfil in every respect his obligation to supervise and care for the troops under his command, he always tried, as far as ever possible, to inform himself on the spot of the actual conditions and to come by personal observation to a rightful judgment on the situation.

The Defense will also prove that General von Leyser in every regard took into consideration the conditions of the civilian population as far as the fulfilment of his tasks allowed this. Moreover he always helped the civilian population to a large extent for reasons of humanity and he endeavoured to relieve the distress caused by the war, by their own and enemy action in land warfare and by air raids.

I will show you General von Leyser as an officer of the old school, bound to the old traditions of honesty and loyalty, who fulfilled his duty of a soldier and officer in the hardest combat of his nation, respecting the laws of war and the precepts of humanity.

JUDGE CARTER: Is counsel for the defendant Speidel ready to make his opening statement?

DR. WEISGERBER: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. President, your Honors, as defense counsel for the defendant Speidel I believe to be able to keep my plea very short.

I can refrain, at this point, from dealing with questions of international law about arrest and killing of hostages by way of reprisals; especially if and how far the Greek partisans gave cause to such reprisals. However this may be, even according to the evidence material so far submitted, considerable doubts have come up as to the question of warfare according to international law. Defense counsel Dr. Laternser has given sufficient evidence of this in his plea for his own client. This is equally valid for General Speidel and I do not therefore have to repeat it.

The prosecution charges my client with the following points:

1. The arrest and shooting of hostages by units under his command.
2. Wanton destruction without military necessity, and plunder by troops under his command.
3. Giving and passing on of so called Kommissar orders and Kommando orders, and giving of orders for the punishment of resisting Italians, as well as carrying out of such orders by troops under his command.
4. Forced deportation of the entire male population of whole villages within Greece for the purposes of forced labor to Germany.

I shall prove that the defendant Speidel can in none of these cases be held responsible: Especially, as he had no executive power. And if he was not in the position to give orders, he can naturally not be made responsible.

In none of these events he took part either.

(A) as perpetrator (B) or as aid, or abettor, nor did he give orders or approved of such.

Naturally, the defense of the defendant Speidel is considerably hampered by the fact that the prosecution has made no exact statement which of the individual cases that have come up, the defendant Speidel has been charged with.

Admittedly, it enumerates a number of happenings in the indictment but at the same time declares that this enumerations is not exhaustive.

Is the defendant Speidel supposed to make his own choice of the charges by the prosecution? This is a task which should be done by the Prosecution and the prosecution cannot be relieved in this by the defendant; or is Speidel being made responsible for everything that happened in the Greek theatres? Does the prosecution want to charge him even such events in which, according to the documents submitted, one executive army unit did not even participate? The lists which have been added to the individual document books are, in this respect, not complete.

But, in order to give the defense the possibility to take up a definite attitude as to the charges of the prosecution, the prosecution should not only mark the documents which, among other matters, contain some material against my client; they should mention each case and in that way it refers to each individual defendant.

But this does not become evident either from the oral submission or the submission of lists added to the document books because almost each one of these documents contains in a varied succession, compiled according to entirely different points of view, a number of reports and facts which, according to these documents, would be put in a new order referring to each individual defendant.

The prosecution has charged the defendant Speidel with cases which without the slightest doubt are even outside his geographical territory of command and, therefore, are certainly not within his competence.

I refer only to English Document Book XVI, NOKW-674, Exhibit 381.

The connection between the Military Commander of Greece and the Second Panzer operating in Croatia and the evacuation of the islands at the Adriatic Coast is and remains incomprehensible.

All these obscurities are evidently based on a number of primary errors:

1. The prosecution misjudges the extent of the executive power of the defendant Speidel. I shall prove that it did not apply to the areas in which the mentioned events happened and, furthermore, that the emits which were carrying out these actions did not come under his command and, furthermore, that Speidel's competence did not extend in this direction at all.

2. The main reason for the prosecution's conclusion that the responsibility of the defendant was far reaching is the mere reason that he was in charge of "Maintenance of Peace and Order."

However, this task can, in a case of military commander, not apply to war areas and theatres. In those areas only the military authorities are the rulers. This basis rule is expressly stated at a number of points in the regulations about the command in the Southeastern area but Greece always was and remained a war theatre (fighting zone).

3. Speidel is mentioned as the holder of executive power. In this assumption the following has been overlooked:

a) At no point the term "executive power" is properly explained by the prosecution.

b) It has furthermore been overlooked that, according to the degrees about the Southeastern Command and the regulations for the Military Commander Greece he, (the Military Commander Greece) only holds the executive power "if he has been entrusted with it." Not a single order has been submitted which describes the extent of this entrustment more explicitly.

c) It becomes, however, evident from the very nature of the matter that the military commander can in any case only be entrusted with the executive power in the areas under his administration.

This automatically excludes fighting areas and war theaters.

d) There are, furthermore, a number of orders which prove that the executive power of the defendant Speidel in the area remaining under his administration did not pertain to matters of the sphere under question here; I shall prove this to be so by aid of the documents through affidavits and witnesses.

c) The means at Speidel's disposal were in accordance with his subordinate competence. I shall prove that the few military units under his control partly served an entirely different purpose and partly would not be any means have sufficed to carry out the executive power to the extent assumed by the prosecution. Thus apparently only his high sounding military title has led to a misinterpretation of the true extent of his competence. The truth of the matter is that this title was nothing but a conspicuous signboard advertising his representative position which, of necessity, had to deceive outsiders, inducing the Greek population, by lack of proper perspective about the true facts.

Only through this it can be explained that the witness Santos towards the end of his examination expressed the view: who else was supposed to see to it that the German troops behave and act according to international law if not the military commander? After all, he had the supreme position in Greece.

4. It would be a further basic error to charge the defendant Speidel with the responsibility for the actions reported by him or by others from the area under his command. The daily and monthly reports of the district and field commandanturas serve the purpose of informing the superior command of all events happening in the area to the possible degree. They do, therefore, not admit any conclusion as to the responsibility of the reporting authority for any individual incident. Responsibility is only taken for the fact that the incident had actually happened.

This is especially valid for reports from the Ic area as the Ic task consists mainly in accumulating and passing on of news for information of superior authorities. This I shall prove in detail.

In spite of this, I shall at this point try and outline my basic principles which I deem important for the exoneration of my client.

Regarding Count 1:

All these measures were taken during and in combat against armed bands within the war area.

By submission of documents and producing witnesses I shall prove that the defendant Speidel did not have a hand in this at any time during his term of office in Greece.

a.) As long as Speidel was Supremo Commander in Greece (12 October 1942– September 43) these tasks were dealt with by the Italians. At this time Speidel was only in command of a very small area at the Coast of Africa in which at that time no band activities had been reported.

b) During Speidel's activities as Military Commander Greece September 1943 – 15 May 1944) he had under his command not a single one of those units which were in charge of those areas from which any of the incidents have been reported.

We find the shooting of hostages under the caption, "Greece." The factual connection, however, only becomes evident if the military unit carrying out and responsible for the action is mentioned.

Only in a very few cases the prosecution documents mention merely the geographical term "Greece" without naming any military unit– but even here the context shows that another authority is in command which is not the defendant Speidel.

I shall prove conclusively that the higher SS and Police Leader did not even come under the Military Commander as far as police matters were concerned. Even here he came immediately under the Reichsfuehrer SS.

Regarding Count II:

What has been mentioned in connection with Count I is equally valid for Count II. As Speidel had nothing to do with combatting armed bands, he cannot be made responsible for the destruction mentioned in this connection. Apart from this, the prosecution has not in a single case submitted conclusive evidence for the destruction having been "wanton" and "without military necessity" or for Speidel having ordered or tolerated them. This the prosecution must still prove. It is not for the defendant to prove that the burned villages were destroyed "not wantonly" and "on account of military necessity." In almost all documents submitted by the prosecution itself, the statement keeps appearing that the burned villages had served a retreat for the bands and as ammunition dumps or that the inhabitants supplied the bands with information and food. Who, then, will call their destruction "wanton" or "not a military necessity?" Furthermore, in a variety of cases it must be assumed that the destruction was admissible according to international law as it was the immediate consequence of battle.

Court No. V, Case No. VII.

Regarding Count III.

- a) I shall prove that Speidel never received the "Kommisar" order. This order applied exclusively to fighting units at the Eastern front; but Speidel never commanded any fighting units.
- b) The same is valid for the "Kommando" order. There was no possible reason for sending such orders to Speidel. Neither as the Chief of the Luftwaffen mission (air force mission) in Rumania (October 1940 - May 1942) nor as Commanding Officer Southern Greece he participated in this program as he was excluded from field action.
- c) Speidel had nothing to do either with the arrests and measures against the Italians. This also comes under the category, "Field action."

Regarding Count IV:

Here the defendant Speidel is charged with the following: murder, torture, terror, confinement in concentration camps, arbitrary forced labor for fortification, abduction of Greek civilian population for slave labor by troops under his command by his order.

The Prosecution, under letters "a-g", does not make mention of a single case which happened in Greece. I would, therefore, be justified to ask:

- a) What individual cases is my client being charged with?
- b) Which were the units that carried out these actions?
- c) How far were these units under the command of the defendant Speidel?

The prosecution has not in any way made any exact statements regarding these questions, but only the following incidents can have been meant:

- 1) Concentration Camp Chaidari. This camp had been instituted by the Italians and later came under the police supervision of the higher SS and Police Leader who himself was responsible to the Reichsfuehrer SS.
- 2) The Greer workers' transports:

I shall prove that there was a special authority in Greece dealing with allocation of labor acting independently and in no way responsible to Speidel. Furthermore, during his term of office, assignment of labor in Greece was on a voluntary basis.

3) Fortifications and military positions.

Speidel did not have to deal with such tasks as field action was not within his sphere of activities. It was solely the tasks of the combat unit. The assumption that Speidel supplied forced labor for such programs does not become evident anywhere.

4) No documents or other evidence have been submitted pertaining to torture and terror by troops under Speidel's command. Again this is a mere assumption.

I shall base my evidence on;

1) Hearing my client in the witness stand,

2) Examination of the co-defendants insofar as they will be put on the witness stand,

3) The submission of affidavits,

4) The testimony of witnesses, the number and names of which will be duly indicated to the High Tribunal, as soon as I can find out the details.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Is counsel for the defendant Rendulic prepared?

DR. FRITSCH (Counsel for defendant Rendulic): Your Honors, after this war for the first time in history soldiers and army officers are being brought before courts which are not composed of their own countrymen, but of members of the victor nations.

The defendants are not charged with violating their duties towards their own people but with violating general principles. These general principles have been compiled by the prosecution on the basis of Control Council Law No. 10 under the two conceptions, war crimes and crimes against humanity. This fact makes it highly necessary for the Defense to sift and to examine with extreme care the material submitted by the Prosecution.

In the main, the defendant General Rendulic is charged with two complexes in which he was active and by which he is supposed to have made himself punishable. The Balkans and Norway. Before going into details with regard to the charges against my client, I would like to point out the following which is a fundamental importance:

The judgment will have to deal in particular with the legal questions which are supposed to be valid as a basis for this trial and especially with these legal foundations which have been separately set up for trials of this kind. The final plea will show in detail that Control Council Law No. 10 raised by the prosecution as the material foundation cannot in my opinion, fulfil this task. The principle of nullum crimen sine lege, nulla poena sine lege is generally recognised in all national legal provisions and the violation of this principle has already been determined in another trial before these military tribunals and has been described as particularly reprehensible.

Undoubtedly some of the provisions of Control Council Law No. 10 coincide with the facts constituting a crime laid down in the national penal codes and also in the German Reich penal code. Other facts set down in Control Council Law No. 10, such as the "killing of hostages" and participation therein do not observe this principle, so that application of this kind of facts constituting a crime is a violation of the legal principle quoted.

Above all, the acts of participation contained in Article II of Control Council Law No. 10 go far beyond the forms of participation contained in the German Reich Penal Code and also in the wording valid prior to 1933. In particular fact of "conspiracy" as an act of participation, as set down in Anglo-American conception as defined in Article II of the Control Council Law No. 10, finds no support in the more subtle standards of German penal legislation. The defense, therefore, at the appropriate time will regard it as a special task from the legal point of view to deal with these questions in detail and if necessary, to submit evidence.

I would also like to refer quite briefly to another question here.

The defendant General Rendulic was released from a prisoner of war camp in the United States of America and immediately placed on trial. The defense, in its presentation of evidence, will be obliged to deal with the question of whether this trial before this military tribunal is at all in accordance with the international principles laid down in the Hague Land Warfare Convention and the Geneva Convention for Prisoners of War.

Your Honors, the highest duty of a soldier in the armies of all countries is obedience towards his superiors and to the Laws.

General Rendulic was a soldier of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy; naturally, after the affiliation of Austria to Germany which was universally welcomed by the German people, he did not, and could not, refuse to perform his duty as a soldier, and continued to serve his Fatherland. There is no need to go into details about the fact that he always fulfilled his duty as a soldier and obeyed the orders of his superiors, as far as he could reconcile them with his own general ideas of humanity and the fundamentals of law.

But the defense will also prove that whenever General Rendulic recognized faults in orders from his senior officers, he always carried them out or passed them on in a suitably altered form.

And now, the Prosecution brings against this man the serious charges of having committed war crimes and crimes against humanity, charges which, in the opinion of the defense, are without sufficient substantiation.

As an introduction to its charges, the Prosecution stated in its opening Statement that the defendant Rendulic ranked as a "Nazi-General". The mere fact that the defendant was a member of the NSDAP in Austria from May 1932 until the dissolution of the party in 1933, that is, one year and a quarter, cannot justify this description. The defense will prove that the reasons which caused him to join the party were of an entirely idealistic nature and that from inside Austria the defendant could no more envisage the development of the NSDAP than could the rest of the world.

The defense will also prove that, when later on, army officers were allowed to join the party, the defendant refused to become a member of the NSDAP.

If perhaps the Prosecution meant by their comment the conferring of the Golden Badge of Honor on the defendant by Hitler in September 1944, then the defense will show that this "Golden Badge of Honor" was at that time a decoration which did not of necessity have anything to do with belonging to the party and furthermore, the bestowal in the case in question had a purely military origin, because of the situation brought about by the Russian propaganda in Norway.

If the Prosecution chose this term to cause the rise of the defendant during the war from Colonel to General to appear in a special light, then the defense will also submit evidence to show that there can be no question at all of a "Phenomenal promotion"; on the contrary, the promotion was quite a normal one and was exclusively the result of the military capabilities and experiences of the soldier Rendulic and his successes in the Russian theatre of war.

I now turn to the two general charges, which can be dealt with under the terms "Commissar Order and Commando Order".

1. The Commissar Order.

According to the evidence submitted by the Prosecution, there seems to be no dispute about the fact that the so-called Commissar Order was, according to regulation, sent in writing only to the Armies and from there downwards to the lower-rank officers, that is, to the Corps and the Divisions. It had to be passed on orally. If necessary, I will produce the requisite proof for this fact and will also prove that the defendant who, when this order was issued, commanded an Infantry Division in Russia, neither passed on this order personally nor ordered it to be brought to the notice of the regimental commanders.

I will also prove that within the sphere of his division not one commissar was ever shot.

2. The Commando Order.

Here the defense will merely point out that the Prosecution has not proved that the defendant Rendulic received knowledge of this order in the Russian theatre of war, (for which it was not valid) and that he executed it or passed it on within the meaning of the charge. It is not the business of the defense to produce the negative proof of ignorance. Negativa non sunt probanda.

Nothing arises from the documents submitted for the assertion of the charge. As far as they are supposed to prove that the defendant knew of this order in his later official capacity in the Southeast. I will prove that when the defendant took over his new position in this combat zone the order had already been passed on some time before to his subordinate troops. I will also prove in general to this point and later on in particular that in a typical commando operation within the sphere of the Panzer Army this so-called commando order was not applied.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Dr. Fritsch, I think this is a suitable time for our morning recess. We will recess for fifteen minutes.

III. The Fighting in the Balkans.

In the view of the defense, the fighting in the Balkans cannot be properly evaluated from the perspective shown here by the prosecution. It will, therefore, be the task of the defense to describe the general conditions in the Balkans, conditions, which cannot be compared with those general in Europe. In this connection it will be necessary, for the maintenance of historical events to refer to the former fighting and to the situation at that time in the Balkans. To understand the connections it will also be necessary to observe more closely current events in the Balkans. The defense states here, that it will ask for the support of the Tribunal in obtaining from the General Secretary of the United Nations the records of the inquiry into the current events in the Balkans, as far as they deal in detail with the method of warfare. The defense wishes to present in this connection as clear arid as graphic a material as possible, but realises that this desire is beset with enormous difficulties. It will, therefore, often have to produce only general data, but these, as for example the fact of the recent large excommunicztion by the Holy Seat, will throw significant light on the confused happenings and the now usual methods of fighting in the Balkans.

One of the chief preliminary questions will be to go into the entirely unfounded claim of the Prosecution that the partisans, regardless of their leanings, were belligerents, and that the statement in German orders describing them as partisans or bandits was wrong. The claim of the prosecution that the partisans openly carried arms, observed the laws and customs of war, and that the groups of partisans were under a unified and responsible command and wore uniforms or insignia recognisable at a distance, - this prosecution assertion will be confronted by the defense assertion that this was not the case. There can be no doubt that according to General knowledge of the methods of warfare in the Balkans, the defense assertion takes prima facie precedence, and the prosecution must therefore bring the corresponding evidence for its assertion.

When necessary for the defense, the illegality of the warfare carried on by Tito and the other groups of partisans will be proved, as will also the fact that at least until the middle of 1944 the Allies did not recognize the various kinds of partisan units within the sphere of the 2nd Panzer Army as belligerents.

Before the defense deals with the individual charges, it will be shown that the defendant did not arrive in the Balkans until the end of August 1943 and remained there until the end of June 1944. Especially important in the view of the defense is the statement that General Rendulic came into a situation which had arisen without his help, it will prove that with the means at his disposal it was quite impossible for him to regulate his own actions and those of his troops on completely new lines.

With regard to the general charges made by the prosecution, on these questions, the defense sub-divides them as follows:

- a) Treatment of reprisal hostages.
- b) Treatment of franc-tireurs, especially of the Italian forces.
- c) General behaviour towards the civilian population.

A) The defense has already pointed out that the admission of a fact such as the "killing of hostages" in this short form as contained in Article II 1b of Control Council Law No. 10 must arouse legal doubts. And in this respect I will also refer to the statements of my colleague, Dr. Laternser who in my opinion, has already proved that the Control Council Law only refers to the so-called treaty hostage (Vertragsgeisel) of classical international law, a hostage taken according to international treaties. But I will, however, prove that the hostages taken in the area of the defendant's army were persons taken by the troops in their zone as a security measure against unlawful actions by hostile sections of the civilian population. And I will also prove that these measures were in accordance with the American "Rules of Land Warfare," dated 1940 which contain the provision in article 358. I quote:

"Those forces and sections of the populace committing illegal acts may be subjugated with legally appropriate reprisal measures. Hostages taken and held for the declared purpose of ensuring security against unlawful acts by hostile forces or the population may be punished or killed if the unlawful acts are committed in spite of this measure."

Even if the Control Council Law does not refer exclusively to the hostage in the meaning of classical international Law, it also would not express the prevailing view of international law but would contradict this view. The defense will prove that within the sphere of General Rendulic's 2nd Panzer Army no illegal killing of reprisal hostages was carried out.

And in factual connection the following can be pointed out here:

It will not be difficult for the defense to prove that within the sphere of the defendant General Rendulic's Army high command expiation measures only took place on a very small scale. And here the fact must be taken into account that mostly 12, and for a time up to 16 German divisions, were continuously in action and within a very large area. The defense is able to prove that the reprisal figure stated by the prosecution was in no way applied, but that if reprisal figures were drawn up, the combat conditions of the 2nd Panzer Army necessitated these being kept at a considerably smaller ratio, and that this ratio, however, must be taken as the justifiably lowest possible limit in view of the military necessity. The defense will bring evidence to show that the defendant mitigated Hitler's so-called Expiation Order and never insisted on the observation by his troops of the ratios demanded by Hitler and always approved of the far smaller ratios reported. Furthermore the defense will prove that the defendant never issued a single initial expiation order. The measures so executed were in no way contrary to the customs of war and to the law of war.

b) A large area of the Balkans, under the command of the 2nd Panzer Army later on, the whole coast, was mainly occupied by Italian troops as can be assumed to be known to the Tribunal.

Italy's exit from the war resulted in a particularly critical situation for the defendant General Rendulic's 2nd Panzer Army, because apart from the partisans, a new enemy had arisen in the Italian troop units. These units, as can be proved, were numerically superior to the German units, and in addition there was the possibility of an Allied landing in the Balkans. In this situation, the defendant General Rendulic concluded with the competent Italian army officer a legally effective capitulation in accordance with international law, the details of which will be proved by witnesses and documents. In case further difficulties were caused by the behaviour of the Italian troops, the defendant Rendulic, as a responsible army commander, was authorized to provide measures and if necessary to threaten their use, in order to guarantee the execution of the conditions agreed to by the Italians. The Prosecution, however, has provided no proof for its assertion, that the defendant ordered expiation measures against the Italians, and that his troops carried out such measures. The defense will prove that the Prosecution obviously misinterpreted an order by the defendant, which misinterpretation was probably aided by a wrong translation.

The defense will furthermore refute the assertions of the Prosecution that 300 captured Italian officers from the Bergamo division were shot to death. It will bring evidence to show that the Italians fighting against the German Wehrmacht after the capitulation were franc tireurs, and that those Italians who gave arms to the partisans after the capitulation were treated no differently from the way in which would have been German soldiers if they had committed the same offense.

In so far as Italian officers of the Italian division named were shot at all, the defense will prove that contrary to the OKW order merely a fraction of the named figure was sentenced to death and executed after a regular trial according to martial law.

It is not clear What sort of evidence the prosecution wants to submit with the document containing the order by the Defendant Rendulic concerning the Italian General Roncaglia. The defense states again, that it sees no need to go further into such prosecution assertions as these, if the prosecution itself does not produce corresponding evidence to support its statements. In any case, the defense would be able to prove that the order arose from absolute military necessity and in addition that General Roncaglia left the defendant Rendulic's sphere of command alive.

c) As far as the defendant is charged with the operations "Panther" and "Hafenfahrt", the defense will show that the order to send members of the civilian population for work in Germany was an affair of the German and Croatian civilian authorities, and did not come within the competence and the sphere of decision of the 2nd Panzer Army. The defense will prove further that when raids took place in combat zones, the troops only took those unreliable people who endangered the security of the troops.

IV. Norway.

With regard to Norway, I would like to mention a few general facts in advance:

The question of the evacuation and destruction in Finmark must be considered from two points of view:

- 1) With regard to the military necessity of the destruction and with this also the evacuation, and
- 2) with regard to the treatment of the population during the evacuation.

In the view of the defense, the prosecution have neither been able to prove original treatment during the evacuation nor the non-existence of a military necessity for evacuation and destruction, so that even the destructions must still be regarded as in accordance with Article 23 of the Hague Land Warfare Convention, and therefore does not constitute an offense. The defense therefore moves that the Tribunal rule that proceedings against General Rendulic, in so far as criminal actions during the evacuation and destructions of Finmark are maintained, be suspended, and that this count without the possibility of a new charge, be stricken from the indictment. The reasons for my motion are:

The best proof for the manner in which the defendant General Rendulic wanted the evacuation to be carried out, is his order of 29 Oct. 1944, which has been submitted by the prosecution as exhibit No. 504, in document book 22 on page 9 of the German, and on page 10 of the English book. Under point 7 of this order he expressly directs that the evacuation is to be carried out as a welfare measure for the population and that the Norwegians were to be safeguarded. From the report of the evacuation staff, dated 25 Nov. 1944 exhibit No-506 Prosecution Document-Book 22 page 14 of the German and page 16 of the English text, which cannot be doubted in any manner and the verdict of which is very sincere, it can be seen that the evacuation was carried out very carefully and considerately, and counsel for the defense believes that he can establish that this evacuation was carried out differently from any other of the many evacuations which took place during the war and especially also after the war. That also in this case mistakes were made at one or the other point must be considered the result of the tactlessness and incompetence of various subordinated offices, and as the report itself states, such mistakes were unavoidable. With the exception of the hints, which occur in above mentioned report, the defendant was never informed about that. The fact that the events which occurred on the ships are not part of the responsibility of the defendant Rendulic can be seen from the documents presented by the prosecution as well as from the fact that the Navy was not under the jurisdiction of the commander-in-chief of the 20th Mountain Army.

I consider it necessary to point out that Hitler had to give the order for the evacuation twice before it was actually carried out by the 20th Mountain Army. In the Beginning, the defendant Rendulic did not consider the evacuation as absolutely necessary. At that time he did not yet know of the overwhelming deployment of forces of the Russians who were by far superior in strength, a deployment which would scarcely have been thought possible in this territory. At that time he did not know either that he would soon have to send off more than half of his Army for operations on the continent.

To ignore the second evacuation order, which had been solicited by the commissioner of the Reich or to carry it out in like manner as the first, proved to be impossible for the defendant Rendulic. On one hand he was in a way constantly under the supervision of the commissioner of the Reich, who saw to it that Hitler's order was carried out, and on the other hand, and that was of decisive importance, Hitler gave as the reason for his repeated order the military necessity. At that time, on 28 October 1944, the Army had already clearly recognized the entire impact of the superiority of the Russian Forces and the danger, which was constituted by the Finns. The 19th Corps alone had at that time lost more than 6 000 men. Furthermore, on or about this date the first orders to relinquish troops had been received. Under these circumstances it was impossible for the commander-in-chief of the 20th Mountain Army to reject the idea that by destruction would make it difficult or even impossible for the enemy to advance. In view of this attitude the condition which appears in Article 23 of the Hague Land Warfare Convention must be considered attained, as it states, that the destruction or confiscation of enemy property is permissible, if the necessities of the war should make such action incumbent.

Furthermore, in every Army throughout the entire world there would in any case, in which it was doubtful whether or not it was a military necessity, the judgment of the superior authority be decisive and must be decisive, especially since Hitler had issued this order clearly referring to this military necessity. One must also point out that the commander-in-chief of the 20th Mountain Army had been given besides these purely military reason an important political reason for the evacuation and the destructions in the Finmark. Hitler wanted to prevent the Norwegian exile government from settling in Finmark. It was clear that such an event must influence the life of the German troops in Norway and the defense of the country to a great extent. Although the defendant Rendulic was not responsible for the evaluation of political questions he was nevertheless bound to assume that although this matter fell within the scope of Article 23 G of the Hague Convention, which does not speak of military necessities but of the much broader concept of a "necessity of War." Thus it is apparent that this term covers also political measures which are important to the conduct of the war. To carry out the evacuation order was made easier for the defendant as commander-in-chief of the 20th Mountain Army by the fact that in view of his accurate knowledge of the Finmark he could assume that these destructions could not cause any undue damage. In an area of the extent of Belgium and Holland together there were living only 62 000 people. Although the calculations of the Norwegian government with regard to damages have resulted in an amount which although regrettable cannot be considered unduly high. Such damages and frequently even greater damages were caused in a single air-raid against a German-English or French town. It has not been possible for the prosecution to prove by the testimony of the witnesses which it has called namely:

1. That there was no military necessity for the destruction and for the evacuation.

2. That the evacuation was carried out in an incompetent manner in violation of the laws of humanity. The two generals whose testimony we have heard, expressed the opinion, which, however, they based merely on assumptions, that they did not consider the evacuation necessary. Both generals did say, however, that one could count on the possibility of a Russian advance. One of them stated, that the destructions had been justified if one counted on such a possibility.

The focal question when dealing with the evacuation and the destructions in Finmark is decisive whether or not these measures were justified by necessity in the sense and meaning of the Hague Convention.

The literature on international law of the Anglo-American legal circles, which is here of decisive importance, is particularly and uniformly expressive with regard to this question. Thus Professor Fenwick states in his book "international Law", Second Edition 1934, page 483: "General destruction of property as a means to cover the retreat has, however, been common usage in the conduct of wars." He backs this view, amongst others, by mentioning the destruction of a large territory from Atlanta to the Sea as well as the destruction of the Shenandoah valley by General Sherman in 1865. Professor Fenwick even stresses that Article 23 G of the Hague Regulations leaves it to the Army which is engaged in warfare to decide which circumstances would make such measures a military necessity.

The leading author on international law Professor Lauterpacht writes in his essay, which appeared in the British Annual for International Law 1944. On page 74:

"Such actions, as general devastation can offer sufficient reasons for condemnation and protests; . . . after the conclusion of the war they may justify the imposition of collective sanctions either by way of reparations or by other measures to be distinguished from condemnations in individual cases of a criminal nature.

Criminal proceedings, however, before state tribunals of the victorious powers may appear to many a questionable method in order to remove existing doubts and in order to establish authoritatively what is right in doubtful cases. Total war has changed the nature of many a law. In an age when the policy of "scorched earth" is partially applied by the warring power in its own country to a large extent, the general devastation, which has been ordered in the cause of large scale strategic operations is not a suitable subject of a criminal proceedings."

Since the prosecution has not proved its allegation, since further it has not shown any facts which could be considered criminal actions perpetrated by the defendant during the evacuation, the motion which I have put forward is justified and I beg the High Tribunal to rule upon it.

V.

With regard to the general position of the defense in my case I consider myself now at the conclusion of my remarks obliged to point out to your Honors the difficulties with which I as counsel for the defense have to cope; especially with regard to the case for the Balcans only a small part of really very extensive material is available. The evidentiary material, which would serve to show more clearly all possible circumstances which led to the various actions of the defendant Rendulic are not accessible to me. Also it is possible for me to submit parts of the prosecution documents only to a small extent, parts which can serve to exonerate the defendant, the defendant and therefore also the counsel for the defense must in the main rely on the memory of the defendant in the conduct of his defense. It is simply beyond the capacity of the human brain still to remember details, facts, persons, conferences and discussions, relevant for this trial after 4 years and more than 3 years since the conclusion of the war during which the defendant was active on many fronts, during which he had to deal with any number of superiors and subordinates in constantly changing positions, and during which he had to tackle the most complicated problems of warfare, and to prove such reminiscences with material of probative values The prosecution had many months in which to prepare its case.

The defendant and his counsel have received the evidentiary material of the prosecution only at the end of June and during the month of July 1947 in such a short period of time it is not possible to examine this material as thoroughly as one should and at the same time to collect the necessary rebuttal evidence especially since the latter is particularly difficult in view of the present situation in Germany and takes an unduly long time. As counsel for the defense I consider myself obliged to help to establish the truth. But I am also obliged to point out those circumstances which might make this even technically impossible for me.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: It is the opinion of the Tribunal that a prima facie case, at least, has been made against the defendant Rendulic in regard to the evacuation of the province of Finnmark, and the motion of his counsel to dismiss that portion of the count will be overruled.

Is counsel for the defendant Dehner prepared to make his opening statement?

DR. KLINNERT(For General Dehner): Your Honors, James W. Garner, the well known American teacher of International Law, Professor for International Law at the University of Illinois, author of the well known work "The International Law and the World War" gave a lecture in Berlin, on 30 November 1935, on the subject of "The International Law and the Wars of the Future". In this lecture Garner said in regard to international law during world war I, 1914-1918, inter alia the following: I quote:

"Both sides maintained that many of the old standards dating back to a time in which conditions were either not applicable, illogical or ineffective and would therefore have to be discarded. Or they would have to be adapted, by way of additions, to the new conditions, or the new means of warfare, under which and by means of which the war was to be continued.

It is a fact that the laws of war were in a chaotic state; many points were not covered by any law at all, with regard to other points there existed no agreement as to what was lawful, and with respect to other points again the standards were hopelessly incomplete, illogical and badly suited to the new conditions under which the war had to be waged."

With a prophetic eye this lawyer, who is among the greatest teachers of international law of our century, stated the following with regard to a future war which unhappily has become reality: I quote:

"The next great war -- in case we should unhappily have to live through one again -- will thus to a large extent have to be waged without fixed standards or under standards, which will be ineffective or imperfectly adapted to present conditions, unless in the meantime the existing standards are revised or supplemented by new ones"The world did not grant Garner's demands for a revision and a new setting up of the standards of International Law.

The standards of International Law have not been supplemented or strengthened. They have not been revised. It was not ascertained which parts of the laws of war were still valuable and useful.

On the strength of these facts the following questions arise:

Is it possible at all for a charge to be based on standards which have been termed hopelessly incomplete, hopelessly illogical and hopelessly ineffective by one of the greatest teachers of International Law?

And would it not be an injustice to base a condemnation on such standards?

Prior to the examination of the evidence the following task must therefore be fulfilled:

The Laws of War that are laid down in the Hague Convention and in the text books of International Law, must be analysed with regard to all their finer points. First of all one must ascertain, which parts were still generally valid during the last war. Only when this is established could the Tribunal arrive at a just decision.

I am expressly using the word "could", for establishing this point only does not suffice.

No punishment without a wrong being committed.

This is a universally valid legal maxim of all penal systems.

This legal maxim is valid in particular in all countries guided by English and American Law.

It is true that on principle ignorance of a law is no excuse for a punishable act.

This maxim, however, does not possess unrestricted validity even as far as the penal law of individual states is concerned, American law especially knows of exceptions to this rule. In this context I refer to Winthrop "Military Law and Precedents" edition 1920. On page 29 of this work Winthrop cites some examples in which ignorance of the legal norms excludes culpability.

Owing to the chaos concerning the validity of the legal standards in International Law, this maxim can, however, find no application at all in International Law.

Otherwise this would mean demanding a better knowledge of the standards of International Law from a soldier than from the recognized authorities on International Law.

General Dehner, who is represented by me, could thus only be punished,

a) if violations of those norms of the Laws of War can be proved whose general validity was still recognized during the last war by those nations abiding by International Law, and,

b) if it is established that General Dehner was also conscious of this.

It is therefore necessary to subject the Laws of War as laid down in the Hague convention to a very searching analysis.

For this reason I cannot by any means agree with the Prosecution if in their Opening Statement they say:

"Nor--- can the true meaning of this case be drawn from learned arguments by counsel, analyzing and refining the laws of war as they are written in the Hague Conventions and in textbooks on international law."

(Page 10 of the German and page 11 of the English record) But I can even less agree with the Prosecution if in its' Opening Statement it further says that questions of evidence are of secondary importance.

The questions of evidence play a very considerable part, particularly in view of the confusion which predominated in matters of international law during the last world war.

In peace time it is, as a matter of principle, forbidden to kill a human being, not so in war time. Even the killing of hostages may be legal, as even the Prosecution has stated.

Destruction of foreign property, also, is not always illegal in case of war.

Therefore, the facts have to be thoroughly established in order to answer the question, whether the few norms of laws of war which still have general validity, have been violated.

It is not sufficient, therefore, when the prosecution presents evidence for the fact that hostages have been killed, and that inhabited localities have been destroyed.

Instead, the prosecution will have to present in all cases the pertinent circumstances, especially the reasons leading to the killing of hostages and destruction of inhabited localities.

The documents which have been submitted, especially the teletypes do not show this in any way.

Generally speaking the following can be said with regard to the documents which have been submitted as evidence against General Dehner, especially with regard to the daily reports:

These documents have no probative value according to the regulations concerning evidence of the American rules of procedure, for the following reasons:

1. They do not constitute the best evidence which could be presented by the prosecution, but instead "secondary evidence" which is not admissible:

I quote: "The best evidence must be produced of which the case is susceptible." (Winthrop, Military Law and Precedents 1920, page 321.)

2. It does not suffice, therefore, that the prosecution submits that their evidence consists of captured documents.

Instead, the prosecution has to prove, that General Dehner himself, either wrote them (daily reports), received them, or was informed of their contents. Such a proof would be necessary even if – which is not however the case – these documents had been captured amongst General Dehner's effects. I quote:

"Neither is it sufficient to show merely that the letter or telegram was found in the possession of the person in question, without further showing that he wrote, received or knew of such writing". End of quote.

(Wharton, Evidence in Criminal Cases 1935, Vol. II, page 1394.

To refute these statements the regulations of Ordinance No. 7 could be quoted, according to which Military Tribunals are not bound to any rules concerning evidence. In this connection I would like to point out the attitude of two judges, who even today are members of the Supreme Court. These two judges have expressed the following attitude in connection with this question in the case of Yamashita:

Mr. Justice Rutledge has said:

"The rules of evidence are not only a matter of evidence. They go to the basis right of defense." (Case Yamashita, page 12.)

I quote further: "They go also to the basic standards of trial", end of quote. (Case Yamashita, Page 2.)

Mr. Justice Murphy has said: "The punishment should be based upon charges fairly drawn in light of established rules of international laws and recognized concepts of justice." (Case Yamashita, Page 12.)

In this connection the Prosecution further submitted, they did not believe it would be refuted; that:

1. the killings charged in the indictment actually took place, 2. they were carried out by troops under the command of these defendants, and 3. they were actually ordered by the defendants.

These statements of the prosecution do not apply under any circumstances to General Dehner, whom I represent.

To begin with, it will certainly be refuted that all killings alleged in the indictment did actually take place. The Prosecution did not present full evidence for these allegations.

Furthermore, it will certainly be refuted that, inasmuch as the killings with which General Dehner has been charged, took place at all, they were carried out by troops under the command of General Dehner.

Thirdly, it will be fully refuted that General Dehner did ever at any time order an execution. Instead, the allegation to this effect by the Prosecution will be confronted by an allegation of the Defense that General Dehner had never ordered any execution. This can be seen from the very presentation of the Prosecution. The orders which have been submitted by the Prosecution in this connection were already valid at the time when, in August 1943, General Dehner took over the command of the LXIX Corps. The order of the 15 Sept. 1943 was passed on by General Dehner's deputy, without the former's knowledge, while he was on leave.

According to these orders the divisional commanders were exclusively responsible for the reprisal measures and the executions of hostages.

As my colleague, Dr. Laternser, has already shown in detail, the court will have to go deeply into the question to what extent General Dehner can be at all punished for actions which his subordinates committed without his orders and during his absence. For all actions committed by General Dehner in his capacity as Commanding General of the LXIX Corps, were committed pursuant to orders of his superior military authority.

I do not want to repeat the statements which my colleague, Dr. Laternser, has made here, but instead I wish to point out the following points: This question cannot be decided on the basis of the principles of either the American or the German Penal Law, but solely according to the principles of international law. International law, however, is completely void of any norm, such as is defined in Article II, No. 4 b, of Control Council Law No. 10 of 20 March 1945. International law does not know of any norm establishing that a soldier should not base his actions on superior orders. Therefore, the court will have to go deeply into the question to what extent the Control Council could establish the norm of Article II, No.

4 b of Control Council LaW No. 10, dated 20 Dec. 1945 with retroactive power. In case that the Tribunal should want to base this decision on the principles of the American Penal Code, I should like to draw attention to the writings of William Winthrop in his work "Military Law and Precedents". In this book, it is stated - on page 296 that actions of a soldier, committed pursuant to written or oral orders by a military superior, are not punishable.

In this connection the Prosecution has referred to the stipulation of Art. 47 of the German Military Penal Code and stated that the law of the German Army itself says that every soldier is in duty bound to refuse the carrying out of orders the criminal nature of which is known to him. The Prosecution has, however, not taken into account here the following point of view for the application of this stipulation. This stipulation always presumes the possibility of refusing to carry out an order. If this possibility were not open to the soldier, then his refusal would result in strict punishment for failing to carry out orders, without examining the legality of the order and the illegal act which had been ordered could not be prevented. The common soldier can refuse to carry out a criminal order given to him by a lieutenant, because he then has the possibility to complain to the superior of the lieutenant. The lieutenant can refuse to carry out a criminal order given by a staff officer, because he has then the possibility to turn to the superior of the staff officer. This possibility, however, does not exist if orders of any kind, the illegality of which should now be proved, have been issued by the Supreme Commander of the Wehrmacht. And this possibility does not exist under any circumstances, if these orders have been issued by a dictator, who unites in his hand all the powers of the state, as in the case of Hitler, a dictator who would, in fact, have had the orders issued by him carried out by using every means at his disposal. What was General Dehner to do in the face of the orders given him? How could he have prevented their being carried out, and after his September leave those orders had already been carried out.

Where was General Dehner to seek justice when confronted by illegal orders of Hitler's?

Without answering these questions reference to a superior order cannot be excluded.

With regard to the four counts of the indictment under which General Dehner is charged I have to make the following detailed observations:

Under Count 1 of the indictment General Dehner is charged with responsibility for the cases listed under 5 i, k and m.

In case 5 i General Dehner is charged with the responsibility for the shooting of 40 hostages on or about 15 September 1943 in Croatia by troops of the 173rd Reserve Division.

The Prosecution has submitted no proofs to this effect.

From none of the documents submitted by the Prosecution it follows that on 14 September 1943, 40 hostages were shot in Croatia by troops of the 173rd Reserve Division. None of the witnesses examined by the Prosecution has testified to that effect.

If the Prosecution had proved these facts which they have asserted, I would prove that General Dehner was on leave during that time and that for this reason alone General Dehner could not be held to account under penal law for the shooting of these hostages.

It will, however, not depend on proving this point because as already mentioned there is so far a complete lack of evidence on the part of the prosecution.

JUDGE CARTER: We will take our noon recess at this time.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHALL: The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. KLINNERT: I shall now continue my opening statement:

Under 5k of the indictment General Dehner is held responsible under penal law for the shooting of the 40 hostages in Croatia on 28 September 1943 through troops of the 173rd reserve division.

The arrest and execution of these hostages took place on the basis of an order of the 2nd Panzer Army of 15 September 1943. Document NOKW 509, Exhibit 340, Document Book XIV; Page 10. This order was passed on during General Dehner's leave. For this reason along General Dehner bears no responsibility under penal law for the passing on of this order.

On the basis of this order the divisional commanders decided independently with regard to the shooting of the hostages.

In the case of Yamashita the Supreme Court had pronounced the following legal maxim:

"And in Gen. Orders No. 264, Hq. Div. of the Philippines September 9, 1901, it was held that an officer could not be found guilty for failure to prevent a murder unless it appeared that the accused had "the power to prevent" it."

(Supreme Court Nos. 61 Miscellaneous and 672, October Term, 1945 (Page 10.)

General Dehner did not possess the power to prevent the execution of these measures ordered by a superior.

Moreover the shootings of hostages reported by teletype of 28 September 1943 were carried out during the leave of General Dehner. Under count 5 m General Dehner is charged with responsibility under penal law for the execution of 20 bandit suspects by troops of the 187th Reserve Division.

The teletype of 10 October 1943 submitted by the prosecution as evidence for this assertion; bears no signature; initial. It is merely an unauthenticated typewritten letter. This document has no probative value whatsoever.

No further evidence was offered by the prosecution for this assertion made under count 5 m.

I therefore move to discontinue proceedings against the defendant Dehner regarding the indictment point 5 i and m because the prosecution has offered no evidence which incriminates General Dehner beyond a reasonable doubt.

With respect to the further shootings listed in the teletype of 15 November 1943 and 12 November 1943 (Document NOKW 658, Exhibit 375 I shall prove that these shooting were not carried out by the divisions belonging to the LXIX Reserve Corps.

In a further teletype of 21 September 1943, Document NOKW 659, Exhibit 375, a report is made of the shooting of 10 hostages as a reprisal measure for an attack on the motor truck of a Croatian Panzer Regiment. Here I shall prove that

- a) General Dehner was on leave during this time,
- b) the shooting of these hostages was carried out not by troops of General Dehner's, but by Croatian units not subordinate to General Dehner.

Under Count 2 General Dehner is charged with plunder and devastation.

The devastation of 2 Croatian villages listed in the indictment under 9 c was carried out while General Dehner was on leave. For this reason alone General Dehner bears no responsibility under penal law.

Regarding the destruction of villages on 16 October 1943 listed under count 9 g, I shall first of all prove that it may be doubtful whether these two communities were burnt down at all.

In any case, the destruction of these two villages was not ordered by the corps.

I shall further prove that in so far the prerequisites of military necessity as well as the prerequisites of a reprisal action under international law were present.

To Count 9 h the Prosecution has up to date not offered any evidence that on 15 November 1943 troops of the 187th Reserve Division which was subordinate to General Dehner set fire to the village of Mamena. Up to now it has only been proved that this village was partly burned down as a definite nest of bandits on 7 November 1943.

This incorrectness of the Prosecution's assertion that the village was set on fire on 15 November 1943 follows from Document Book XVI, page 88, the daily report of 23 December 1943. According to this daily report this village was attacked in December 1943.

Thus it cannot have been destroyed on 15 November 1943.

Regarding the partial destruction of the village on 7 November 1943, I shall prove, that this measure was necessitated by the military situation.

Regarding the destruction of the village Grorewsky, on 27 November 1943 – mentioned under count 9 i of the indictment, I shall prove that this destruction was not carried out by troops under the command of General Dehner. Rather was this village burned down by police troops which were not subordinated to General Dehner. General Dehner neither ordered this destruction nor did he have the possibility to prevent it.

Besides, the teletype of 27 Nov. 1943 shows, that the locality concerned was strong point of the partisans. The destruction thus was a military necessity, and therefore not illegal by international law, as I shall prove, during the course of my evidence.

In so far as the other documents, which have been submitted by the Prosecution, show that destruction of villages in the area of the LXIX Corps had taken place during the time when General Dehner was in charge of this Corps. I am going to prove that the destructions were either carried out by police units or that we are here dealing with measures which, taking in to consideration all circumstances, constituted urgent military necessities.

General Dehner is charged under Count 3 of the Indictment with having carried out and drafted illegal orders and the decrees subsequent to such, with having passed on such orders and decree and with responsibility for their execution through units of the Army.

As evidentiary material with regard to count 12 of the Indictment, the Prosecution has submitted the Commissary by von Brauchitsch. This document merely proves that Brauchitsch issued the Commissary Order to the above date. This document does not even go to show that the authorities listed under distribution actually received this order.

In June 1941 General Dehner was in charge of the 106th Infantry Division. This Division is not listed under the distribution given in the above document. Further evidentiary material with regard to this matter had not been submitted by the Prosecution. Under no circumstances can it therefore be taken as proved that General Dehner received this order. Besides, all evidence is lacking to show that General Dehner passed on this order or instituted any measures in order to have it carried out.

At this point I should like to refer to Wharton's words, which I have mentioned above, according to which it would have to be proved, that General Dehner wrote the above documents or received them or in some way informed about their contents.

Under count 12 h of the Indictment General Dehner is charged with having issued the Command Order; with having passed it on and with having carried out. To prove this the Prosecution has submitted document C. 18, exhibit 225; the order of Hitler from 18 October 1942.

A distribution list does not appear in this document. For the reasons given by me previously; this document merely goes to prove that Hitler issued an order. All evidence is lacking to show which authorities; if any received this order. If particular it is not proven that General Dehner received it. The Prosecution submitted no evidentiary material to indicate that General Dehner passed on such an order or carried it out. The allegation contained in the indictment to the effect that General Dehner issued this order is refuted through exhibit C 18 which has already been mentioned and which shows that the order was issued by Hitler.

Also with regard to this charge the evidence is not sufficient. Under Count 12 I of the indictment General Dehner is charged with having ordered the shooting of 1 staff officer and of 50 men for very division of the capitulated Italian Army as well as with having carried out this order Also with regard to that, the evidentiary material submitted by the Prosecution is insufficient to prove its allegation the prosecution has, to start off with submitted two Keitel orders of 9 September and 15 September 1943 document NOKW 898 exhibit 317 and NOK W 916 exhibit 323 which are supposed to show that General Dehner committed a criminal action.

Neither of these orders is addressed to General Dehner. As to that I am referring to page 27 of the English version Doc. Book 13.

On this page it can be seen to whom this order of 9 September 1943 was addressed. Document NOKW-916 does not show to which commands this order was actually sent. Besides, neither of these documents contains an order of the contents described in the indictment.

Therefore, neither of these documents proves that General Dehner received this order. There is no evidence showing that General Dehner passed on such an order.

Document NOKW-910, exhibit 327, page 43 of the English version of Document Book 13, which has not been submitted in evidence against General Dehner, shows, that such an order was sent only to the 15th Mountain Corps, which has never been subordinated to General Dehner, but that it sent to the 69th Corps for special tasks.

Neither was there any reason to send such an order to the 69th Corps for special tasks as there were no Italian troops within the area of the Corps. Apart from that General Dehner was on leave doing the period in question.

I therefore move that the proceedings against the defendant Dehner be discontinued with regard to Count 3 of the Indictment, since the Prosecution has not submitted any evidence, which might incriminate the defendant Dehner beyond a reasonable doubt.

Also the evidentiary material, which has been introduced with regard to Count 4 of the Indictment, can in no manner suffice to convict General Dehner. In accordance with the prosecution's own statements General Dehner is not involved in any of the individual cases mentioned under Count 4. None of the documents which have been submitted show that General Dehner has ever ordered arbitrary arrests of people indigenous to the area of his Corps for reasons of alleged racial inferiority or for political reasons. No case has it been proved that General Dehner ordered the indigenous population to be maltreated or even murdered. There is also all evidence lacking to prove that General Dehner ordered the civilian population to be seized and to be taken into the Reich for labor employment.

To prove this the prosecution has submitted documents NOKW-509 and NOKW-657, which are exhibits 340 and 376 respectively, which, however, do not show that General Dehner was responsible according to criminal law. Document NOKW-509 on page 13 of the German Document Book 14 contains an order of the commander-in-chief of the 2nd Panzer Army from the 15th September 1943, which had been passed on by the Supreme Command of the 69th Corp for Special Tasks on 19 September 1943 and to which there was added a Supplementary Order on 23 September 1943, Both documents prove beyond doubt that the evacuations mentioned were by no means of an arbitrary nature. The order states literally. I quote:

"In those areas which are particularly important for the conduct of the war and which are infested with bands the male inhabitants from 15 - 60 years are to be evacuated. To begin with, they are to be collected in guarded labor-camps. The Army will issue further orders regarding their employment in labor. The evacuations are to be carried out as surprise actions in order to prevent the population from escaping before they take place.

Territories to be evacuated are: The surroundings of important passes and pass-ways, territory along railway-lines which are particularly endangered etc.

The intentions to carry out the evacuations are to be reported by the Corps Headquarters to the Ia of Panzer Army 2, and to the Quartermaster of Panzer Army 2. One Copy each."

This proves clearly that this evacuation constituted a military necessity and was therefore permissible according to International Law and which, incidentally, was stopped when General Dehner returned from his leave.

This is Document NOKW-509, Exhibit 340, page 26, A, first paragraph. For these reasons these documents do no suffice for the conviction of General Dehner.

The Prosecution has offered no evidence whatever to show that these evacuations were actually carried out. Also the evacuations, which had been ordered by General Dehner's deputy, according to Document NOKW-509, page 26 of the German document book, had been ordered because of constantly repeated attacks against the railroad Zagreb Joganovac, as can be seen from the document. Also these evacuations were legal in the sense of military law.

The prosecution has further submitted document NOKW-657 in evidence. This document does not prove any responsibility according to criminal law either, since first of all this order is not illegal and secondly it was not been proved that this order, which was not even signed by General Dehner and was issued by his deputy when General Dehner was on leave, was ever carried out. Also with regard to count 4 of the indictment, the prosecution has not proved that General Dehner was responsible according to criminal law.

I therefore move that proceedings against General Dehner be discontinued with regard to Count 4 of the Indictment.

In summary I therefore move that proceedings against General Dehner be discontinued with regard to 5i and m of Count 1 of the Indictment, and with regard to count 3 and 4 of the Indictment, since the Prosecution has not proved that General Dehner is incriminated beyond a reasonable doubt.

JUDGE CARTER: The Tribunal is of the opinion that the ruling on these motions should be reserved until the conclusion of all the evidence. If counsel for the Defendant Dehner sees fit to renew the motions at that time they will then receive the consideration of the Tribunal.

DR. KLINNERT: Thank you, Your Honor.

DR. MUELLER-TORGOW: (Counsel for defendant Felmy) Your Honors, May it please the Tribunal, in 25 document books the Prosecution has submitted the pertinent material which is to show that the defendants committed war crimes and crimes against humanity according to Control Council Law No. 10.

The documents submitted are of a purely military character, such as war time diaries, activity reports, daily reports etc. There was a certain form and contents prescribed for them in the German Wehrmacht. Higher authorities wanted to be informed on certain matters; these reports had to be short, but complete as well, so that the decisions made by the higher authorities would correspond to actual conditions. The documents, which were submitted by the Prosecution in the form of copies, have lost their original significance, insofar as omissions were made in essential points and their contents was thus robbed of its context from which alone the documents can be understood. For instance, in the Ic-daily reports the following matters had to be reported on: under paragraph a) the tactical position, under, b), c, d, e) further indications concerning the position, concerning judgment of the enemy position, etc., under paragraph f) "Miscellaneous", to which, among other items, also belonged reprisal measures.

Therefore, if, as happened in many cases, paragraph f) was included in the copy of the document but paragraph a) to e) were left out, then we are solely being acquainted with an actual fact as a result of some cause, which we are unable to perceive. This is only one example, but it is typical for the whole presentation made by the Prosecution. The Prosecution's presentation only states actual facts without even so much as making a marginal note about the cause, it does not inquire into the "why" and we shall see how important and decisive this question is.

The Tribunal has decided that in the document books copies do not constitute evidence, but that only photostats are being considered as such. But these, too, are partly not complete in themselves, besides other pertinent documents for other periods are missing, which also have to be submitted so that the contents of the document can be understood.

But even if the entire material in question would be available complete, the over-all connections would not be evident from it. These, however, are the decisive factors. At present I do not want either to examine the various documents as to their value as evidence, or to answer the various counts of the indictment from an actual and legal point of view. I only wish to make an attempt in general to remove from my client's, General Felmy's, picture – as it was presented to the Tribunal by the Prosecution in the course of its case-in-chief, the features of biased distortion, in order to go into details later on in my presentation of evidence.

For this purpose let us imagine that we make a journey to the South of Greece and at the same time into the past, that is to say, into the years 1943/44. At that time, General Felmy was commanding general of the LXVIII Army Corps.

First the preliminary question comes to mind: what was the function and the position of a commanding general in the German army? With regard to its orders and its competency, the army corps was just between the subordinate divisions and the superior army or army group, if there was no complete army. It is now especially important to realize that in the structure of the army there was a sharp break between divisions and army corps. The division was independent, tactically as well as with respect to supply. It formed an organism which was complete in itself, and whose members acted side by side and together on behalf of the whole, that is to say, the division. In the so-called "order of battle" (Kriegs*liederung), those links, that is, the subordinate regiments, battalions, and units, were graphically depicted. With one glance at the order of battle of, let us say, an armored division, one could immediately tell what was its concentration, and through that one know its operational possibilities and its fighting strength. The separate links, every one of which had its definite assignment, remained closely together and kept in continuous touch with division headquarters.

This necessitated of course a continued contact between the division commander and his staff on the one hand, and with the troop commanders subordinated to him on the other hand, with the result that the division commander knew his troop commanders well from a military and human point of view.

The army corps, on the other hand, did not have a battle order in the sense mentioned above. The army corps could have two, but also five divisions subordinated to it, as the case might be, and the conditions of subordination changed if strategy or tactic required it, sometimes very often. An order of battle existed only for the corps staff and for the few so-called "corps troops" which were directly subordinated to the commanding general. The orders he issued or transmitted to the division he gave as the military superior outside of, and above, the organism as described above. Therefore, the commanding general as a rule did not have a continuous personal contact with the troop commanders within the divisions subordinate to him.

If we now look at the conditions in South Greece during the years 1943–44 from this point of view, we notice that after the capitulation of the Italians in September 1943, there was stationed there only one German division, the 117th Infantry Division, to which was added the 41st Fortress Division only in the winter 1943/44. It was spread over a territory which normally would be taken up by an army group. The space covered by the LXVIII Army Corps which included outside of the Peloponneso also Attica, Boetia, and several islands, corresponded to the territory usually allotted to an army. This, of course, meant a further increase in the difficulties connected with General Felmy's supervisory activities. If in addition to that one takes into consideration the dreary and inaccessible landscape of South Greece, one must realize that it was extremely difficult for him and his staff to form a correct picture of whether or not the measures taken by the troop units under his command had been chosen and executed in a manner which corresponded to the local conditions and was correct and appropriate.

However, if General Felmy had the opportunity of ascertaining excesses any where, and when he actually ascertained them, he put a stop to them with the necessary severity.

The answer to the question, what actually was his field of supervision, depends on the answer to the preliminary question: what was the tactical mission of the LXVIII Army Corps? The answer is: primarily and above all else, its mission was to secure the occupied territory against surprise invasion by the enemy. This was the primary purpose to which all military measures taken and to be subordinated. In addition to this, the army corps had a series of tasks which were considerably less important as seen from a higher tactical point of view, military, political, economic, and propagandistic missions which followed from the occupation of the territory.

To this belong especially also the lighting of guerrilla bands which turned against the German troops only after a certain definite time, which I shall discuss below. The German troops were technically in no way equipped for guerrilla warfare in the impassable territory of South Greece which was favorable to this type of warfare in every respect-the mountains there reach a height of 2, 500 meters. The German soldier was neither skilled nor trained in guerrilla warfare; he was accustomed to stand before an open and recognizable adversary.

What was it that led to guerrilla warfare at all? As long as the Italians participated in the occupation and, in addition, as long as the 1st Armored Division was stationed on the Peloponnesos, the Germans had only very occasional clashes with the partisans. Only by the elimination of the Italians the situation became disagreeable for the German troops. And this was not only the case because the Italians partly deserted to the guerrillas and thereby reinforced them, or at least sold arms and munitions to them, but it can be exactly established that from that time on the guerrillas received supplies from territories outside of Greece, and were additionally supplied by air through the British. The partisans now more and more turned against the German soldiers without the latter having given any provocation whatsoever. The guerrillas unquestionably were the attackers and, especially in the Peloponnesos, there was hardly a day without attacks.

In which way they proceeded, in which manner they fought and in which inhuman way they treated captured and wounded German soldiers, for all this, evidence will be submitted by the defense. The position was particularly uncertain and not clean for the Germans also because apparently peaceful civilians, the so-called "house partisans" unexpectedly took part in sudden attacks, to disappear again afterwards among the population. Mention may be made by the way in this connection of the fact that these people, partly, made common cause with the bands only under pressure. The excitement of the German soldiers concerning the most terrible atrocities, committed by the bands in increasing numbers be proved by me – is only too understandable, – as far as feeling is concerned – and the reaction was often severe, but unavoidable.

If, to-day, similar things would happen to members of the BS occupation army, the consequences would certainly not be different. And I extend this comparison not only to reactions of feelings of individual soldiers but also to the measures which would be taken in that case by high military authorities. And here, High Tribunal, we come to the central idea of International Law in the event of war which has been expressed in the official French text of the Hague Convention of 1907 by the term "Necessites militaires" –military necessities The question – justified in itself, for several reasons – whether this convention and its supplement, the Hague Regulations of Land Warfare, are – or are not – valid entirely or in part, is irrelevant in this connection) for the notion of "military necessities" can also have a generally recognized meaning in customary law. The question arising after the last total war is: has the requirement of military necessity any relevant meaning at all any longer?

High Tribunal, I should like to submit – sine ira et studio the example that I am going to mention now and that – as the nearest in space – is only one example out of many. If you consider the impression given by this town which was formerly Nuernberg and which, for centruies, had been called "the little treasure chest of the German Reich", and if, then, you conclude that in the ruins below the castle, apart from many human lives, culture, too, had been buried, is there not, for any fair person, necessarily the question unavoidable: Was that necessary for warfare and victory? The answer, I think, seems to be clear, unless, in modern total war which is, it is true, far away from the Hague Regulations of Land Warfare, terror can be considered as a military necessity. But it is on the other hand, just "a well-calculated program of terror and destruction" that the defendants arc being charged with in the opening statement of the prosecution.

This is the only conclusion which can be drawn: either the concept of the "necessites militaires" actually disappeared, or, if still existing, it was broadened through the general usage of war to such an extent that the defendants must benefit by it, assuming that they actually gave the orders with which they arc charged. However, there will be no need for an association of thought with these negative aspects of warfare to prove that General FELMY cannot be held responsible within the meaning of the indictment. He did not provoke the guerrillas to assume an attitude against German soldiers which, was in contrast to the tenets of international law. The partisans were fully aware of the precarious situation of the German troops, they led to, and did anticipate, reprisals against hostages who had been found to be connected with them. They could have rendered any form of reprisals unnecessary through cessation of hostilities. They did not do so. Apart from that, the national Greek element they pretended to represent was merely a cloak to deceive the population. They acted on higher orders. Had this not been so, they would have had to stop their activities at the latest upon the withdrawal of the German troops from Greece. However, conditions in this unfortunate country not only have not improved since, on the contrary they deteriorated considerably Although during the last phases of the German occupation entire sections of the City of Athens were in the hands of the partisans and they could no longer be kept in check by the customary means, General FELMY refused to subject Athens to artillery fire, just as 20 years ago as a Major in the Reich Ministry of Defense (Reichswehrministerium), he had abhorred the principle of air raids on open cities.

After the withdrawal of the Germans it was left to the British to attack the sections of the rebels from the air. Winston Churchill in his essay, "If I were an American", published in "Life" of 12 May 1947, states that in the course of their retreat from Athens in December 1944, the guerrillas murdered at least 20,000 men women and children to whom they objected or who obstructed their path. They are the same guerrillas who formerly used to attack the Germans, even though the Prosecution uses the word "bands" in quotation marks, which however will have been lost even for them after the withdrawal of the Germans. "The Greek Dilemma", the title of a recently published American book, has since become a generally accepted idea. Formerly the Balkans were the "powder cask" of Europe, Greece is at present the "powder cask" of the world.

General FELMY, as all other defendants, is charged with "appeasement through terror". I shall bring evidence to the contrary and to the fact that during the entire period of his sojourn in Greece he made honest endeavours for a true peace through collaboration with the population. He not only did not terrorize and exterminate the latter but gave help when ever possible. He protected them against gross transgressions on the part of the Italians, he assisted them against the inhuman and cruel treatment of the partisans.

And that not only because Article 43 of the Hague Land Warfare Convention prescribes that the occupying officer "must make all the arrangements dependent upon him in order to re-establish and maintain as far as possible public order and public life." .. From inner compulsion he worked together with the population against the partisans in order to help them and bring peace to the country.

I do not want to go into detail at this point as to the abundance of arguments which are available in this respect.

Generally speaking, I have received during the last months from high and low, from soldiers and civilians, a large number of statements - in some cases without having requested them - all of which more or less culminate as to content in the following declaration: "I consider General FELMY incapable of having acted against the law and against humanity." He never was a "militarist" in the negative sense with an "odd conception of military discipline" as was expressed in the opening statement of the prosecution. The officers who worked with him all agree in describing him as a man who was in every respect a model of military and human respect, and ordinary soldiers speak of him as their "Papa Felmy", tireless in his concern for their welfare. That is the general opinion of him. Greece for him meant the land of the Hellenes, which in ancient times had once been the cultural center of the world. This reverence for Greece gave him additional strength to stand up with all the means at his disposal for peace in Greece.

And such a man, who is deeply rooted in religion and endowed with character and culture, who thinks, feels and acts like any decent person and any honorable officer in all countries of the world and who had thus clearly remained within the boundaries of behavior recognized as permissible by international law – could such a man be a criminal?

The German poet Matthias Claudius wrote a war song of a special kind 150 years ago. It contains a confession which was and is likewise the confession of General FELMY:

"Unfortunately it is war, and I request not to be blamed for it."

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: This, I think, concludes the opening statements of the defendants. I trust that the defense counsel are now prepared to go ahead with the evidence in support of their defense.

DR. LATERNSEER: (Counsel for defendants List and von Weichs): Your Honors, do you intend to start this afternoon?

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I know of no reason why we should not proceed.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, I am prepared to start. I shall, to begin with, put the defendant Field Marshal List on the witness stand. Then I shall hear other witnesses and, finally, I shall submit to the Tribunal document books and present documents. Before I put the defendant Field Marshal List on the witness stand I should like to draw attention to the following.

My position is this. When I have heard the defendant I can for the moment not continue my case because the witnesses which have been requested by us have not yet turned up, and the document books are, unfortunately, not ready for submission and that because continuously new material comes in, and, therefore, they could not have been finished.

For this reason, I would like to put the question to the Tribunal how I am supposed to proceed after I have heard the defendant Field Marshal List. If what possibly may not be avoidable, the other defendants are called to the stand, then we would have the disadvantage that the various cases could not be submitted in a complete form.

I would like to put this question to the Tribunal and to make clear thus the position of defense counsel in order that the Tribunal may know how the defense will have to proceed in the event that, in consideration of the short time which the prosecution took up by their presentation, there may possibly be a recess after the defendants have been put on the stand until all material is complete in the hands of the defense. I want to be very frank. The defense does at the moment not know its position clearly. As is well known to the Tribunal, it has made a motion that two of their representatives may look at the documents in Washington. The prosecution for its part has declared that all documentary evidence will be brought here. That latter alone would help the defense to a certain extent but not completely because we have made the motion to look at the documents ourselves because we expect to find documents beyond those which the prosecution has presented and which may be important to us.

In this connection again there is a further disadvantage. All this is a consequence of the fact that the prosecution submitted its case so briefly. In case we get material which the prosecution is about to have brought to Nuernberg, I for my part will not be in a position to make a complete presentation of the case List and what disadvantages are connected with such a factor can well be estimated by the Tribunal.

The reason why I am explaining all this is the following. I just want to make clear the position of the defense at the moment -- that is, when I have heard the defendant List I can then not continue because other witnesses haven't arrived yet. For that reason I would not be in a position to have talked to any one of the witnesses and my document books which, of course, as far as they are finished, I am in a position to deliver up today for mimeographing; but that, on the other hand, would not help me because then my presentation could not be complete.

That is the position, as I want to put it to the Tribunal.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: The Tribunal suggests that you proceed with the evidence of your client. Sometime during the day or tomorrow morning, at the earliest, the Tribunal will advise you of its feelings in the matter that you have expressed here if that is agreeable, Dr. Laternser.

DR. LATERNSE: I want to start this way. I have just been given a communication which I would like to make known to the Tribunal in addition and I attach importance to the fact that it be incorporated in the record. This communication too, will show the extreme difficulties of the defense. May I read it? I am only doing this so that the prosecution may gain a complete picture of the situation.

"The Prosecutor of the Spruchkammer Weissmain to Defense Center Nuernberg, Palace of Justice.
Subject: Southeast Generals.

"The appeal which was published in the press on the 8th of last month to former members of the Wehrmacht who have participated in partisan warfare in the Balkans, to the effect that those people should put themselves at the disposal of the defense, only reached me now and I would like to put the following question to you in this connection."

The communication is very short, your Honors.

"Officially released prisoners of war from Jugoslavia prisoner of war camps are very few or none at all. However, there will be a few who have succeeded in escaping further prisoner ships, either by escaping or by pretending not to be of German nationality.

"I can well imagine that such people who have thus escaped a very hard fate, that those members of the Wehrmacht will not report in compliance with your request, even if they could make testimony of importance, because they will surely be afraid that possibly they will again be extradicted to the Jugoslavs; and then comes the question -- or wouldn't that be the case?

What assurance will be given in such a case."

And then comes the signature.

By reading this letter I was only going to show the Tribunal what the general opinion is to volunteer as a witness for the defense in this trial.

Now, before I put the defendant Field Marshal List on the witness stand, I would like to ask that the chart which has been put here by the prosecution for informational purposes be removed. I think it is wrong and I don't want this chart to exert any influence on the charts which I intend to submit to the witness. Maybe that can be done in the recess afterwards.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Is there any objection of the prosecution to the removal of the chart during the offering of the defendants' evidence?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors, no, we have no objection to taking the chart out.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: The chart may be removed during the afternoon recess.

DR. LATERNSE: Thank you, your Honor. I now call the defendant Field Marshal list to the witness stand.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I swear by God the Almighty and Omniscient that I will speak the pure truth and will withhold and add nothing.

(The witness repeated the oath).

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q: Field Marshal, will you please tell the Tribunal your full name?

A: Siegmund Wilhelm Walther List.

Q: Before you answer any one of my questions, please make a short pause so that the question can be translated.

When were you born?

A: On the 14th of May, 1880.

Q: And where?

A: In Oberkirchberg in Wuerttemberg. That is in the district of Ulm.

Q: What was your father's profession?

A: District counsellor (Laudrat)

Q: What is your religion?

A: I am a Protestant.

Q: And what is your schooling?

A: At first I visited a private school. Later I went to elementary school in Ulm and also visited there the first classes of the gymnasium.

Q: Who was in charge of your education when you went to school in Ulm?

A: My grandmother. She was the widow of a clergyman and when aided in this by her daughters, one of whom was a teacher in a girls' school.

Q: How long did you remain in Ulm?

A: To the year 1890.

Q: And where did you go then?

A: Then my father transferred to Munich.

Q: And what school did you go to in Munich?

A: The Humanistic Gymnasium (High School).

Q: When did you leave that school?

A: In 1898.

Q: Had you been determined for a long time to become an officer?

A: I had gained the first impressions which led me to this in Ulm but I was not decided for a long time whether I wanted to become an officer or a forester. My grandmother originated in a forester's family and I lived with her for a long time near the Danube and I there made experiences concerning pioneer activity which influenced me deeply.

When, in the year 1898 I had to choose what kind of a profession I wanted to take, I then decided to become an officer. That was a profession which at that time was quite frequently taken up by young people in Bavaria just as any other kind of civil service.

Q: Why, then, did you decide to become an officer?

A: Because I endeavored to do a lot of work out in the open and to have as much as possible contact with other people.

Q: Where did your military career start?

A: It started in Munich at the then pioneer detachment which later became the pioneer battalion.

Q: And when?

A: In July of the year 1898.

Q: When did you become an officer?

A: In March of the year 1900.

Q: What was your further training as an officer?

A: To begin with, I worked with the troops; 1902 to 1904 I went to an artillery and engineering school; and then I became battalion adjutant and as such I made an examination at the War Academy. I went to the War Academy from the year 1908 to 1911. That is the Bavarian War Academy in Munich.

Q: Are you married?

A: Yes.

Q: How many children do you have?

A: Three.

Q: How did your further military career develop?

A: After I had finished the War Academy I again worked with the troops in an Infantry Regiment. Later I was ordered to the Bavarian Staff and there, as an officer of the Second Bavarian Corps, I was assigned when the troops were mobilized in 1914.

Page Unlabeled

After the First World War, 1914 to 1918 -- or, rather, at the end of the First World War -- I was called to the Bavarian Ministry as an expert and there I participated in the dissolution of the Army.

Q: What was your activity during the First World War?

A: During the First World War I was an officer of the General Staff, as well in the Western, in the Main, also for a short time in the Eastern theatre of war.

Q: What decorations did you receive during the First World War?

A: During the First World War I received the Iron Cross, First and Second Class; then the Hohenzollern House Order with Swords, the Bavarian Order of Merit, with sword, a Wuerttemberg Order, an Austrian Order and a Bulgarian decoration.

Q: What intentions did you have for the period after the First World War?

A: After the First World War, I had the intention to become a farmer. However, that did not come true because, on the occasion of the Munich Putsch, I saw myself forced to flee from Munich; together with government troops I participated in the conquest of Munich and I was then taken over to the standing Army of the First World War of 100,000 men.

Q: What were your assignments after you had been incorporated into the standing army after the first World War?

A: Partly I worked with the Staff; partly in the troops. As of the year 1922 up until 1924 I was Commander of the Mountain Infantry Regiment, Kempten, 19th Inf. Regt.

3l51 Later I worked on the staff of the Military Command District 7, and from there, in the year 1926, after I had in the meantime been promoted to Lieutenant Colonel, I came into a training department of the Army.

In the autumn of that year I was made full Colonel. I was put in charge of the department as deputy the dept. chief who was sick. In the spring of the year 1927 I became Chief of the Army Training Department.

(Dr. Laternser)

Q You have mentioned just now a battalion of the Infantry Regiment 19. Have you ever been actively employed with this battalion?

A Yes, I was employed with this battalion in the year 1923, that was on the occasion of the Hitler rise in Munich, and they had to suppress that rise, and I was instructed to effect law and order in Munich.

Q You said that in 1927, I believe, you were Chief of the Army Training Department?

A Yes.

Q How long did you remain in this position?

A I remained as Chief of the Training Department to the spring of the year 1930.

Q And what did you become then?

A In the year 1930, I became Commander of the Infantry School; that was, in those days, the only infantry school; that was located in Dresden.

Q What were your tasks for this position?

A My task was to train young officers of the Reich Army and to educate them; with regard to the educational task, I received a special instruction in those days, just before that time, the National Socialists had formed cartels amongst the young officers of the Army. I recall the case Ludin and I was instructed then by the then Minister for the Defense, - that was the Democratic Minister Groener, and from the chief of the OKW, and from the chief of the troop office, that was General of the Infantry von Hammerstein, to make sure that any political activity, and especially an influence of national socialism on the young officers in Dresden, should be avoided.

Q And what did you do, according to this instruction?

A In order to carry out this task I educated and trained my officers in this sense. I influenced their teachers and occasionally made appeals to the young officers.

In the year 1933, in the autumn, I was promoted to Brigadier General, and on the 1st of October I was given the fourth division in Dresden. In 1934 I was made Commanding General of the newly created 4th Corps, and in 1935, I was promoted General of the Infantry (Lt. Gen.)

In 1938, in the spring of that year, I was, for a short period, made commander-in-chief of Army Group II in Kassel. However, I only remained there for one month, up to 1 April, 1939, and then I became commander-in-chief of Army Group V, which had been newly created in Vienna.

Q Did you participate in the march on the Sudeten area in the occupation of Czechoslovakia?

A I participated in both as commander-in-chief of Army Group V, Vienna, - that is, I participated in the occupation of Moravia. That is the southern part of the occupied area.

Q When were you made General?

A I was made Major General in the spring of 1939.

A Now to the war.

MR. DENNEY: Dr. Laternser has asked when he was made Generaloberst, a four-star general, and the interpretation came through as "Major General". The rank he is referring to is a four-star general, the rank just above the rank of Field-Marshal. Will you please have it corrected?

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q When were you made a full general?

A In the spring of the year 1939.

Q And may I say the word, "Generaloberst" has been translated from "four-star General".

Field Marshal, we now approach the period of the war. What were your positions at the beginning of the war?

AAAt the beginning of the war, in the year 1939, I became Commander-in-Chief of the 14th Army. That was in the campaign against Poland.

Q And what was your next position?

A With the 14th Army I participated in the campaign in Poland, and soon after the campaign was finished, - that was in October, 1939, I was sent to the west with the high command of the army, and this command was then given the designation, "High Command XII".

To begin with, I came to the army group von Bock, which was divided up later, and on the occasion of the division, I came to von Rundstedt's Army group, that is, the southern wing in the Eiffel territory.

Q In what capacity did you participate in the campaign against France?

AAAs Commander-in-chief of the 12th Army.

Q And after that campaign was concluded?

AAAt the conclusion of the campaign in France, I was again transferred to the east, to the district of Cracow, together with the army command XII.

In the meantime I had been promoted Field Marshal. That was in the middle of July.

Q And what were your further positions during the war ? Very briefly.

A I remained in the east for a short time, Before Christmas, on the occasion of the visit of the Commander-in-Chief of the Army he informed me that my army command would be transferred to the southeast, -- in order to form there army forces in the Roumanian area, and at that time, when I was informed of this, this had already started.

Q And how long did you remain in the Southeast area? Quite briefly to begin with, we will come to it more in detail later.

A I remained in the southeast until my illness, that was on the 15th of October, 1941, and I was then in the hospital in Athens up to December, 1941.

Q Did you later on have another position?

A Yes, I did have another position for the duration of about two months.

Q And what was that?

A From July and August to September, 1942, I had the command of Army Group A. Army Group A was then located on the southern wing of the Eastern front.

Q How long did you maintain this command?

A From the 7th of July to the 10th of September.

Q And why did you discontinue?

AAAt that time there were serious differences of opinion between me and Hitler.

Q What decorations did you receive during the war?

A During the war I received the clasp to the iron cross, first and second class, and the Knight's Cross to the Iron Cross, and furthermore a number of foreign decorations, Slovakian, Hungaian, Italian, - Bulgarian and Roumanian, decorations.

Is it necessary that I mention them all in detail?

Q No, it is not necessary.

What was your attitude to the party of the National Socialists?

A My attitude was, from the very beginning, critical and rejecting, and this, my attitude, was based on my activities, that is, when I had to take part in suppressing the Hitler rise in Munich, I had then noticed the whole manner in which the party proceeded. Furthermore, my attitude was based on the experiences I had made during the struggle before the elections between Hitler and Hindenburg, and especially it was based on the manner of how the party showed itself toward the Wehrmacht, – how the party endeavored to destroy the above-party character of the Wehrmacht and how they tried to gain influence over the Wehrmacht; as I had described before, there were certain cartels amongst the young officers corps; in the years 1929/30 that it was possible that such a thing existed was due to the influence of the party, and on all of these facts my rejecting and critical attitude toward the party was based.

Q Why did you remain in the service then, in 1933?

A In spite of this, my attitude, I saw no cause, and none of the officers could see any cause, for resigning the service because after all Hitler had gained power legally. We served under the Weimar Republic, as long as this Republic held the confidence of the German people, and there was no cause now, just because the political party had changed, and a different political party had taken over, -- there was no reason for us to resign the service. Besides, we did not serve the armed forces of the party. I saw my service as that of the Fatherland.

Q Did your rejecting attitude toward the party of the National Socialists diminish later on?

A No, maybe at the beginning one was somewhat influenced by the successes which Hitler doubtlessly gained in the inner political sphere, as well as on other spheres, and which had gained him respect abroad in broad circles, but it was shown repeatedly that within party circles, and mainly in the inner life of Germany, excesses occurred on the part of the party, which were directed especially against the officers' corps, so that it became necessary to watch out, and my rejection did not diminish, but after a short time, sort of an "in-between" period, I felt rather more strongly in this rejecting attitude. For this reason, in order to not have to accept these excesses towards the Wehrmacht, and even those of a general nature which became felt, I, during the time from 1933 to 1938, when I was commanding general in Dresden.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: It is not only time for our afternoon recess, but they have run out of sound recording tape, so we will have to recess.

DR. LATERNSE: The question has not been fully answered yet, maybe the defendant can answer it after the recess.

JUDGE CARTER: You probably will have to repeat part of the answer, because it has not been taken down.

DR. LATERNER: Vary well.

(In recess until three-fifteen o'clock)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You may proceed. I don't know how much of the last question or the last answer was on the tape, so you'd better ask it again.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Yes, Your Honor.

Q Field Marshal, you were just enumerating the reasons why you remained in office in spite of the excesses which had become known.

A I said that Hitler came to power legally so that was no reason for us to leave the service, all the more so, since we did not serve the party but the fatherland, so as we had done in the Weimar Republic, as long as this Republic enjoyed the confidence of the people. Furthermore, I was of the opinion that the purely objective activity of the Reichswehr, especially of the officers corps which knew only the cause and their duty, and the fact that I would carry out this idea in general, and I was of the opinion that just in such times of political unrest it was necessary for the elements of peace that they should remain at their posts.

Q You mentioned before transgression by the party into the territory of the Wehrmacht. Did you object against such attempts at transgressions against the Wehrmacht?

A Yes. In 1933 until 1938, as long as I was a commanding general, I frequently made representations to the Gauleiter.

Q It was only in 1938?

A No, from 1933 to 1938.

Amongst other things, it was at the time of 30 June 1934 the Roehm putsch, when excesses commenced by the SS. In the same night, I sent a staff officer to the office of the Minister Reichenau and at that time asked him if he would take care that these excesses ceased.

Q And were you supported in this?

A Emphatically, in these attempts, my chief of staff, who was later general of the artillery Olbricht.

Q What was the result of your step on the 30th of June 1934?

A Unfortunately, it was not successful.

Q Did you also on other important occasions object against methods taken by the party?

A Later on, yes.

Q When?

A 1938, on the occasion of the Jewish pogrom in Vienna.

Q What did you do then?

AAAt that time I learned it first of all from the newspaper and then I went to my office and when I was certain about events which had happened and I sent the staff officer to the Gauleiter at that time and told him that he should take care that these events did not recur.

Q. Did you also apply to some other office?

A. At the same time, I went to the police president and I told my commanders that if soldiers took part in those kinds of things then they must intervene and punish them.

Q. What sort of happenings were they at that time?

A. In these Jewish programs, I didn't experience them myself. There were plunders and destructions of shops and synagogues.

Q. In order to make this quite clear, when was it?

A. It was in November, 1938.

Q. Did you know Hitler before 1933?

A. No.

Q. When did you meet him for the first time?

A. I met him for the first time in late autumn, 1933, or perhaps winter, 1933-1934.

Q. When was that? On which occasion?

A. Well, I can't say in detail. It was some kind of official occasion.

Q. Then did you see him later on frequently?

A. During the course of the following years, of course I saw him. It may have been three times or four times a year.

Q. And what sort of meetings were they at that time?

A. They were either visits to the troops by Hitler or they were public meetings or it was a discussion which Hitler had in a large circle.

Q. Did you also have private discussions with Hitler?

A. Before the war, no.

Q. Did you go to conferences of a military kind with Hitler?

A. No, never.

Q. From when onwards did you count on the serious possibility of a war?

A. I did not count at all on a serious possibility of a war before the actual outbreak of war.

Q. What about summer, 1939?

A. In summer 1939, the situation was very tense, but I regarded Germany's armament at that time as such that a war could not come. In addition, the diplomatic solution of the Sudetendland and the protectorate had preceded and so I counted on the Polish question also being solved in this manner.

Q. What were you doing at that time of the crisis?

A. I was commander-in-chief of Army Group 5. And I received the order to carry out fortifications along the new Polish frontier and to visit troops which were not under my command.

Q. And what did you think would be the outcome at this time of crisis?

A. Well, I hoped and counted on the fact that as in other cases there would be a diplomatic solution.

Q. And what strengthened you in this view?

A. In this view, I was especially strengthened by the conclusion of the pact with Russia.

Q. But nevertheless war came. And as you have already said, in the Polish campaign you were commander-in-chief of the 14th army, and what was your commission at that time?

A. The 12th army was on the southern flank of Army Group Runstedt --that is, on the southern flank of the army group advancing towards the east and I had the task of going via Cracow in the direction of Lemberg.

Q. And did you get to Lemberg?

A. We got to Lemberg. We also took Lemberg but then in face of the advancing Russians we had to leave Lemberg to them with the oil fields between Lemberg and Prezmysl, including Prezmysl.

Q. Field Marshal, this evacuation before the Russians took place during the fighting then?

A. Yes, this took place during the fighting. At that time, the fixed demarcation line, as a result of the pressure of the Russians, had to be very quickly changed and repeatedly pushed back towards the west.

Q. How long did you remain in the eastern theater of war?

A. Until approximately the middle of October, 1939.

Q. Where did you go then?

A. From there I went with the staff of the 11th Army which was then called Army Group 12 to the west to army group von Bock.

Q. Of what intentions did Field Marshal von Bock inform you?

A. When I arrived in Godesberg, Field Marshal von Bock, who was then general told me at that time rather agitatedly that Hitler was having ideas of operations against England and France.

Q. If you say ideas about operations, what do you mean by this ?

A. I mean an aggressive intention.

Q. What was Field Marshal von Bock's attitude towards this?

A. General von Bock rejected this idea and he told me of this idea of Hitler's -- they were obviously the first thoughts--and he was all excited about it.

Q. And what was your attitude towards this?

A. My attitude was the same as that of General von Bock.

Q. What did you do in order to make your attitude clear to your superiors? I mean your attitude towards these aggressive actions?

A. I talked with some of my commanding generals, with my chief, I worked out a short memo and this memo I presented it to General von Brauchitsch when he came to visit me. This memo contained the idea that I was of the opinion that one should try to avoid a new war and to find a peaceful and diplomatic solution.

Q. And what was Brauchitsch's opinion at that time?

A. Brauchitsch shared my opinion entirely and he instructed me that when I had the opportunity I should submit it to Hitler the same as I submitted it to him.

I was under the impression that Brauchitsch wanted this as a support for his own opinion.

Q. And did you later receive any answer to this representation?

A. Well, an indirect answer, in so far as Hitler called the generals including all the commanding general, I think it was in November, 1934, to come to Berlin.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, that is a wrong translation. It would be November, 1939. You said 1934.

A. I received an indirect answer through Hitler who in November, 1939, called the generals together in Berlin. At this discussion, he told us all his ideas and reproached us older generals with timidity.

Q Along came the Western offensive, and what was your task in this?

A I stood with my Army in the Eiffel, and my job was to break through the Maginot line near Mezieres and Sedan and further on to advance towards the West.

Q And was this carried out?

A In the West of Sedan my Army was stopped and turned towards the South against the Aisne to set up a new front which the Panzer forces which were behind me advanced towards the West.

Q How long did you remain in France after the conclusion of the Western campaign?

A Until the middle of October or the end of October 1940.

Q Then where did you go?

AAAt this time the Army High Command was again transferred towards the East, towards Cracow.

Q And how did you learn about this new task.

A By orders, an order that the Army High Command had to go toward the East and take over a new task. This task consisted of the development of the fortification line along the German-Russian demarkation line.

Q And at that time did you speak to the Commander in Chief of the Army?

A The Commander in Chief of the Army came during December, shortly before Christmas, and visited me. He was on a visit to the troops.

Q And what did he tell you?

A On this occasion I received a new commission, namely, that the Army High Command from 12 should build out a new group in Roumania whose advance at this time was already in force.

Q And for which reason did one think that kind of assembly of forces from Roumania was necessary?

A There were indications that the British were retrenching themselves in Roumanian there were reports of landing intentions, and of the erection of air bases and that could force us to turn against this in order to prevent it.

Q What operation did you have to count on then?

AAAt that time there were thoughts that it could be necessary to occupy Greece up as far as the Aegian coast and in this way to prevent a threat to the Italian Front by the British forces and at the same time to prevent the British from setting up air bases in Greece which would be a great danger to the oil fields, especially those near Ploesti and to the supply along the Danube.

Q And what hopes did you entertain at that time?

AAAt that time too I thought that an armed dispute would not arise. And Hitler too didn't want a war with Greece and I counted on the fact that the establishment if necessary by our troops in Bulgaria would along have been sufficient to stop the Italian-Greek conflict and that an armed dispute would not be necessary.

Q Did you express this opinion?

A Yes, I discussed this opinion with my officers and other things were also discussed immediately prior to my departure to Rumania, that is, in the last days of February 1941, with the Dowager Queen of Roumania, the sister of the King of Greece, who at that time of course expressed the hope to me that we would not be forced to wage war against her brother. Her brother was the King of Greece and I could only tell her that I shared this hope.

Q Then was your opinion strengthened by any kind of events that war should not come in that stage.

A This opinion in the next few weeks was of course strengthened by the Anschluss of Yugoslavia joining in the German-Italian pact.

Q Then how did the situation become changed?

A The situation was completely changed from the 27th of March 1941 by the Revolution in Yugoslavia.

Q Then what else happened in Yugoslavia?

A Some news came from Yugoslavia that Yugoslavia since January or February had been mobilizing and on the Bulgarian and Yugoslavian front there were also signs at this time of troops of various formations and, according to British sources later on, Yugoslavia at this time had nine times a hundred thousand men under arms.

Q What orders did you receive then?

A By reason of this coup d'etat I received the order not only as was intended before planned to advance against Greece but simultaneously from the East against Yugoslavia.

Q And what was necessary in order to carry out this order?

A Formerly my eyes were exclusively in the direction of Greece. About my long right flank, already in the weeks before, I had been calmed down by the Commander in Chief of the Army, and I also received the order to reassure King Boris of Bulgaria who told me repeatedly, said to me repeatedly, "don't be so sure; I know my cousins; in the shortest time possible they will advance in your right flank." The forces at this time were not present and were not envisaged and therefore the new task demanded a sudden swing around the whole plan of operation and a new advance against Yugoslavia and so an alteration of the former advance against Greece.

Q The Prosecution contends, Field Marshall, that the campaign against Greece was well prepared.

A The campaign against Greece was prepared; the campaign against Yugoslavia was in no way prepared, but before the 27th there was a friendship pact which was concluded with Yugoslavia, to prepare for an attack against Yugoslavia, we only had the period from the 28th of March until the 6th of April.

Q. When did you receive an order to start a campaign?

A. In the last days of March 1941.

Q. And when did the campaign start?

A. The campaign started against South Macedonia and against Greece on the 6th of April 1941 with the Tank Group Kleist which was further to the North on the 8th of April 1941 it was two days later, because Kleist Panzer group was not ready for the advance.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, before I question the witness about the forces which were under his command at that time I would like to show the Tribunal Exhibit List No. 1. This is four sketches and the photostats are four exhibits together. Actually, when I need them during the examination I will hand them over to the Tribunal and the General Secretary.

MR. DENNEY: Could we have the understanding that they are offered in evidence before determining whether or not an objection should be made. Perhaps Dr. Laternser would like to lay a foundation for it, as there is nothing to show what they are. At this time I object to them.

DR. LATERNSEER: Of course I would be very pleased to show them to the Prosecution.

MR. DENNEY: We have them but don't know what they are.

JUDGE CARTER: I assume Dr. Laternser proposes to show when questioning his witness, what they are.

DR. LATERNSEER: That was my intention, I think they were distributed a little too early.

Q. Now, Field Marshall, you will see from these sketches, looking at the first one --

MR. DENNEY: I don't want to be unreasonable about it but throughout the presentation of our evidence we constantly were abiding by the 24 hour rule. We won't insist upon it because this document is nothing more than some sort of a chart which has been prepared by somebody who has something to do with the defense. However, I don't think it is unreasonable to respectfully request the Tribunal to direct in an exhibit as simple as this that we be served with copies before so we will have some idea what was being offered and to save time both for the Tribunal and counsel.

DR. LATERNSEER: Of course, Your Honor, I realize that, and everything I submit to the Tribunal I will submit to the prosecution 24 hours beforehand.

JUDGE CARTER: There appears that the Prosecution has not made an objection on the 24 hour rule so you may proceed.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. Field Marshall, please look at the first chart. Does this chart give a clear picture of the forces which were under your command at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Please explain this chart to the Tribunal?

A. At the top is Hitler and at the same time OKW and then OKH, Commander in Chief of the Army, General Field Marshall von Brauchitsch; I was subordinate to him at that time.

MR. DENNEY: The interpreters don't even have a copy of this thing and what they are saying, for instance she just said about the center, talking about OKW; OKW is not at the center and I ask that the defense counsel give them a copy. It is not the interpreter's fault but they are just repeating what the witness says without having the document.

DR. LATERNER: I am sorry I didn't know that the interpreters didn't have a copy. Your Honor, in this connection may I say the following: I don't want to make any difficulties; it isn't so simple for the defense to get so many copies of German photostats because if we ask for a certain number then we are told, "you can do with less," and it makes a difference whether the defense asks for a certain number of copies or the Prosecution asks for them. In this case I would ask the Prosecution to take this into account.

It is exactly the same with translations. In this connection I would like to state this:

If the Prosecution gives anything to be translated and say they needed it in two days. I assume this, this is a pure assumption -- I assume they get it, but if I, as defense counsel, ask for it, I may not get it according to the experiences I have had up to now something of this kind might well happen in the course of the trial so that technical difficulties arise in this direction and I would ask that what I have just said be taken into account.

JUDGE GARTER: We evidently have enough copies of this so let's proceed.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. Field Marshall -

A. Then AOK 12 and my Chief was von Grafenberg, and subordinate to me the Panzer group 1 von Kleist, and General Command Stumme, and General Command 18 Mountain Corps Boehme, General Command of the 30th Corps, under off, and under Panzer Group 1 there were two general Commands the 14th Panzer Corps, von Wietersheim and the General Command 11th Army Corps von Kortzfleisch.

Q. Now Field Marshall, what about Panzer Group von Kleist.

A. Panzer Group von Kleist advanced on the Northern flank, via Nisch towards Belgrade and they had to smash the Serbian forces between there and then to occupy Belgrade. With the entry into Belgrade Panzer Group 1 with its troops was transferred to AOK II and General Field Marshall von Weichs.

Q. That is sufficient from this chart. I now would like to ask you how the campaign went on. Please describe it to the Tribunal quite briefly.

A. I have already said on the right flank from the East to West there was Panzer Group Kleist which went via Nish towards Belgrade.

Q. Just a minute Field Marshall, the other charts, which are joined to this one, which I will submit to you later on, I will come to these.

Q. And then towards the South General Command Stumme with the divisions under him had to advance, break through, the Bulgarian-Jugoslavian frontier mountains, smash the Yugoslavian forces there, and take up communication with the italians. The 18th Mountain Corps had the last sector, had to limit attacks to this line towards the South, also the corps Ott in the direction of Thrace, where were the Creek Bulgarian frontier mountains.

Q. When was Salonika occupied?

A. A Panzer division of Corps Boehme to go around and attacked this line towards South Macedonia in the direction of Salonika. Salonika was occupied on the 9th of April 1941 without fighting.

Q. What was the result of this occupation in Salonika?

A. By the occupation of Salonika the Greek-Thracian Army and the occupations of the Metaxas line fortifications were cut off from their communication with the rear. The Greek-Thracian Army, therefore, capitulated on the 9th of April 1941.

Q. What happened after the capture of Salonika?

A. After the capture of Salonika the forces of the 18th Mountain Corps turned against the Olympic positions which were occupied by Creeks and British.

Q: And when were these positions removed?

A: I can't say the exact date, during the next few days.

Q: And then what happened after this removal?

A: These troops then went towards Larissa, and at the same time from the North a Panzer Division came down. This was sent by Panzer Group Kleist, and went from Florina, towards Larissa. From there the troops went on towards the south in the general direction of Athens which another group of forces went against the rear of the Greek Epirus Army, who faced the Italians.

Q: And what was the result?

A: One of these detachments went over the Mecovo pass in the direction of Joannina; the headquarters was in Joannina, the headquarters of the Greek Epirus Army. This Greek Epirus Army then capitulated.

Q : Why, Field Marshall?

A: By reason of the fact that through this advance their communication, too, was completely cut off.

Q: Who concluded the capitulation of this Epirus Army?

A: The capitulation of the Epirus Army was concluded by me with the Deputy Commander in Chief of the Epirus Army, a General Zolacoughlu.

Q: Where was the real commander in Chief?

A: The real commander in chief had left his Army shortly before.

Q: When was the capitulation concluded?

A: The capitulation was concluded and signed on the 21st of April 1941.

Q: And did things remain like this?

A: No.

Q: Why not?

A: The capitulation had to be renewed, that is had to be effected again with the same contents. The reason was that the commander in chief of the Epirus Army had only offered this capitulation to the Germans. Of course, I asked during the negotiations for capitulation that with the signing of the capitulation the fighting had to be stopped also against the Italians. Now Mussolini objected to this conclusion, because it was against his prestige that the capitulation also wasn't offered to him and it was not signed by the Italians, so this had to be done.

Q: And when was the capitulation signed for a second time?

A: It was signed again. I think, on the 23 of April 1941 in my headquarters.

Q : And who concluded it? Between whom was it concluded?

A: This capitulation was signed between -- for the Germans Generaloberst Jodl, for the Italians I don't know who signed it, and for the Greeks General Zolacoughlu. I refused to sign the capitulation which had already been concluded.

Q: Did you meet this Greek General again?

A: In the capitulation negotiations on the 23 April, which took place in my headquarters, even if I didn't take part, I met General Zolacoughlu again. I invited him to breakfast without the Italian mission, in order not to offend his honor as a soldier, because he hadn't been conquered by the Italians.

Q: With the signing of the capitulation did the fighting stop?

A: Yes, completely, at least against the Greek troops?

Q: How many Armies did the Greeks have?

A: The Greeks had two armies.

Q: And what were these armies?

A: The Thracian Army and the Epirus Army.

Q: Could you make it quite clear when the Epirus Army and when the Thracian Army capitulated?

A: The Thracian Army capitulated on the 9th of April and the Epirus Army capitulated on the 21st, and again on the 23rd of April 1941.

Q: To whom did those forces capitulate, who were in action in Albania against the Italians?

A: That was the Epirus Army.

Q: And which provisions did the capitulation negotiations contain about the treatment of the Greek soldiers?

A: The Greek soldiers immediately after the cessation of fighting and after the arms had been turned in the soldiers were released.

Q: At that time did you issue an order with regard to the treatment of the Greek soldiers?

A: I issued an order to the effect that to correspond with the bravery of Greece and the Greek soldiers should also be treated in such a manner.

Q: And did any Greek forces come into the captivity of the Italians?

A: No.

Q: Why not?

A: After the Greek Army had first of all only offered the capitulation to the Germans, I wanted to save the Greeks from this. On former Greek-Italian fighting line set up German Security troops in order to prevent the Italians from going over this demarcation line until the disarming had been carried out, and the Greek troops were started on their way home.

Maybe not all of them succeeded in getting through this mountain territory. Maybe some of them remained there.

Q: And how was the sending home of the Greek soldiers carried out?

A: As far as the troops could do this the Greek soldiers were given every facility, and they were put on a baggage vehicle, which went along with the columns.

Q: And were the officers treated in the same way?

A: The officers were released with arms.

Q: When was Athens occupied?

A: Athens was occupied on the 27 April.

Q: And then how did the Peloponnesus campaign come to end?

A: I would like to repeat it all happened after the signing of the capitulation, and while the soldiers of the Greek army were already in the process of being released. Violent fightings was still going on with British troops around the Thermopylae positions. After the entry into Athens, motorized forces, Panzer divisions went via Corinthian Isthmus toward the Peloponnesus, and these forces smashed the British troops which were still there, and those who could no longer get into the ships were taken prisoner. These were the last group in the south of Peloponnesus and there were about 10,000 British.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, may I ask one more question to finish this chapter? I can be finished at once.

Q: What were the losses of the German side and the other side?

A: On both sides they were very small.

JUDGE CARTER: The Tribunal will recess until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(Whereupon at 4:30 a recess was taken)

Official Transcript of Military Tribunal V, Case VII in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 17 September 1947, 0930, Justice Wennerstrum presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshall, will you ascertain if all the defendants are present in the Court room?

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honor, all the defendants are present in the Court room.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued) WILHELM LIST BY DR. LATERNER:

Q Field Marshall, yesterday we stopped at the end of the Balkan campaign. Have you anything to add to your testimony of yesterday?

A. I think that I said a name wrongly at the end, I said that the British were taken prisoner at the south end of the Peloponnesus and I said the name of the place was Kalabakki. The name really is Kalamata.

Q. Where was your headquarters at the end of the Balkan campaign?

A. For a few days in Athens and then in a little place a few kilometers away from Athens called Kuphisia.

Q. Why didn't you remain in Athens?

A. Actually we weren't supposed to go into Athens at all because at that time Hitler wanted to reserve Athens for the Italians.

Q. What were your tasks at this time? That is, at the end of the Balkan campaign?

A. At the end of the Balkan campaign, my main task was the security against attack, against unrest. In addition, supply for the transports, securing of communication services and transport system.

Q. And what was the situation at that time in Greece?

A. The situation in Greece was at that time completely peaceful.

Q. Which troops were at your command for the execution of the occupation?

A. At the beginning of the occupation, I still had those troops left over from the campaign. These troops were slowly drawn out and taken away from Greece and that part which finally I wouldn't say finally but for the next period were to remain in Greece.

Q. And what remained to you when the forces were withdrawn?

A. When the forces were withdrawn, the general command 18th Mountain Corps remained and the two Mountain Divisions, the 164th Division, Infantry Regiment 125, and at the beginning, parts of the 5th Panzer Division and then some security forces.

Q. I have here in this chart which we already submitted yesterday to the Tribunal for information, that is chart LI-150 which I will submit to you to look at. It is the second chart, your Honors.

Is this chart correct?

A. Yes, it is correct.

Q. And what does it portray?

A. It portrays the command at that time and the troops and the command authorities which were at that time subordinated to me.

Q. What do you mean by "at that time"?

A. By "that time" I mean the period after the end of the Balkan campaign when the occupation started. At the end of the fighting, after which the other general commanders had already been withdrawn from the Greek area.

Q. When, approximately, did this situation arise--only approximately?

A. Well, this happened during May.

Q. The forces available at that time -- were they sufficient for the execution of the occupation?

A. These forces were sufficient at that time because, of course, as was natural for a campaign, one needs so many more forces as long as the enemy forces were still undefeated. When one saw that the enemy was peaceful at that time in Greece, then these forces were sufficient for the occupation, for the security and to maintain peace and order.

Q. May I have the chart back?

Which order was issued at that time?

A. Then the order came, Order No. 29.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, this is Exhibit No. 9 in English Document Book No. 1, page 33 - 37, in the German Document Book 1, page 24.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you kindly repeat that again, Doctor?

DR. LATERNSEER: I am now referring to Exhibit No. 9. This is in English Document Book No. 1, pages 33 to 37. Might I point out, your Honors, that during the examination of Field Marshal List, I will refer frequently to Document Book I to V and No. XXIV.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. Field Marshal, have you looked at Exhibit No. 9?

A. Yes.

Q. According to this order, who was responsible for the security of the country?

A. According to this order, the security in the Greek zone was the responsibility of the Italians.

Q. What was the relation to the Italian offices?

A. The relation to the Italian offices was -- as it is usually between allies -- correct, with the Italian Commander in Chief at that time I had a rather loose but comradely relationship and the mutual meetings were relatively few.

Q. And was there relation of subordination between the German troops and the Italian officers?

A. No, not at all.

Q. Which area of Greece was occupied by the German troops?

A. The German troops occupied an area around Salonika, and around the port of Piraeus with its district and a few islands. Later on, Crete was added. At this time, this wasn't yet in the hands of the Germans.

Q. And which area was occupied by the Italians?

A. The Italians occupied the rest of Greece.

Q. And who occupied Athens?

A. For troop billeting, Athens was not to be used by us.

Q. Field Marshal, I asked you who occupied Athens?

A. The Italians. Also for the German offices a German local command was set up there.

Q. Were no German troops in Athens?

A. No, no troops.

Q. What was in Athens?

A. There were a number of staffs in Athens and at that time they became more and more.

Q. What about the subordination of the Air Force, under your command.

A. The Air Force had to carry out the operational war, independently and according to the immediate orders they were direct orders of the Commander-in-chief of the Luftwaffe to whom they were subordinate.

Q. And what about the navy?

A. The navy was in a similar position and the coastal defenses, too, was to be a matter for the navy.

Q. Did AOK-12 have anything to do with the military administration?

A. No.

Q. To whom was this subordinate?

A. The Military Administration in the Greek zone was subordinate to the Italians, and the order went so far that I was instructed to refuse any mediation activities by the Greeks.

Q. When you speak about orders, do you mean Exhibit No. 9?

A. Yes, Exhibit No. 9.

Q. At that time what was your relation to the Commander of Serbia?

A. The Military Commander of Serbia was at that time quite independent and was subordinate directly to the Commander-in-Chief of the Army.

Q. Then you had no official connection with him?

Page 3,182

A. No.

Q. One last question with regard to Exhibit No. 9. Did this order which is contained in Exhibit 9 change anything in your position which you had during the Balkan campaign?

A. As Commander-in-Chief of the Army, no.

Q. And what about the island of Crete at that time?

A. The island of Crete was at that time not conquered.

Q. And when it was captured?

A. When it was captured, it remained first of all under the Air Force. The Air Force had to carry out independently the operation of capturing Crete.

Q. When, approximately, was the capture of Crete?

A. In the last day of May as far as I remember.

Q. Then it was like this at that period? You had neither Serbia nor southern Greece nor Crete -- these three places were not subordinate to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long did this situation remain so?

A. This situation remained like this until the next order from the fuehrer. This was fuehrer order No. 31 in which the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast was created.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, we will now refer to Exhibit No. 15. This is in English Document Book No. 1, page 55 to 59, and in the German document book I, page 38 to 43.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. Field Marshal, why were these titles mentioned here? What were you named in this order?

A. I was appointed Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

Q. Did you remain Commander-in-Chief of the 12 Army.

MR. DENNEY: I believe what was asked was what was he named in this order, and I believe that the witness replied "Wehrmachts befehlshaber Suedost" and it was translated by the interpreter as Field Marshal Commander Southeast, which is not the proper translation.

DR. LATERNSEER: May I ask how it was translated?

THE INTERPRETER: It was translated Wehrmacht Commander Southeast.

THE PRESIDENT: Does that clarify the situation?

DR. LATERNSE: I think so, yes.

Q. Did you remain commander in chief of the 10th Army?

A. Yes.

Q. Which powers did you receive through this appointment as Wehrmacht commander Southeast, quite generally?

A. The chief powers --- the most important task was the unified defense of that part of Serbia occupied by the German troops and also that part of Greece occupied by the German troops, including the Greek island, against attacks and unrest. In addition, the security of supply and transport.

Q. Field Marshall intermediate question. Since this contained in the order, please only state quite briefly what the tasks were at that time because the text of the order is in front of the Tribunal.

A. The chief tasks I have already stated.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, I think it is apparent that the witness is reading from the document. The document is in evidence. He is being asked what his duties were. There is no objection to his refreshing his recollection from the document, but I certainly object to his reading the document into the record.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, before this objection was raised, I had already pointed this out to the witness for these simple matters usually knows by heart.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled. The witness however should keep in mind the suggestion made by his counsel.

Q. (By Dr. Laternse) Field Marshal, I had asked you which were the chief tasks, generally speaking according to this order?

A. Shall I repeat?

Q. Quite briefly, yes.

MR DENNEY: As I understand the translation with reference to the question about military administration, first the interpreter said no and then said yes. I would like to have it clear in the record.

THE PRESIDENT: Counsel will kindly put the question again and the translation and interpreters will then give a further and in their judgment a correct interpretation.

DR. LATERNSE: Yes Mr. President.

Q. (By Dr. Laternser) Through this order did you receive the supervision over the military administration?

A. Yes.

Q. Which authority did you receive in addition to that?

A. The executive power.

Q. And what does executive power mean?

A. The maintenance of peace and of security and order

Q. Which areas were subordinate to you in this respect?

A. With Fuehrer order number 31, in addition to those areas which were already under my command in Greece, I received new areas, the Serbian area and Crete.

Q. Did you execute the executive powers yourself?

A. They were transferred to other offices and these were the military commander and or commanders.

Q. Which offices do you mean by this?

A. By this I mean the commander of Serbia, commander of Salonika Aegean and the commander South Greece.

Q. What about Crete?

A. Crete was subordinate to its own commandant who had executive powers under orders from the commander South Greece.

Q. And who was commandant of Crete at that time?

A. This was General Andrae.

Q. Did you have anything to do with him?

A. Relatively little.

Q. When, for instance?

A. He came perhaps once or twice directly to me in order to tell me what was going on. On one of these occasions he also came with a teletype from Goering who demanded very strict measures against the population of Crete. After Goering was not actually empowered to intervene and there was no longer a necessity, this order was not carried out but at that time a general amnesty was made in Crete.

Q. When was that approximately, only if you know?

A. That was end of August, beginning of September.

Q. 1941?

A. 1941.

Q. And to whom were you subordinate in your capacity as Wehrmacht commander Southeast?

A. Directly to Hitler.

Q. I will now show you another chart which I would ask you to look at. Your Honor, this is the third photostat, on which you can see on the right margin, Li-151. Is this correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you anything to add to these subordinations here, apart from what you have already told us?

A. Yes, According to order number 31, the commander in Serbia was directly subordinate to me and I had to carry out supervision of the administration. In this Fuehrer order this was stated. The general quartermaster of the OKH was of the opinion that the administration in Serbia should also continue to be directed by him. The Fuehrer order as such could not be altered. A certain appercation was therefore given in the executive provisions of the Fuehrer order.

Q. Field Marshal, I am coming to this later on. Does this chart show the relations of the offices correctly, as they were there at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Which non offices existed in addition to yours on the Balkans?

A. The plenipotentiary of the Reich.

Q. And what was his job?

A. He had to deal with cultural, political and economic questions.

Q. And what about the Luftwaffe and the Navy at that time?

A. The Luftwaffe and the Navy were subordinate to me. The operational air war was also excepted here in this case. Both offices tried, how ever, to remain as independent as possible.

Q. Through which office were the administration affairs supposed to be managed?

A. The direction of the administration affairs as supposed to be directed by the OKH, general quartermaster.

Q. In addition to this order were you given any other orders about this either written or oral?

A. After the Fuehrer order was already finished I was called to Berkin where Brauchitsch told me about the new instillation of the Wehrmacht commander. On this occasion I also spoke to the quartermaster general and he said that the administration also in the future must be directed by the quartermaster general and he added, "We will do that all right."

Q. And what other offices were in the Balkans?

A. There were the Navy offices, the Air Force offices, the offices of the Four Year Plan and a large number of other staffs who were outside my control.

Q. From whom did these offices receive their orders?

A. From their superior Reich Offices.

Q. And at that time what was the relation of the commander of Serbia to the offices of the OKH and/or OKW?

A. The Commander of Serbia received, with regard to administrative affair, direct orders from the quartermaster general and in police matters through the Reichs Fuehrer SS Himmler, and in matters of Four Year Plan, through Goering.

Q. And how did the official channel work?

A. The official channel went directly from Berlin to Belgrade. This had to be so partly because of the difficult communication which existed between Athens and Belgrade.

Q. How should the official channel have gone at that time of which I am speaking?

A. If the Fuehrer order had been strickly kept to, them the official channels should have gone through me.

Q. And was it frequently not adhered to?

A. I didn't know. In matters, for instance, of the Reichsfuehrer SS certainly didn't know because I never had anything to do with the Reichsfuehrer SS.

Q. What is the explanation of the fact that the conditions could not be brought into line with order number 31?

A. This can be explained by the fact that the conditions had already existed which were set down by Fuehrer order number 29, and also through the desire of the quartermaster general to keep the administration of the occupied territories in his hands.

Q. What was the relation between your office and that of the German happenings General in Zagreb?

A. Very loose. The General informed me about events, about individual happenings as a neighbor tells one about what happen in his hourse.

Q. Was the German General in Zabreb subordinate to you?

A. Not at all.

Q. At which time did Fuehrer order number 31 came into force, this order which is contained in exhibit number 16 and is dated the 9 of June, 1941?

A. This Fuehrer order was supplemented by the executive directions---just a moment.

Q. The executive provisions are contained on page 60 to 62 of the English document book 1 and bear the exhibit number 16. Please continue.

A. These executive regulations came into force on the 20th of June, arrived at the Wehrmacht commander Southeast on the 20 of June, and with them the Fuehrer order of the 6th September---of the 9th June. I myself arrived on the 23d of June, 1941, back from Berlin to Athens and on this day our authority from the Wehrmacht commander Southeast about the institution of Wehrmacht commander Southeast was issued.

Q. So that you, Field Marshal, if I can summarize, received territorial authority in the Balkans on the 23d of June, 1941?

A. Yes.

Q. We will now first turn to Greece. At the end of June, 1941 what was the situation in Greece?

A. The situation in Greece at the end of June, 1941 was quiet.

Q. What are the relations of the German troops toward the population?

A. The relations of the Germans troops towards the population was good. One could say friendly, and in some cases very friendly.

Q. Did you issue any orders about the relations of the troops towards the population?

A. I certainly issued orders of the day and in the order after the capitulation I pointed out to the troops that they should treat the Greek soldiers in accordance with their gallant behavior and furthermore pamphlets were distributed about the behavior toward the civilian population.

Pamphlets were distributed regarding the respect due to this ancient culture.

Q. What was the feeling of the German soldiers towards the civilian population?

A. There was a wide feeling of sympathy.

Q. And how did this arise?

A. This arose from the fact of the preference of the German for this whole humanistic Greek civilization and there were also through many Greeks studying in Southern Germany close relations between them; especially the Southern Germans and the Bavarians had special sympathies. The first King of Greece was the son of the Bavarian King. The town of Athens shows many signs of a well known Bavarian architect and until the world war, young Greeks were brought up in the Bavarian cadet corps and received Bavarian nationality and became Bavarian officers.

Q. Did you ever meet such an officer?

A. Yes, a close comrade of mine.

Q. And how can the good mutual relations be explained further?

A. It can be traced back to the fact that the Greek population was happy that the war was ended for them, and further they were grateful for the fact that the soldiers were released at once home.

Q. During the fighting were there damages caused in Greece?

A. No.

Q. What about Athens and Salonika for instance?

A. In Athens there was no damage at all in the town that could be seen from the films we saw. Damage occurred in the harbor area of place through attacks on British transports. Salonika received no damage at all in the entry. The town was captured without a fight and also before it was not bombarded.

Q. What other signs were there of good relations?

A. By the friendly way in which the troops were received in their billets.

Q. A witness has already testified to this here, but I don't want to put a leading question, what about the hanging out of flags?

A. The Greeks would have been very grateful for the fact that I said to the Greek Minister President after we had taken over the Government, I don't want the German flag to fly over the Government building and I gave him permission from the 4th of May onwards to fly the Greek flag over the castle. In addition for the grave of the unknown soldier which was in the main square of Athens immediately in front of the castle a permanent guard was posted consisting of a Mountain Rifleman and a Greek soldier with guns, together.

Q. Field Marshall, have you any confirmation for this good relation from the other side?

A. When I was a prisoner of war I met a later finance minister.

Q. From which Government?

A. From the Greek Government, and as he told me he took up office with the consent of the exile government and he too confirmed to me that there was completely friendly agreement between the German soldiers and Greek population.

Q. When was he finance minister?

A. I don't remember the date exactly. He must have been Finance Minister in 1943/44. I don't want to state his name here. I know that it might harm him.

Q. Did you have any other confirmations?

A. Yes.

Q. From whom?

A. The Royal Hungarian Ambassador at the Government in Athens.

Q. Who was that?

A. Freiherr von Welisch. He wrote to me after I was already back home a letter in which he specially assured me that he had spoken to a number of Greeks and was speaking to a number of Greeks and that they had never criticized my behavior at all and that many, however, had spoken of me with respect, even reverence.

Q. Where is Welisch now?

A. Von Welisch - I don't know where he is now. When the Jewish laws were introduced into Hungary he went to Cairo. He was mentioned by the last witness who testified here.

BY JUDGE BURKE:

Q. I would like the balance of that translation.

DR. LABERNER: Should the answer be repeated?

A. Freiherr von Welisch went to Cairo at a time when in Hungary the Jewish laws were introduced.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. Then you said something about a Greek witness?

A. The last Greek witness, a Professor who was here on the witness stand, named Freiherr von Welisch in a certain matter as source of information.

MR. DENNEY: Will the Interpreter pull the light when the answer is not finished. Dr. Laternser has no way of knowing. That is what the lights are for.

THE PRESIDENT: Will the suggestion made kindly be carried out. I believe it will be helpful to the Tribunal and all concerned. If there is any hesitancy on the part of the interpreters don't hesitate to put on the light. We are all human and we can't do the impossible and don't hesitate to stop the witness.

DR. LATERNSEER: Has everything now been translated?

THE INTERPRETOR: The last word was, "The Greek witness in the stand mentioned Freiherr von Welisch as a man who could be used as a source of information.

DR. LATERNSEER: The witness just said that the last Greek witness had named Freiherr von Welisch as a reliable source of information who could be used.

THE INTERPRETOR: Yes.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. When you talk about the last Greek witness, do you mean the professor of course.

A. Yes.

Q. At that time to whom else did you have connections?

A. With the Ambassador from the Holy See, Arch Bishop Roncelli.

Q. Did you often meet him?

A. He was my guest a few times. He also visited me while I was ill in the hospital and this was still in November 1941.

Q. Did he complain about anything?

A. No, with my permission he visited hospitals in which British soldiers were and he reported to me about this visit in a very satisfactory manner.

Q. Did the Ambassador at the Holy See have an opportunity to complain to you about anything, in view of the relations between you?

A. Yes, he had this possibility.

Q. What was life like after the occupation, for instance in Salonika and Athens?

A. Shortly after the occupation life in Athens and in Salonika took on a normal course. The trams started up; the shops and cafes were opened; and in Athens and Salonika we issued the approval of free use of telephone communication; also throughout Greece and in the Islands, and there that wasn't possible, for this communication with the islands was made available at certain hours.

Q. Have you yourself a personal impression, for instance, about business life?

A. Yes, in going through the town a few times I made several individual purchases.

Q. For instance were the Jewish businesses open?

A. Yes.

Q. Were any measures taken against the Jewish population?

A. No, individual officers of my staff had connections with Jewish business people and a number of officers, especially in Salonika, lived with Jews.

Q. Later on did the relation between the Jews and Greek population change?

A Relations changed by the fact that the Italians took over the occupation.

Q What is the explanation of the worsening of the relations?

A The Greeks understood that we occupied the country after the Greek Army had been beaten by us. In addition they offered capitulation to us and therefore they found it very painful that the larger part of Greece was given over for occupation by the Italians. A Greek General once said that, "you Germans have conquered us; this is an honor for us; but the fact that you have let the Italians into the country, we will never forgive you this."

Q At that time was there a strong worsening of the relations between the German troops and the population?

A At the beginning, no. Gradually of course a certain stiffening came on.

Q Did you on your trips have any kind of protection in Greece?

A As long as I was in office I went around in my own car throughout Greece without protection.

Q What about the food situation when you were in Greece?

A The food situation during the course of the summer became more tense. In these months there couldn't be seen so very much because at this time Greece still had a large amount of fruit. In late summer, as far as I can remember, there was a shortage, especially of bread.

Q At that time could there be any talk of famine?

A No.

Q Who was responsible for the supply?

A The supply for the Greek area was the responsibility of the Italians.

Q And what did the Germans have to do?

A On the part of the Germans the Plenipotentiary of the Reich endeavoured to increase the food imports and I made the same requests through my official channels.

Q Then what happened, what was the result?

A The result was that food deliveries, food transports, especially flour, arrived.

Q Where from?

A From Germany. It didn't come to the places where it should have gone because transport was so difficult.

Q And how did these difficulties arise?

A The difficulties lay in the fact of the destruction of the only railway line between Salonika and Athens, especially in the destruction of a very difficult viaduct.

Q Destruction by whom?

A Destruction by the British on their retreat.

Q Which viaduct was this?

A That was the so-called Pralo Bridge near Thermopylae. And there were also difficulties caused by the fact that the sea transports from Salonika to Athens was frequently interrupted by British submarines.

Q Were there any sinkings?

A. Yes. I remember myself two, one of these sinkings is mentioned in one of the documents here, the sinking of the ship "Gotial", in the first days of November, this ship having flour from Germany on board.

Q Can these difficulties be traced back alone to transport difficulties?

A No, Greece always had to rely on imports.

Q And what about the stocks.

A Stocks at that time, when we came to Greece, were very small.

Q How do you know that?

A During the first trial here in Nurnberg I read a memorandum from the Greek government which stated that the Germans upon their entry into Greece already found an exhausted country.

Q Were there further sources set up for the improvement of the food situation?

A Yes, at that time we allowed fishing on a large scale.

Q Did this cause any complications?

A Yes, it caused complications because various offices objected to this, the enemy intelligence service having thus the possibility to aid people in their attempts to escape.

Q But nevertheless was it carried out?

A Yes, it was carried out.

Q Now about this food question, did military offices also provide food for the Greek population?

A From the Army directly, especially at the beginning food stocks were given up and meals were provided.

Q While you were in Greece what was done in the cultural sphere?

A In the staff had a lecturer whose job it was to insure that if now fortifications or airfields were set up ancient monuments were not destroyed or damaged.

Q Could you give an example for this?

A I can't exactly give an example for the protection of an old cultural monument but another example. By order of the Commander in Chief of the Air Force a new airfield had to be established near Athens. As the terrain was very mountainous, this was the only place that came into the question, but this would have meant that a settlement had to be partly evacuated and also had to be destroyed partly, therefore at that time an objection was made to me and I personally found out what the situation was, and as there was no other possibility we decided to consider the interests of the Greek population as far as it was possible. We did this by avoiding i.e. getting around the security provisions of the Commander in Chief of the Luftwaffe. And so we disregarded security of the occupation in order to help the population.

Q. What was the result?

A The result was that part of this settlement remained standing.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take our morning recess at this time.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q I have some further questions regarding Greece. Apart from Italians and Germans, were there any other troops in Greece?

A Bulgarians.

Q How did the Bulgarians behave towards the Greeks?

A In some places they treated them pretty roughly.

Q How did you get to know of that?

A By complaints on the part of the Greek government.

Q What did you do after receiving these complaints?

A I repeatedly asked the Bulgarian liaison officer to come to see me, General Chilkov, and I talked to him and told him very urgently that he should advise his officers to make the troops stop this kind of behavior.

Q Did these complaints to the Bulgarian authorities have any success?

A I must assume that because I did get no more complaints.

Q The prosecution has submitted Document 071-PS as Exhibit 4. Your Honors, it is on page 8 to 10 of Document Book I, the English Document Book I, and on page 6 to 10 of the German Document Book I. It is the disputed Rosenberg letter. Did you know Rosenberg personally?

A Yes.

Q When and where did you got to know him?

A I cannot recall the occasion in detail. I made his acquaintance on an official or public occasion. That was the only time that I met him and without my discussing anything with him. It may have been around about 1934.

Q And after that, you did not speak to him again?

A I never met him again.

Q What is your opinion regarding this letter, namely Exhibit 4?

A Well, that is a letter, a private letter, from Rosenberg to Bormann. I had no influence on what he wrote. He gives his own opinion. If he talks of his agencies in Belgrade being active with my permission, that is not correct because at that time I had no authority to give any orders in Belgrade. Belgrade was not subordinate to me. He further states that his special task command could also be employed in Salonika.

Q In Exhibit 10, which is on page 38 and 39 of the English Document Book I and on page 27 of the German Document Book I, there is an order of the AOK 12, Ic, of the 19th of April, according to this order a special task command of Rosenberg's was to confiscate material which was directed against the German Reich. I am now asking you, did you know anything of this order?

A No.

Q As leader of the special task command, a Lieutenant von Ingram is being mentioned. Did you know this lieutenant?

A Lieutenant von Ingram means nothing to me today but I remember vaguely to have received a lieutenant in Salonika who had received the Knight's Cross during the western campaign. At that time, that was a very exceptional case and was either told over the telephone by the chief, i.e. by the Ia or by the Ic, that this lieutenant would report to me.

Q. What did you tell him?

A. I received his report. He probably reported to me that he had an order to look up these archives. I pointed out to him that I expected that this would be done in the correct form and manner and that nothing would happen.

Q. Why did you tell him that?

A. Because I had a certain suspicion, certain distrust against everything coming from that side.

Q. But after all, he was a lieutenant, wasn't he?

A. He wore the uniform. He was an officer of the Reserve. I expect, but nevertheless he remained in this case of Rosenberg's employee.

Q. Was the special task commando Rosenberg subordinate to the Army?

A. No.

Q. What was its relationship to the Army?

A. As I now see from this document and from another document as well, it was provisioned and paid.

Q. What do you mean by being provisioned and paid?

A. That meant that he was entitled to get quarters and food in the area of the Army.

Q. Can a provisioned and paid command be given orders?

A. No.

Q. Did you know in detail what the extent of the activities of this command was?

A. No.

Q. From Exhibit 130 -- this is in the English document book 5 as a supplement after page 150 and in the German document book 5 on page 98--A.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you kindly repeat, Dr. Laternser?

DR. LATERNSE: It is in volume 5 of the English document book as a supplement after page 150, and it is exhibit 130.

Q. (By Dr. Laternser cont'd) From this exhibit we see that the Rosenberg command would start the Jewish action in Salonika. Was this reported to you?

A. No.

Q. What is the date of the this report?

A. The report is of the 29th of July.

Q. Where were you on that date?

A. From the 21st of July onwards I was absent from the High Command. On the 29th of July I was on leave.

Q. Did you know whether, during your time of activity on the Balkans, offices of the Security Service were subordinate to you? No, I correct myself - whether at that time there were any offices of the Security Service in the Balkans at all?

A. No.

Q. Were any offices of the Security Service subordinate to you at that time?

A. No.

Q. We now turn to the Serbian area. At the end of June, 1941 the commander Serbia was subordinate to you as you told us. First of all, a preliminary question. How was Serbia occupied at that time?

A. In Serbia these were at that time Security divisions, divisions of the 15th wave.

Q. Apart from German troops were any others present?

A. The southern part of Bulgaria, south Macedonia, was occupied by Bulgarians.

Q. I don't know whether I understood you correctly. Did you say in the southern part of Serbia or the southern part of Bulgaria?

A. I mean the same thing. I am sorry, the southern part of Serbia, the southern part of Macedonia I wanted to say, was occupied by Bulgarians.

Q. Now, what was the situation at the end of June of 1941 in Serbia?

A. With the start of the campaign in Russia we found that a lot of propaganda became noticeable, by wireless, posters, which both had their effect and which resulted in acts of sabotage especially as regards lines of communications and attacks on members of the armed forces.

Q. Who instigated these things at that time?

A. They were instigated first of all by Moscow through a liaison office, the Russian delegation in Sofia.

Q. How do you know that?

A. These reports came to us through the IC channel.

Q. What did you do when this situation became aggravated?

A. First of all we tried to explain things to the population by propaganda, and of course, we took severe steps against the sabotage acts over the local commanders.

Q. Did you ask for more troops?

A. As soon as I saw that this movement grew we appealed to the High Command of the Armed Forces to let us have troops in Serbia, especially more mobile and more effective troops than those we had at the spot.

Q. What were the disadvantages of the troops on the spot in Serbia?

A. The troops in Serbia were exclusively made up for the occupational tasks in a quiet and pacified country. The divisions only had two regiments, very little artillery, a very meagre state of training. The troops were older people, usually married. The officers were usually former officers who had not been retrained.

Q. How often approximately speaking did you ask for new troops?

A. IT is very difficult to give you any numbers.

Q. Then please give us an estimate.

A. I took every opportunity that offered itself to me to ask the OK W for troops.

Q Did your appeals meet with any success?

A No.

Q As an emergency measure were any troops being sent to Serbia?

A Temporarily we had an air force training school being transferred to the Serbian area.

Q You say temporarily; how long did it remain in the Serbian area?

A I cannot recall that in detail. As far as I remember, it can't have been more than a couple of weeks.

Q When did you receive a personal impression for the first time regarding the situation in Serbia?

A The first personal impression I got during a trip at the end of July, 1941.

Q What kind of trip was that?

AA trip which I took for the purpose of visiting troops and in order to visit the commanders there, especially the commanding general, and make their acquaintance and to meet the military commander Serbia.

Q Who was the military commander Serbia at that time?

A The commander Serbia at that time was general of the air force Schroeder.

Q Where was he at the time of your visit?

AAAt the time of my visit he was in the military hospital in Belgrade. I had intended to visit him earlier but I had to postpone my visit until the state of health of General Schroeder had become such that I could see him in Belgrade.

Q Where did you go first?

A First of all I traveled to Nish.

Q With whom did you talk there?

A In Nish I talked to one of the divisional commanders or with General Bader, the commanding general of the 65th corps, who at the same time was present there as deputy of the commander Serbia.

Q What did General Bader report to you regarding the situation in Serbia?

A I cannot recall this in detail. The overall impression I had was that at different places insurgent movements became noticeable. Frequently sabotage acts took place and similar things.

Q What was the further course of your journey?

A The continuation of the trip from Nish to Belgrade which had been intended by railroad was not possible because the line, the tracks, had been cut by insurgents in the meantime. For that reason I had to fly from Nish to Belgrade.

Q On the occasion of your stay in Nish did you give any orders for the combatting of bandits?

A Individual orders I did not give. I very likely spoke to the commanders about these matters.

Q When was your inspection trip concluded?

A On the 23rd, of July, 1941.

Q And where did you go after the conclusion of this trip?

A I went to Vienna and Partenkirchen on leave.

Q When did you return from this leave?

A I returned on the 23rd of August.

Q So that from the 23rd of July to the 23rd of August, 1941, you were on leave?

A Yes.

Q As you know, the so-called terror order in which the OKW ordered the pacification of occupied countries by terror measures is dated from the 23d of July, 1941. It is exhibit number 25 and it is in the English document book 1 on page 86 and in the German document book on pages 62 to 66. Your Honor, I would like to use this opportunity to draw the attention of the Court to the following fact. The Tribunal will remember that at the time this exhibit was submitted I objected, but this objection on my part was overruled at that time and I referred without that I want now to touch the ruling of the Court now, I referred at that time to points 1 to 5 for justifying my objection and in the meantime I have found out the following, and I only want to draw the attention of the Court to this.

In the German document book the whole order is given, consisting of six paragraphs, whereas in the English document book on page 86 only paragraph number 6 is given, in spite of the fact that in the paragraphs 1 to 5 it is shown quite decisively that this was an order which was and could only be valid for the east. And I only to this did I want to draw the Court's attention, i.e. the fact that in the English document book 5 essential points, points essential for the judgment regarding this order, have been left out and only this one point is given, which is kept in more general terms, but which can only be correctly understood in connection with the five preceding paragraphs. Therefore I shall take the liberty to submit the entire order to the Court in my document book.

As you know, Field Marshal, this order, exhibit 25, bears the date of the 23d of July, 1941. Where were you on that date?

A I was in Belgrade and on the same day I took the train from Belgrade to Vienna.

Q Do you remember whether this order was submitted to you after you returned from your leave?

A No.

Q Did you ever hear whether this order was distributed in the southeast?

A No.

Q Now we come to the time after you returned from your leave. That is the end of August, 1941. What was the partisan situation at that time?

A After my return I found that the situation had been considerably aggravated.

Q Where did you hear of that for the first time?

A I heard of this for the first time when I arrived in Belgrade on the 23rd of August, 1941.

Q With whom did you discuss the situation?

A I then talked about the situation with General Danckelmann, General Bader, with the chiefs of staff of both these generals, and also probably with other officers whose names I cannot remember in detail.

Q What was the result?

A I may add that General Danckelmann was the successor of General Schroeder. General Schroeder had suffered a relapse in his state of health and he died shortly afterwards.

Q General Danckelmann was the successor of General Schroeder in which capacity?

A He was successor of the Commander Serbia.

Q Now you were mentioning discussions. What was the result of these discussions and conferences?

A The result was that as regards essentials one tried to take from the existing forces people who could be formed into pursuit commands, that is to say, those men who had been trained in a better way were to be employed in more mobile formations in order to be sent speedily to those spots where they were required.

Q How did you yourself at that time view the situation in Serbia?

A I looked upon the situation as a very serious one.

Q At that time attempts were also made to bring the Serbian population to their senses?

A Yes.

Q By what means?

A By means of radio propaganda, and we also used for this purpose the Serbian government.

Q Who was the Chief of the Serbian Government at that time?

AA At that time I believe there was still a Provisional Government.

Q And a little bit later on?

AA short time afterwards we had the government of Nedic.

Q What did Nedic do?

A He issued a couple of decrees; he also personally made a speech on the wireless for the pacification and enlightenment of the population.

Q We have proceeded too quickly as to time. We are still at the end of august and I would like to ask you where was that area where the greatest amount of insurgent activity took place at that time?

A Roughly speaking in the neighborhood southwest of Belgrade.

Q Could you define it a bit more accurately and perhaps give us some names of localities so that it may become a bit clearer to us.

A Krupanj and Valjevo.

Q What for instance had happened in Krupanj?

A In Krupanj a local guard post had been attacked by communists, one office post and a couple of men had been killed, and the rest of the guard post had been captured. Apart from that other companies had been encircled in Krupanj and partly they had been destroyed.

DR. LATERNSE: May I draw the attention of the court to the fact that this incident of Krupanj is mentioned in Exhibit 94 -- I beg your pardon -- it is exhibit 94 in the German Document Book III, page 43. I'm sorry, your Honor, I cannot give you the English numbers. I am very sorry but I will do this after the recess. I have omitted to ascertain these figures.

THE PRESIDENT: It is Exhibit 55 I am told. Exhibit 94?

DR. LATERNSE: Yes, it is Exhibit 94. I shall give the number of the page immediately after the noon recess.

THE PRESIDENT: Page 55.

DR. LATERNSE: Thank you very much your Honor. The Prosecution has now submitted the teletype of the 4th of September, Exhibit 41, which is in the English Document Book II, page 21 to 22, and which can be found in the German Document Book II on pages 19 to 20.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q For what reason did you at that time demand that a judgment was given on the general situation under figure 1?

A I had the impression that I was insufficiently informed by the Commander Serbia. Now here we had the formation of the government of Nedic and regarding the formation of this government I was not informed, neither about the actual happenings nor about the actual formation. I was only told a couple of days later about what had happened.

At the same time the Serbian Gendarmerie was supplied with weapons and this fact I had learned from a newspaper.

Q Those were the reasons for making the request under figure 1 in this teletype?

A Yes.

Q The Prosecution charges you in regard to this teletype to have ordered most severe measures. What was meant by that?

A Up to then the troops were used to comparatively peaceful ideas with regard to the population and had frequently failed to grasp the seriousness of the situation. The troops had not yet recognized that they had to deal with a very insidious enemy. They had acceded to negotiations and had been made a fool of and in parts they had been captured and it was necessary for this reason to tell the troops that this enemy who now appeared could only be fought by really military actions.

Q What kind of severest measures did you mean by that?

A I meant by that the troops should use those weapons they had at their disposal.

Q Why in this teletype did you issue a prohibition to negotiate with the insurgents?

A These negotiations had led to a state of affairs where whole units had been rendered ineffective as far as fighting was concerned. That in good faith believing that negotiations were to be conducted -

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, witness. We will take our noon recess at this time.

(A recess was taken.)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours)

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser, before you continue your examination the Tribunal wishes to make a statement in connection with your comments which were made yesterday afternoon.

In reply to the inquiry of counsel for the defense concerning the procedure to be followed by them in adducing evidence in support of their case following the delay of the prosecution in procuring the documentary evidence required by the order of the Tribunal under date of August 14, 1947, the prosecution having indicated its intention to comply with alternative (b) of said order, the Tribunal states:

(a) That defendants may adduce any and all evidence, documentary or oral in the order it deems advisable without being required to rest his or their case prior to the examination of said documentary evidence:

(b) That defendants after completion of their oral evidence may be withdrawn from the witness stand without being-cross-examined until opportunity to examine the documentary evidence referred to in the order of August 14, 1947 is afforded:

(c) That if such order of August 14, 1947, be not complied with at such a time as not to prejudice the rights of these defendants, the situation will be handled by a supplemental order of the Tribunal.

That is the statement that the Tribunal wishes to make in connection with the comments made by Dr. Laternser.

DR. SAUTER: (for defendants von Geitner and Lanz): Your Honor, since the presentation of evidence for the defense is now taking place, I would like to make a request about a point which is rather unclear to me. This is the question if after the presentation of evidence the defense is only to submit pleas, or if ever defense counsel should also submit a closing brief for his client. I am referring to this question, because the former practice has varied in previous trials. In the International Tribunal, for instance, it was the rule that we had to submit a plea - but not a closing brief.

At that time, however, the Prosecution submitted closing briefs, but we didn't see them. We defense counsel, therefore, at that time limited ourselves to pleas which we submitted orally. In the next trial, the Doctors' trial, the Tribunal asked that we should submit a detailed closing brief which was not to be read, and that in addition to the closing brief we had to submit a plea which summarized the evidence. This plea had to be submitted during the proceedings. In these days now another trial is coming toward its end, the trial against Pohl and the SS, and in this trial the Tribunal took the opposite point of view. The Tribunal ruled a few days ago in this Pohl trial that the defense counsel were only to present pleas and not closing briefs. The President stated that the Tribunal doesn't want to have so much to read. That is exactly contrary to what happened in the Doctors' trial.

Now, I think it would be expedient if the defense counsel were told, by the Tribunal, as soon as possible, how this Tribunal will rule in this matter, because if we know that in addition to the plea we also have to submit a closing brief, then during the presentation of evidence for the defendants we can prepare ourselves for this, and if this Tribunal does not require a closing brief then we don't need to do this, and then we can direct our attention mainly to the plea. I think that it would be expedient if the Tribunal would clarify this question as soon as possible, so that we can conduct ourselves accordingly.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal has not heretofore given consideration to the matter you have referred to, Dr. Sauter, but we shall discuss it in chambers and then advise you here at some session of the Tribunal. You may be sure that this matter will be brought back to your attention as quickly as possible.

May I inquire, Dr. Sauter, as to whether or not you know what the wish of all the defense counsel are?

DR. SAUTER: I am afraid I don't know. I have only spoken for myself, because I personally want to know the opinion of the Tribunal as soon as possible, because in our further work we must abide by this.

Your Honor, it would perhaps also be desirable if we could have clarity on another point as well, so that later on the proceedings will not be delayed. This is the question of whether the Tribunal intends at the end of the presentation for the defense to have a recess, so that the work of the defense for the pleas and the closing briefs can be prepared or not, because if such a recess is not intended then of course we must start our preparations for the pleas and the closing briefs and speed them up. Perhaps it would be expedient if the Tribunal would also clarify this question and would tell the defense counsel their attitude.

THE PRESIDENT: We will give consideration to that question, also, Dr. Sauter.

DR. SAUTER: Thank you.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, with regard to this matter I would like to state in my capacity as defense counsel for Field Marshal List and von Reichs, and also in my capacity as spokesman for the defense, I would like to make a statement on this point before a decision is reached. After I have spoken with all the other defense counsel I would like to tell the Tribunal the attitude of the defense.

THE PRESIDENT: You may do so, Dr. Laternse, at some later session of the Tribunal.

DR. LATERNSE: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed with the examination.

WILHELM LIST - Resumed DIRECT EXAMINATION (continued) BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. Herr Field Marshal, before the recess we were talking about Exhibit 41 contained in the English Document Book II, pages 21-22. I asked you, and I think you didn't quite finish the answer to this question, what most severe measures you meant under figure 2 of this order.

A. I meant by this the use of all means available within a permitted sphere.

Q. Then why did you issue the order that no negotiations were to be made with the insurgents?

A. I have already said that in these days several companies because of their good faith had entered into negotiations with the partisans. They thought that there would be negotiations. In reality these were abominable traps laid by the partisans, and during the negotiations they were raided, disarmed, and deported away, sometimes into the mountains, and sometimes somewhere else, as far as they had not already been killed beforehand.

Q. Why did you order unified command of the undertaking by a commander in this Exhibit 41?

A. I have already said that these divisions were badly equipped, that they were badly made up as regards to personnel and that above all the officers had no kind of training at all. They were young, and it was necessary to employ older officers who were able to take the necessary measures which were necessary by reason of the respective situation.

Q. And why should incapable officers be replaced and brought to account?

A. Officers who were not capable of carrying out this task would mean a great danger for the troops, as was shown by the preceding events.

I would also like to state that no officer in such a position could act differently.

Q. What did you mean by reckless use of weapons?

A. The employment of all those weapons which were available, also of the heavy weapons, in order to smash the fighting power of the enemy.

Q. Are you still of the opinion that this teletype, Exhibit 41, was necessary?

A. Yes, I am still of that opinion today.

Q. At that time what was the insurgent movement like?

A. The movement had extended more and more. The attacks increased in number, and it became evident that these were no local, individual happenings, but that it was a general insurgent movement.

Q. And what in the main was the origin of these bands?

A. These bands had various origins. Part of them were exclusively communistic, another part was nationalistic. Those were the Mihajlovic people, and the third part was under Kosta Pecanac.

Q. Would you please spell the last name?

A. P-e-c-a-n-a-c. "C" like in Caesar.

Q. And who was in charge of the communistic band at that time?

A. A unified leadership of the communistic bands was not recognizable at that time.

Q. At that time were organized bands recognizable?

A. Properly organized bands were not recognizable.

Q. You mentioned just now the movement of Kosta Pecanac. What was his political leaning?

A. Kosta Pecanac was an old freedom fighter of the First World War. He was of the opinion that the communistic movement was a national danger for Serbia, and for this reason he was sharply against the communistic movement.

Q. And what was his attitude towards the Germans?

A. For this reason he went together with the Germans against the communists.

Q. Did the bands fight each other?

A. Kosta Pecanac fought with his people against the communists. Later on Mihajlovic also fought against the communists.

Q. Did the bands have a common uniform?

A. No.

Q. Did they have common insignia?

A. No.

Q. Were the attacks frequent?

A. Yes.

Q. For example, could you give a number for August 1941?

A. Altogether several hundred. On many days alone, as far as I can remember, there were dozens.

Q. And what about the beginning of September?

A. The attacks increased at the beginning of September noticeably.

Q. And what were the methods of the bands? Give me a few examples which you know about.

A. In general, they used insidious methods. Cars were shot at from the cornfields; leave trains were forced to stop and they were shot at with machine guns; food transports were plundered.

Q. And how was the terrain in the Balkans suited for this kind of warfare?

A. It was partly favorable for the partisans. It was mountainous steep gulfs, forests with lots of wood undergrowth, and cornfields in which they could easily hide; the roads were difficult to control. Those were the main things.

Q. Was the OKW currently informed about the band situation?

A. Yes, of course.

Q. And did the OKW issue directives?

A. I don't remember individual directives at the moment, but I assume with certainty that there were some written orders, and also we kept on receiving orders and directions to take strict measures.

Q. What kind of directives were those?

A. As I have already said, they told us to take strict measures. It was apparent from them that the OKW thought our measures insufficient; therefore they sent orders that the insurgents should be smashed as soon as possible with every means.

Q. At that time what was your opinion about the individual directives of the OKW?

A. Our point of view was that as we were always requesting more troops we would keep the insurgents down by the presence of larger numbers of troops so that insurrections could not flare up at all. In one case, because of a directive, of which I don't remember the details any longer, I made a written objection to the OKW.

Q. Why did you submit this?

A. Because I thought at that time that the measures were too strict and I had asked for more troops.

Q. Did you receive an answer to this objection?

A. No.

Q. And what did you do then?

A. When the then Colonel Foertsch went on leave, I asked him to go to the OKW as soon as possible and present our point of view once again.

Q. And what was the result of the discussion of General Foertsch with the OKW?

A. As far as I can remember, the result was very unsatisfactory. I don't remember the details of the answer.

Q. With whom did he speak?

A. He spoke with Keitel.

Q. What did Keitel say?

A. Keitel refused my objection and he said, I think, "Your commander-in-chief seems to be very upset about us. When you come back, you will find new orders. Tell your commander-in-chief that the responsibility lies with Hitler and the OKW. Your commander-in-chief has to carry out the orders."

Q. How did you know this - what you have just told us?

A. Colonel Foertsch told me this at that time.

Q. And were troops also asked for at that time?

A. That was the main purpose of this discussion which Foertsch had with Keitel.

Q. Who else did Foertsch speak to on this matter?

A. He spoke briefly with Generaloberst Haider.

Q. Who was Halder?

A. Halder was chief of the Army General Staff.

Q. And what did Foertsch say to Halder and what answer did he get?

A. Well, in detail I don't know.

Q. Well, what did General Foertsch report to you?

A. He said to me that he found more understanding with Halder than he did with Keitel, but Halder also could not help us at the moment. He had no troops available because of the situation in the East.

Q. And what else was considered at that time?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors please, Dr. Laternser is going pretty far in asking what Foertsch said to Keitel and Keitel said to Foertsch; what Foertsch said to Halder and Halder said to Foertsch. I think we are relating to hearsay. Foertsch is here and pretty soon we will have him going to Moscow.

DR. LATERNSE: The questions have already been answered, Your Honor. I have now put a question with which this objection is not concerned at all. I have now asked the question "What was considered at that time?", i.e. by the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: The witness was not present; he is not in a position to state as to the comments made. The objection which has been made, if timely made, would have been good. Perhaps the motion to strike would be in order, but the Tribunal is not in a position to direct the manner in which this case will be handled. I think you should use care, Dr. Laternser, and not seek to illicit hearsay testimony.

The matter will not be ruled upon at this time.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. And that brings us to the end of the Berlin visit of General Foertsch. I now want to know what else was considered at that time in order to master the bandit situation.

A. The Military Commander Serbia once suggested that troops of other allies should be brought into the Serbian area.

Q. What did they think about at that time?

A. They thought about the Italians and Bulgarians.

Q. And why was that not done?

A. Because I did not think it a good idea, having these men who were in opposition to each other together, with regard to the population.

Q. What was the danger at that time - that is, at the end of August or beginning of September - the danger for military purposes?

A. The main danger consisted in the interruption of the rear communications and the cutting off of the railway and shipping lines, i.e. an interruption of the oil supplies for Germany.

Q. The oil from where?

A. The oil from Rumania. And also an interruption of the whole supply for the occupation troops as such and also under certain circumstances a crippling of the whole occupation troops, apart from the individual attacks against the occupation troops which would have had the result of a smash-up.

Q. What was the importance of the Balkan theater of war for the whole war situation?

A. The Balkan territory of war covered the right flank of the Eastern army as long as the Balkans were occupied by German troops. If this occupation was not there, or collapsed, this would mean a danger for the whole Eastern front.

Q. What other dangers were connected with this theater of war?

A. There was also the danger that the whole Mediterranean area would have been affected, especially if a landing had taken place in Greece by British forces.

Q. Field Marshal, then what did you do in order to find a solution for this situation?

A. In this situation, in order to get out of this situation, I issued the order of the 5th of September.

Q. Your Honor, this is Exhibit 42 and it is also presented the same way in Exhibit 43, Book 2 of the English documents, pages 23 to 26; in the German Document Book 2, pages 21 to 22. You issued the order of the 5th of September 1942 as you have just said. What was the contents of this order?

A. This order gave directives for the activities of the troops in the next period.

Q You said directives; what does that mean?

A I stated in the order that the following points of view had to be followed.

Q What did that mean?

A This meant that the troops, if the necessity arose, would proceed according to the given directives.

Q What is the difference between an order and a directive?

A If I order, I say you must in a certain definite case do that and that definitely, but in a directive, I gave an indication of the possibilities which are available in a corresponding case.

Q And when should these possibilities be used?

A They should be used when it was necessary.

Q The prosecution maintains that in this order you intended punishment expeditions; is that correct?

A No, with these directives I gave the order for the insurgent movement to be smashed.

Q To whom was this document exhibit 42 distributed; please look at the distribution list?

A It was distributed to the Higher Command 65.

Q Who was the commanding general then of the 65th?

A General of the Artillery Bader. It went to the Commander Serbia.

Q Who was then commander in Serbia?

A The Commander in Serbia was General of the Air Force Dankelmann. It went to the commander in Saloniki

Q Who was that?

A It was Major General (Generalleutnant) Krenski.

Q Why did the order not go to the 18th Mountain Army Corps Headquarters?

A This was not necessary. The situation did not demand this.

Q Where was the 18th Mountain Army Corps at that time?

A Near Athens.

Q Why did this order not go to the command in Southern Greece?

A The commander-Southern Greece had only the area round Piraeus in Southern Greece the Italians had the main responsibility.

Q Field Marshal, what were the main reasons for the issuing of these directives?

A The main reason was the tense situation which made it necessary to break the resistance as quickly as possible.

Q The prosecution maintains that the order.....

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors please, Dr. Laternser several times improperly phrases his questions by saying "the prosecution maintains." Now if the witness is going to testify to something different, he can ask him what he meant to do, but not to prepare him for his answer by saying the prosecution maintains this. I suggest to the Court that he refrain that type of questioning.

DR. LATERNSE: May I say something about this, Your Honor? The question, which I wanted to place, I have not yet finished so the prosecution does not know if this is an admissible or an inadmissible question. It is so that only certain questions can be objected to.

THE PRESIDENT: It is my understanding, Dr. Laternser, that Mr. Denney is objecting to the form of the question and the manner in which it is stated, attributing to the prosecuting your understanding of what the prosecution has endeavored to present in its evidence. Your interpretation of that may be one thing and as to what the prosecution maintain is another. The object as to the form of the question will be sustained.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q Field Marshal, does this order correspond to a plan, an existing plan for weakening and decimating the population? Did you ever hear anything about such a plan?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, I object to the form of the question. The order speaks for itself. Dr. Laternser insists on leading him.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q Which plans were in existence in the Balkans with regard to the population?

A Well, there were no kinds of plans there. I never spoke with anybody about any kind of plan.

Q You know that the prosecution maintains that there was a plan?

A I heard for the first time about such a plan in the indictment.

Q Do you know orders or regulations which were issued by the communist party in Serbia for the partisans?

A Yes, I know these regulations.

Q What was in it?

A Of course, I can't remember the details properly but I studied these regulations and my total impression was that these regulations contained the idea that all means were permissible with which to fight the Germans, even illegal action and actions against international law could be used or were recommended to be used.

Q Did these regulations play any part when you issued your order?

A These regulations were one of the main reasons, for issuing this order.

Q May I draw the attention of the Tribunal to the fact that those regulations of the communist party of Serbia for the band war are mentioned in Exhibit 56, Document Book 2? I am sorry I can't give the English page.

DR. LATERNSEER: In this Exhibit 56, your Honors, as far as I can remember under figure 3, this regulation is mentioned. If I may further draw the attention of the Tribunal

THE PRESIDENT: What is the number of the exhibit?

DR. LATERNSEER: Exhibit 56, under figure 3 these directives are mentioned. Figure 7, I am sorry.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q At the end of this document, it says "one enclosure" but it isn't here. Now with regard to the details of the order, why should the direction of an operation be carried out by older experienced officers?

A This was necessary because only the older and experienced officers could judge when the particular measures were to be used because they were the only people who, if new conditions suddenly arose, to take the right measures.

Q What does the word "destroy" mean if it occurs in an order, a military order?

A Destroy is the usual term in use which has the meaning that the fighting strength of the enemy should be eliminated.

Q And what is always the aim of an operation?

A Just this--to eliminate the fighting strength of the enemy, that is to destroy the enemy.

Q In figure 2 of this order, Exhibit 42, ruthless immediate measures are spoken about when should these be employed?

A They should be employed when over the necessity arose.

Q In figure 2-F in the brackets it states "hanging, burning down of villages involved, increased taking of hostages, and deportation of members of their families." What was this bracket supposed to signify to the subordinate officers?

A This was an indication of the possible action which could be taken if the necessity arose for this.

Q And what was the word "hanging" supposed to mean?

A This word is supposed to mean the manner of carrying out death sentences.

Q And when should hanging take place?

A In especial cases.

Q And how were death sentences carried out in the following periods?

A Mainly by shooting.

Q Why did you set down the possibility that villages involved could be burned down?

A Because just in the fighting of the partisans, this could be militarily necessary, and because, in addition, it is quite in accordance with international law.

Q What do you understand by "villages involved"?

A From these villages or in their immediate neighborhood enemy activities were carried on against the occupation powers.

Q And why should more hostages be taken?

A This was necessary because the attacks increased in number and because the area of unrest extended.

Q And as a further possibility, the deportation of relatives into concentration camps is set down there. First of all a preliminary question. What did you understand at that time by the term "concentration camps?"

AA At that time, I understood a collective camp for partisans who could be dangerous for the occupation power.

Q And how far did relatives of partisans endanger the occupation power?

A By helping the partisans in various ways.

Q Well then, what kind of persons were to come into those camps?

A Those persons who helped the partisans.

Q Were you justified in ordering such camps?

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor please, I object to the question. It is what the Court is here to determine, whether or not he was justified.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q I also meant if you thought you were justified.

A Yes, I thought I was justified in giving this order.

Q And why?

A Because it is a military necessity that the Commander-in-Chief of an occupation army protects his troops against elements who could be a danger to this occupation army. As I have found now, this is also the same in the American army. This can be seen from the regulations issued by the American army.

Q Exhibit 71 in English Document Book No. 2, page 143 and in the German Document Book 2, page 110. In this document the Commander-in-Chief Serbia on the 6th of the 10th ordered the erection of a camp near Zazaniza. Did you know this order -- Exhibit No. 71?

A No.

Q Now to conclude the order of the 5th of the 9th, Exhibit 42, I would like to ask: Why did you set down these measures in 2-F; Why did you order them?

AA As I have already said, because I thought it was necessary in order to save lives to smash this insurgent movement as quickly as possible, because in this extraordinary situation, extraordinary measures had to be taken. It is a situation which can be compared in a small way to the employment of the atomic bomb.

At that time, objections had to be set aside because by the employment of this they wanted to save lives and bring the war to a speedy end.

MR. DENNEY: Please, I move that the witness's remarks with reference to the atom bomb be stricken out. It has nothing to do with the case.

THE PRESIDENT: It is the witness's interpretation and idea of this situation and the objection will be overruled.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q And how long was this order to be valid?

A This order was to be valid until the operations for the next period--that is, the smashing of the insurgents were concluded.

Q And the actual main purpose of this order was -

A The actual main purpose of this order was, if I remember rightly, set down the last figure.

Q You don't need to tell the number.

A The only task for the next period was the smashing of the insurgents in Serbia, and as quickly and completely as possible.

Q Your order is dated the 5th of September. At that time, did you have any connection with the OKW?

A There was a connection with the OKW. In the first place, this was done by teletype.

Q In those days did the OKW turn to you?

A On the 5th of September, the OKW had sent a warning request to me to inform them what had been ordered for smashing the insurgents.

Q And did such requests from above come often?

A Yes, they came frequently.

Q And then how did the total situation develop after you had issued this order?

A Then the situation was further aggravated; the insurgent movement grew.

Q Now I submit to you Exhibit 48 in English Document Book 2, page 41, and in the German Document Book 2, page 40. Do you know this teletype?

A Yes.

Q In this teletype, you ask for the erection of a new office with the OKW?

A Yes.

Q And you suggest as leader of this office General Boehme?

A Yes.

Q I would like to ask you why did you suggest General Boehme?

A The staff of General Boehme could be released. The allocation of a new staff by the OKW could not be expected.

Q Why did you think General Boehme was suitable?

A I knew General Boehme was a reliable and quiet leader of a corps; in addition, he knew conditions in the Balkans from his activities in Austria and he could speak the language.

Q And was General Boehme known to be very strict?

A No, I didn't get that impression from him. And General Dietl said that he didn't think that he was sufficiently strict.

Q Why didn't you suggest Bader or Dankelmann who were in Serbia for this position?

A Bader and Dankelmann were rivals. In addition, the leadership by one these staffs owing to which one would have to be quite subordinate to the other, would not have been favorable. The staffs as such, especially for this new task were not so suitable as the staff of a mobile general commandant for at the same time as this order I asked for further reinforcements. Also for this reason it was necessary that under the leading general a general commando had to be available.

Q Which improvement in the situation did you think the creation of this new office would cause?

A I expected more secure, unified leadership, and with this also a better use of the forces available.

Q Was your application which you made with Exhibit 48 acceded to?

A Yes, it was agreed to.

Q Now I would like to draw the attention of the Tribunal to Exhibit 49 in English Document Book 2, page 53, German Document Book I page 52.

Field Marshal, do you know this order of the OKW contained in Exhibit 49?

A Yes.

Q Which military commission did General Boehme receive through this order?

A He received the commission to smash the insurgent movement in Serbia, to secure communications and especially industrial installations.

Q Where was General Boehme at this time?

A At this time General Boehme was in Athens, in a suburb of Athens.

Q And where were you?

A I was in Kifisia near Athens.

Q Did General Boehme report to you before taking over this office?

A Yes.

Q When was that?

A That was on the 18th of September, 1941.

Q What commission did you give General Boehme orally on this occasion?

A I gave him the commission to carry out and lead military operations in Serbia.

Q And what kind of a commission was this?

A This was a commission to smash the insurgent movement.

Q And what else did you talk about on this occasion?

A He talked about the general idea, how he would use the forces against the main insurgent forces and on this occasion he also said that the evacuation of the villages on the edge of the insurgent territory, which was an idea I objected. Then Boehme, didn't go into this point any further and we didn't talk any more about this matter.

Q Why did you object to this intended evacuation? For which reason?

A I didn't know how he could say that that was already necessary. As it wasn't necessary, I didn't see why it should be done.

Q Can you remember which villages were concerned?

A I can't say for certain but I think that it was probably Sabac.

Q On the occasion of this report by General Boehme to you, did you also talk about reprisal measures against the civilian population?

A No.

Q When did you talk for the last time to General Boehme?

A The last occasion was here in the prison.

Q Did he remember on this occasion this oral discussion about which we have just been talking?

MR. DENNEY: I object to the witness testifying about the memory of somebody in the past who isn't here.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q Field Marshal, I asked you whether you – when you spoke for the last time with General Boehme?

A Here in the prison.

Q On this occasion in the prison, did you talk with General Boehme about this discussion in Athens?

A Yes.

Q What did he say to you?

MR. DENNEY: I object to what General Boehme said to him in the talk they had in the prison.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, this question is certainly admissible. This is a fact which the witness experienced, himself. Of course I can ask him about this and of course he can answer it.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection is overruled.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q What did he say to you about the contents of the discussion at that time?

A He confirmed to me what I just said. He had at that time a purely tactical commission from me.

Q I would now like you to look at Exhibit 50, English Document Book 2, page 57, and in German Document Book page 46. Do you know this radio message contained in Exhibit 50?

A Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternseer, before you start into the discussion of this exhibit, we will have our recess – afternoon recess.

THE MARSHAL: The Court will be in recess until three-fifteen.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q Your Honor, we were just discussing Exhibit 50 which in the English Document Book II on page 57 and which is on page 46 of the German Document Book. Field Marshal, do you know this teletype?

A Yes.

Q Why was this teletype sent?

A It is usual that an order received from a superior office is transmitted to the subordinate office in one's own words. Apart from that I wanted to find out through General Boehme in particular the military operations and I have done this under figure 1, under No. 1 of this radio message.

Q Which order arrived from the OKW during the time General Boehme was appointed?

AA At this time the order from the OKW of the 16th of September was received which asked us to adopt the most severe measures and requested us at the same time to have a certain ratio of the shooting of hostages.

Q What is the date of this order?

A 16th of September.

Q Your Honor, this is Exhibit 53, Volume II, page 67 of the English text, and in the German text, Volume II, page 52. Did you at that time get to know of this order?

A Yes.

Q Do you know whether orders of the OKW were examined before they were sent out?

A That I don't know but I assumed it. In any case I considered orders and directives issued by the OKW to be legal.

Q What was your personal attitude to this order?

A I rejected this order from purely humane reasons.

Q Did you undertake to take any steps in regard to this order?

A In my preliminary examination I stated that during that time I protested very energetically to an order received from the OKW.

I did this by protesting to the 1-A who was my deputy at that time. For a long time I did not know and could not explain to myself against which order I protested. Knowing the facts now I must assume with certainty that it must have been the order of the 16th of September because apparently no other order was received from the OKW during these days.

Q In what manner did you protest against this order.

A I think I protested to the deputy chief in a very clear manner and I ordered him to bring this, my opinion, to the notice of the OKW.

Q Who was deputy at that time?

A That was Colonel Kuechler at that time.

Q Did he do that?

A Yes, he did it.

Q What did he report to you about it?

A The protest in connection with this was rejected.

Q Why did you not resign from your office then?

A Resignation of an officer in wartime does not exist or did not exist; in fact Hitler had forbidden it and he had expressly said that it was he who decided when a General or an officer was to resign.

Q In what manner was this order received by your office?

A It was received in written form.

Q In several copies?

A It was received with subsidiary copies.

Q What do you mean by subsidiary copies.

A That means the superior office sends along to this office all the copies which are to be sent to all the subordinate offices.

Q What happened to these subsidiary copies?

A These subsidiary copies were passed on.

Q Was anything added to this order when it was passed on?

A No.

Q Was the transmission signed?

A Yes.

Q By whom?

A By the deputy chief.

Q What would you say in what manner the command in the Southeast was designated by Hitler and OKW in general?

A It was repeatedly called weak.

Q This order Exhibit No. 53 of the 16th of September had been issued. What did you do?

A In the beginning of October I issued a teletype dated the 4th of October.

Q May I point out to the court that the teletype of the 4th of October is Exhibit 70 which in the English Document Book II is on page 141 and in the German Document Book it is on page 108. To whom did you address this teletype of the 4th of October?

A To the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia.

Q Who else did you address it to?

A No one else.

Q Why not to other officers?

A That wasn't necessary because the Plenipotentiary Commanding General was in Serbia and he alone was the person responsible in Serbia for the issuing of the orders for crushing of the Serbian movement, and he possessed executive power in those respects.

Q. Did you assume that this office then informed all the other offices?

A. That was their task; they had to do that.

Q. Under point 2 of this order you ordered, and I quote: "Men in the insurgent territories who were not encountered in battle are to be examined, and b), if they are only suspected of having taken part in combat of having offered the bandits support of any sort or of having acted against the Wehrmacht in any way there are to be held in a collecting camp. They are to serve as hostages in the event that bandits appear or if anything against the Wehrmacht is undertaken in the territory of their home localities and in such cases they are to be shot." What is your present attitude to the order which I have just read?

A. I am of the opinion that under the conditions existing at that time it was militarily speaking necessary and that it was admissible under International law.

Q. Why didn't you order any ratios?

A. Because it seemed difficult to me to fix ratios; the retaliation measures or reprisal measures should generally adapt themselves to the facts of the case.

Q. Who may order reprisals?

A. Every commander from every divisional commander upwards.

Q. Where was that laid down?

A. In the ten commandments.

Q. Which ten commandments do you mean?

A. Those which every soldier had to carry or was supposed to carry.

Q. What were the contents quite briefly?

A. Essentially the provisions of the Hague Convention.

Q. And where were those ten commandments for the soldiers contained?

A. In his pay-book.

Q. I shall submit this pamphlet or manual to the court as an exhibit. Now, I should like you to take a look at Exhibit 7 which is Volume I and is on page 20 of the English Document Book and on page 17 of the First Volume of German Document Book. In the first part of this exhibit your office asks on the 27th of June 1941 the Military Commander Serbia whether the Russian radio reports are correct; that for the killing of German soldiers 100 Serbs had been shot in Belgrade. Why was this inquiry made by you?

A. Since this was a radio report of Russian origin and I did not know anything of it yet I had to make sure regarding this message. Apart from that the number appeared rather conspicuous to me.

Q. What was the result of your inquiry?

A. The result was that this radio report was erroneous.

Q. We are reverting now to Exhibit 70 which in the English Document Book II is on page 141 and in the German Document Book II on page 108. In this teletype of the 4th of October and that is Exhibit 70, you talk about collection camps, whereas in the order of the 5th of September, Exhibit 42, you talked of concentration camps. What is the difference you intended?

A. There is no difference because I meant by concentration camps the same as by collection camps because in the army as such there were no concentration camps.

Q. What was the actual purpose of Exhibit 70, that is, of the teletype of the 4th of October.

A. The actual purpose was to create orderly conditions and at the same time to mitigate the decree of the OKW of the 16th of September and to bring about milder retaliatory measures.

Q. If you are just mentioning the OKW order of 16th September, do you mean Exhibit 53 which I submitted to you before?

A. Yes I do.

Q. I should then like you to look at Exhibit 76. Exhibit 76 is in Volume II, page 156 of the English text and in the IIInd volume on page 120 of the German Document Book. This order was issued to General Boehme and in it he requested him to collaborate as far as possible in crushing the uprising. Was this order known to you?

A. No.

Q. In spite of your teletype of the 4th of October General Boehme --- this teletype we discussed previously as Exhibit 70 -General Boehme -- in spite of this order and in spite of his own order, issued the very severe order of the 10th of October, Exhibit 88, which in the English Document Book III is to be found on page 34 and in the German Document Book III on page 27. How do you explain to yourself and to us this fact?

A This order of the 10 October of General Boehme was preceded-

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, please, Dr. Laternser, will you kindly repeat the last reference?

DR. LATERNSEER: That is English Document Book III, page 34, and in the German Volume III on page 27.

THE PRESIDENT: And the exhibit number?

DR. LATERNSEER: Exhibit 88.

A This order of General Boehme was preceded by the shooting of 22 soldiers of the Army Intelligence Regiment, which were mutilated and maimed. I recall, but not very strongly though, that the order relating to the ratio of one to 100 in retaliation was ordered by the OKW directly.

Q Which case are you referring to?

A The case of the shooting of the 22 soldiers of the Army Intelligence Regiment 521, and I could imagine that General Boehme on his part, on the basis of this OKW DIRECTIVE, and on the other hand by reason of these bestial murder of his soldiers arrived at his order. He probably said to himself that in view of such actions by members of the bandit groups.

MR. DENNEY: I think the witness is speculating about what Dr. Boehme said to himself. It is improper testimony, and I move that part should be stricken.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I have noticed this myself, as I have noticed myself that this is a case of arguing, and not proper testifying and at the same moment I wanted to intervene myself.

THE PRESIDENT: In view of the statements made by Dr. Laternser apparently approving the motion of counsel for the prosecution, the motion to strike this will be sustained.

Q Field Marshal, when did you hear of this order of October 10, Exhibit 88, for the first time consciously?

A The first time consciously here in Nurnberg.

Q From the distribution, however, we see that this order was received by way of information by the Commander Southeast; can you remember having received it at that time?

Page 3,240

A No.

Q How do you explain this fact to yourself?

A This order was sent to me by way of information. That is to say from the sender as well as on the receiver it was probably not treated in a very expeditious manner. The mail from Belgrade to Athens and vice-versa took sometimes a long time and sometimes not so long. There is no receiving stamp on this document. I myself fell sick on the 15th. I was no longer in my office and I have to assume definitely that I did not receive this order.

Q When were you operated on?

A I was operated on the 17 October.

Q Exhibit 93 was submitted here, which is an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia dated October 14 which is Contained in Volume III, page 53 of the English Book, and in Volume III, page 43 of the German book, - have you got this order in front of you?

A Yes.

Q Did you at that time receive knowledge of this order?

A No.

Q How do you explain this?

A This order did not even for information purposes go to the armed forces commander Southeast.

Q The order was issued by the Administrative Staff of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General; what kind of an office is that?

A The Commander in Serbia had two staffs, the command staff and the administrative staff.

Q Who was the chief of the Administrative Staff?

A The Chief of the administrative staff was Turner, T-u-r-n-e-r.

Q Who was Turner?

A He was an SS Obergruppenfuehrer, and also a Prussian State Councillor as well.

Q What was his attitude?

A Turner was not a very straight forward personality, and was also a very difficult person. He certainly liked to show off, and in Belgrade and in Serbia he wanted to be the main figure.

Q Did you yourself gain this impression and did you experience this?

A Yes.

Q At what occasions?

A When the new Serbian Government was formed. I was neither informed regarding the forming of this Government nor was I informed in time that the formation of this Government had taken place, and I only heard this several days later.

Q Regarding the armament and weapons conceded to the new Serbian Government and to the Gendarmery, I found out only through a note in the newspapers.

Q After making these experiences with Turner what did you do?

A Because of these experiences which were aggravated by reports from my Chief, I asked the Chief of the Administrative staff for me to explain to him that he was actually bound to inform his commander about the most important happenings. Apart from that I sent Police Director Loos to Boehme in order that he should assist him directly.

Q who was Loos?

A Chief of the Secret Field police in the Staff in the Army command of the Army Southeast.

Q What was his attitude?

A Loos was a clever and adroit man and he was moderate.

Q When did you send him to Belgrade?

A He arrived at Belgrade on October 13. I must have ordered him to do so on the 12th, at the latest. My intention to do so was probably formed a couple of days prior to that.

Q What was Loos' actual task when you sent him to Belgrade?

AAs far as I can recall his assignment was to become police adviser to General Boehme to make up for Turner.

Q What did Loos report later on?

A I no longer learned that.

Q Why not?

A Because at the time when Loos returned I was at the military hospital.

Q Who gave Turner directives and orders?

A He received directives and orders from his superior, the commander of Serbia, and he also received directives via the Quartermaster General. He received directives directly from the Reichsfuehrer SS Himmler in a police matters, and I am firmly convinced, but I cannot check this, that as State Councillor, he received orders and directives from Reichsmarshal Goering, who at the same time had the right to give direct orders to the plenipotentiary for the 4-year plan in Belgrade.

Q Before I go into the discussion of individual points I want by some preliminary questions to give a general picture to the Tribunal. How did you communicate with your subordinate offices?

A The telephone, the teletype and radio.

Q And what were your lines of communication to the OKW, that is, to your superior offices?

A The same, although we mainly used the radio, because of the great distance the telephone communications were usually disturbed.

Q The Prosecution submitted a number of reports from all kinds of offices; I wanted to ask you quite generally which of the reports and news do you know?

A I do not know of those reports which were not addressed to my office.

Q In other words, all of those were not directed to your office, and why are these reports not known to you?

A If they were not received by the Armed Forces Commander Southeast I could not know them.

Q Who received the messages for your office?

A They were directed to the departments to which they were addressed. They were received by an orderly officer.

Q I would like to ask you, and will you give examples, please, which were the departments competent for each case?

A For messages of a technical nature, for the employment of the troops, Department 1-A. For messages concerning the enemy news, it was Department 1-C.

Q What was the competent department for the news regarding shootings or burning down of villages?

A. That was the department 1-C. Later on this was taken over by Department 1-A, but at that time it was the Department 1-C.

Q. In what way was such a message received, what possibilities did exist?

A. They were received by telephone, by radio. They could also arrive as a teletype. That could come as a telephone messages immediately to the officer.

Q. One question, Field Marshall, what was the most frequent way in which a message was received?

A. The most frequent way was the teletype.

Q. To whom was this teletype submitted?

A. The teletype was submitted to the orderly officer of the department in question who was on duty.

Q. And to whom did he submit it?

A. This orderly officer submitted it to 1-A or to the 1-C.

Q. And what did the Chief of the department in question do, that is the 1-A or 1-C?

A. With the collected messages he went to see the chief and he reported to the chief about these news.

Q. In what manner were you informed about these things?

A. I was informed by the Chief of Staff.

Q. In which form?

A. The chief of staff reported to me about the messages received.

Q. To what did his report refer?

A. The report referred to everything that had happened, chiefly how the over-all situation had developed, where new centers of unrest had appeared.

Q. Now, what was the gist of this report and what had to be the gist of it?

A. The total situation of the insurgent movement.

Q. During this report on the part of your chief of Staff, were the messages that had been received read to you?

A. In general a general report was given to me, but messages were also read to me. When I read such messages I initialed them as a matter of principle.

Q. Did you frequently deviate from this principle of initialing everything you had read?

A. No. I adhered to that habit. I initialed everything which I had in fact read.

Q. And what was now the more frequent form of the report, a summary of the general situation or the reading of the individual messages?

A. The main form was the summarized report.

Q. Which of the reports, so frequently submitted by the prosecution, which were addressed to armed forces commander Southeast, do you remember?

A. Individual messages I couldn't recall at all. I have a general impression of the situation at that time, but I couldn't say that I have seen or have not seen those messages. That is not possible here. On the strength of the messages which have been submitted to me I have refreshed my memory, as in the case of the second company of the Army Intelligence Regiment all came back to me, but only very calmly. It is impossible for me to say that I really read this message, because I got a lot of messages, and the totality of experiences which happened everyday. It is impossible after six years to say I have definitely read this, and such or such a newspaper is definitely known to me, and after all I, as I said before was chiefly interested in how the situation had developed, what development it had taken. The American Commander in Chief in this zone will not be able to know all the details which happen in the course of six years, well the area down there is far greater than Germany is today, and that has to be considered.

Traffic conditions were far worse, the lines of communication were far worse. One was constantly under the pressure of what happened every day, and in the meanwhile I have experienced six very hard years, and among them 2-1/2 years imprisonment and 8 months in solitary confinement. These are conditions which are not suited to strengthen one's memory.

Q. Do you remember, Field Marshal, that at that time, conspicuous or rather conspicuously high shooting ratios were reported to you? Do you remember that?

A. I have not the impression, looking back at those years, that at that time a conspicuously high shooting ratio was reported to me at that time, that is figures exceeding the standard required by military necessity.

Q. Well, what was your mental attitude during the last two years regarding a trial?

A. My mental attitude was that if I was ever arraigned it could only be ascertained that nothing had happened which could form the basis of proceedings against me.

Q. Have you expressed this view of yours to other people?

A. Yes, in camps when these matters were discussed; I have repeatedly said that a trial against me would be welcomed by me in one respect, because it would have to be ascertained that I had done nothing in violation of international law.

Q. Field Marshal, we have deviated a bit from what we set out to do. We shall assume now that a company commits an excess which requires intervention. What way does a message, or news, regarding such an excess take?

A. When the company leader has noticed this excess himself, he will make a report regarding the facts of the case.

Q. An intermediate question; what do you mean by report regarding the facts of the case?

A. Report concerning the facts of the case means giving a report regarding the incident which points to a criminal act. Together with it the proceedings are opened or rather are requested against the culprit.

Q. Now, what way does this news take?

A. This message is posted from the company leader to the battalion leader.

Q. Now, supposing the battalion commander does not pass it on. What action must he expect if he does not pass it on?

A. Well, he makes himself punishable. That is a dereliction of duty, definitely.

Q. And what further way does the message take?

A. Then it reaches the regimental commander, and from the regimental commander to the divisional commander. The divisional commander is the judicial authority.

Q. Has the division commander got a court?

A. Yes.

Q. Supposing a message arrives at the Army High Command from which it is learned that a unit has committed an excess. At what time now does the highest military officer, that is, the commander in chief of the Army, interfere or intervene?

A. If he gets the impression that the subordinate officer, that is, the court, there is the judicial authorities have not interfered although they should have done so.

Q. Now, what can you presuppose in such cases as supreme commander of an army?

A. This report from below has gone through the judicial offices of the first instance and of the second instance, one has to assume that everything was in order, that nothing illegal has happened.

Q. You mean, in other words, a supreme commander cannot, unless he established something extraordinary, assume that all the subordinate instances have failed in the case and that an excess has been committed.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, I object to that as a leading question. Let the witness testify. We are dealing in vague hypotheses now anyway, but I think this goes too far. I object to the form.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

Q. (By Dr. Laternser) As supreme commander can you assume responsibility for all the excesses of your troops?

A. No. For the excesses of the troops which I don't know of, I can assume responsibility as little as the head of a state for the murder which has been committed in his country.

Q. Now, a few questions of a general nature before we come to the individual cases. To what extent did you at that time know the contents of that material which the prosecution has submitted here?

A. The contents of this material was known to me only to a very small, to a fractional extent.

Q. Now, a few questions in order to explain things. From when till when were you supreme commander of the 12th Army in the Balkans?

A. The supreme commanders of the 12th Army, I was from the beginning of the campaign there until I was appointed Armed forces commander.

Q. And from what date to what date were you armed forces commander Southeast?

A. I became armed forces commander Southeast with the Fuehrer directive number 31, and I exercised these powers from the 23rd of June, 1941 onwards.

Q. Until when?

A. Until the 15th of October 1941.

Q. In other words, from the 23rd of June, 1941 until 15th of October, 1941 you had territorial powers in the Balkan threaten of war; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you exercise these powers yourself?

A. These powers were exercised by the plenipotentiary offices or intermediate offices.

Q. Which were subordinate to you?

A. Which were subordinate to me.

Q. Did you have an area in which there was no intermediate authority, no intermediate office?

A. No.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser, we will adjourn at this time until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 18 September 1947 at 0930 hours).

Official Transcript of Military Tribunal 3, case 7 in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List et al, defendants, sitting at Nuernberg, Germany, on 18 September 1947, 0930 Judge Burke presiding.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, you will ascertain as to whether or not all defendants are present in the courtroom.

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honor, all the defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Burke will preside at this day's session.

JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

Just a moment.

It is the thought of the Tribunal that since the discussion was had at the session yesterday with respect to the order of presentation of proof that upon information coming to the Tribunal from Dr. Laternser, as spokesman for all the defense counsel, save one, Dr. Sauter, that the tentative rules suggested by the Tribunal with respect to the temporary withdrawal of witnesses at the conclusion of the direct examination and the delay of cross-examination on the part of the Prosecution will be abrogated, and that the Prosecution will have the opportunity to proceed at the conclusion of the direct testimony with such cross-examination as they may desire to make. This ruling on the part of the Tribunal is based upon the statement of Dr. Laternser, spokesman for the defendants.

As a matter of convenience for the Tribunal and for the orderly proceeding of the trial it is the wish of the Tribunal that at the earliest possible moment counsel will indicate the number of the defendants who will wish to testify, and the order in which they may be called.

This in order to prevent any delay with respect to the 24-hour rule, or for any other cause.

You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases, I might make a suggestion with reference to the other witnesses which the defense may at the present time plan to call. I think it would be helpful to the Tribunal, and while I am not trying to take any undue advantage of the defense and obtain a list of witnesses in advance, I would like to call defense counsel's attention to the fact that we have a list of a substantial number of persons whom they are going to bring here. If they could find it convenient to prepare a list of proposed witnesses and serve it as much in advance as possible, there is nothing binding upon them at a later time to produce those witnesses but that way the Tribunal and the Prosecution will have some idea as to the numbers of those who are going to be called or who it is presently planned to perhaps call.

JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal can see no objection to the proposal made by counsel, for the prosecution, and while it may not necessarily be an arbitrary rule it would be helpful to the proceedings now before the Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: I make that merely as a suggestion, and of course appreciate the Tribunal is not making a directive on it, and I thought it if was called to the attention of defense counsel it might help.

JUDGE BURKE: Do you find any objection to the proposal as made by Mr. Denney?

DR. LATERNSE: As far as my own personal view is concerned, I certainly intend to name those whom I propose to examine, without binding myself, because only after the witnesses have arrived here can I determine whether I want to examine them in the court or not.

JUDGE BURKE: I think the justice of that position is apparent to the Tribunal, and I am certain that Mr. Denney's suggestion was made merely in the spirit of expediting the trial, and the Tribunal will cooperate with the efforts of both of you to that end.

It is the thought of the Tribunal that if convenient, before the morning recess we should be advised of the name of the witness to be called following the witness now on the stand. That would prevent any immediate possible delay, and the other matter referred to may be considered in proper time and the proper course of proceedings.

DR. LATERNSEER: I may be able to do it right away.

Your Honor, I have inquired from my colleague, Dr. Menzel, and he has told me that after Field Marshal List has been examined General Kuntze will testify.

JUDGE BURKE: Very well. I am sure that information will be of some assistance to the Tribunal and also to counsel for the Prosecution.

You may proceed.

WILHELM LIST DIRECT EXAMINATION.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q Field Marshall, we now want to come to a couple of individual cases; from Exhibit 19, which is in the English Document Book 1, on page 68, and in the German Document Book 1 is on page 49, we see that on the 18 July General Lomschar was attacked and in this connection I want to ask whether you ordered anything in regard to this matter?

A In this matters I gave no orders.

Q Do you know what the handwritten addition on Exhibit 19, the "Counter-measures", is supposed to mean?

A That is an inquiry of the Chief of Staff directed to the 1-C.

Q The prosecutor now says that this must be an inquiry addressed to you?

A No.

Q Why wouldn't it be that?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, I have to object to Dr. Laternser's interpretation of what we maintain. I don't recall that we ever said that. The witness has now identified that it is a communication of his then Chief of Staff Foertsch addressed to the 1-C, the Intelligence Officer, and I would suggest to Dr. Laternser that he refrain from leading the witness by telling him what he thinks we are contending.

I think he is familiar with the method to be followed in asking questions.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I remember quite distinctly that the Prosecution, when submitting this document, maintained that this inquiry was addressed to the defendant Field Marshall List. If the Prosecution maintains this then, I must be allowed to question the person concerned regarding this matter.

JUDGE BURKE: In the interest of brevity, Dr. Laternser, you may proceed.

A The Chief of Staff would not direct an inquiry in this form to his superior officer. He addressed his inquiry to the 1-C, as I have already said, in order to get some clarity about these matters.

Q In Exhibit 22, which is in English Document Book 1, page 76, and in the German Document Book 1, page 55, this is a report of the Chief of the Security Police of the Security Service, and this report says that 32 communists, jews and band members have been shot. Did this report ever come to your knowledge?

A This report is not known to me, because this is from the office of the Chief of Security Police in Berlin and was not received by my office.

Q From Exhibit 23 in the English Document Book 1, page 80 and the German Document Book 1, page 58, we see that 52 communists and no jews were shot, what do you know about this?

A I don't know this detail.

Q I am now turning to Exhibit 39 of the English Document book 2, on page 10, and in the German Document Book 2 on page 6 -- English Document Book 2, page 10 -- this exhibit 39 shows that Col.

von Stockhausen on the 10th of August, because of an attack on German Police Forces ordered the shooting to death of 81 Serbs, from the neighborhood by Serbian gendarmes, according to this report, is supposed to have led to a ministerial crisis; did this case become known to you?

A The case would not have come to my knowledge at that time, because at that time, the 10th of August, I was absent. I was absent from 23 July to the 23 of August.

Q Was this incident reported to you after your return from leave?

A I could not say that now. Today, I cannot recall it.

Q I would like to draw the attention of the Tribunal to the fact that this case is further dealt with in Exhibit 40-A. In the English Document Book 2, page 20. Now, I turn to Exhibit 31, Exhibit 31 may be found in the English Document Book 1, page 111, and in the German Document Book 1, on page 86. From Exhibit 31 it follows that on the occasion of an incident the Zagreb, apart from 98, an additional 85, and another number which is not exactly known, of insurgents were shot. At that time who was commanding in Croatia?

A Croatia was an independent state. It was not subordinate to me.

Q Who possessed executive power in Croatia?

A The head of the State.

Q Why was this incident reported to the Wehrmacht commander southeast?

A On the part of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Agram, for information purposes.

Q. We now come to exhibit 39 which may be found in the English document book 2 on page 8 and in the German document book 2 on pages 11 and 12. In this exhibit we see that after an attack near Skelan, officer and a sergeant major were found dead, and three other sergeant majors were missing; in the report follows the reprisals which were taken, and I should like to ask you, Field Marshal, did you have any knowledge of that case at that time?

A. No, that took place in the middle of my leave on the 14th of August.

Q. The witness Kiessel asserts in the document, which the prosecution has submitted under No. 100-B 27 that this action Skela took place on the orders or with the express consent of the Chief of Staff; could General Foertsch issue such an order?

A. No.

Q. Did your yourself issue an order in this matter?

A. I could not do that because I did not know of this incident.

Q. I should like to point out the Tribunal that the same case is dealt with cumulatively in the following exhibits, in exhibit 59 English document book 2, pages 91 and 92, the German document book 2, page 74, further in exhibit 127 of the English document book 5, wage 33, the German document book 5 page 37; exhibit 128 of the English document book 5, page 132, German document book 5, page 87 and in exhibit 527 of the English document book 24, page 11 and the German document book 24, page 8. The case appears altogether five times.

We will now turn to exhibit 40, which is on page 20 of the English document book 2 on page 18. From this exhibit 40 we see that on 2nd September 20 Communists were shot for three German.

soldiers killed. Was this case reported to you; it is a case which took place near Rtanj, I will Spell it R-t-a-n-j?

A. I have only to repeat that it is no longer possible for me to tell you what were the individual reports which I received at that time. Today I cannot recall this incident, even though at that time I may have received it.

Q. I am now turning to exhibit 114-C. This is a supplement at the end of the 3rd document book in the English document book, and in volume 3 of the German edition on page 113. From this exhibit we see that on 19 September in Uzice that 154 band-members were shot there; during this case did you issue any orders?

A. No.

Q. What do you know about this case?

A. No details.

Q. I should like to draw the attention of the court of the fact that the same case is further dealt with in exhibit 45, English document book 2, page 42 and the German document book, 2, page 35. It is dealt with the third time in the English document book 24, page 28 and in the German document book 24 on page 21.

I will now turn to exhibit 61, which can be found in the English document book 2 on page 103, the German document book 2 on page 82. From exhibit 61 you see that the order of the plenipotentiary general Serbia of 23 September was sent to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for information purposes; do you know this order?

A. I don't know. If it had been sent to me for an acknowledgement I must have initialed it at that time.

Q. Let us assume that you received it; what could you have done then?

A. This is a teletype of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General addressed to the 342nd Division. This teletype was sent for information purposes to various offices.

I must assume that it reached them in the written form since the action which was ordered for the 23rd was arranged for the 24th. If I had received this order I could not longer have intervened.

Q. Where was the Chief of Staff, General Foertsch at that time?

A. Foertsch was at that time on leave.

Q. Who was his deputy?

A. Colonel Kuebler.

Q. How were you informed about things at that time?

A. As I learned later, in an insufficient manner.

Q. With whom did you discuss this?

A. With my Chief of Staff after his return from Belgrade.

Q. From exhibit 115...I would like to be excused for a moment. I want to find out the English page numbers.

THE PRESIDENT. Very well.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. From page 115, volume 4, page 6, in the German, volume 4 on page 6, it follows, from a report from the 342nd Infantry division addressed to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, that in the course of a mopping up action 830 men were shot and 8,400 were arrested; were reports of such a nature known to you.

A. That is possible, even if I don't remember then today.

Q. Now, supposing that such a report was made known to you what would you think when you received such a message?

A. This was an extensive operation. I was also of the opinion that the losses took place during the actual fighting. I assume that the people were actually killed in combat or were franc tireurs who were shot by a summary court martial.

Q. Why shot by a summary court martial?

A. Just because they were franc tireurs or guerillas, had taken part in the fighting, or had been caught with a weapon in their hands.

Q. What did the German regulations state regarding the treatment of guerillas?

A. After the Guerilla order of the year 1939, guerillas could be shot during the actual fighting, or if they had taken part in the fighting with weapons, or if they had been captured carrying weapons.

Q. You say by summary court martial; what does this mean - a summary court martial?

A. A summary court martial can be convened by the regimental commander and comprises one officer and two associate soldiers, enlisted men of any ranks.

Q. I now turn to exhibit 62 in the English document book 2, we find it on page 107, in the German book 2 on page 85. In this exhibit we see an order of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General of Serbia for an evacuation of the Save Bend; did this order come to your knowledge?

A. No.

Q. In connection with this evacuation of the Save Bend; did you issue any order?

A. No, General Boehme had the general order from me to conduct the action and was completely independent in this respect.

Q. We now come to the case of Crabovac. This incident is dealt with in Exhibit 107 of the English document book 3, pages 103 to 118 in the German document book 3, pages 76 to 78; can you recall this case?

A. Yes.

Q. It follows from this exhibit that you ordered the investigation of this incident on the 6th of October; why did you issue such an order?

MR. DENNEY: I suggest that the witness testify and not Dr. Laternser. The witness was there, Dr. Laternser was not. He knows how to answer questions and tell us what he did, or didn't do.

JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal will attempt to distinguish between the testimony of Dr. Laternser and the witness. You may proceed.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. Why did you issue the order for the investigation of this incident on the 6th of October?

A. A report by a sergeant major was submitted to me. It is unusual that such a report without giving the attitude and view of the intermediate officer, reaches the supreme commander. We will have to assume therefore that the senior signals officer had submitted his report to the chief of staff and that the chief of staff had passed it on to me. The senior signals officer had probably done that in order to justify himself regarding the frequent reproaches directed at him because of the failure of the lines of communication. At the same time he probably asked that the army should take care that more extensive security measures were taken.

Q. What was the importance of the telephone communications in the Balkans?

A. The importance is of a decisive nature as the area was very large and communications were bad. As such the troop units were separately disposed, had long lines of communication and in the case of a crisis they must have the possibility to support each other.

Q. When was a case of sabotage on telephonic communication lines especially effective?

A. Especially, of course, when there was tense situation and when unrest appeared here and there.

Q. Why did you now direct that an investigation of this case should take place; why were you of the opinion that in the case in question wrong measures had been taken?

A. From the report it is clear that the troubles in communications were of a considerable nature. About 100 telegraph or telephone poles had been cut down or sawed down and a number of kilometers of wire had been cut off. In the Balkans this is, of course of great importance, because there was no subterranean cables there and because of the great distance and bad roads and then because of the small forces available the repair of such cuts took considerable time. From the report I gained the impression that in this case they had dealt with it only in a superficial manner and the person should be arrested for a time until a further clarification took place.

Q. Now General Boehme reported to you in his letter of the 13th of October that he ordered every fifth house to be burned down; did you receive this message?

A. I could no longer receive this message because it was only written on the 13th, it was sent by letter and because on the 15th I was no longer in office.

Q. And finally in the Crabovac case, General Boehme reported on the 20th of October that the village of Crabovac was burnt down and 73 residents were shot because the troops had been shot at from this village; did you receive this message or did you obtain any knowledge of its contents?

A. For the reasons already mentioned, I could not know of it.

Q. We now turn to Exhibit 78, that is the case Topola of the Signals regiment exhibit 78, which may be found in the English document book 3 on page 1 and also in German document book 3 on page 1.

Before I put a few questions regarding this case to the witness, I should like to draw the attention of the Court to the fact that this case is dealt with eleven times.

MR. DENNEY: Can you give the page numbers and the volumes a little slower? We find it difficult to keep up with Dr. Laternser. I would appreciate it if he would give them a little slower.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I think that you --

DR. LATERNSER: Yes, of course.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I simplified the matter myself. I'm simply noting the exhibit numbers and will follow with the rest later.

DR. LATERNSER: Volume 4, page 93, Exhibit 122. Your Honor, only to mention the number of the exhibit would not suffice because they are usually a rather voluminous number of reports.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may follow your own procedure.

DR. LATERNSER: Exhibit 124, volume 4, page 143 , Exhibit 127, volume 5, page 56; Exhibit 128, volume 5, page 117; and Exhibit 527, volume 24, page 38.

BY DR. LATERNSER:

Q. We see from Exhibit 78, volume 3, page 1 of both document books -- that on the second of October between Belgrade and Obrenovac, 21 soldiers, German soldiers, were murdered in a cruel manner by communist bands. When did you learn of this report?

A. The first report addressed to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is dated the 9th of October, 1941. On that day, I was in Crete and I returned on the 11th of October, and so the earliest I can have learned of this incident was on the 11th of October in the evening.

Q. What were the connections between the Army staff and yourself during your presence in Crete?

A. I had no connections with the staff during that time.

Q. How were you informed after you returned from official trips?

A. The chief of staff reported to me about everything that had happened in the meantime. During an absence of four days, that amounted of course to quite a number of things, so that the individual incident did not gain so much prominence as if it had been reported separately.

Q. Do you remember to have learned of this case at that time?

A. I remember this case rather obscurely.

Q. In Exhibit 80, the prosecution -- that is Exhibit 80, volume 3 of the English text and pages 4 to 10 ; volume 3, pages 3 to 8 in the German text. The prosecution has submitted a report regarding the shooting by way of reprisal. Did you gain any knowledge of this report?

A. No, the report was received by the Army High Commander on the 15th of October, and it was addressed not to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast but to the Army High Command 12. And the sender was the second battallion of the Army Signals Regiment 521. That means that in this case it was directed to the office in the staff of Army High Command 12 to which the second battalio of the Army Signals Regiment 521 was subordinate. That was the army signals Officer. But even if the report had been immediately dispatched to me, I could not have received it, because from that day onwards, I was no longer acting in my official capacity.

Q. I have just been told that "Nachrichtenfuehrer" was translated as the "intelligence" -- that is not the correct translation. It is not the person who collects news but who is responsible for the technical transmission of news. That is, the person who is responsible for having telephonic communications established.

THE INTERPRETER: The correct translation for "Nachrichtenfuehrer" I see, is staff signal communication officer.

Q. Do you know whether, in this case, actually 2,000 persons were shot?

A. I do not know that. I can only draw the conclusion from this report and this report says that a number of slightly over 400 were shot. A conclusive report on the part of a unit I did not find here.

Q. We now turn to Exhibit 83. We find this in the English document book 3, page 18, in the German document book 3, page 15.

That is the case of Kraljovo. What did you learn about this incident, at that time?

A. I did not learn anything about this incident.

Q. Why not?

A. These attacks took place between the 14th and 17th of October at a time during which I was no longer active in my official capacity.

Q. When were you operated on ?

A. October 17 .

Q. When did you go to bed?

A. On the 15th.

Q. Now regarding Exhibit 84 which contains the case of Valjovo, that is in the English document book 3, page 22, and German document book 3, page 19. What do you know about this incident?

A. I can only repeat what I said before, nothing. It took place even later than the other incident mentioned.

Q. Now as regards Exhibit 87, which we find on page 32 of the English document book 3 and the German book 3 on page 26, this is the case Cragujevac regarding which we had here a witness of the prosecution. Was this incident reported to you?

A. No, it couldn't be reported to me because it took place between the 19th and the 21st of October when I was absent.

Q. Now a few individual cases concerning Greece. In Exhibit 111; English document book 3, page 142; German document book 3, page 97, in this exhibit an operation is mentioned against eight localities which I need not enumerate separately. Was this incident reported to you?

A. I can no longer tell whether this happened or not. If so, then this incident would not have been very conspicuous to me. Apparently this is a case of a fight with bandits.

Q. In the same exhibit on page 141 of the English document book and page 96 of the German, a mopping up operation in five localities is mentioned, during the course of which 27 Greeks were shot during resistance or in fighting. What do you know about this incident?

A. That incident too I cannot remember; according to the report it is beyond question a fight against bands.

Q. The next three incidents in the same exhibit I can summarize in one question I am sure. This is a case on page 90-- I correct myself -- on page 144 of the English document book against the villages Amokatokerzillio and on the 19th and 20th of October against further localities near Evangelistria and on the 23rd of October against two further localities, among others Celli. What is your attitude to these three incidents?

A. I can only say here that I could not gain any knowledge of those three incidents.

Q. The prosecution has submitted Exhibit 59, which we find on page 79 of the English document book 2 and in the German document book 2 on page 63. From this exhibit 59, we see that in connection with the finding of explosives, 10, Communists and 3 Jews were shot. Were you informed of this incident at that time?

A. I can't tell you today whether I received this message or not. If I received it, I had to assume that the sentence and the execution took place because of the attacks against the occupation power, after a summary court martial or as a reprisal, but not because of racial reasons.

Q. In the same exhibit on page 79 of the German, and page—I am sorry I am not in a position to name the English pages. No, I correct myself -- on page 98 of the English. This contains a report to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast from which it follows that parts of the male Jewish population in Belgrade were sent to a transit camp near Belgrade. Were you informed about these intentions before they took place?

A. No.

Q. Did you obtain knowledge of this report?

A. I cannot remember it.

Q. I am now returning to Exhibit 64 in English document book 2, page 117; in the German document book on page 91. This exhibit contains a report of the Plenipotentiary Commanding General Serbia addressed to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast dated the 26th of September, and it follows from this report that in Smederovo and the neighborhood Jews were arrested and, as stated in the report, they were arrested as instigators of the revolt. Did you obtain knowledge of this report?

A. This too, I cannot say today whether I received it or not. If I had received it-- I would have to draw the conclusion from this report that the arrest took place exclusively because these were the instigators of the revolt.

Q. I now turn to Exhibit No. 127 in the English document book 5. We find it on page 27, and in the German document book 5 on page 34. According to this report, as a reprisal measure for a surprise attack against a German motor car on the 29th of July, a hundred Jews were to be shot. Do you know whether this shooting took place?

A. I beg your pardon, I don't have this report before me.

Q. It is on page 33 of the German document book 5.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: What page in the English document book?

DR. LATERNER: In the English document book on page 27. I am told that it is on page 39. I beg your pardon.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You have been correctly informed.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. What date does this report bear?

A. It bears the date of the 27th of July.

Q. Where were you on the 27th of July.

A. In Vienna.

Q. Do you know whether this shooting was carried out?

A. No.

Q. We find -- and now this finishes my concluding questions. I want to deal first with Exhibit 100-B 27. This is a supplement to the third English document book and we find it behind, after page 78 and in the German document book 3 as a supplement behind page 57. This Exhibit is a statement by Kiessel which was made on the 24th of March, 1947, in Belgrade.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honors, I believe that exhibit we put in a separate folder.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: I don't find it in mine.

MR. DENNEY: Well, if your Honors recall, we put them -- we took the Yugoslav exhibit and put them in a separate folder and kept them separate from book 3 because I don't think they fit in that book. The Yugoslav report, pictures, the Kiessel affidavit, various newspaper clippings.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: They referred to as 100-B-item 27?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors recall, there is 100-B, then 100B 1, etc. This part is 100-B 27.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: If you'll pass that for the time being we'll request the messenger to secure a copy for Judge Wennerstrum and a copy from my office. I think Judge Carter has his. Judge Carter?

JUDGE CARTER: Yes.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honors, may I be allowed to suggest that this be completed during the recess, and then we can continue after the recess.

JUDGE BURKE : It is the thought of the Tribunal that we will continue until 11:30, and then adjourn until after the noon. Is it possible without interrupting the continuity of your examination to proceed with some other matters at this time until the document books are brought in by the messenger?

DR. LATERNER: Yes

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: If you'll pause at this moment, Dr. Laterner, because of the necessity of the adjustment -- not an error, but a readjustment because of the additional length of time to make the film continue until 11:30. So, if you will discontinue (Pause) until the Tribunal notifies you?

You may proceed, Dr. Laterner.

BY DR. LATERNER:

This Exhibit 100-B 27 is a statement by Kiessel, which he made in Belgrade. Who was Kiessel?

A. As far as I can see now from the documents he belonged to the staff of War Administrative Chief.

Q. In which capacity?

A. He worked on administrative matters -- police matters.

Q. What were his further functions subsequently?

A. From the press I learned later on that he was one of the chief prosecutors of the conspirators of the 29th of July.

Q. Kiessel says on Page 21 that the Military Commander Serbia, a few days after the 29th of April, was subordinate to the AOK-12. Is that correct?

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: Pardon me, which document is Page 21?

DR. LATERNER: That is the first page of Document 100 B-27. which is numbered 21 at the bottom of this document. I assume that the same page number is found in the English text.

JUDGE WENNERSTRUM: The first page is numbered 24.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, the reason for the difference in the pagination, the figure 21 appears at the bottom of Dr. Laterner's copy in the German and 24 at the top of the English. The document if Your Honors recall, originally was in Serbian -- Yugoslav, and when it was translated into the German and English the pagination was different. That's the reason for it.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. The matter to which I refer is on the first page of this extract from the record of the interrogation. I asked whether it was correct if Kiessel says that the Military Commander Serbia a few days after the 24th of April was subordinate to Army High Command 12.

A. No.

Q. Kiessel goes on to say on the next page that a police battalion was subordinate to the operational department instead of Thurner and was, therefore, misused. What do you know about that?

A. The Chief of Staff reported to me at that time that the Military Commander Serbia had telephoned whether this police battalion could be subordinated to the Command Staff by him, whereupon I answered him. that the Military Commander might act in the way he deemed suitable. It was quite convenient for us because in this manner this police battalion was not delivered into the hands of Thurner who had the intention of trying to build up a sort of body guard for himself.

Q. Kiessel continues on the 4th page of the extract that it was typical of the conditions that you, during your first visit in Serbia, landed at Nish, and that you first asked for Bader and not for the Military Commander. How did that come about?

A. I did not land at Nish. I arrived by train in Nish, and the line from Salonika to Belgrade goes via Nish. It was, therefore, understandable that I first went to Nish. There I was received by General Bader who was at the same time the deputy of the Commander Serbia. The Commander Serbia had been prevented by an air-craft accident to come to Nish. Otherwise he certainly would have been present.

Q. In the next paragraph Kiessel maintains this: Contrary to the report of Field Marshal List, dated 23rd of August 1941, in Belgrade, the OKH has, after Nedic was made Premier in September, 1941, sent General Bomehne with a staff, of one Mountain troops, which were in Greece, to Belgrade with the order to quell the rising. Is that correct in the way Kiessel represents it here?

A. No, it's quite impossible that on the 23rd of August I could have made such an utterance, because at that time I had just returned from my leave, and I found completely changed conditions in Belgrade. And the thought that Boehme could have been appointed Plenipotentiary General in Serbia was not considered at that time at all.

Q. Kiessel further states that reprisal measures took place between the 28th of June and the 20th of July, 1941, because of an attack on a grandstand. He says that these reprisals which had been ordered had been ordered by General von Schroeder with your consent. What do you say to that?

A. I have never talked to Schroeder either by word of mouth or by telephone.

Q. Finally Kiessel says in his statement that the Chief of Staff Gravenhorst with the Commander Serbia maintained that he had the power and the authority to take ten reprisal hostages for one victim on the German side. What do you know about that?

A. I've never given such authority.

Q. You know that the prosecution also charges you with the responsibility for the Commissar Order which is in Exhibit 13 and Exhibit 14. We find it in the English Document Book I on page 49 and in the German document book on page 34.

JUDGE CARTER: Which document book?

DR. LATERNER: Document Book I, page 49.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. Did you receive this Commissar Order?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whether the Commissar Order was distributed in the Southeast?

A. No.

Q. Is one case known to you in which the Commissar Order was applied in the Southeast?

A. No.

Q. We now come to the concluding questions. When did you conclude your activities in the Balkans?

A. It was the 15th of October 1941.

Q. What was your illness then?

A. I had an appendicitis operation.

Q. And when did you go into the hospital?

A. On the 16th of October.

Q. You said before that you were operated on on the 17th of October.

A. Yes.

Q. Who was your deputy for the initial period?

A. On the 18th of October the OKW appointed General Kunze as my deputy, but he only arrived on the 26th of October in Athens.

Q. When did he take over the duties of your office?

A. On the 27th of October.

Q. Who managed matters in the meantime?

A. What the arrangement was in detail is not known to me.

Q. During your sickness did you have any official connection with the Staff of the Army High Command 12, or the Armed Forces Commander Southeast?

A. I had no official connection.

Q. Was your illness so serious that you could not be bothered with official matters?

A. Yes. General Kunze, too, could not come to me at once because my state of health did not allow this at the time of his arrival.

Q. How long did you remain in the hospital?

A. Until the 6th of December 1941.

Q. And where were you in the hospital?

A.. In Sismanoglion, in the immediate neighborhood of Athens.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: The Tribunal will stand adjourned until two o'clock this afternoon.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 1400 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION (The Tribunal reconvened at 1400 hours)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, may I first of all announce that I, in my capacity as defense counsel of Field Marshal List, and my colleague Dr. Menzel, as defense counsel of the defendant Kuntze, after Field Marshal List has been examined as a witness, we will produce a witness, the former Lt. Colonel Wenning. I am announcing it in order that the 24-hour limit be kept to.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Have you any comment at this time, Mr. Denney.

MR. DENNEY: I would just like to know that if defense counsel are able to advise us who the man is and how he spells his name.

DR. LATERNSE: The witness is at the moment in Nuernberg. His name is spelled as follows: Dietloff von Wenning.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: And at what time do you expect to produce him?

DR. LATERNSE: We shall produce him after concluding the examination of the witness who is on the witness stand now. That will be in the course of tomorrow.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Very well.

DR. LATERNSE: After the 24-hour limit has passed.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. Shortly before the recess you had stated that on the 6th or the 8th of December 1941 you had left the hospital and that you had been in a military hospital in Sismanoglion.

A. Sismanoglion.

Q. Where did you go after you left the hospital?

A. After I left the hospital, I went to Vienna, and then to Partenkirchen.

Q After you were discharged from the hospital, were you being medically treated?

A I was being treated for some time as an outside patient.

Q After you were completely recovered, did you again become Wehrmacht Commander Southeast?

A No.

Q Why not?

A Because, as Keitel told me, I had given the impression to Hitler that I had not crushed the insurgent movement in Serbia energetically enough.

Q After your recovery did you undertake steps to be employed again?

A No.

Q Why not?

A I had an opportunity during my stay at home to gain a better insight into the conditions at the time and into the activities of the Party.

Q Were you used again in an official capacity?

A Yes.

Q How did that come about?

A In the course of June I was asked to see Hitler at the Obersalzberg and he told me that he intended to use me in the East as Commander-in-Chief of an army group. This army group would be newly formed out of the Army Group von Bock, at a date and time when the offensive intended by him of a rather extensive nature had taken its start. I asked him at that time whether sufficient forces were available for such an extensive offensive, whereupon he told me yes, that would be his business and I shouldn't worry about it.

In reply to my further question about how the supply lines were secured in this rather difficult case, he answered quite briefly. I had the impression that he did not want to deal with all these things in detail.

Q When did you take up this command?

A. During June and the end of June I went to Poltava and I got the command on the 17th of July, and the time previous to that Hitler had been in Poltava for discussion with Field Marshal von Bock. There it was expressly pointed out to him that I was present; I was not called to attend this discussion.

Q. What course did the operation then take?

A. I advanced with the army group in the general direction via Rostov towards the Black Sea and against the passes of the Caucasian range. After I had reached the shores of the Black Sea in the neighborhood of Novorossisk, and the peaks of the Caucasus, Hitler asked that I attack with the forces of approximately one mountain corps across the Caucasus down to the Black Sea.

Q. Did you execute this order with the partial forces at your command?

A. I objected to this order because, though it probably would have been possible to carry it out, it would have brought the troops into a position for which I could not take the responsibility. Several times I asked by telephone to be allowed to report to Hitler personally about this, but I did not succeed in that. Therefore, I asked Jodl to come and see me. He arrived the next day by plane and agreed with me, and he promised, on the same afternoon, to bring me an answer from Hitler as I wished. This answer arrived after about one day and a half. This agreement of Jodls' with me had caused sharp controversy, as far as Hitler was concerned, which affected all the generals at the headquarters.

Q. Now, what was the end of this business?

A. After I had received the teletype, which in its essentials agreed with my views, Hitler did not insist on the attack. Field Marshal Keitel came to see me the next day and told me that the Fuehrer no longer had sufficient faith in me. For that reasons he asked me to resign my command of this Army Group. Keitel saw me between about 10 and 11 o'clock in the morning; at 12 o'clock I resigned.

Q. Where did you go then?

A. The next day I went by plane to Vienna.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: What was that date, please?

DR. LATERNSE: Which date was that?

DEFENDANT LIST: That was on the 10th of September 1942.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. And when did your discussion with Keitel take place?

A. On the 9th of September 1942.

Q. Well, how did it happen that you were allowed to resign from your post?

A. That was only possible because Hitler wished it. If I had not fulfilled this wish I would probably have received the order to do so.

Q. Were you personally injured or offended when you were asked to resign?

A. For an higher officer, during war-time, it is not particularly pleasant if he has to resign from his post, but , on the other hand, in this case, I looked upon it as quite a comforting situation because I told myself that in this manner I evaded quite a number of conflicts which would have had to come.

Q. What did you do after you left the Service?

A. After a short stay in Vienna I went to Partenkirchen; as soon as my treatment was no longer necessary in Vienna.

Q. And what did you do chiefly in Partenkirchen?

A. I lived a purely family life, and I spent some time on history and the history of art, and as long as it was possible, I did a lot of work in my garden.

Q. With whom did you have social contact?

A. In Garmisch-Partenkirchen I was a friend of General von Adam, who had left the service in 1938; I was also friendly with the General of the Artillery, Kuehlenthal, who , before the war, had to leave the Service for racial reasons. And then there were some other people, who did not, however, become intimate friends of mine.

Q. You said General Kuehlenthal had to leave the Service for racial reasons. What was your attitude -- we have not discussed this yet, -- regarding the Jewish question?

A. My attitude to the Jewish question is quite obvious from my behavior during the Jewish Programs in the year 1938 in Vienna. Apart from that I had a number of acquaintances who were Jewish themselves or who were married to Jewesses.

Q. Even during the war?

A. Yes, even in Partenkirchen.

Q. Was it know to you during the war that the majority of the Jews had been taken to concentration camps?

A. In the course of the war, the first time about 1941 or 1942, I heard of individual incidents that Jews were put into concentration camps.

To a greater extent about this I only learned after leaving the Service, and I learned of the total extent only after the end of the war.

Q. From then on that is from your resignation in 1942, what was your attitude to the Party circles in Partenkirchen?

A. I had no contact whatever with Party circles. I did not even know the Kreisleiter or the Ortsgruppenleiter of Partenkirchen.

Q. With whom did you have contact at that time, apart from those people mentioned.

A. I only had a very little contact outside Partenkirchen. There was an old friend from my university days. I also had contacts with the Infantry General of the Infantry Olbricht. He had been my former Chief of Staff in Dresden while I was Commanding General there.

Q. Did he often visit you?

A. He visited me about every two or three months.

Q. What did you talk about during these visits?

A. He always gave me a picture of the general situation and the military situation, and I had the impression that he was bothered by a lot of cares which he wanted to get rid of by talking to me.

Q. What was General Olbricht's fate?

A. General Olbricht was a leading conspirator during the 20th of July 1944, and he was shot in the Reich War Ministry.

Q. Were you informed about the plans leading to the attempt on Hitler's life in July of 1944?

A. No, I was not informed about these plans.

Q. Did you yourself suffer from the after-effects of the plot of July 20th?

A. Insofar as very early the next day a post office employee told me that my telephone communications were being tapped by the Gestapo, that is, they were being connected with the Gestapo line.

And insofar as during the next weeks, which I could easily recognize I was shadowed by some SS men in civilian clothes who were quartered in a nearby SS hospital.

Q. How and where were you when the war came to an end?

A. I was in Garmisch-Partenkirchen when the war ended, and I was able to make a small contribution in an unofficial way, to have Garmisch-Partenkirchen declared an open city, because in Garmisch -- Partenkirchen seventeen military hospitals were situated. Therefore, no fighting occurred in Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

Q I am now putting my last question. At the beginning of these proceedings you stated that you do not feel guilty.

A Yes.

Q Are you still of this opinion, after the Prosecution has submitted its evidence.

A Yes. During my forty four years of military service it had always been my principle to instruct my men, old officers and young officers, in the guiding principles of justice, humanity, and fairness; and I have followed these guiding principles all my life and have tried to apply them in every situation as energetically as possible. This guiding principle was valid for me. It was, of course, also valid for me for my activity in the Balkans. If, at first sight, some measures, in view of the very bad material available, look rather inhuman, these measures too have their origin. And I want to assure you of this; I want, your Honor, to know that they had their origin in military necessity, and they sprang from no other motives.

Q For the time being I have no further questions.

DR. RAUSCHENBACH: Dr. Rauschenbach for the Defendant Foertsch.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: You may proceed.

BY DR. RAUSCHENBACH:

Q Field Marshal List, I have only a few questions regarding General Foertsch. When did General Foertsch become Chief of Staff with you?

A Foertsch became Chief of Staff during the first ten days of May, 1941.

Q Did you ask for this change in your Chiefs of Staff?

A No.

Q Was this change a surprise to you?

AA complete surprise.

Q Was this change desired by you?

A This change was like every change of this kind, one had agreed with the predecessor, it was highly undesirable.

Q Did you know General Foertsch previously?

A I knew General Foertsch quite superficially from a few official meetings in the Reich War Ministry.

Q What was your opinion of him? From the personal papers of General Foertsch I have found no judgment concerning him from you.

A Foertsch has a clear intellect; he can talk well, and he can also write well. He was a very keen worker. He was adroit and showed himself so in intercourse with superiors, with equals, and with subordinates; in his social intercourse with our allies. The Staff had full faith in him. Summing up, I can only say that he was an excellent Chief of Staff.

Q Was he a so-called trouble maker?

A No; on the contrary, he supported me when I complained to the OKW, and we had, of course, no other aim than to occupy a pacified country. I mean we did not welcome the transfer of larger stretches of Greece and Croatia to the Italians and of further parts of occupied territories to the Bulgarians.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Just a moment, please.

BY DR. RAUSCHENBACH:

Q Did General Foertsch have any tendency towards transgressions in his office?

A I never experienced or saw him transgressing his powers.

Q Do you have the impression that he reported everything to you which required your decision as Commander in Chief and which you had to know?

A I had the very definite impression that he informed me regarding everything I had to know.

Q Did he ever transgress his powers as Chief of the General Staff?

A No case is know to me, and I never heard anything from subordinate officers that they complained about such actions.

Q What was the relation to the commanders subordinate to you? Did you ever hear any complaints?

A No, I always had the impression that the  very pleasant and satisfactory one.

Q And what was his relationship with the OKW?

A His attitude was very critical. Some of the directives we received he could not understand because they had been issued without sufficient knowledge of our conditions.

Q And how did he represent his and your views to the OKW?

A I had the impression that he represented our view in a very adroit and firm way.

Q What is known to you regarding the views of General Foertsch at that time towards the Party?

A His attitude became more and more critical and negative in the course of time.

Q Now, a last question. Even before the 31st of August was the employment of the XVIIIth Mountain Corps considered for Serbia?

A Nobody thought of it at that time.

Q Thank you; I have no further questions.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: Any further questions by members of the Defense Counsel Staff? Mr. Denney?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, in view of the statement which was made yesterday, I would appreciate it if I could have sometime to go over my notes. The could adjourn until tomorrow morning, because I understand that this witness is not to be cross-examined until a later time.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is the view of the Tribunal that, in view of the quantitative suggestion of the Tribunal yesterday, with respect to the order of the testimony, your request is reasonable and will be granted. The Tribunal will adjourn until tomorrow morning at half past nine.

THE MARSHAL: The Court will be in recess until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(Court adjourned at 1445 hours, until 0930 19 Sept 1947.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the court room will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the court.

May it please Your Honors, all defendants are present in the Court room.

The persons in the court room will be seated.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Sauter?

DR. SAUTER (for the defendant Lanz):

Your Honor, may I put a few short questions to the witness, please.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

BY DR. SAUTER:

Q. Witness, when you were directly examined you told us that in April 1941 when the two Greek Armies capitulated, that is, the Thracian Army, the Eastern Army, - that happened on the 9th of April 1941, if I am correct, and the Epirus Army, that was the Western Army, and if I recollect properly that happened either on the 21st or 23rd of April? That is correct; isn't it?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. All right, in connection with that I am interested in the following. In view of this fact does that mean the whole Greek Army capitulated or were there any larger units of the Greek Armed Forces excepted from this surrender?

A. The capitulation of the Thracian Army and the Epirus Army meant that the entire Greek Land Army capitulated.

Q. If I understand you correctly you had no doubt that through this surrender its existence was discontinued?

A. There could be no doubt whatsoever about that.

Q. Did you know as the responsible German Army leader, and I repeat, did you know as responsible German Army leader, at that time, consider in any way the possibility that the fight on the part of the Greek troops would later be continued by any other organization?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor I object to Dr. Sauter leading the witness; he can ask him what he knew, but he is putting the answer to the question.

DR. SAUTER: It was not a leading question because everybody in the court room could and must hear from the answer to the previous question what I again asked the witness in order to exclude any doubt.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed; the objection is overruled and I doubt the necessity of repeating the question.

BY DR. SAUTER:

Q. Witness, in connection with your previous answer I had put to you the question: Did you, as the responsible German Army leader in the Greek area, consider the possibility or the likelihood that after the surrender of the whole Greek Army the fight would be taken up again by any other kind of organization? Did you count on this possibility or likelihood?

A. I did not count on this possibility. Otherwise I would not have immediately, after the capitulation, released all Greek soldiers. Any other units did not exist in Greece.

Q. Witness, just one last question. The Greek witnesses which have been examined here described the situation as if so to speak the Greek Army had never capitulated and that the Greek Partisans were a kind of legitimate successor of the Greek Army. Do you share this opinion or is this opinion, according to your personal knowledge; incorrect?

A. That the Greek Army ceased to exist and that the surrender extended over the whole Greek land army is a fact. That can be seen from the fact that as of that day; that is the 9th of April; concerning the Thracian Army; and as of the 21st of April concerning the Epirus Army; no further fighting took place. All Greek troops as a consequence of the surrender ceased hostilities not only against us but also against the Italians and the Epirus Army surrender was carried out without any necessity of applying force on the part of the German troops or anything like that.

DR SAUTER: Your Honor; I have no further questions to put to the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any further examination on behalf of any of the other German counsel? If not; you may proceed with the cross-examination; Mr. Denney.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY MR. DENNEY:

Q. You told us about the Munich Putsch attempt in 1923. Just what was your connection with that event?

A. With my battalion that was stationed in Kempten and in Lindau I was alerted during the night; transported by rail to Munich during the night and there I was employed for the maintenance of security.

Q. For whom were you acting in that affair?

A. For the Kahr Government of that day in Munich.

Q. And who were you opposing?

A. Hitler and the National Socialist party.

Q. Do you know what they were trying to do?

A. Who?

Q. Hitler and his National Socialists.

A. They had tried to overthrow the Kahr government.

Q. Then were you successful in your efforts?

A. Yes.

Q. Some time later I believe you told us you had to flee because of what happened there.

A. That must be an error.

Q. Perhaps you can straighten it out for me then. What happened after that?

A. May I explain that the fleeing may be connected with the statement that I said on the occasion of the Raete Putsch and the establishment of the Spartacist rule I had to flee from Munich; that was in the year 1918.

Q. I see; thank you. Then you were on duty at the Infantry School about 1930. Is that right?

A. Spring 1930.

Q. And there you noticed some attempts on the part of the National Socialists to influence the young officers?

A. The influencing of the young officers had taken place already prior to that in various and individual troop units.

I was given the instructions and the task to prevent that such attempts would be carried out in the Infantry School.

Q. And you did everything you could to prevent the ideas of National Socialism from being conveyed to the young officers of the Infantry School?

A. I could not prevent that these ideas were communicated to these young people because they were very free with their connections on the outside but in any case I tried to prevent that it had any effect in the school itself and also on the thoughts and ideas of these young officers.

Q. You wanted to be sure so far as the instruction went that the school was restricted purely to military matters and didn't get involved in the Party ideology?

A. Yes, one can express it like that.

Q. And you were successful in your efforts?

A. Yes.

Q. And when the Hitler government came to power because, you have stated, that they were duly elected, you saw no reason to discontinue your position in the Army?

A. No, I saw no cause to do that.

Q. Then, you recall that early in 1940 I believe it was you had a talk with Brauchitsch with reference to the possibility of further military action in the West?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was Brauchitsch?

A. Brauchitsch was the Commander in Chief of the Army.

Q. And he at that time was a Field Marshall?

A. He was at that time a full General, (Generaloberst).

Q. And what was your rank then?

A. I was also a full general (Generaloberst.)

Q. And you made a memorandum as a result of your talk with Brauchitsch which you forwarded to Hitler?

A. May I put that right?

Q. Certainly.

A. I had written out a memorandum purely for my own personal use that was very brief ideas of mine which I put down just for my own personal use. Then Brauchitsch came on a visit to see me and he talked to me about these operations which were in consideration and asked me about my own opinion. And on this occasion I told him I had put them down in a brief form and I informed him about the main contents of this memorandum. Then he said I should put these very same ideas to Hitler if at any time I had the opportunity to do that.

Q. Did you ever have the opportunity?

A. No, I never had that opportunity.

Q. Then you went to a meeting in 1939, November. Was that at the Reich Chancellory in Berlin?

A. I cannot recollect where that discussion took place, in what particular room.

Q. Well, I am not interested in the room; do you know where it was?

A. In Berlin.

Q. And Hitler was there and he had the ranking Generals there?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were there?

A. It was a very large meeting where the Commanders in Chief and all Commanding Generals and I don't know whether there were divisional commanders too but all those present ; I can't tell you the exact number of those present now but if I picture now the room where the meeting took place I think there were at least a hundred people or even more.

Q. And it was there that you and some of the other older Generals were accused by Hitler as being timid?

A. He had probably heard that ideas had been expressed against the war amongs the older Generals and that such thoughts existed and for that reason he reproached just us older Generals with our timidity.

Q. And when you were in the Southeast were you again accused of not being aggressive enough.

A. Keitel made a remark of that kind to me and he made this remark the reason that after my recovery I was not sent again to the Southeast.

Q. When was that that Keitel said that, if you can recall.

A. That was in March or April 1942.

Q. Where were you at that time?

A. In Partenkirchen.

Q. Now, you have said that you have always held yourself above the Party considerations, that you tried to do your duty as a soldier and kept away from political things?

A, Yes

Q. Now, to your rank of Field Marshall, you were promoted Field Marshall when?

A. That was after the campaign against France July 1940.

Q. And to retrace for a moment, you have spoken of Keitel.

Will you tell the Tribunal who Keitel was.

A. He was Field Marshall Keitel and he was a Chief of the High Command of the Armed Forces.

Q. And how long did he hold that position, roughly. You don't have to give the exact date. Until approximately the end of the war?

A. I don't know when he started on this position but he occupied it until the end of the war.

Q. In 1940 when you were promoted Field Marshall in July following the campaign in France how many Field Marshalls were there in the Wehrmacht?

A. I cannot give the figure here now. I believe in the Army there were either nine or twelve Field Marshalls, but I can be mistaken in this figure and maybe included those people who were later promoted. I can't say for sure at the moment.

Q Well, then, do you knew what your position was in the rank list when you were promoted Field Marshal?

A I believe I was on the place after General von Bock.

Q Well, do you know numerically where you were or where von Bock was?

A It was the fifth or the sixth place.

Q So that in 1940 you were the fifth or sixth ranking Field Marshal in the army and did your position at any time between the time you were appointed Field Marshal in July, 1940, and the time when you retired from active duty in early September of 1942?

A No.

Q Roughly, from an area standpoint, how big was the territory under your command in the southeast?

AAAt the time when I was Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, it was an area of about the size of Germany at that time.

Q Well, perhaps you can be a little more specific. The boundaries of Germany were changing somewhat in 1941.

A It is very difficult to say that. The distance from Belgrade to Grete would probably correspond with the distance from Aachen (Aix la Chapelle) to Minsk.

Q It certainly was an area which was substantially larger than the Third Reich as it was constituted prior to 1 September 1939.

A Yes, it was larger. That is right.

Q When you commenced operations in the Southeast sometime early in April, 1941, how many troops did you have under your command?

A You mean the divisions, numerically? How many divisions?

Q Well, you were commander of an army.

Q And how many corps were in the army?

A The army had five corps.

Q You had an army which was composed of five corps and approximately how many divisions in total?

A It was somewhere between 10 and 15 divisions.

Q Well now, taking an army with ten to fifteen divisions, five corps, the necessary corps troops, and an army troops and army rear area troops, roughly how many men would you say that you had under your command?

AAbout 200,000.

Q And then after things got somewhat more stable in the Southeast and the second army under Field Marshal von Weichs had withdrawn, what troops did you have down there as of the date of approximately June, 1941?

A Do you mean at the time when I was already armed forces commander or at the time when I was only in Greece?

Q Well, let's take both of them. Let's take first when you just had Greece and then later when you were armed forces commander?

A In Greece I had, additionally, one corps and about four-and-a-half divisions and a few forces for security reasons, security battalions.

Q How many men would that make approximately?

THE PRESIDENT: May I make inquiry as to whether there is some mechanical trouble or something that this can be avoided.

MR. DENNEY: I know this isn't intentional, your Honor. I don't know -

THE PRESIDENT: Marshal, if you will try to ascertain the trouble.

Mr. Denney, the difficulty caused by this squeaking is apparently mechanical. They are calling a man up from the office. If it isn't to objectionable, if you can proceed until he gets here and if he comes and it is necessary, of course, to take a short recess, why we will do that, Mr. Marshal. If its gets too bad, we will stop until it is cleared up.

BY MR. DENNEY:

Q Just before we had the mechanical interruption, I had asked you how many men you had in Greece in these four-and-a-half divisions and the security battalions. Will you tell us, please?

A I cannot say that from memory. I can hardly say that or I can just say it very approximately. Roughly about 60,000 men.

Q And then when you became forces commander Southeast, what was the approximate strength of the troops under your command?

A That is even more difficult to estimate because I cannot recollect now how many security battalions and how many infantry battalions were present in Serbia which also have to be taken into account apart from and besides the four divisions which were in any case stationed in Serbia. I can really not name a figure here because that would be too vague. If one counts the four divisions and the infantry battalions, that could have been also approximately somewhere between 50 and 60 thousand, but that is the best I can say.

Q Those were the troops in Serbia excluding the security battalions which you are unable to recall?

A I didn't understand the question.

Q And those four divisions and additional infantry regiments of which you spoke, 50 to 60 thousand men, are the troops in Serbia, not including the security battalions?

A This figure constitutes the troops in Serbia, divisions and security troops.

Q And those were in addition to the troops in Greece?

A Yes.

Q You have spoken about the chief of staff, various chiefs of staff which you had and the general staff. Will you tell the Tribunal what the duties of the chief of staff were, particularly with reference to the period when you were armed forces commander Southeast?

A The chief of Staff had charge of all affairs within the staff. He had to inform his commander in chief about the important matters and to make sure that the various department chiefs reported to him and that he in turn made this report. The current affairs of a not fundamental and basic nature. He was in a position to deal with himself, inasmuch as they concerned orders and instructions to lower echelons, he had to submit those to the commander in chief for signature and execution. The chief of staff is not concerned, with any matters of judicial activities.

Q Now, you say that he had charge of all the staff duties, Who were the members of a staff, what you call a generalstab?

A That would be department Ia. That is the department in charge of operations, troop movements, etc. Then department Ic, that is the intelligence service, and the quartermaster department. That deals with supplies, food rations, etc., and then there are the departments for personnel matters and the medical service and the veterinary service and the administration.

The administration dealt with food supplies, clothing, etc.

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me please. If we recess without leaving our positions, I think perhaps the mechanical difficulties can be taken care of.

(A recess was taken.)

Page 3,297

AFTERNOON SESSION (The hearing reconvened at 1330 hours, 19 September 1947). WILHELM LIST - Resumed CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, Mr. Prosecutor.

BY MR. DENNEY:

Q Witness, just before we suspended you were detailing the composition of a general staff. You spoke of the duties of the chief of staff, stating that he had charge of all of the duties that were performed by the various staff members; that the chief of staff had to . . inform the commander – in your case that would be the commanding general or the commanding field marshal – on all important matters; that the chief of staff had to be sure that all of the departmental chiefs reported to him as chief of staff about the various matters that occurred within their departments and that he in turn passed this information on to you. Do you recall that?

A Yes.

Q And then you indicated the positions of some of the staff members, the Ia who is the operations officer, and that I believe is similar to the G3 in a general staff in the United States Army. Are you familiar with the American terminology?

A No.

Q Thank you. And the Ic who was in charge of intelligence, the quartermaster and various other general staff officers, including those in charge of personnel, medical matters, veterinary matters and administrative matters.

Now, what was the rank of your chief of staff when you were Armed Forces Commander South-East?

A. Foertsch was at that time a Colonel.

Q Now, what was the rank of his subordinates in the staff, that is, the Ia, Ic, quartermaster, and so forth?

A They were at that time, as far as I can remember, lieutenant colonels. Whether Kuebler was at that time already a full colonel I don't know.

Q But in any event the chief of staff or the members of the staff did not have general officer rank?

A Later on, yes; not at that time.

Q Yes; but then?

AAAt that time, no.

Q Any orders that they issued were issued in your name?

A When I had given instructions, then, yes. As far as I know I didn't sign them in my own hand. Most of the orders which I issued, I signed myself.

Q Were any of them authorized to issue orders on your behalf?

A That is very difficult to say. Generally speaking, as far as I remember, the signature would read: "On behalf of" even if the order did not originate with me, but with the High Command of the Army; but when I had given the instruction, then the department chief concerned or the chief of staff would act on his own responsibility.

Q Well, if an order came down from the OKW it would be addressed to you as Armed Forces Commander South-East, would it not?

A Yes, it would be addressed to the office of the Wehrmacht Commander South-East.

Q And it was not addressed to one of your staff members?

A No, but on principle it was addressed to the official office of the Armed Forces Commander. It would not be addressed to me personally or to my particular department. It was just addressed to the Armed Forces Commander South-East as the responsible office, that is, not concerning the person of the Armed Forces Commander, but his official capacity and then within his office the orders would be passed on to the various departments which were responsible for their carrying out.

Q Well now, these departments, when they passed the orders on, were acting for you, were they not?

Cuurt V Case VII

A. I don't think we are getting this quite clear. The departments worked for the official office of the Wehrmacht Commander South-East and within this office there was a large machinery of offices working and the Question was now whether the document concerned had to be submitted to the Armed Forces Commander South-East personally or whether it would be dealt with within the various departments.

I believe one has to make a difference between the person of the Armed Forces Commander South-East and his office irrespective of person. It was customary in the Army to say the "Armed Forces Commander" or "Commander in Chief" meaning only his office. In this case it was the Armed Forces Commander South-East. So if some enlisted men needed uniforms and this request was addressed to the Armed Forces Commander South-East, the request would be dealt with by the office and not by the Armed Forces Commander in person. One has to make a difference between the concept of his official office and his person.

Q. Well, let's take as an example, suppose the Quartermaster general in the OKW staff decided that all of the troops in your area should wear hob--nail boots and the appropriate order was sent down? That order could be passed on without referring it to you by the Quartermaster of your staff. Isn't that so?

A. In this case that would have been possible. Of course, he would inform me if it were a matter which concerned the troops generally.

Q. And when he passed the order on he would pass it on in your name, but being done by him as the Quartermaster officer?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, at this same time you also held a position as commanding general of the 12th-Army. Is that so?

A. As Commander in Chief of the 12th Army. I think in the American Army the corresponding position would be that of Commanding General.

Q. Yes, commander in chief, excuse me. And did you have a staff on the 12th Army, a general staff?

A. No. It was exactly the same staff. There was only one staff.

Q Now, did the 12th Army have any troops down there?

A Yes.

Q How many troops did the 12th Army have?

AAAs I said this morning, there were at the beginning of the occupation period about four and a half divisions and a general command.

Q And the same staff functioned as your general staff for you both in your positions as commander in chief of the 12th Army and as Armed Forces Commander -- South-East?

A Yes.

Q Now, did your staff officers, including the chief of staff, have any authority to issue orders without your consent?

A I have already stated that they had that possibility; that the example which you gave, for instance, that would have been possible; such an order could have been issued and passed on without my consent or at least without me being informed previously or without my consent being obtained previously. Later I would have been informed.

Q Yes, but disregarding those types of administrative orders, letting those aside, did they have the authority to issue other orders of their own volition?

A That is very difficult to say here and it is difficult to comprehend for people who have not grown up within the German Armed Forces and know all the conditions prevailing there. They had the right in case an order was extremely urgent. For instance, orders to a commanding general, if the order was to the effect that the respective commanding general had to carry it out, execute it and pass it on in that case they did not have any authority. But when matters were concerned which the commanding general would not have to carry out in person but again a subordinate office of his then they had the possibility.

Q Let's at the moment disregard orders that came down from either OKW or OKH. Did your chief of staff or any of the members of your general staff, either in the 12th Army or in the Supreme South-East, have any authority to initiate on their own and pass on those orders to lower troop units without consulting you?

A I previously stated to which extent it was possible for them. I was not concerned in my statement whether they were orders from the OKH or OKW. They might also be forders from the Supreme Command South-East, that is, orders for which the commanding general was not the person who executed them.

Q And at a later time would any such orders that they initiated and passed on to lower troops be made known to you?

A That depended on what matters were concerned. If not very important matters were concerned then perhaps I was not informed. Generally speaking, I would have been informed but there was a multitude of things which were carried out by departments Ia, IIa, Ic, et cetera. I was not informed, as matter of course, if the department chief concerned was of the opinion that it wasn't necessary that the commanding chief was informed. It was a general custom in the whole German army.

Q Did they give tactical orders without your knowledge?

A Tactical orders of a larger extent, no.

Q Well, how big an operational order could they give without consulting you?

A I cannot state that here in theory. That is quite impossible. It depended on the actual situation in how far the chief or the Ia believed to be able to act independently and just told the Army Corps Commands it had to be done in such and such manner.

Q And if he did that you would later find out about it?

A Yes, I believe that later on I would have obtained information about these things. It couldn't be any different.

Q And if an improper order had been given, one with which you disagreed, you would, when you heard about it, take steps to correct it?

A That again is difficult to say theoretically what I would have done. Again it would depend on the individual case in which manner I would have to intervene.

Q And one last question on the staff. You said; as I recall it; the duties of the chief involed the coordination of all the staff information that came and the presentation to you of that information?

A Yes. It was his task to be responsible for a uniform carrying cut of all the work within the staff.

Q And sometimes he would do that by showing you reports and other times by giving you an oral summary?

A No; that is not the correct concept of the activities of such a staff. There was such a multitude of departments in such a staff and in general the chief of staff was in charge of things and he would say to the department chief concerned; "Go and tell this to the commander in chief," and on other occasions he would submit it himself. On other occasions again he would just summarize and give the report in summary.

Q Do you recall telling Dr. Laternser on Wednesday that the main form of giving you information was a summarized report?

A I did say that to Dr. Laternser but in answer to a very specific question; that is; the question of the reports that had come in; but now I have been asked by the Prosecution about the summary of the activities of the various department with the supreme command and that is something different. The chief could not; for instance; report matters of Department IV-a; that is; supplies and so forth. Of course he could not give detailed reports on that.

Q But he could give you general reports about it?

A Even that he did not do concerning these departments --- the department chiefs themselves came to report to me. He might maybe say, "A certain thing has happened in a certain department and the chief concerned will come and report to you," or "The army doctor will come and report to you, but the report in detail was then given by the army physician.

Q Do you recall Exhibit 15 which is the Hitler Order of 9 June 1941 which details you as the Wehrmacht Commander South-East?

A Yes.

Q And that superseded a prior order known as Hitler Order 29, did it not?

A No.

Q And that is Exhibit 9, the Hitler Order No. 29. Incidentally, the Hitler Order No. 29 is dated 17 May 1941. I think maybe we can pass to the Order of 9 June 1941, Exhibit 13. Now, that order subordinated to you the Commander Serbia?

A Yes. That was the Hitler order 31. That is correct.

Q And do you recall a provision in that order which stated that with the exception of the conduct of offensive air warfare, the Wehrmacht Commander South-East is to bring together in a unified control all military questions of the Wehrmacht which arise from the occupation, security, supply, transport and communication affairs of the occupied south-East area? This is to be done for all throe Wehrmacht branches. Do you recall that provision in the order?

A. Yes.

Q. Then, the order further provides, "And he is to make decisions in terms of the overall responsibility which falls to the Wehrmacht in the Southeast area."

A. Yes.

Q. Then, it provides that the "leadership will be simplified in the branches of the Wehrmacht, and the high Command of the Wehrmacht m;ill be relieved of many individual questions and differences of opinion which are the inevitable result of having all Wehrmacht branches working side by side in the same area."

A. Yes.

Q. And then it lists in some detail the duties which are you responsible for. First, the safeguarding of a unified defense, Do you recall that?

A. Yes indeed.

Q. And the sentence listed "directions for the ocean-transport movement in the near future".

A. Yes.

Q. And "the control of supply on land and on sea for all Wehrmacht branches in the Balkans."

A. Yes.

Q. "Supervision over the military administration to be exercised by the command occupied by the German troops."

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And then do you recall the supplement to that order which went along with it, which stated that the Wehrmacht Commander South case has to support the Reich Plenipotentiary in every respect and to confer with him in the measures he prepares for Greece?

A. Yes.

Q. And then it provided that "the Plenipotentiary in Greece was to keep you informed on political questions?

Page 3,306

A. Yes.

Q. And that "control of propaganda in Greece is the duty of the foreign office which is to cooperate with the High Command of the Wehrmacht in this matter?"

A. Yes.

Q. And then do you recall that on 15 June a regulation or the execution of the Hitler Order no. 31, signed by Keitel, was sent down?

A. Yes.

Q. And that provides in part that the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast is the sole command authority of the Wehrmacht in the Balkans concerning all those duties for which he is responsible pursuant to Directive 31?

A. Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Denney, pardon me. Did you refer to this last regulation as an exhibit?

MR. DENNEY: I beg your pardon, Your Honor. This is Exhibit 16. The one to which I was referring previously was Exhibit 15, Exhibit 15, at the bottom of Page 55 of Document Book I. And Exhibit 16 begins at Page 60 of Document Book I.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

BY MR. DENNEY:

Q. And still referring to Exhibit 16, the regulation for the execution of Directive 31, administrative offices had been put at the disposal of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast by OKW--OKH; I beg your pardon.

A. Yes.

Q. And then over on page 1, the second page of the communication in Document Book I, still Exhibit 16, "The Wehrmacht Commander will be informed by the respective offices of the OKW concerning current military political and economic directives and events."

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that it also provided that Wehrmacht units would regulate the delivery of gazettes?

A. I can't recall that. I can't recall the contents at the moment.

Q. Well, do you recall that at the end of the order it said that daily reports would be submitted to OKW and OKH?

A. Yes.

Q. And monthly reports to OKH concerning the problems or military administration?

A. I cannot recall that at the moment, but it is correct. I have read this Directive 31, but not so thoroughly that I know it by heart, although I have heard it here several times. I only can recall the general contents.

Q. I don't want to take advantage of you at all. I'm very sorry. I thought perhaps you'd read it. If you wish I'd be glad to give you a copy of it so you can read it. If Your honors please, He is being submitted a German copy of the document which I've just been reacting.

Have you had an opportunity to look at the order?

A. Yes indeed; thank you.

Q. You're welcome. And you find in there air those provisions which I read?

A. Yes indeed.

Q. Do you recall Dr. Laternser's asking you about an Exhibit No. 88 which was an order of General Boehme? This document, if Your Honors please, is on Page 34 of the English Document Book III, and Page 27 of the German Document Book III, that being an order of General Boehme of 10 October 1941. And if I remember correctly, you stated that the first time you knew about this order was here in Nurnberg?

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. And you had nothing to indicate to you at that time that this order was going to come out?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. Well, perhaps I can rephrase it for you. You did not know on 10 October or at any time that General Boehme was going to issue such an order?

A. No.

Q. And as far as you know, there was no way of your knowing about that?

A. No.

Q. And you told Dr. Laternser that you believed that OKW had issued this order to him directly?

A. No; I have never maintained that.

Q. I'd like to have the witness handed Exhibit 88 in the German. That's on Page 34; Your Honors; of Document Book III.

Do you note at the top of that Exhibit; that is; General Boehme's order; is the note "an information copy"?

A. Yes.

Q. Excuse me. "An information copy was directed to the office of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast; but you never saw it?

A. I have said that the order had been issued on the 10th of October by General Boehme; and merely an information copy was sent to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. Since I cannot remember ever to have seen or known that order; since the order came as an information copy; it's quite possible that it took a longer time because it did not actually affect the Armed Forces Command Southeast; and since on the morning of the 13th of October I was not an service any longer. I can be sure that I did not receive the order. Those were my statements to Dr. Laternser; and I added that if I had received the order it would have had to be initialed by me.

Q. And you were taken sick on the 15th of October and operated on in a hospital in Athens on the 17th, and you never received this order and you had no way of knowing that the order was going to be given out?

A. No.

Q. And until you got here to Nurnberg you never did know that the order was given out?

A. No.

MR. DENNEY: Will you please hand the witness Exhibit 53, Document Book 2, which appears at page 67 of that book?

If Your Honors please, it is Exhibit 53, Document Book II, page 67 in the English, and I am sorry I don't have the German page. Perhaps Dr. Laternser can help me.

DR. LATERNSE: Page 52 of the German, page 67 of the English.

MR. DENNEY: Page 67 of the Document Book II, Your Honor, Exhibit 53, and wage 34 of Document Book 3, Exhibit 88.

Q. Do you recall testifying with reference to Exhibit 53, the Neitel order of 16 September 1941, that you received the order from Keitel, that you wore opposed to it, but that you passed it on?

A. Yes.

Q. I now direct your attention to the order number of the order of 16 September 1941, Exhibit 53; you will note that the OKW file number of the order is 002060/41; that is the order which you - (interrupted)

A. Just a moment, please.

Q. You will find it on page 32 of the Document Book which you have.

A. Yes, it is right.

Q. That is the OKW order number, is it not, 002060/41?

A. Yes.

Q. And that is the order that you passed on?

A. This order arrived with copies for the offices to which it was to be passed on by us, that is the order arrived already complete with copies which we had to pass on,-- that cannot be seen from that particular copy here, but from the photostat.

Q. Yes, and now I direct your attention to the Boehme Order of 10 October, about which you have told us you know nothing, under subject -- please note the reference, the reference is to "Chief of OKW, 002060/41, Top Secret, 16 September 1941." That is Exhibit 88.

A. May I see the document again?

Q. You will find that at page 27 in the German Document Book III; it is Exhibit 88, Boehme Order 10 October 1941.

A. Yes.

Q. So the Boehme Order of 10 October 1941 was based on the Keitel Order of 16 September 1941, which you passed down, was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was in this Boehme Order of 10 October 1941 that he ordered that for each killed or murdered German soldier or Volksdautschen, men women or children, 100 prisoners or hostages were to be shot and that for each wounded German soldier or Volksdeutschen 50 prisoners or hostages were to be shot?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall now that perhaps the Boehme Order was based on the Keitel Order which you had passed down?

A. That it was based on the Keitel Order was always clear to me.

If I may say so, I think there is an error here. In my statement to Dr. Laternser I have never said that for the issuance of this order of 10 October Boehme had received an immediate order by the OKW. I had never made a remark to that effect, instead when I was going to say "I could assume"....the prosecutor intervened and said I was not entitled to make an argument.

I could not assume anything what Boehme might have thought. I was going to say something quite different. If I am now being reproached with having said that the Boehme Order could be traced to an immediate order by OKW, and that it was not based on this order of 16 September, but instead of that on a second order, that is erroneous. All I wanted to do was to give my grounds for this assumption, and in that I was interrupted by the Prosecution. I think Dr. Laternser will be able to affirm that.

Q. I am very sorry if I interrupted you. Turning now to the question of task forces Rosenberg -- excuse me, I don't think you need those books any more. Do you remember Dr. Laternser questioning you about the letter from Rosenberg to Borman, which was Exhibit 4, which appears at page 11 of the English text, and page 11 of the German text in Book I -- I beg your pardon, it is page 8 of the English text and page 6 of the German text, Your Honor., in which Rosenberg mentions to Borman that you are cooperating with him with reference to certain cultural researches that were being carried on in the southeast?

A. Rosenberg maintains that.

Q. And you said that that wasn't so, what he said?

A. Rosenberg has written a private letter and I cannot prevent him writing private letters. He wrote that I had contact with him, and that is not correct, because I have never had contact with Rosenberg. I have stated that I only met Rosenberg once on the occasion of a party, and I did not talk with him, and later on I did not have any contact with him. The letter of Rosenberg contains a private opinion of Rosenberg's, and this is erroneous because he states what I had given him permission to look at archives in Belgrade. No further writes that I would possibly allow the same for Salonika. I have later stated that I recall that Lt. von Ingram had visited me, and I received him first of all because he had got the Knights Cross in the Eastern Campaign, and for that reason I received him and he told me that he had permission to look at archives, and on this occasion he mentioned material which might be directed against the Reich, and I told him that I expected everything to go in order, and that no special events would occur.

And that was the extent of our cooperation, if you can call it cooperation, in the cultural sphere. Rosenberg further states that I had told him, or rather his representatives, that the confiscation of this material would be carried out by the SD, the Security Service. I can only say that the SD was an unknown quantity to me at that time.

Q. For whom did Lt. von Ingram work?

A. For Rosenberg.

Q. And as such you had the power or authority to give him any orders?

A. No.

Q. And referring you now to Exhibit 10, which is page 38 of the English Document Book I, and on page 27 of the German Document Book I, Dr. Latenser, I believe, directed your attention to that yesterday, wherein the commandant of the Army rear area stated that in compliance with orders of the 12th Army of April 19, 1941, Department I-c, Order Humber Secret, areas in operation in the area of the 12th Army, Special Detachment, Reichsleiter Rosenberg, which has the task of examining states libraries, archives, Offices of High Church Authorities, Free Mason lodges, and Jewish organizations for political incidents directed against the Reich and of having the material in question confiscated; you don't recall any such order given by the 12th Army on 19th April 1941?

A. No. I may add that the prosecutor asked me an hour ago about the activities of the Staff; this here is a case where without doubt the department I-c issued an order without previously informing the commander in chief, because they were obviously of the opinion that a department of the Reich was concerned. Material was to be sorted and evaluated and obviously Lt. von Ingram approached this Department I-c, and consequently Department I-c issued this order, in the opinion and correct assumption that it was not necessary to inform the commander in chief. It must be considered that the period during which this happened was a period of very tense operational actions. If I remember correctly this Rosenberg letter was written during the April days of that year, around about the 20th.

Q. Yes, I believe it was written on the 23rd. Just a moment, yes, it was written on April 23. By the 23rd of April you were already undergoing the second capitulation in Greece, weren't you, and had not the Thracian Army surrendered on the 9th and had not the Epirus Army surrendered on the 21st?

A The Epirus Army surrendered on the 21st, and one can assume that it took a certain amount of time until Rosenberg received an answer from the person whom he sent to Greece, therefore this discussion could have only been at a previous time. Besides the order of the Department I-c, I think you just read it, is dated 19 April -- that is then it was right in the middle of the severest actions, just before the Army capitulated; at that time the Commander in Chief had different things to do than to be concerned with a lieutenant sent by Rosenberg who wants to look at a few archives.

Q In view of that no one bothered to tell you that this task force Rosenberg was carrying on its activities in this area?

A I learned about that through the report by Lt. von Ingram, otherwise I might not even have heard about it, and most likely I wouldn't have heard about it.

Q When did Lt. von Ingram come to see you, do you recall?

A I cannot say that for certain. It must have been, as far as I recollect, in Saloniki, and according to this letter of Rosenberg it must have been before 23 April, unless this letter of Rosenberg's is based on a discussion with the Department I-c. In any case it was before 26 April, because on the 27th of April I went to Athens. In this connection may I point out something else -- in the rear area of the Army it says in an order, which was also only made known to me here, that confiscation of material is to be carried out by the secret field police. This shows clearly that it was not to be done by the SD, but by the secret field police, because no SD was subordinate to the commander of the rear area of the Army.

Q They were SD people, weren't they, these Rosenberg people?

A I don't know.

Q In any event you couldn't give them any orders?

A No.

Q Will you please hand the witness Document Book II; referring now to Exhibit 68, which appears at page 137 of Document Book 2, in English - I am sorry I don't have the German page, Your Honor - it is just a one page exhibit.

Q What kind of a document is it, please? It doesn't give the exhibit number here, what is the document number? 105? All right, I have got it.

Q You will note that is dated 2 October 1941, and comes from your I-c, and is addressed to the Detachment Rosenberg, and says, "Effective 1 October 1941, Detachment Rosenberg is assigned for rations, quarters and for discipline to Commander South Greece. Lt. Ritter von Ingram, the leader of the Detachment, is to make contact immediately with the Staff of the Commander Southern Greece." "For Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, The Chief of the General Staff, Colonel General Staff Corps."

A Yes, that is right.

Q Did they ever tell you about this, that they were in charge of this SD unit for matters in addition to rations and quarters, including discipline, and that they were ordering them to report to the commander Southern Greece?

A I have no knowledge of this subordination, because the Chief did not think it necessary to report to me because a small staff which was only looking at archives was there. There is something I would like to point out, you said that these people were members of the SD, the command Rosenberg had nothing to do with the SD, they weren't SD people. The command Rosenberg was a command which consisted of some personalities of the Staff Rosenberg which had the task to investigate certain ideological documents or documents directed against the Reich which were contained in these archives. I take it thus from the exhibit which you just showed me before, but Rosenberg had nothing to do with the SD, on the contrary Rosenberg had had a fight with Bormann because Bormann didn't want Rosenberg to intervene in these matters. All I can say is that Rosenberg was possibly under the control of the SD to a certain extent. In this sense I have to understand Rosenberg's letter, Rosenberg had had differences of opinion with Bormann, because Bormann didn't want Rosenberg to deal with these matters in the Southeast. Obviously Bormann meant to give these orders on his own initiative. The SD had nothing to do with Rosenberg as far as I can recollect, and as far as I am informed. Rosenberg only wanted the SD to help him.

Q Who was the Chief of Staff at the time that the order -

A That was the then Col. Foertsch.

Q If I may finish my question. - At the time that Exhibit 68 was issued your Chief of Staff was the Defendant Foertsch?

A The order of the 2nd of October?

Q Yes.

A Yes, that is right.

Q. Thank you. Now, at that time who was the commander of Southern Greece?

AAAs far as I know it was Felmy.

Q Now, you recall that, perhaps you could take us over some of these dates when you were in and out; maybe we can start from the end and work back. It was on the 17 October 1941 that you were operated on in the hospital at Athens, Greece, for appendicitis, is that right?

A Yes.

Q And just for a moment to go beyond that, you stayed in the hospital until sometime early in December of that year?

A Yes.

Q Could you help me with the date in December?

A I beg your pardon.

Q Could you help me with the date in December when you left the hospital.

A I beg your pardon, I did not understand the question. On the 6th of December, it might have been the 8th of December - December 8.

Q And when you left your command, in October to go to the hospital it was on the 15th, was it not?

A Yes, on the 15th of October; I beg your pardon, it might have been on the 16th of October. At least on the 15th I had to stay in bed.

Q You either left on the 15th or you were in bed on the 15th; in any event you were operated on on the 17th.

A Yes, on the 15th I was obliged to go to bed. On the 17th I was operated on. I don't know for sure whether it was the 15th or 16th that I was brought from my quarters to the hospital.

Q Now shortly before that you had been in Crete. Can you help me with those dates.

A I was on Crete during the time of the 8th up to the 11th of October.

Q Do you remember when you came back on the 11th?

A During the course of the afternoon.

Q And then prior to the 8th of October were you in Athens all the time after you got back from leave sometime late in August?

A That was on the 24th of August; then I was in Athens.

Q And you were there all the time until the 8th when you went to Crete?

A Yes.

Q When did you go on leave?

A On the 23rd of July I left Belgrade.

Q And you went to Vienna and then you went down to the suburb of Garnisch and stayed there?

A Yes.

Q You were in Serbia and Yugoslavia for several days prior to the 23rd of July 1941, were you not?

A Yes.

Q Do you recall how long you were there?

Couvt V, Case 7

A From the 21st until the 23rd I was there, that is July.

Q Now during your absence on leave who was acting on your behalf as Armed Forces Commander Southeast and Commanding General of the 12th Army?

A I believe that was General Felmy.

Q And when you were in Serbia did you hear anything about General Lontschar. Did you know General Lontschar?

A No.

Q Never heard of him?

A I have now heard about him from these documents.

Q The first time that you ever heard that in Serbia on the 18th of July, three days before you were there, that a General in an Army's car had been shot at, and someone else in the car had been wounded, was here in the Courthouse?

A I do not recollect in any case at that time I have learned of this in Nish or Belgrade.

Q When you were in Belgrade prior to your departure on leave you said that you may have given some oral orders. Do you recall that?

A I did at that time talk to General Bader and I talked to a number of Divisional Commanders and it can be assumed that we discussed what they could do against this Parting of an uprising but I cannot remember details. For that purpose there did not seem to be any cause at that time.

Q Was not there among the Divisional Commanders some general talk about the uprising in Serbia? You don't have any recollection of what took place at that time?

A There had been uprisings in Serbia, sabotage acts. I myself could not go from Nish to Belgrade on the 21st which I intended to do, but all of a sudden I had to go by plane because there were interruptions of the railway line between Nish and Belgrade and in Belgrade itself there was reason for great caution against surprise attacks.

We passed through town very quickly and I was quite heavily guarded because surprise attacks and surprise murders occurred everywhere. Of course I was told about it, but the suppression of this had already been started and was in the process of being carried out.

Q The situation at that time then was critical in Serbia?

A Yes, it was critical; that's right.

Q And you were very concerned about it?

A Yes, I was concerned. Any uprising in an occupied country..... if, for instance, here in Germany there would be about twenty surprise attacks every day, the bridges of the Autobahn would be dynamited, if soldiers of the American Army were ambushed, then the American authorities would be concerned too. If I may say so, I would not have gone on leave if it hadn't been very necessary because I had a stomach ailment which I had acquired in Crete.

Q Now, during your leave did you get any reports in Partenkirchen as to what was happening in the Southeastern area?

A I can't say that today anymore to what extent I was informed. I did see a couple of reports but my knowledge at the moment does not tell me to what extent I was informed. Of course I was not kept posted, about everything that went on.

Q How were you posted of whatever knowledge you did acquire about the operations in your command in your absence?

A I have just said I can't recollect any more to what extent I was informed, and what exact knowledge I had.

Q Did anyone speak to you by phone?

A I got mail by courier. There was no telephonic communication.

Q Did you get any mail from your acting deputy, General Felmy?

A No.

Q Did you get any mail from your Chief of Staff, Colonel Foertsch?

A Yes, certainly; I think I did.

Q But you don't recall what he advised you about?

A No.

MR. DENNEY: Would this be a convenient place to interrupt, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: You wish to recess at this time?

MR. DENNEY: If we could. I am about to go into a new subject and I would appreciate it if Your Honor would take a recess.

THE PRESIDENT: We will take a recess at this time.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

BY MR. DENNEY:

Q May it please your Honors, do you recall being asked by withdrawn. Will you please hand the witness Document Book 1 in German? I am referring now to Document 22 which is at page 76 of the English and page 55 of the German Book 1. This is a report from the Chief of the Security Police of the SD, 22 July 1941. It says that in reprisal for the attempted attack on the life of the German general, 52 Communist Jews and families of band members in the villages of Vzice, Valjevo and Cacac were shot to death on the 20th. Did you ever hear of that incident?

A I don't know any longer whether I heard about it or not. I cannot recollect it. It didn't remain in my memory.

Q Then if you will turn over to the next exhibit which is Exhibit 23, this is extracts from the activity report of the 704th Division which was under the 65th Corps at this time, that is July 1941, and the 65th Corps was under the 12th Army. Is that correct?

A Yes, it is correct.

Q And you will note in that under the date of 20 July 1941, Valjevo, it is on about the third page or perhaps the second, the second page of the original, the same incident is recited. Did you ever have any knowledge of it through this source? Through the 65th Corps by reports which might have been sent up to you?

A This activity report I didn't know for sure. This activity report originates from the 704th Division. I never had a possibility to look at it. The same applies to the previous document which is the report from the chief of the Security Police in Berlin to the Reichsfuehrer SS.

Q And you don't recall anybody calling your attention to the fact that these 52 people were executed because of this attack and/or at any later time?

A All I say is I cannot remember whether I was informed or not. I don't know.

Q It is page 54 of the German. This is Exhibit 555, and Book 24, which is at page 85 of the English and page 54 of the German copy of that document book. It is dated 8 September 1941 and recites that 50 guilty Communists were executed as reprisal for an attack on a soldier at the station of Belgrad-Fopicer. Do you ever recall having that come to your attention?

A Concerning this report, as well as all others, I cannot recollect today whether details were reported to me or whether I was only generally informed, I cannot recollect that today.

I have already said it this morning or yesterday that it is impossible for me to say now after six years that I have been informed or not been informed of individual matters. I have just a very general impression of the uprising but whether any particular messages were given to me and whether any particular events were reported to me I cannot say anymore.

On a large scale, I have certainly been informed but to name individual cases it is impossible. The same applies when I recollect the campaign against France. I remember the campaign as a whole but I cannot recollect individual messages that were submitted to me at that time. It is simply impossible.

Q Do you have any present recollection of having been informed at that time - say July, August and early September of 1941- that people were being executed at the ratio of 50 to 1 for woundings?

A That the reports were made to me on the basis of the Keitel order and that these occurrences came to my knowledge on the basis of the reports, that may well be so.

Q I am now directing your attention to these dates specifically in July, August and September, which were prior to the Keitel order.

Do you remember having been advised of executions at the rate mentioned during that period?

A I can only say the same, Mr. Prosecutor, as I have just said before. Today I can't say any more that I did know a specific report. All I can say, it is possible that I knew about it, and today I do not know for sure whether I did or not.

Q Will you hand him Book 2, please? It is exhibit 59 at page 95 in the English Book 2, it is about the 16th page in the Exhibit-it is the report of 4/9/1941 for September.

A Page 63 of the German.

Q Do you recall having been advised of that, that in reprisal for the killing of a soldier in Belgrade on the 3rd of September, 50 people were executed?

MR. DENNEY: It is page 95 of the English document book 2, your Honor, of Exhibit 59.

FIELD MARSHAL LIST: I beg your pardon, on which page in the German is it?

MR. DENNEY: I thought you told me.

BY MR. DENNEY

Q. Do you recall having been advised of that in this report which is directed to your office?

A. I can only say the same as I have said before, that I cannot recollect it now anymore but that it is quite possible that the report was submitted to me. Generally speaking, I was informed about events and therefore it is possible, even likely, that I was informed of this occurrence but today I cannot recollect it any longer.

Q. Thank you. Will you hand him book 2 again, Exhibit 43, Exhibit 42, I am sorry. This is on page 23 of the English copy of book 2, your Honor, and I will tell you it is page 21 of the German.

I am directing your attention to -- do you recall this order which was sent out on 5 September 1941?

A. Yes.

Q. When, to your knowledge, was the first time that you ordered hostages to be taken?

A. Yes.

Q. No, I say when did you first order hostages to be taken? You don't have to look at the order now. I am not talking about that.

A. The first order for the taking of hostages...that is, an order to that effect had not been issued by me before.

Q. This is the first time you gave such an order?

A. Yes. Orders from the OKH must have been in existence before that.

Q. Well, do you recall what orders you got from the OK--excuse me. Who gave you the orders---OKW or OKH?

A. They must have been in existence from the OKH in Serbia in my opinion, and I am sure that orders came during my time from the OKW.

Whether they concerned the taking of hostages or other matters I cannot recollect, but my objection which I raised with the OKW, can be retraced to the fact that orders must have come in from the OKW. In detail, I do not remember these orders.

Q. Well, do you recall whether they were written orders or oral orders?

A. They couldn't have been oral orders because they must have come by teletype or by radio transmission.

Q. And this order of September 5th, you feel, was sent out based on orders that you got prior to that date from OKW or OKH?

A. On the basis of current orders to proceed vigorously against the insurgents, Several Teletypes had come in to that effect, and on the 5th, on the same day, a telephone call came from the OKW asking what had been done in order to combat the insurrection. In view of this uprising and the crisis which we faced at that time, this order was given, also in view of the activities of the partisans and the cunning manner in which they proceeded. And then there had been orders issued by the Communist party that permitted the bands to use all means. On the basis of all these facts combined the order was given.

One must all the time picture the situation of the Balkans and the enormous effects of the insurrection not only on the occupational forces but on the whole situation.

Q. I am talking about a telephone call that you got from OKW on the 15th, the 15th of September I take it, that is.

A. On the 5th.

Q. On the 5th? On the 5th of September, I beg your pardon.

A. I beg your pardon, I meant on the 5th.

Q. Now if you will notice that paragraph f of this order, Exhibit 42, You speak of the seizure of more hostages.

A. Yes.

Q. Now what did you mean by that?

A. At the end of August, beginning of September, the insurgent movement had assumed an essentially greater proportions. After I returned from my leave, I found a completely changed situation. The insurgent movement had extended to considerably larger areas. Attacks became more frequent and in their whole manner they were somehow stronger. On the basis of these facts it had become necessary to carry out the taking of more hostages. The intensity of the insurgent movement and the extension of the movement to larger areas caused this.

Q. Where did you get your information as to what had happened during your leave from the 23rd of July to the 24 of August?

A. On my return journey, I stopped in Belgrade and there I think I gained the first impression through a discussion with the Military Commander Serbai--that was General Danckelmann--and the Military Commander of the Higher Command 65, General Bader, and then I was informed after my return to Athens in my headquarters.

Q. Who gave you the information in your headquarters at Athens?

A. I assume it was the chief of staff. Probably the Ia was present too. It might have been the Ic also. I cannot recollect that today.

Q. Did you talk to General Felmy about it when you got back?

A. I assume that I talked to General Felmy about it.

Q. And your chief at that time was Colonel Foertsch, was he not?

A. That is correct.

Q. We have already discussed the Keitel order of 16 September 1941 with reference to 50 to 1, and 100 to 1. That bears the same date, does it not? That Keitel order is Exhibit 53. That bears the same date as Exhibit 49, which is the Hitler order of the same date, 16 September 1941, which appears at page 53 of the English copy of Book 2 and page 52.

A. That is Exhibit 50, is it?

Q. Exhibit 49, I believe.

Q. That's the Hitler order to you of 16 September 1941 with reference to General Boehme.

A. To General Boehme?

Q. We're still referring to General Boehme.

A. You said Bader.

Q. Boehme.

A. You mean Boehme?

Q. Yes. Now, on the bottom of page 1 of that order it states:

"The latter," referring to Lt. General of Infantry Boehme, "exercises executive power in the insurgent area itself, pursuant to directives of Wehrmacht Commander Southeast. Insofar, all military and civilian offices must follow his instructions and regulations for a more accurate definition of his authority. The interests of the Four Year Plan are to be taken into consideration as a matter of principle."

Do you recall receiving that order from the OKW?

A. Yes.

Q. And that order was sent to you from OKW in response to your request to them of the 14th of September, which is Exhibit 48, the exhibit before, which is at page 51 of the English document book and page 42 of the German document book?

A. Yes.

Q. And in your letter to the OKW of 14 September you mentioned, at the top of the second page, a fact that it was fully understood that with the appointment of General Boehme for duty in Serbia that the interests of the Four Year Plan will be taken into consideration in this case.

A. Yes.

Q. And the OKW replied to you -- there is the notation that the interests of the Four Year Plan are to be taken into consideration as a matter of principle. What was the Four Year Plan?

A. The Four Year Plan was a plan which Goering had established and Goering had a special plenipotentiary of the Four Year Plan in Belgrade who, I think, had the task, first of all, to reactivate the mines and/or to keep them going.

I am not informed in detail of the tasks of the plenipotentiary of the Four Year Plan. The addition which I made in my request that the interests of the Four Year Plan should be taken into consideration was made for the reason to support my request concerning the employment of Boehme, i.e. to achieve this at all with Hitler, or rather with the OKW. I knew that Goering considered the southeast area, so to speak, as his own reservation and that he wanted to institute in Serbia a general of the Air Force, in order to thus exercise more influence in Serbia. And for that reason I added that supplement to my request.

Q. In Exhibit 50, which is your order to the Commander in Serbia, which is dated the 19th of September 1941, appointing General Boehme - this is at page 57 in the English document book, Your Honors, and page 46 in the German - you stated there that General Boehme was the "only possessor of executive power in accordance with the Fuehrer order binding instructions to all military and civilian offices".

A. Yes.

Q. And you stated further that "instructions for the carrying-out of operations for the necessary protective measures will be given by me only to General Boehme, who is responsible for their being carried out".

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if you'll turn to Exhibit 79 in Document Book II, which is at page 3, page 2 of the German. Your Honors, it is page 3 of the English document book, Exhibit 79. Sorry, that was the wrong book (witness handed the wrong book). That's the report from General Boehme of 9 October dealing with the execution of approximately two thousand communists and Jews in reprisal for twenty-two murdered of a signal battalion.

Do you recall having seen that at that time?

A. I have already stated that on the 9th of October I was in Crete and that I did not receive, therefore, this report until the 11th of October at the earliest, after my return from Crete.

And I have further stated that this is the only case which I can specifically recollect, and that is the murder - the murder and beastly mutilation of these soldiers of the Signal Corps.

Q. Did you make any inquiries about the source of the people who were killed in retaliation for these killings of German troops?

A. As far as I remember, no.

Q. You didn't think that ratio of approximately 100 to 1 is unusual?

A. I have already said that I recollect that the order to the 1 to 100 ratio in this case came directly from the OKW. That is what I had said and which explains the mix-up with the order of Bohme of the 10th of October. The ratio of 1 to 100 seemed high to me in any case.

Q. But you had passed down that 100 to 1 order which you received from Keitel on the 16th of September, did you not?

A. Yes, I passed it on after my objection with the OKW had been in vain. The Keitel order mentions 1 to 50, up to 1 to 100, and as far as I can recollect, it was additionally expressly ordered 1 to 100. Besides the people who had been actually shot on the 9th and 11th of October - I think there were 442 - I could not have recalled them back to life, and a larger figure than 442 people had actually been shot cannot be seen from any report contained in this documents here - I think altogether twelve times. One cannot see that a larger number than that mentioned was ever killed.

Q. So far as you know, you never made any inquiry based on the figure of two thousand to twenty-two hundred?

A. No.

Q. Did I understand you correctly to say that OKW may have ordered Boehme directly, without going through you, to carry out this particular reprisal measure?

A. I do recollect that the OKN issued orders in this case directly.

Q. You do recollect that?

A. May I add that not only in this case but quite frequently, in view of the very much better communications and connections between East Prussia and Belgrade, directives arrived at Belgrade earlier, and not via the Military Commander Southeast, and we were informed later on.

Q. And who informed you later, OKW or the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia?

A. I cannot say that any more today. I don't know.

Q Now, when did you first begin to have differences of opinion with Hitler?

A Differences of opinion with Hitler, I had only one occasion, and that was when I resigned. Previously I had never been in the position to have differences of opinion with him because I had never been able to submit a report to him alone. I had never been called or admitted to such a report.

Q Well, you said that in November, 1939 you were at a meeting where it was indicated that you had not been withdrawn.

You said that you were at a meeting in Berlin where the older generals were accused of being timid and that you were not reappointed to the Southeast Command because it was felt that you hadn't done all that you might -- that is, from Hitler's standpoint. When did you first feel that you didn't enjoy Hitler's complete confidence?

A I may clarify this in order not to leave anything unclear. The conference in Berlin in November 1939 was not a conference or a discussion, but it was a clear utterance of Hitler's wills and wishes, which he expressed in an address to the generals. None of the generals had the possibility in this so-called meeting to say one single word. The fact that I did not return to the Southeast, I did not consider a difference of opinion with Hitler. That was an opinion which Hitler had formed about me, without there ever having been any exchange of opinions between us.

Q Yet in April, 1942, Keitel indicated that you enjoyed Hitler's complete confidence on your Service Record. Do you recall that?

A I have read that now here in the documents.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honors please, Mr. Fenstermacher has some questions which he would like to put to the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: May I make the inquiry, Mr. Denney, as to what the practice has been relative to the use of two counsel for the Prosecution in cross-examination?

MR. DENNEY: Well, as I understand it, your Honor, that has been done before, and before the Commissions we did it.

THE PRESIDENT: According to the practices of which I have any personal knowledge, it is not permitted. Are there any rules or regulations in connection with the set up here?

MR. DENNEY: There are no rules with which I am familiar, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Are there any objections on the part of defense counsel?

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, may I have a short pause of possibly three minutes so that I can talk to my colleagues; and then we can tell our attitude to the Tribunal.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, without wanting to establish a precedent for further cases, especially since it was also the practice before the International Military Tribunal only one member of every individual delegation could put questions in cross-examination, we, in this case, agree that two prosecutors may put questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

Mr. Fenstermacher, before you commence your further examination I trust it is not necessary to caution you not to cover any matters which have already been covered in the examination by Mr. Denney.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, your Honor.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q Field Marshal, I believe you stated under direct examination that there were three main groups of insurgents operating in Yugoslavia when you were Armed forces Commander Southeast. Is that correct?

A Yes. it's correct.

Q You enumerated them as communist insurgents, Cetniks under Draja Mihailovic, and another group under Kosta Petanac. Is that Correct?

A Yes.

Q Did the communist insurgents wear any identifying insignia?

Page 3,333

A No.

Q Did the Cetniks under Draja Mihailovic wear any identifying insignia?

A I don't remember.

Q And did the Kosta Petanac units--did they have any insignia?

A I don't know that either.

Q Did the Kosta Petanac insurgents and the Mihailovic insurgents ever collaborate with your troops in your fight against the Communists?

A Yes.

Q Would you say that they collaborated with your troops frequently or infrequently during the period you were in the Southeast?

AAAs far as I can remember Kosta Petanac frequently collaborated; as to Draja Mihailovic he only occasionally collaborated with us during the last period.

Q You mean then that you permitted certain units of yours to collaborate with troops who might not have worn insignia?

A The collaboration was not thus that those troops were attached to our troops. They just fought in the same area. There was no uniform leadership under which they might have fought. I do not recollect anything like that. Instead when they had any occasion--the Kosta Petanacs--to spot a Communist group somewhere, then they started hostilities against this Communist group, but, of course, not under German leadership, as far as I remember; those were individual fights. One must imagine there was an insurgent movement about to start, and here and there scattered groups were caught sometimes by the Communists, sometimes by Draja Mihailovic; but in the main, by German troops. The picture is that the insurgent movement was about to begin and then became stronger. It was no so that no could say from the very beginning, "These are Communists and there are Draja Mihailovics and those are Kosta Petanacs there was no clear picture at that time. And one could not get a clear idea of what was going on, as one can now see on the basis of all these documents, when one has worked through them.

In those days I did by no means have the insight as I have gained it now from the documentary material. At that time it was a completely new situation which had to be coped with, and if a man like Petanac said he would help you, one willingly accepted that help and said, "if you find a Communist band fight it."

Q: Do you remember whether or not the Cetnik units were a tall black cap called the Cetnik Cockade?

A: I have never seen such a cap and never seen such a cockade, and I don't recollect anything like that. I may add here that the Commander in Chief of an area such as the Balkans was, could not possibly concern himself with the members of a band that had murdered his people wearing a certain star on their cap or such and such a cap. They were illegal fighters, and had to be treated as such, if the Balkans were not to collapse altogether. We were in a terrible situation, and one could not concern oneself with the fact whether a bandit had a certain form of cap or a soviet star. Nor would the American commander in chief do so if certain people would appear here wearing a certain type of cap or cockade, maybe the insignia of the former Stahlhelm. Certainly he could not recognize those people as a national uprising. He would say those are illegal bands and they have to be treated as such. As it was all the Balkans were on fire.

Q: You mean then, Field marshall, that it was not important to you whether or not the bands wore any insignia?

A: I don't want to say that, but these people did not wear insignia in the sense that they would have been regarded in any way as military formations. They were just bands, i.e. they had to be characterized as such.

Q: Would you have fought these insurgent bands any differently if they had been wearing any insignia?

A: If the bands had been uniformed and had adhered to the war regulations they would have been treated differently. Then these bands would not have attacked people from cornfields and ambushed people passing by in motor vehicles. They then would not have stopped trains with troops going on leave and they would not have shot at them from the next hill with machine guns and then these people would not have robbed supply columns, and would not have committed atrocities in the most bestial manner which I cannot remember in detail right now, but which I think can be testified to by witnesses.

I just remember vaguely one or two of the events, but unfortunately only vaguely, as I have unfortunately, also forgotten details in other respects. All these things could not have occurred if these band members had been a national insurgent army, and adhered to the rules.

Q: What kind of attacks did the insurgent bands made on your troops, did they attack your supply lines, and communication lines?

A: They caused considerable disturbances.

Q: Did you consider attacks of that kind irregular, invalid or unpermissible methods of waging war?

A: When a country is in a peaceful state, as Serbia was, and in spite of that such events happen, then the people who cause these events must be called franc-tireurs, and it is illegal, irregular and forbidden. Those were very obviously attacks on the vital spots of the occupying army. One must realize that only one railroad line ran into Belgrade, and if it was interrupted and for three weeks on end the shipping on the Danube was halted, that meant that the oil supply from Roumania to Germany was throttled. That could also have meant that the occupation power in the Balkans might have collapsed, that even the Greek Government and the Greek population could no longer dispose over the necessary food supplies and with the collapse of the occupational forces the allies would have had the opportunity to land in Greece, and to establish airfields there, thus endangering the whole Southern Flank of the German Army in the Balkans.

I am only printing out what could have happened, if it had been so. In that case I would have been perfectly right to have myself and my officers shot at once for neglect of the most elementary duties of an officer towards his Fatherland.

Q: Let us suppose for a minute that you faced a regular belligerent army. Would the attacks on your communication lines then have been considered by you as a normal or an abnormal method of warfare?

A: If we find myself in a state of war the interruption of communication lines is of course permitted. There was no state of war, however, an armistice had been signed and this was a peaceful and occupied country.

Q: Did the warfare in the southeast that you faced ever reach the stage of becoming real war?

A: You mean after the conclusion of the belligerent actions? To begin with we fought a war against Greece, and Yugoslavia, and you mean whether at a later time it ever reached that state, that is open hostilities and a state of war?

I did not quite get the question.

Q: Well, supposing the campaign against Greece and Yugoslavia ended, take the months of July, August and September 1941, can you then speak of military victories by one side and real tactical and operational warfare?

A: One can't talk of military victories, but there were larger operations which Boehme had to carry out, and they were of a military character and they were tactical and military operations.

Q: Were the insurgents you faced in the southeast openly armed?

That is to say did they carry their arms openly?

A: No.

Q: Were they organized along military lines?

A: Not in my time. I may add, of course, when a band was actually fighting then they carried their weapons openly, because they were shooting during the fighting, but when they realized a conclusion was near they endeavored to get rid of their weapons and threw them in a river or ditch or hid them somewhere and then just loitered around as peaceful peasants, and pretended not to know of anything.

Q: You say then during your time in the southeast it is improper to speak of real war between the German occupation troops and the insurgent forces?

A: A real state of war did not exist. There were only individual fights.

Q: Will you look at Exhibit 53, Document Book 2, this is on page 71 of the English, Your Honor, and I believe page 55 of the German. Field Marshall, this is an order of the Commander in Serbia dated Belgrade, 16 September 1941, the original document bears the receipt stamp of the 718th Infantry Division for four days later, 20 September 1941. You will note that the subject of the order is "Insurgent Movement." The first paragraph states, "With regard to the insurgent movement which increased daily and which increased because of temporary military victories of the insurgents." Do you disagree with the author of the report that you can speak of military victories by the insurgents in the month of September 1941?

A: If I may say something in this connection, Mr. Fenstermacher, these orders were not written with the idea that they were to be taken under the lense of an American Military Court in Nurnberg, but they were written with the idea of giving the troops the necessary initiative for their actions, and to describe matters to the troops as was deemed necessary.

As it says here "Temporary military successes of the insurgents", this can be interpreted in various manners. I don't know what Boehme referred to but I would assume that he refers to the fact that the insurgents succeeded in trapping a number of German batallions and in disarming them, and that they succeeded in shooting a number of people in this action. Maybe it was so, I do not know, and I cannot recollect it, Mr. Fenstermacher. Is it thus that in various places military units suffered losses and reverses as consequences of the actions of the insurgents, and that Boehme describes this as a military success of the insurgents. He only means to say that the insurgents gained a success over us, but he does not consider this military operation.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Fenstermacher, we will adjourn at this time until Monday, September 22, at 9:30 in the morning.

(thereupon a recess was taken until 9:30 a.m.

September 22, 1947) OFFICIAL TRANSCRIPT OF MILITARY TRIBUNAL V, CASE VII, IN THE MATTER OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AGAINST WILHELM LIST ET AL, DEFENDANTS, SITTING AT NUREMBERG, GERMANY, ON 22 SEPTEMBER 1947, 0930, JUSTICE CARTER PRESIDING.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V.

Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Marshal, will you ascertain if all the defendants are present in the Courtroom?

THE MARSHAL: May it please your Honor, all the defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Carter will preside at this day's session.

PRESIDING JUDGE GARTER: You may proceed, Mr. Fenstermacher.

CROSS EXAMINATION (Continued) BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. If your Honors please, Field Marshal, did you consider the war against Yugoslavia unjust or an aggressive war on Germany's part?

A. I am of the opinion that the war against Yugoslavia was caused by the change which had taken place in Yugoslavia, and therefore by Yugoslavia herself. And thus by the mobilization which had already started in January or February of that year. It was an emergency situation in which the Reich found itself at that time.

Q. Isn't it true that after the revolution occurred in Yugoslavia the new Government offered loyalty declarations to Germany?

A. I am not informed about anything of that kind.

Q. But you were informed that mobilization of the Yugoslavian army had taken place?

A. I was informed about that and about the fact that an increased number of troops had been mobilized and drafted.

Q. Had those troops been mobilized by the government of Yugoslavia prior to the revolution?

A. That must have been the case because otherwise it wouldn't have been possible that immediately after the revolution our reconnaissance units informed us that my troops faced 15 divisions.

Q. Did you anticipate that the Yugoslavian people would be friendly to the German troops after they marched into Yugoslavia?

A. I had no reason to assume that after armistice had been concluded, any kind of uprising would take place.

Q. Did you believe that these people in Yugoslavia would welcome your troops in their country?

A. The opinions were various on that subject. Part of them might have welcomed the German troops others not.

Q. In any event, shortly after your troops occupied Yugoslavia, many attacks took place upon your supply and communication lines, upon your troops. Is what correct?

A. Shortly after the occupation, it is not known to me. Besides I was not in Serbia at that time. My activities merely started on the 23rd of June.

Q. And had attacks on your troops in Serbia by the 23rd of June taken place?

A. Yes, that is certain, in any case.

Q. As I recall your testimony of last week, Field Marshal, you said that many of these attacks on your troops came from ambush from people who were hiding in the maize fields in Serbia. Is that your testimony?

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. Did you consider an attack from ambush an irregular method of fighting war?

A. Yes, certainly, in that case, because there was no longer a state of war. An armistice had been concluded and the land was completely pacified and peaceful.

If, for instance. Today in Germany on the autobahn from the woods bordering the autobahn, shots were being fired on American soldiers, that would doubtlessly be regarded as an irregular action.

Q. Would those types of attacks be considered illegal attacks if the attackers were clothed in uniform, or wore insignia?

A. Even in that case, yes.

Q. How many years have you been an officer in the German army, Field Marshal?

A. Forty-three.

Q. Did you get training in the rules of war, particularly in the provisions of the Hague rules of land warfare?

A. Yes, on the war academy.

Q. Are you familiar with Chapter 1 of the Annex to the Hague Convention of 1907 which relates to the qualifications of belligerents?

A. Of course I don't know the article in its detail any more, but on a large scale I am conscious of it, yes.

Q. I should like to read to you from Chapter 1 of the Hague rules of land warfare, Article 1, to refresh your recollection on the provisions with respect to the qualifications of belligerents.

"The rules, rights and duties of war apply not only to armies but also to militia and volunteer corps fulfilling the following conditions:

"1. To be commanded by a person responsible for his subordinates.

"2. To have a fixed distinctive emblem recognizable at a distance.

"3. To carry arms openly.

"4. To conduct their operations in accordance with the laws and customs of war."

Does that refresh your recollection with respect to the qualifications prerequisite to belligerent status?

A. I didn't quite get the question.

Q. How that I have read to you the section from the Hague rules of land warfare with respect to the qualifications of belligerents, does it refresh your recollection with respect to the prerequisites for belligerent status?

A. These provisions were known to me, but considering the bands which opposed us, I cannot regard them as belligerents. All prerequisites were missing for this fact and all prerequisites also that were laid down in the Hague conventions. They were not belligerents but they were quite plainly franc-tireurs and bands. Not one of the four prerequisites laid down here applied, actually, at the time when I was in command in the Balkans.

Q. You say the insurgent forces that opposed your troops in Yugoslavia did not carry their arms openly?

A. Yes.

Q. Marshal, will you look at Exhibit 56 which is in Document Book 2, page 71, of the English and 55 of the German.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I would like to point out that if anything from laws is submitted, the whole paragraph has to be submitted to the witness because this partial paragraph which has been submitted to the witness may easily cause a wrong picture in his mind.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. I think, if your Honors please, I neglected to read the final sentence of Article 1 of the Chapter 1 of the Hague rules of land warfare, and I should like to read it now.

"In countries where militia or volunteer corps constitute the army, or form part of it, they are included under the denomination 'army'".

Field Marshal, Exhibit 56 is an order of the Military Commander of Serbia, dated Belgrade, 16 September 1941. Will you turn to paragraph 3 of that order? It is on page 72 of the English and I believe 56 of the German. The second sentence in that paragraph begins -

A. May I ask, please, that I may also look at the other pages of this document before I deal with this?

Q. Yes, of course.

A. Yes, I am ready.

Q. The second sentence of paragraph 3. "The fights near Losnica and Krupanj, as well as single enemy operations west of Uzice and near Mitrowica, have proved clearly that these bands are at one with the communists and face us armed and openly as enemies."

Did you ever receive information from the Military Commander of Serbia to that effect?

A. To this effect I did not receive any information from the Military Commander Serbia but may I deal with this sentence for a moment and compare it with the second paragraph of the previous page?

It reads there: "The district area headquarters Nish has permitted the followers of Kosta Petjanec to carry arms. However, the arms must be carried openly."

I emphasize this last part -- "However, the arms have to be carried openly."

Under paragraph 3 it reads that these bands go together with the communists and oppose us openly with arms in hand as enemies.

I think there is a basic difference here. It is a difference whether a band carried arms openly i.e. permanently, whether they, so to speak, confess to their carrying of arms openly, that is, whether they confess to being a militia as laid down in the Hague conventions. That carrying arms openly as described in the Hague conventions is, in my opinion, to be understood to the effect that these militia feel actually to be militia, that in this sense they are a uniform unit, a united unit, and that they confess to carrying arms. That is even when the actual fighting is over, they don't hide their weapons and that they don't start a fight with hidden weapons then throw their arms away after the fighting is over and hide them, but instead that they act as military unit, as a militia unit and that carry their weapons all the time. In a similar sense, for instance, a company may deposit its weapons uniformly or may store its munitions some place, but not secretly in individual little houses or in churches or on church staples as it happened, because that does not correspond to the idea of a militia.

Q Field Marshal, you don't believe that the bands referred to in paragraph 3 of this order refer to the Kosta Petanac bands, do you?

A No. In paragraph 3? No.

Q Which bands were meant in paragraph 3?

A It reads here: "Bands that party also call themselves Cetniks which, however, are not subordinate either to Kosta Petjanec or to the government, but what in detail the Commander of Serbia thought when he laid this down, I cannot say. Besides, I didn't know this order.

Q Were the insurgent forces which your troops faced in Serbia led by officers, Field Marshal?

A Inasmuch as the reports show it, that was partly the case.

Q And did those officers wear insignia of rank?

A I can't say that any more now.

Q Will you look at Exhibit 23 which is in Document Book 1, at page 84 of the English and page 57 of the German? The portion which I am particularly concerned with, Field Marshal, is the very last page of that exhibit which is perhaps not on page 57 but several pages later. These are excerpts from the War Diary of the 704th Infantry Division and if you will turn to the entry on the 25th of September, 1941, in that War Diary, the last paragraph of the entry reads: "On a Serbia First Lieutenant killed in action, they were found to be members of a band, mostly from Valjevo."

Did you receive any formation that the bands were led by officers and that it was known they were led by officers, because they wore the insignia of lieutenants and captains and colonels etc.?

A The other day I have already testified that at present I cannot reconstruct any more reports in detail I received and what I knew at the time, but I am very sure that in the course of time it was reported to me that the bands were partly led by officers. However, may I add that according to my conception a band does not become a militia just because it is led by an officer. If today in Germany, for instance, parts of an SA and SS formation together under the leadership of a lieutenant of the former Wehrmacht, started to fight somewhere and to appear somewhere, making surprise attacks, etc., the American commander will surely not recognize these formations as militia and he will be justified in not doing that and in exactly the same position we were in those days in the Balkans.

Q Were the insurgents units well organized, Field Marshal?

A I believe I expressed that once in an order. Apparently they were partly well organized, but even that doesn't prove anything against the concept that they were bands. I think in the history of the world there are ganster bands and criminal bands which were excellently organized and against which the police found itself in great difficulties and the best criminalogists were not in a position to cope with them.

But thought such criminals bands were so excellently organized they didn't become legal because of this. And the very same applied to the situation we faced at that time.

Q Do you remember ever having received reports to the effect that the so-called bands wore soviet stars as their insignia?

A I don't recollect anything from those days but I know it now from these proceedings here. But regarding these insignia, I may say, that if the communists bands a sheep skin cap which they frequently did - a cap also referred to here as "tall hat" if they wore a soviet star in it somewhere, that does not constitute, in my opinion, an insignia which can be recognized in the meaning of the Hague convention because the insignia would have to be visible in a modern fighting. That is 800 to a thousand meters. Besides, this soviet star in the cap, as far as I can take here from these documents, was not carried by all of them but only by individuals.

Q Field Marshal, isn't it true that in modern war where camouflage is used to a large extent, it is quite possible that uniforms of regular armies are not visible for a distance of 800 meters?

A It is, of course, possible, that the uniforms are not recognizable, because they are camouflaged, but the situation here was completely different. Here fronts were clearly defined, were the two opponents faced each other, and the general situation shows clearly to the troop leader whether it is the enemy or their own troops which are concerned, – that is, the formation of fronts belongs to a certain extent to the concept and to the definition which the Hague Convention laid down about militia troops; there was a basic difference at least in these initial stages between those insurgents who appeared here, or let's say the large units of volunteers and militia of the war 1870–71, which after the collapse of the whole Northern front, and the collapse of Paris were called together by the French. In that case there was a uniform leadership; there were complete units, and they were at least loosely connected with parts of the old army which was still fighting.

Therefore it was clear that these were militia troops and that they were volunteers, and it is just as clear here, in that case of the Balkans, that these people were franc-tireurs.

Q Then if these people that you faced in Yugoslavia wore fully uniforms and all insignia, you would not have recognized them as a militia, and would therefore, not have treated them as regular belligerents. Is that your position?

A It is difficult to say that I would have done six years ago, in case a certain event had occurred. If these franc-tireurs did not adhere to the rules of warfare, though they wore uniforms, they still would not have become militia instead of being franc-tireurs, because if after the conclusion of an armistice, i.e. after a government has decided that its army will not fight any longer – a soldier on his own initiative or on orders of any officer, be it a Major or Lieutenant or a Colonel, – if such a soldier joints up with such officers, and they decide to fight on their own initiative, they are to be regarded as franc-tireurs even if they wear uniforms.

Q Were the insurgents that you faced in Yugoslavia disciplined?

A I cannot say that anymore. I do not assume that they were particularly disciplined because they themselves did not know what they wanted, at least partly, and the organization Mihailovic was not completely organized. It was also true that part of the Mihailovic people fought against us, part of the Mihailovic people fought against the Communists, and another part of the Mihailovic people again said, "The time has not come yet; we are not going to fight yet" and they did not fight, and this alone shows that neither uniform leadership existed nor that these troops were really disciplined. That is what one generally understands by discipline.

Q If you will look at Exhibit 44, which is in Document Book 2, page 33 of the English, and 28 of the German, I believe, –

A What is the document number, please?

QNOKW 1214.

THE PRESIDENT: Exhibit No. what?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: 44, you Honor, page 31 of the English, page 27 of the German.

This is a report from the 378th Infantry Regiment, to the 718th Infantry Division, dated 9 September, 1941, -- will you turn to the last paragraph of that report, paragraph: "The fights around Koviljaca have shown that the Serbian Insurgent movement already has at its disposal perfectly well organized and disciplined units under good leadership".

Did you receive information to that effect?

A I do not know this report of the 718th Infantry Division. It was not addressed to me. To what extent I was informed about such an event in detail, I do not recall any more today. I have already made a general statement to this effect.

Besides, the 718th Division just gained this impression, that is at a locally defined, -- in a locally defined area, and concerning one particular band.

Besides, we must take into consideration that all of these reports, of course, take into account a psychological factor. The troops were probably wanting to show what they had achieved.

Q Field Marshal, were these insurgents recognizing the rules of war when they fought against your troops?

A They did not observe them because frequently atrocities were reported as having been committed by these insurgents.

Q How did they treat their prisoners?

A Partly these prisoners, so far as I recollect, were killed; partly these prisoners were treated as prisoners of war.

Q Will you turn to Exhibit 101 which is in Document Book II, page 81 of the English, and page 58 of the German, -- this is a report of the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, dated, Belgrade, 22 October, 1941? Will you turn to the last page of that report, the third from the last paragraph on that page, you will note there the second sentence of the first full paragraph on the last page of the document reading:

"Band leaders were mostly former Yugoslav officers. These were for the most part wearing old Yugoslav uniforms."

And then the report continues:

"It is reported for the first time that the German soldiers were not deprived of their uniforms. The soldiers also left in possession of their property. Colonel Mihailovic had been pointed out personally as the leader of the units in this area to the two non-commissioned officers. He was surrounded by many uniformed officers. The insurgents in this territory designated themselves as the National Free Serbian Army, whose sole and only aim was to drive the Germans from the country.

They considered themselves soldiers and consequently recognized as valid the laws of war, hence probably the strikingly good treatment of the prisoners."

Did any of the reports which you saw as Armed Forces Commander Southeast, emphasize information of that nature?

A I can only say that I did not get knowledge of this report any more. It is dated the 22nd of October. Besides, this report here shows clearly that the respective unit was led by Colonel Mihailovic personally; therefore, these were probably the very best people which Colonel Mihailovic had, and with whom he surrounded himself. He, for his own part, might well have looked after it that nothing occurred which he did not want to occur.

In this connection may I point out the sentence which precedes what had been read by the prosecutor, and that reads:

"The statements of both non-commissioned officers confirmed the rumors that the entire population participated in the insurrection, since all of them from the child to man were armed and supported the roving bands."

Q Do you make exceptions in your treatment of those persons whom you captured, for those who were led by people like Colonel Mihailovic, and therefore fought correctly; did you treat them better than the insurgents whom you captured, who did not fight correctly?

A No.

Q Field Marshal, were these bands organized along regular military lines, according to the information which you received?

A I must admit that I am being asked a lot of details here which result from a study of the complete files and material available regarding the Southeastern area; I, for my own person, was at that time, -had at that time to rely on the reports I received from the troop units, and I have repeatedly testified here that I had the very definite impression that the people concerned here were franc-tireurs, and not for a minute did I doubt, nor did any of my officers have for one moment the concept that they were militia troops in those days, If individual bands were well organized and others were badly organized, I might have got to know that.

I might have known it. I might have pointed out to the troops that they had to take that into account, but I cannot draw any other conclusions from those facts than the one which I have already drawn, and I cannot now recollect details any more, how one or the other bands might have looked.

Q I agree with you, Field Marshal, we cannot expect you to remember specific details after six years, but I am interested in your general recollection.

Will you turn to Exhibit 56, which is in Document Book 2, page 73 of the English, and page 55 of the German; this is an order of the Commander Serbia which we had looked at earlier.

I should like now to direct your attention to paragraph 4, I beg your pardon, paragraph 5:

"The Communist and Serbian bands camouflaged as nationals, who are hostile to us in the insurgent district, have recently organized themselves in such a fashion that one can already speak of enemy organizations. Their military structure is composed of companies and battalions which are frequently under the responsible leadership of former Serbian officers. The armament is distributed in such a manner that each company disposes over an equal amount of weapons."

Is your general recollection of September 1941 to the effect that you were fighting a real war against an enemy organized to the last degree from a military standpoint?

A The question is very pointedly put. I did not regard it in this sense. I knew that well organized bands existed, that had been reported to me, and that the troops had to take care regarding these bands; I knew that on the other hand other organizations existed too. But this military organization of a band does not necessarily mean this band has to be recognized as militia. Bands might well be militarily organized, and be organized according to military norms; it might well take a military form because it might assume that it thus can exist better and can achieve better results, but that does not mean it was actually militia.

Q Field Marshal, I believe you were asked by Dr. Latenser on direct examination whether you had seen any regulations of the Communist party of Serbia regarding the methods they were to use in fighting your troops. Do you recall that?

A Yes.

Q I think paragraph 7 of this very same order was pointed out to you. 'By reason of the order dated 13 September, instructions of the communist party of Serbia for guerilla warfare' distributed to all offices and troop units within the jurisdiction of the Commander of Serbia, as well as its supplement by additional available orders for service.

THE INTERPRETER: Where are you reading.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Paragraph 7. Page 73 of the English.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q --"distributed to all offices and troop units within the jurisdiction of the Commander of Serbia, as well as its supplement by additional available orders for service within the companies and battalions, one has to reckon with the fact that in the insurgent district especially we are facing an enemy who is well organized to the last details."

Are you quite sure that the instructions of the communist party of Serbia for guerilla warfare related only to the organization of the insurgent units, and not to the methods of warfare they were to employ?

A No, I recollect the methods, not the organization.

Q Did you ever hear, Field Marshal, that your troops, after they were captured by the insurgents, were treated very well by them and that in some cases wounded German soldiers were given excellent treatment in insurgent hospitals?

A I do not recollect that. I will not say that it has not been reported to me, that is possible.

Q I will show you a report and see whether you can have your memory refreshed. Will you look at Exhibit 127, which is in Document Book 5, page 27 of the English, and page 34 of the German. In this exhibit, I am particularly concerned with a report which was sent to you from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia. The particular report is on page 45 of the English, – it should be around page 50 in the German. It is document NOKW 123, and the report is a radio message to the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 12th Army. This particular report does not seem to have a date, but it precedes a report for the 26 of September, 1941. It is on page 51 of the German, I am told. Will you look at paragraph 6 of that report to you, as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast:

"8 wounded captured German soldiers before Sabac returned to own unit. 27 heavily wounded German soldiers are in a hospital in Losnica belonging to insurgents."

Did you ever have any information to that effect? I do not mean specific information, but just generally?

A No. With the best memory in the world, I cannot say to what extent I received such information. I have said that so often here. I would very much like to say, "yes, I did receive them all"; say that I did receive particular ones, but I cannot merely in order to give an appearance of credibility here, say that I did receive them. I do not know it any more.

Q Field Marshal, we cannot expect you to have detailed knowledge of these things after 6 years. Do you recall whether the insurgents ever demanded recognition as a regular belligerent?

A No.

Q Will you look at Exhibit 123, in Document Book 4, on page 129 of the English, and beginning on page 73 of the German. These are excerpts from the War Diary of the 18th Army Corps, and I am particularly interested in the entry for the 8th of October, which should be on about page 80 of the German, I believe, the entry:

"Kraljevo, 6 October, --" it is page 78 of the German. This entry reads:

"65th Corps Command: The Peoples' Liberation Group of Jeva Kursula on 7 October demands the following of the local Kraljevo Garrison Commander."

and will you look at the 5th demand:

"Recognition of all rights as a unit engaged in warfare Nonfulfillment will bring about the shooting to death of 8 captured German soldiers:

Were any of these demands for recognition ever brought to your attention?

A Of course, I do not this activity report of the Army Corps Commander 18: I have already stated that I do not recollect such a demand, and I do not believe that the 18th Corps regarded this demand because this was only one group which was limited as to area and the group called itself Jeva Kursulov that was one individual band leader, who demanded the status of a belligerent, and I can well imagine that the Army Command, - 18th Corps Command, - said, "That is quite impossible; we cannot ascribe such a concession to such a small individual band in view of the fact that the whole rest of the insurgent movement has been and is being regarded as an insurgent movement?"

Q Now, Field Marshal, how did you treat these insurgents when you captured them?

A The insurgents were to be treated as franc-tireurs, that means there existed the possibility that they would be killed in battle i.e. shot in battle, and on the other hand, the possibility that after the fight if they were found with a weapon in their hands, they were shot, after a summary court martial.

Q. How long did the average Summary Court Martial take?

A. I can't say that. That was relatively quick. A Summary Court Martial is a relatively fast court.

Q. Was the accused permitted to bring witnesses on his own behalf?

A. No, that would not have been permitted to him. The Summary Court Martial passed sentence when the facts were obvious and when the two associates could confirm the facts. But I personally never participated in such a Summary Court Martial, but the possibility, in any case, existed.

Q. Was the accused permitted to testify on his own behalf?

A. Yes, certainly. I'm sure he was permitted to do that. I must assume that as absolutely certain.

Q. What was the lowest rank.....

A. But I emphasize again that I myself never participated in a Summary Court Martial or in any proceedings of a Summary Court Martial.

Q. Yes, but surely you as Armed Forces Commander Southeast and as an officer with forty odd years knows how these Summary Court Martials are handled. What was the lowest rank of an officer who was permitted to convene a Summary Court Martial?

A. That was a regimental commander or the independent battalion commander.

Q. And what would his rank usually be?

A. In war-time that was different; it varied. A regimental commander could be a lieutenant colonel or a full colonel, and a battalion commander would be a major or a captain. The independent battalion commander would have been a major or a lieutenant colonel.

Q. Was there any appeal regarding the verdict of the Summary Court Martial?

A. Appeal? No, that possibility did not exist.

Q. Field Marshal, is there a difference between a franc-tireur and a spy, in your opinion?

A. Yes, I would think so. There is a difference between a franc-tireur and a spy.

Q. What is the difference?

A. A franc-tireur is a person who is a member of a certain band and fights with a band, and a spy is a person merely concerned with intelligence and information matters. But I'm not in a position to define that from a legal point of view.

Q. A spy generally does not wear a uniform or insignia, does he?

A. Generally speaking, I don't think he would wear a uniform or insignia.

Q. Field Marshal, I would like again to go back to the Rules of Land Warfare of the Hague Convention of 1907. Article 30 reads: "A spy taken in the act shall not be punished without previous trial." Did you ever consider any of these people spies rather than franc tireurs?

A. No.

Q. Field Marshal, I have noticed in the reports, from the subordinates to you as Armed Forces Commander Southeast, references to certain numbers of insurgents fallen in combat and to other numbers of insurgents shot dead. I wonder if you can clarify for us what the two references meant?

A. Generally speaking, it would have been like this: the person fallen in action would have been designated as "fallen in action," and the person who was caught, sentenced by a Summary Court Martial and then shot would have been designated as "shot to death."

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 67 in Document Book II? This is an Page 124 of the English and Page 96 of the German. This is a report of the 704th Infantry Division, dated 22 September 1941. Will you look at the last line of the report? "Communists are being caught daily and shot to death immediately. For instance, twelve in one day."

Is it your understanding that even though it is stated that they were shot to death immediately, they had previously been given a Summary Court Martial trial?

A. I have to assume that, although I do not know this report of the 704th Division.

Q. Suppose, Field Marshal, that you captured someone who were no insignia and who did not have a weapon in his hand? How was it possible for you to determine whether or not he was an insurgent?

A. That depended entirely on the circumstances under which the person concerned would be captured. I, as Commander in Chief, did not find it possible to judge these individual cases. I would have to assume that the troop would do, in each individual case, what was proper to do. If I am located in Athens I cannot, for instance, judge events that occur in Serbia.

Q. Wasn't it your job to know what was going on in Serbia, even though you were stationed in Athens?

A. It was my task to know it on a large scale, but, on the other hand, I simply had to rely on my commanders as intermediaries--the commanding general, the divisional commander, the regimental commander, and, the battalion commander. And when these reports had gone through all these channels and reached me, I then had to assume that they had been investigated and that everything was in order.

Q. Field Marshal, will you look at Exhibit 115, which is in Document Book IV, the first document in that book. And will you turn to Page 5 in the German and Page 5 in the English. This is a report from the 342nd Infantry Division to the Headquarters of the XVIIIth Corps, and it is the Daily Report of the 29th to the 30th of September 1941. Will you look under the section of the report which concerns itself with prisoners and booty, the second paragraph: "Of the prisoners 190 men could be selected by interrogation as forming a Communist group in the village of Usveco. These men will be shot today." Does that mean that the people were condemned only after the interrogation and not after a Summary Court Martial trial?

A. No, after Summary Court Martial proceedings.

Q. Field Marshal, suppose some of these insurgents laid down their arms and offered to surrender to your troops. Would that make any difference as to the manner in which they were treated?

A. That , again, would have to depend on the individual case.

Q. I don't quite understand. Could you give us an example of what you mean?

A. It's difficult to say. When these people had fought previously and the Summary Court Martial judged that it was too late when they delivered up their arms--then the possibility existed that the Summary Court Martial gained the conviction that they were fighters and that they were caught while carrying arms, and then they would be shot in accordance with the very strict regulations which existed.

Q. In the case of the regular belligerent, when is it too late to surrender your arms? Are you allowed to fight up until the last minute and then surrender or must it be at a given interval before? I'm speaking now in the case of a regular belligerent.

A. The situation there is completely different. That is why specific regulations exist and why there is a specific difference between a regular belligerent and an insurgent.

Q. That is to say, in the case of a regular belligerent you must always accept his surrender?

A. Yes, of course.

Q. You have in mind, I take it, in saying that Article 23 of the Hague Regulations--Article 23 reads: "In addition to the prohibition provided by special conventions, it is especially forbidden"-- and then subparagraph "c" reads: "The killed or wounded enemy who, having laid down his arms and having no longer means of defense has surrendered at discretion." And it is your understanding that that provision relates only to regular belligerent forces?

Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Field Marshal, as I understand the Laws of war, they're based, in part, upon the principle of chivalry. Is that correct?

A. Yes

Q. You didn't feel that that principle applied in the case of franc-tireurs who offered to surrender to you?

A. In the manner in which we were fought, and considering the situation in which we found ourselves, we had to act rigorously. We could not act any differently. I believe that we proved to be chivalrous in the campaign against Yugoslavia and against Greece and that we could not be more so than we proved to be--but on the other hand this insurrection touched vital spots of the occupational forces, of the German Army and of the German population. For this reason we had to act rigorously, hoping that by acting this way we would avoid further heavy losses on both sides. May I emphasize here that I had not the slightest idea of hate against the Serbian population any more than I had against the Greek population. Why would a Serbian peasant not be just as acceptable to me as a Greek one? This was merely and solely a case of emergency defense; and, if I may say this here, it happens to be the way that war demands severe measures, and soldiers, therefore, are not in favor of war. It is an erroneous concept to think that the German officer is fond of war. When one has already anticipated personally in the First World War and suffered the consequences, one knows quite well what war means. And our endeavor has always been to, as much as possible, diminish the severeness of war and the losses of war. But this here was to burn out a festering wound applying even severe measures, and that was the basic idea behind all of this.

Q. In other words, Field Marshal, the measures "which you took to pacify Yugoslavia and Greece were taken by you only to save lives rather than to destroy them? Is that what you mean?

A. If you want to put it that way, yes--solely and merely in order to achieve peaceful conditions as far as possible.

Q. You say, Field Marshal, that you had no hate for the Yugoslavian people and the Greek people. Were you surprised that they had some hate for you, as shown by the attacks on your troops? Could you understand that feeling of theirs?

A. As long as I stayed in Greece there were no considerable attacks. I could understand the feelings of the Greeks, in as much as Hitler let the Italians into Greece, and that through this fact the Greeks were upset about us. I can also understand that a nation like the Yugoslavians was not kindly disposed towards us. This insurrection which we noticed here did not originate so much from the Yugoslavian peasants, but it was incited by Moscow and by the Russian legation in Sofia. Only when the Russian campaign started did this insurrection become what it appeared to be later on.

Q. Field Marshal, with that in mind, will you turn to Exhibit 42, which is in Document Book II. I beg your pardon--Exhibit 48 in Document Book II, which is on Page 31 of the English, Page 42 of the German. This is a communication from you to OKW, and you will note from the first paragraph you say, and this is at the beginning of the fourth sentence: "Association between the insurgents, in my opinion, not aptly described as Communists by the Commander in Serbia, with the Cetniks has been confirmed." Was this movement inspired by Moscow or was it not? Were these people Communists or not?

A. They actually were Communists.

Q. But on the

A. But it happens to be the case that the judgment of this situation was different at different times. That is, we didn't always know for sure where the insurrection originated to begin with, Later on it was quite clear that it was of Communist origin. In this particular case, maybe, on the basis of reports which I had just received, I wasn't sure whether this actually was the case, but I never doubted the Communist insurrection as such.

Q. When did you first believe that it was a Communistic insurrection? Can you give the approximate date?

A. No, I can't say that--not even an approximate date.

Q. But on the

A. If I may say this, it reads here: "Association between the insurgents with Cetniks has been confirmed," and in brackets it reads: "In my opinion not aptly described as Communists by the Commander in Serbia." That is to say, that it was not only purely Communism, but that insurgents were concerned as insurgents. That is, emphasis was laid on the word "insurgents," but that these insurgents were also Communistically influenced and influenced by Moscow is not refuted here.

Q. Field Marshal, do you recall that you said earlier that the Cetniks often fought against the Communists and here you indicate that the insurgents are collaborating with the Cetniks.

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. Did the situation change?

A. The situation did not change. That was continuously the case. Obviously here I mean by Cetniks the people around Mihajlovic and these people did partly fight with the Communists against us.

Q. Now, in any event the situation became very serious in August, September, and October of 1941. What measures did you take to put down the insurrection?

A. With this communication of the 15th September I made an application for uniform leadership in Serbia and for further forces.

Q. Did you tell your troops to take hostages?

A. Yes, that is contained in an order of the 5th of September.

Q. Did you tell your troops to put hostages on the railroad lines and if any attacks were made on the railroad lines which the hostages were to watch that the troops would then execute the hostages?

A. No.

Q. Field Marshal, will you look at Exhibit 67, which is in Document Book II, at Page 124 of the English, Page 96 of the German? I'm particularly concerned with the third page from the end of that exhibit, which is on Page 134 of the English and should be on about Page 106 of the German. This is the third page of the report from the LXVth Corps to the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, dated 10 October 1941. Will you look at the paragraph which begins on Page 17 of the original document? It begins: "However, I told him that I could not understand his considerations regarding the taking along of hostages. If obstructions would have to be removed during the march hostages would have been the obvious labor forces. These forces would have been a means of sparing the strength of his own men. Furthermore, according to general opinion, the taking along of a greater number of male hostages who were distributed through the march columns would have represented the best protection against attacks, and so I could not see any valid reason for his failure to carry out the order." Did information of that nature ever reach you?

A. No.

THE PRESIDENT: We'll take our morning recess at this time. We will recess until 11:20.

(The Court recessed at 1100).

THE MARSHAL: All persons in the courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q Field Marshal, before recess I asked you what measures you took to put down the insurgents' uprising in Yugoslavia and to pacify the country.

A I had given an order of the 5th of September and on the 13th of September demanded from the OKW that a uniform leadership may be installed in Serbia and for this purpose I demanded reinforcements.

Q Did you also tell your troops to take measures against the relatives of those people who were fighting against your troops?

A Yes.

Q Why was that done?

A To the extent that these relatives were at the same time helpers of the partisans -- this was done for the security of the troops. These people were supposed to be interned; in the same manner as it has been ordered by the Control Council Law that all people who are endangering the occupation forces be interned, in the same manner this order is to be understood.

Q Did you also expect to get some information from the relatives as to where their people were fighting, with what units and where those units were located?

A No, these members of the families which were to be interned here I did not expect to give information about the troop units. Besides we cannot talk about troop units but only about insurgent bands.

Q Did you never try to coerce the population into giving information about the whereabouts of the insurgent units?

A The troops might have tried that.

Q Will you turn to Exhibit 125 in Document Book V? It is the first document in the document book. This is a report of Councillor of State, Dr. Turner, and I am particularly interested in the last page of that report. It is on page 6 of the English, and, perhaps 5 or 6 of the German. The last paragraph of the report above the signature of State Councillor Turner. Do you have it?

That paragraph reads: "Last but not least, a proclamation would be released in the Belgrade area allowing a deadline of a very few hours in which it is requested that all arms and ammunition and explosives, etc be surrendered. Belgrade should be cut off during this period and a warning be published that if arms and such were found, not only the one in possession of arms but also the proprietor of the house will be shot without legal proceedings. Thus the proprietors themselves would be impelled to give information against others in order not to become liable for this punishment."

Did information of that nature ever reach you.

A. No, that is the report of State Councillor Thurner. It is shown from the text that it is addressed to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, who then submitted this memorandum to me.

Q. You don't really having any knowledge about the execution of proprietors of certain houses without legal proceedings in order to coerce the proprietors to give information against others?

A. No.

Q. Field Marshall, do you know whether your troops ever punished civilians in Yugoslavia for not warning the German troops beforehand that the insurgents were about to attack?

A. From a report which I have read here amongst these documents I can take this as a fact.

Q. Did you agree with such procedure?

A. To what extent the circumstances justified a summary court martial procedure, I cannot now judge. That can only be judge taking into consideration all the events that occurred at that time.

Q. Will you turn to Exhibit 32, Document Book I; this is on page 113 of the English and page 87 of the German; do you have it?

A. Yes.

Q. This is a report from a Battalion Commander to the 704th Infantry Division. The first two paragraphs read: "On August 16 1941 the Commander in Serbia made known by radio that a village in which a car of the Wehrmacht had been shot at, had been levelled to the ground, and that the inhabitants had been shot to death and hanged.

"The inhabitants had seen the preparations for the attack and had omitted to notify the police post situated nearby or to warn the occupants of the car. Therefore, they became accessories to the crime."

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, I don't know whether at the time I already pointed out the error in translation. I have made a note here and I am asking to have the last part of the first paragraph translated again by the interpreters.

JUDGE CARTER: I think it is true that some changes in the translation have already been made.

DR. LATERNER: Yes, do I recollect correctly that it was changed to "inhabitants had been shot to death and hanged," and not "the inhabitants had been shot to death and hanged."

JUDGE CARTER: That is right.

Q. (continue Did you ever receive information regarding this particular incident, Field Marshal?

A. I have already stated I cannot recollect individual occurrences. The report was made by the 704th Infantry Division and I don't remember now whether I received it or not.

Q. Do you remember generally whether the inhabitants had been considered accessories to crimes simply because they did not reveal that an attack was about to take place on your troops?

A. I have already testified that on the basis of these documents I gained this knowledge.

Q. The first time you had any information in that respect was when you came to Nurnberg?

A. No, I did not express it that way. I said I do not recollect whether or not I received such reports, details at least have not remained in my memory.

Q. Can you recall what criteria was used in determining communists in occupied Yugoslavia?

A. Communists have to be understood in this respect here as insurgents. How that was handled in detail by the troops and how it was ascertained in detail I cannot remember and I do not know.

Q. Did you ever take measures against communists who were simply civilians living in Yugoslavia and who were not part of the insurgent units?

A. I must assume, and I had to assume they were always insurgents, that these concepts, insurgents and communists coincide here in this case.

Q. Will you turn to Exhibit 67, Document Book II; this is on page 124 of the English and page 96 of the German. Will you turn to second page of that report, which is on page 125 of the English, and I believe page 97 of the German.

This is report of the 704th Infantry Division, dated 22 Sept 1941, and then turn to the final page of the report, the next page I believe in your document book, -- to the last paragraph, I beg your pardon, to the next to last paragraph, last sentence, "All five were led off the road to the front of the stabel of Krstivoj about 200 meters away. A machine gun was in position, all five were shot to death, the stable was burned down. The five belonged to a wealthy esteemed family, up to now, no one in the entire village has joined the Communists." Do you know whether mistakes of this kind were made on a large scale or not?

A. I did not know anything of that kind. If this description were correct that would constitute an excess by the troops.

Q. Would you in this case have tried the five persons by summary court martial before they were executed?

A. That is not shown by the document. In this case as it is described here, I cannot assume this. The troops in this case transgressed their orders and this constitutes an excess.

Q. Did you say then, Field Marshal, that to your knowledge none of your troops ever forced the inhabitants to furnish information about the insurgent troops except for the one instance which you recall from the documents introduced here?

A. I can't say that in detail.

Q. Would you have been in favor of taking coersive measures against the inhabitants in order that they should tell you where units fighting on their behalf were vacated, and when they intended to attack your troops?

A. That depends on the connection between these things. If the inhabitants participate clearly with the bands, then coersive measures are justified.

Q. Are you familiar with Article 44 of the Hague Regulations, Field Marshall, --- Article 44 reads, "A participant is forbidden to force the inhabitants of a territory occupied by it to furnish information about the Army of the other belligerent or abouts its means of defense." Is that provision known to you?

A. Yes, this provision is known to me. That means statements about the enemy army, but not concerning the inhabitants or insurgents.

Q. Field Marshal, you stated that you were opposed to the Nazi Policy regarding the jews?

A. Yes.

Q. In so far as this policy was known to me at all. Did you ever receive reports that you can now remember generally, to the effect that Jews were being executed throughout Yugoslavia?

A. Yes, these reports repeatedly expressed that Jews and communists were executed. If this is here expressed in this way I understand by this that the Jews and communists mentioned here were insurgents and that they were not executed for racial reasons. I can well understand from the point of view of the jews that they worked against the Germans and that they combined with the Communists. I say I can well understand that on the basis of events which had occurred. All these things that were at that time now known to me, but that does not justify the fact that they now actively worked against us, and if they did that as insurgents, then they were caught as insurgents and punished as such.

Q. Why should the Jews have been opposed to the Germans in Yugoslavia if no measures had been taken against them in Yugoslavia?

A. As a consequence of their racial connection, generally speaking, with other Jews.

Q. And do you suppose that the Yugoslavia Jews know in 1941 that other Jews in Germany and Poland were being executed?

A. I assume that the *oscow propaganda made use of these facts in order to win the Jews for their purposes, that is the communist revolution.

Q. Field Marshall, now turn to Exhibit 34 in Document Book 1, which is on page 93 of the German and page 113 of the English. I beg your pardon, I mean Exhibit 30, which is on page 99 of the English and page 77 of the German. I am particularly concerned with the report from the German liaison officer to the Wehrmacht Command Southeast, dated Belgrade August 8, 1941,----that begins on page 104 of the English and I think about four or five pages from the beginning, of Exhibit 30, in the German Document Book.

A. I have got it.

Q.- Now, will you turn to the fourth paragraph from the beginning of this report?

A.- That is the report of August 8?

Q.- Yes. You will see on the next page, that is sent for information to Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, 1-C, Athens. Then turn to the first, second, third, fourth paragraph, beginning, "Many insecure elements are said to have penetrated into the police force." Do you have it?

A.- Yes.

Q.- "Many insecure elements are said to have penetrated into the police force. It was to be observed that individual Serbian policemen and police patrols showed complete disinterest in the occurrences in their proximity. They prefer to frequent well lighted streets, whilst in the dark sidestreets no policemen are to be seen. Attention must be drawn to the fact that the designation of the Serbian police by black numbers printed on a red arm band is insufficient, as these numbers can hardly be read by day and not at all at night. In case of encroachments committed by members of the police there is no possibility to identify the guilty person. Often it could be determined that Jews walked about without the prescribed yellow arm band. Also the Jews who were baptised "Christians", and who have besides changed their names, are not yet taken care of. It would be advisable to find out at the ecclesiastic matriculation offices which Jews were baptised in recent years."

Did any information come to you that Jews in Serbia were being made to wear yellow arm bands?

A.- No, that was not known to me. I wasn't aware of it.

Q.- Then will you turn to Exhibit 125, Document Book V, -- this is a report which we have looked at previously from Councillor of State Dr. Thurner, dated Belgrade 21 September 1941; will you turn again to the last page, of that report which is on page 6 of the English, and I believe page 5 or 6 of the German, the next to last paragraph:

"At the same time all active officers and NCO's are to be arrested with the exception of those who put themselves at the disposal of the government immediately, Consideration towards officers, who in the last months worked professionally, does not seem to be appropriate because these persons by virtue of their feeling of solidarity were no doubt used in the communications service or were put in harness in some way, likewise the arrest of all Jews which has already started, is to be carried out more drastically and the gypsies too, are to be arrested." Do you recall this report?

A.- I have already said before that this is a report of State Councilor Thurner to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General of Serbia, a report which never reached me, but in this connection I must state that State Councilor Thurner was at the same time SS Obergruppenfuehrer and Prussian State Councillor; he was a very dominating person and a very inscrutable person, a man who went his own way. I must remind you that I have testified here that I was not at all informed of the reforming of the Serbian government, and only days later did I receive any report, that I learned from newspapers only about the arming of the Serbian police, which was an important matter; that I told State Councillor Thurner to see me and pointed out to him his duties. Hard words fell on that occasion, because State Councilor Thurner repeatedly told me he was independent. Without doubt in this case this State Councilor Thurner wanted to make use of General Boehme when he started his activities. It seems entirely incomprehensible to me that State Councillor Thurner was immediately subordinate to General Danckelmann, and that he here submits a report directly to the Commanding General of Serbia, that was not within his competence. This whole report showed that he intended to make use and to influence General Boehme and to familiarize him with his ideas.

There can be no doubt that the chief of the administration staff in Serbia, went his own way which he hid at least with respect to my person, just the same as nothing was clear concerning the Government and the armed police. That can also be seen by one of my teletypes, and one of my communications, where I demanded that now at least I would have to be informed about the most important events in Serbia.

Q.- You wrote that I believe on the 16 of February to the OKW, and the OKW wrote back to you, and said you will be in complete charge in the Southeast, and will have full executive powers; wasn't that on the 16 of September 1941 when you demanded that you be given full power in the Southeast, so that events like you being misinformed or uninformed be brought to an end?

A.- I had the executive power already before. That had nothing to do with that. As of the 23rd of June, I was Commander in Chief Southeast. But in this case all that was concerned was that State Councilor Thurner only did what he deemed necessary and advisable, and he did not inform me and his military commander did not do that either. The documents too show that State Councillor Thurner quite often issued orders on his own initiative, and signed them "Military Commander, or Plenipotentiary Commanding General, with the signature: Chief of Administrative Staff, Thurner." Therefore, it happened that doubtlessly I was actually not informed about quite a number of occurrences, and I can only assure you with emphasis that the Jewish problem in Serbia, as well as in Greece, did not exist as far as I was concerned.

Q.- Were you the most powerful individual in the southeast?

A.- How do you mean that?

A.- Were you the most powerful single individual in all the southeast from the time you became armed forces commander in the Southeast, in June 1941, until the time you left in October 1941?

A.- I had the executive power in the southeast, and on paper I had enormous powers, as the prosecution here has explained.

In actual fact, however, it was different, because subsidiary governments existed that had partly been informed from above and on the other hand were also formations of which I didn't know anything. And we must consider that I was stationed in Athens and these things took place in Belgrade, that the communications were bad and other means of communications were bad too, that I had a number of other tasks too so that it was quite possible that the knowledge of such occurrences did not reach me.

Q Field Marshal, I believe that we all agree that you were a very busy man and that you had many tasks in the Southeast, that you were the fourth or fifth ranking Field Marshal in the whole German army. Do you mean that a mere Obergruppenfuehrer of the SS was able to dominate you?

A I may say that on paper certainly, but if one knows the situation and the prevailing conditions, one must realize that in times of tension that we lived in, that endeavors existed on the part of the SS to play their own part and I have already mentioned the example of the forming of a government and the example of the armed police. Therefore, if on the occasion of normal events where I should have been asked previously whether it was correct to nominate a new government in Serbia, if I have not been informed about such occurrences which are the most important thing that one can possibly imagine, if for days I don't know anything about such occurrences, it can be just as easily explained that I was not informed of a number of other occurrences and that in spite of all power which I had on paper, this SS Obergruppenfuehrer and Prussian State Councillor had done what he deemed advisable behind my back.

Q Field Marshal you protested to OKW against the formation of a government in Serbia without your previous approval. Isn't that correct?

A No. I did not protest to the OKW. Instead, I opposed the fact that State Councillor Turner or rather his superior, General Danckelmann, did not inform me. I did not make representation of the OKW. The OKW for its own part had asked me what had happened, and all I could say as a reply was that I myself had not been informed.

Q You were quite annoyed at having a government formed without your previous knowledge or approval, were you not?

A That is correct, of course.

Q Did you take any steps to correct that situation so that in the future you would be informed?

A Yes. At one time I issued a communication in which I emphasized that I expected in future at least to be informed about the most important events in Serbia in good time, and I called State Councillor Turner to Athens to see me and I told him my opinion to this effect.

Q When was that?

A That was on the 16th of September.

Q And in spite of the fact that you admonished him to keep you informed, on the 21st of September, 1941, just five days later, he is doing something else without having cleared it with you earlier. This report is dated the 21st of September, 1941, just five days after you and Turner had your altercation.

A That is correct.

Q Was it customary in the German army in 1941 for a Field Marshal to permit himself to be defied by an Obergruppenfuehrer in the SS?

A It is not the German army that is concerned here, but this Obergruppenfuehrer of the SS as an administration chief who was appointed by Goering in Serbia. One must not apply normal conditions of the German army in this case.

Q You say Turner was not subordinate to you?

A Turner was subordinate to me via Danckelmann. He was directly subordinate to his superior.

Q Will you turn to Exhibit 59 in Document Book 2? It begins on page 79 of the English, page 63 of the German, This exhibit is a series of reports and I am particularly interested in the daily report from the Commander of Serbia to you as Wehrmacht Commander Southeast, dated 17 September 1941. It is on page 98 of the English, and I believe on about page 82 or 83 of the German Daily report of the 17th of September, 1941. Do you have it?

A Yes.

Q This report is from the Commander of Serbia; in paragraph 6 it states: "Parts of the Belgrade male Jewish population transported to transit camp near Belgrade. Action continuing."

Do you recall anything of that event?

A It doesn't say here "action continuing."

Q Well, let's get -

A I can only repeat again that I don't know for certain whether I received that report or not. If I received it, I maintain the point of view that it is necessary in view of the security of the troops

Q Now will you turn to Exhibit 39 in that same document book 2, the very first document in that book? I am particularly interested in the report which appears on page 17 of the English and perhaps on page 17 of the German as well.

It is a morning report dated 29 July 1941 of the OKH operations department. There is a portion of the OKH report which deals with activities in the Southeast. Do you have it?

A Morning report of the 29th of August?

Q The 29th of July is the one I am referring to.

A Yes, I have got it now.

Q You will note paragraph I reads: "25 July, in Belgrade, Jewish attempts to burn German vehicles. One hundred Jews were shot to death." Have you any recollection, generally, about actions against Jews, reprisal actions of this nature?

A I am certain didn't receive that report because I wasn't in Athens at that time.

Q There was no information given to you on your return to Athens by your chief regarding activities taken by the Jews in reprisal actions taken against the Jews?

A It was a month later when I returned, and in the meantime the situation had become so tense that I was not prepared for this, and, generally speaking, I can only repeat that the Jewish problem in Serbia and Greece was no problem to me.

Q You mean the Jewish problem was not considered important enough for your chief to call to your attention the fact that Jews had attempted to burn German vehicles and in reprisal you were forced to execute one hundred of them?

A I don't think that he informed me in detail about this. Four weeks later, so much had accumulated and the whole situation had become so much tenser in view of the insurgent movement and in view of the endangering of the troops that I am sure he had other worries.

Q Field Marshal, when did you go to Crete? I think you said it was sometime in October, 1941.

A On the 8th of October.

Q 8th of October? Was Crete under your command and jurisdiction at that time?

A Yes.

Q How do you know that it was the 8th, rather than the 9th or the 10th of October when you went to Crete?

A Because I could ascertain that from a few notes which I made at that time.

Q Did you make a practice of keeping notes, or making a note of when you went on leave?

A I had a notebook, a diary, where I entered these notes of where I happened to be.

Q Did you ever make notes about what was happening in the area of your command? Things like the execution of hostages and the taking of reprisal measures?

A No, never. Those were merely notes of where I was located at that time. It was not a diary in that sense of the word. It was just a pocket diary where, under the date, I entered where I happened to be at that time.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will recess until 1:30.

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal will be in recess until 13:30.

(A recess was taken until 1330 hours.)

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: You may proceed.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, just before the luncheon recess, I asked you when in October you went to Crete?

A. On the 8th of October.

Q. Did you leave for Crete in the morning of the 8th or in the afternoon or just what time of day did you leave?

A. I can't recollect that for certain. But generally speaking I made the best possible use of the days, so I assume that it was during the early morning hours.

Q. When did you return from Crete?

A. During the course of the 11th in the afternoon.

Q. Do you recall whether you signed any orders after you returned on the 11th?

A. I can't recollect that today. After such an absence of four days, a lot of material must have been submitted to me. First of all by the chief of staff, then by the Ia, and by other departments. It is impossible for me to recollect details now.

Q. Reports which you received from your subordinate units and then consolidated into reports of your own for OKW---about how much time would you say elapsed between the arrival of the report from a subordinate unit and the time when you took that report and made a consolidated report of your own for OKW?

A. That depends on the circumstance. I can't say that in detail.

Q. would there usually be a lapse of a day or two between the time you received reports from the field and the time when you sent out your own reports?

A. I can't say that, theoretically and generally speaking. That depends on the individual circumstance, on the type of report which I had received and on the type of report which I passed on.

Q. Now I believe you said earlier that the communications between Athens and Serbia were quite disrupted and that it often took several days for you to hear of events which had taken place in Serbia?

A. I said that the telephone communication were frequently disrupted between Belgrade and Athens.

Q. Would you turn to Exhibit No. 80 in Document Book 3. This is on page 4 of the English and page 3 of the German Document Book. Will you turn to about the third page of that exhibit. It begins on page 7 of the English and I believe on about page 5 or 6 of the German. It is a report from a company commander concerning the shooting of Jews on the 9th and 11th of October, 1941. On the second page of that report, there is paragraph nine, the details of the execution are listed and it states there that the first shooting took place on the 9th of October, 1941.

If the shooting did not take place until the 9th, I presume that the murder of the German soldiers for which the execution of the 2200 Jews was made in retaliation occurred some days earlier than the 9th of October, 1941. Would that presumption be correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You didn't leave for Crete until the 8th of October?

A. Yes.

Q. If the murder of 22 German soldiers had taken place a few days prior to the 9th, would you have been informed of that fact----of the loss of 22 of your men?

A. That can be assumed.

Q. The death of 22 of your soldiers was the largest loss which your troops had suffered in an event of this kind up until that time, was it not?

A. I can't say that way more. In any event, that occurrence was rather particular because these people were murdered in a terrible manner.

Q. From the first page of this report it appears that on the 8th of October, 1941, the shooting of 2200 Jews who were in the camp at Bel grade was ordered.

Did you have any information that Jews to the large number of 2200 were held in a particular camp in Belgrade?

A. No.

Q. When you returned from Crete on the 11th of October, did your chief inform you that 2200 Jews had been ordered executed in retaliation for the death of 22 of your men?

A. I can't remember that any longer but I would assume that he informed me. The other day I have already testified that I do not recall the details of this case either today any longer.

Q. Would you consider the execution of 2200 Jews in retaliation for the death of 22 of your men a conspicuously high retaliation ratio?

A. Yes.

Q. And if you had heard about this incident, would you have taken steps to see that it didn't happen again?

A. I assume that I would have done something about it.

Q. Do you recall whether you did do anything about it.

A. That too I do not remember, whether I did or didn't do anything.

Q. Field Marshal, I assume you would remember outstanding incidents which occurred during the time you were Armed Forces Commander Southeast particularly outstanding incidents. Is that correct.

A. I don't quite understand the question.

Q. I mean that one can't expect you to remember a lot of extraneous details about what occurred while you were armed forces commander southeast, but is your memory good enough to recall the large or particularly outstanding events which occurred during the time you were down in the Southeast?

A. I cannot say. One event I happen to remember, and another one I don't happen to remember. Generally speaking, I had an overall picture of all events, but details are a different matter. It is not within my own province, to decide that. That is the function of the troops as a body, and sometimes one remembers and sometimes one does not.

Q. Did an event like this, the execution of 2200 in retaliation for the death of 23 German soldiers occur frequently, or would you say that it is an exceptional circumstance?

A. It was certainly an exceptional case.

Q. But you still have no recollection of it?

A. I expressly stated that this is the only event which I recollected vaguely when I was refreshed in my memory here, about all of these matters.

Q. Will you turn to Exhibit 128, which is in Document Book V, and begins on page 102 of the English, and page 70 of the German; particularly will you turn to the daily report of the 9th of October, 1941 which is on page 117 of the English and I believe on about 85 or 86 of the German. It is the daily report from the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 9 October 1941. This is the report of your 1-C officer, and the portion of the report dealing with activities in Serbia, and it states:

"In reprisal for 22 murdered men of the 521st Signal Regiment, 2000 communists and Jews are being shot to death."

That report sent out on the 9th of October, 1941.

DR. LATERNER: Just a minute, Your Honors, I would like to have this report submitted to the interpreter for a retranslation.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Do you have the original document? It is NOKW 251; does the Secretary General have Exhibit 128 here? If not, could you bring Exhibit 128 into Court?

Field Marshal, the report which was sent out from your office on the 9th of October, is probably based on a report which you received a day or two earlier; isn't that true?

A. It can be assumed that these reports came in a day or two earlier, if not on the same day, since this is a teletype we have here.

Q. Now if the report which came in from Serbia, on which your report of the 9th of October is based, arrived in your office on the 7th or 8th before you went to Crete, you would have heard about the proposed execution of 2000 Communists and Jews in retaliation for the murder of 22 of your German soldiers, would you not?

A. But I did not hear it, because this report came in on the same day, which can, in this case, be clearly seen from the document.

Q. How can it be seen from the document, Field Marshal?

A. It reads, that the shootings of 2,200 Jews is about to be carried out. That is the first report of the 9th of October, which came to us from lower echelons to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast

Q. But this report to which I have called your attention just now does not indicate when it was received at your office as the Military Commander in Serbia does it?

A. This report here only shows when it left the office, but another report does show when it was received.

Q. Perhaps we can have the court interpreter translate the portion which Dr. Latenser has requested.

MRS. SCHAEFFER: The sentence reads:

"As reprisal for 22 murdered men of the 521 Signal Regiment, 2000 Communists and Jews are being shot to death."

I would translate it the same way as the translation which we have in front of us. I do not know whether Dr. Latenser intends it to read, "will be shot to death" because then in German it should read, "werden erschossen werden" which means, "are being shot to death."

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, I believe you stated that the reference on certain of the documents to concentration camps in Serbia, referred merely to collecting camps, and they were not concentration camps in the sense of the word as we learned to think of them when we talk of concentration camps within Germany; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. We will turn to Exhibit 17, Document Book 1, on page 63 of the English, and page 36 of the German. This is a communication from the Military Commander Serbia, Administrative Staff, Belgrade 22 June, 1941, to the Minister-Commissioner of the Interior, Mr. Acimovic.

GERMAN TRANSLATOR: I beg your pardon, what page?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Page 46 of the German.

You will note in the third sentence of the communication it states:

"Later on these, as well as other criminal elements arrested in the country and Communists, are to be transferred to the concentration camp which you have been directed to erect."

Do you know which concentration camp was erected in Belgrade?

A. No.

Q. Do you know to whom these concentration camps were subordinated?

who was in charge of their administration?

A. They were so far as I can read from the document now, the administration chief of the military Commander Serbia.

Q. You have no knowledge of these camps, when you were the Armed Forces Commander Southeast?

A. No.

Q. Turning to Exhibit 46----

THE PRESIDENT: Our reception is particularly bad up here for some reason.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Ours is too, Your Honor. Perhaps we can have it checked.

Q. Turning now to Exhibit 46,--in Document Book 2, which begins on page 37 of the English, page 37 of the German---

THE PRESIDENT: Will you repeat that again?

Q. Exhibit 46, Document Book 2, page 47 of the English, and page 37 of the German, and particularly to the second page of that exhibit, which is on page 48 of the English, and I believe page 38 of the German, this is a communication from the Commander in Serbia, dated Belgrade, 11 September, 1941, and it reads:

"Letter from Commander Serbia; Command Staff, Section IA, No. 397/41, Secret; dated 21 August 1941, orders that the prisoners with the troops are to be transferred to Concentration camp Belgrade in order that the troops may be relieved of their responsibility.

This cancels out the local importance of the concentration camp Belgrade subordinate to the Administrative Sub-area Headquarters.

Therefore, effective immediately, the concentration camp will be made subordinate to the Commander Serbia-Administrative Staff and will be designated as, 'Concentration Camp Serbia, Belgrade.'

The Administrative Staff Trill regulate directly the process of taking over of the concentration camp and the inclusion of the Einsatzgruppe of the Security Police and SD. Guarding of the concentration camp as heretofore."

Did you ever receive information to this effect, Field Marshal?

A. No, not that I can recollect. This order was issued by the Commanding General Serbia to his various departments.

Q. Was the Commanding General, Serbia, subordinate to you?

A. He was subordinate to me.

Q. Now will you turn to Exhibit 61 in the same document book, and page 103 of the English, page 82 of the German? This is an order from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, to the 342nd Division, dated 23 September 1941. You will note from paragraph 2:

"342nd Division is to evacuate Sabac by surprise attack on the entire male population between the ages of 14 and 70 and take it to a concentration camp set up by the Division north of the Save. For this purpose, the German troops and officers in Sabac are subordinated to the 342nd Division."

Did you ever hear of the Sabac Concentration Camp?

A. This order reached me as an informational copy, therefore I must have received it. However, I cannot remember it, and, "by a concentration camp to be established by the troops", one should never understand a "concentration camp" like those which existed in Germany, but only a collection camp, and collection is stressed by the word "concentration." In other orders again it reads, "collection camps".

Q. It would be much clearer if they had said, "collecting" camps in this order, rather than "concentration" camps, would it not?

A. Yes, that would have in fact been more correct.

Q. Were the "concentration camps" in Germany referred to as "concentration camps"?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Now, will you turn to Exhibit 71 in the same document book, which is on page 143 of the English, page 110 of the German--one question first, Field Marshal, What did these collecting camps look like?

A. I have never been in one.

Q. Did you ever hear how they were constructed? Were they made of wood or brick; how many people could they accommodate? Did you ever receive information about these kind of details?

A. No, nothing that I recollect. But the erection of this one collecting camp shows that evacuated houses were to be equipped as their collection camps, but in detail I am not informed about this, and I have never seen one.

Also, I assume that locally there was a difference; sometimes it would have been a large, other times a small camp.

Q. Field Marshall, this report, Exhibit 71, is from the Commanding General in Serbia, to Commander Serbia, Chief of Military Administration, 65th Corps 342nd Infantry Division, and its subject is, "Zasaviza Concentration Camp". You will note in paragraph 2 it says:

"In the proximity of the locality Grn-Zasaviza a camp sufficient for holding some 30,000 prisoners is to be erected first of all in the open air, so that the transfer of the inmates in Sabac can take place by 20 October. In the course of further construction the locality is to be included into the same camp for winter quarters."

Did you ever hear of the Zasaviza Concentration Camp?

A. Not that one; I cannot recollect that particular concentration camp. I heard of the evacuation of those people from Sabac and on the basis of this evacuation I issued a teletype on 4-10 to the effect that a release of all those was to be effected, -- of all of these people who were not under suspicion and who were not guilty, just in order to put all these things right again, because on the basis of a report by my chief, who was at that time in Belgrade. I had the impression that it was necessary to reestablish order here. I thought that the troops had carried out arrests here which exceeded the extent of those who could be accommodated here.

Q. This report is from the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia, and it is dated 6 October 1941. Who was the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia at that time?

A. May I say that this is not a report; it is an order. This report was not addressed to me. Instead, the order was issued by the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia to his subordinate officers, but in the form of a report to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast.

The order in such as we see it here in the text, I have never gotten it, and I don't think any of our officers have ever gotten it either. The channels would be in this way, that the subordinate officers issue their own orders and take their own measures on the strength of them. If all of these orders would have to be submitted to the superior officers, that would go too far. Details about this matter I do not think were known to anybody in my staff.

Q. I stand corrected, Field Marshal. It is an order rather than a report, and I ask you again, who was Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia at this time?

A. That was General Boehme.

Q. He was subordinate to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Field Marshal, I believe you said that these camps were not related at all to the German concentration camps. Is that correct?

A. That is how I would picture it. I do not know the concentration camps in Germany either, but here we are merely concerned with the accommodation and the safekeeping of people who might at some time be a danger to the German occupation forces.

Q. We turn to Exhibit 81, Document Book 3, on page 11 of the English and page 9 of the German. This is a report from the Chief of the Security Police of the SD dated Berlin 9 October 1941. Of course, you could not know about the reports which the SD sent, because there is this reference to an event and a situation in Serbia that perhaps you do know something about:

"Collecting camps are installed by the German Wehrmacht in the Save river bend near Mitrevica for the persons arrested in the course of the mopping-up action by the Wehrmacht and also for other arrestees. This camp is being constructed by Organization Todt. It will have an immediate capacity of 50,000 persons, and can be enlarged to hold 500,000 persons. The camp is constructed like the German concentration camps. The direction of the camp is in the hands of the Einsatzgruppe of this Security Police and of the SD."

Did you hear any tiling about the erection of camps in Serbia during the month of October, 1941?

A. I have never heard anything about it. That is a report by the chief of the Security Police where he described a plan for the future, and I do not believe, according to anything which I have heard later, that this camp was ever erected in the form as it is mentioned here, and none of the reports which we see here, show that it was ever established.

I can therefore, only think that the idea existed at one time and that this idea was reported by the Chief of the Security Police, to special officers, and it reads here in actuality. "It should be, and it will be built up". It seems to me just a picture of fantasy that this camp should ever have the capacity of 500,000 people. I can only say that I know nothing about this, and that I must assume with certainty that the camp never existed in this shape or form.

Q. We will turn to the first page of that particular SD report. You will note from the second paragraph of the report, "mopping-up by the German Wehrmacht in the area of Sabac has resulted up to now in the arrest of 22,000 male persons. These are housed in a temporary camp and are at present being screened by a Detachment of the Security Police with the assistance of the Belgrade Police."

Then the next paragraph refers to the reprisal execution of 2100 Jews and Gypsies for the 21 German soldiers shot to death in Topola, and finally, that 800 foreign Jews and Gypsies are taken from the camp in Sabac, the rest from a Jewish transit camp in Belgrade."

I believe that you said that you never knew about a Jewish Transit Camp in Belgrade?

A. It doesn't say anything here about a Jewish Camp in Belgrade. As a reprisal measure, the Security Police are asked to put the necessary number at the disposal but there is no talk about a Jewish Camp.

The 22,000 male persons, I could not recollect the number any more, and I would have never thought that it was that high, but as I stated before, the evacuation of Sabac at that time, a great number of male Persons were captured, and on the 4th of October, after I had gained insight into these conditions, I had ordered the release of all of these people who were not guilty in any way.

Q. Will you look at the last line on the first page and the top of the second page: "05 Jews and Gypsies are taken from the camp in Sebac direct from the Jewish transit camp Belgrade." Do you find that?

A. Yes.

Q. You never heard of a Jewish transit camp in Belgrade?

A. No.

Q. Field Marshal, when did you return from the Russian front to your home in Partenkirchen? I believe you said it was in September, 1942.

A. On the 10th of September 1942.

Q. And from that time until the end of the war you remained in Partenkirchen?

A. In the main, yes, in Partenkirchen.

Q. Did you ever hear of the events which were transpiring between 1942 and 1945 in Dachau?

A. No.

Q. How far is Partenkirchen from Dachau?

A. 120 KM.

Q. How long would it take to travel from Dachau to Partenkirchen on a train?

A. I would think six hours or eight hours.

Q. Field Marshal, in order to put down the uprising in Yugoslavia you ordered...

A. I beg your pardon, Mr. Prosecutor, Mr. Fenstermacher. May I say something else in connection with this last question? In Garmisch Partenkirchen I live in a very isolated manner and only with my family because I knew that all my social activities were under supervision. I had hardly any contact with anybody with the exception of those people whom I have described here already, and in addition with a Geheimrat Dr. Wicker. And none of these people told me anything of events in Dachau. I have a good friend of mine who was in a concentration camp for 7 months near Berlin, and when she returned she would not tell any thing because she said if anything became known she would only be sent again to that camp.

When I asked her how she fared there, she said, "generally speaking, all right," and that's the only thing that I actually ever knew about concentration camps. And in the Winter of 1944, to my extreme horror, I heard for the first time of the enormous figures of extermination of Jews from Geheimrat Wicker, and he told me that as a big secret because he said "if it ever becomes known that I know about it and that you know about it, both of us will be put into a concentration camp by the Gestapo." We lived at that time in Germany, in such a state of terror and dictatorship that a Field Marshal couldn't ever do anything which anybody in any other state and in any democracy would consider a matter of fact and a matter of course. And please take that into consideration when evaluating my statements.

Q. You were threatened with imprisonment in a concentration camp, not a collecting camp?

A. No, Geheimrat Dr. Wicker, who gave me the information about concentration camps said to me, "Look, I can't even say this loudly, I ask you urgently never to say anything about it because if it does become known, then both of us will be put into a concentration camp."

Q. Turning to Yugoslavia. In order to put down the insurrection you ordered your troops to take hostages. Is that correct?

A. Yes, that is the order already existed, and I said an increasing number of hostages.

Q. Did you ever hear that conspicuously high numbers of hostages were executed in retaliation for attacks on your troops and installations while you were Armed Forces Commander Southeast?

A. I heard about reprisal measures in general.

Q. Did you hear that large numbers of hostages were executed as part of German reprisal measures?

A. I can't say now in detail.

Q. What would you considered conspicuously high hostage ratio -10 to 1, 50 to 1, 100 to 1?

A. That's difficult to establish in theory. That, again, will have to depend on the circumstances of the facts, and under certain circumstances very high figures may be justified. In general, I was against the general establishment of fixed numbers, and I, for my part, never established a ratio for this very reason.

Q. Can you imagine circumstances in which 200 to 1 might not be a conspicuously high ratio?

A. 1 to 200 never occurred, and I can only keep maintaining my point of view that in general, I refused to establish any number. Very high ratios that were ordered from above, which for human reasons seemed much too high to me, I have already stated that.

Q. Can you imagine a military situation in which a Commander would find it necessary to execute 50 to 1?

A. That's very high, but it is extremely difficult to say in theory that that should not happen under any circumstances, that's impossible; because the accompanying circumstances can be of such a difficult nature and I believe purely theoretically concerning such a crisis one cannot determine this.

Q. Well, let us take events in Serbia while you were there. Were military conditions so grave from the German standpoint that a ratio of 50 to 1 would be considered too high by you? In individual instances I meant.

A. Generally speaking, too high. In individual cases there might have been a justification for this. This situation in Serbia was in fact very grave and threatening. The situation in Serbia was thus that parts of units were suddenly captured, disappeared, were deported to the mountains. It happened that the complete supply was gravely endangered, and thus the whole occupation could collapse if those rear communication lines did not function any more. I think the importance of the rear communication lines in the Balkans made it very difficult to estimate and it is also very difficult to establish what consequences such an interruption could have.

Q. Can you imagine individual situations in Serbia where a ratio of 100 to 1 might not be considered too high by you?

A. The ratio of 1 to 100 seems to me very high indeed.

Q. Now, Field Marshal, will you explain the procedure the German troops followed when, they took hostages? Who rounded the hostages up, and where were they kept after they were taken into custody?

A. What the procedure was in detail I do not know. I ordered that in the mopped-up areas suspects should be taken as hostages and that they should be gathered in collecting camps.

Q. What happened if attacks in a particular village from which you had previously taken hostages occurred? What then happened to the hostages from that particular village?

A. In that case hostages which had been taken from such a village could be shot because that had been made known previously to the hostages as well as to the entire population of the village concerned.

Q. How did you inform the hostages themselves and the population of the village from which the hostages were taken that they would be shot? How was that done?

A. That was the task of the troop unit concerned and of the area headquarters concerned.

Q. Do you know how?

A. Normally I think they would be notified by the mayor of the village.

Q. Were people from several different villages kept in a central hostage camp or was there a separate hostage camp for each village?

A. There, again, I cannot recollect details. I would think that it varied. If it was a larger village or a market town then a collecting camp would be setup for that market town. But if they were just isolated farms or hamlets then there would be one collecting camp for several of this kind.

Q. Was it possible that if an attack took place in Village X hostages who had previously been taken into custody from Village Y were shot in retaliation?

A. According to my order that was not to happen.

Q. Field Marshal, is it your understanding that reprisals can be against the civilian population as well as against the enemy troops?

A. Certainly. Reprisals can be carried out at any time when military necessity demands it. I emphasize again that they are not troops with which we are concerned here; they are bands.

Q. Is it true that the reprisals which were taken had to be proportionate to the degree of severity of the attack or for which the reprisal was instituted? That is to say, could the reprisal action be disproportionate to the action for which it was taken?

A. No, the reprisal was to be proportionate to the action committed. Well, again, we have to consider that a reprisal is, fundamentally speaking, the very last means of force taken, and it has to be applied in such a manner that it terrorizes and has a quick effect.

Q. You mean that a reprisal can only be taken as a last resort?

A. Not as a last resort. It is the last means. Quite generally speaking, the last means which one takes.

Q. And did you try other means before you instituted reprisal measures against the occupied peoples of Yugoslavia?

A. Yes. At first we tried propaganda. We tried to enlighten the population. Then, later on, we had small commandos who interfered and only later, when these things were unsuccessful and the insurrection grew more and more, we had to decide to take other means.

Q. Did you believe that the execution of 50 hostages in reprisal for the death of one German soldier was a proportionate measure?

A. I believe I have said more than once, that this ratio seemed high to me and that I was against a general establishment of a fixed number, and that I was also against the ratio of 1 to 50 for reasons of humanity.

PRESIDING JUDGE BURKE: It is my impression that Mr. Denney covered this matter quite thoroughly and completely. There may be an error. I seem to have a definite recollection of it.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well, your Honor.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. When did you leave the Southeast? (Withdrawn) Then did you take over the command of the Army Group A in Russia?

A. Army Group A-- on the 7th of July 1942.

Q. Did you ever receive the Commissar Order while you were in Command of Army Group A in Russia?

A. No.

Q. Did you hear of the Commissar Order while you were in Command of Army Group A?

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Do you know what....

A. At that time Commissars did not play any part any longer.

Q. And why was that?

A. I have never heard anything about a Commissar during the time that I was in command of Army Group A.

Q. Do you know whether Russian forces had political Commissars attached to their units?

A. Generally speaking, they had them.

Q. Do you know whether those political Commissars were in uniform?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Do you know whether political Commissars were executed by troops under your command when you were Commander of Army Group A?

A. No.

Q. Were you opposed to the Commissar Order?

A. I would have been opposed to it had I known it.

Q. FOr what reasons?

A. Well, for a very natural reason. Why should I apply special laws against a political Commissar who is, legally with his troops?

Q. Did you consider a political Commissar then a regular member of the enemy forces, the same as any other soldier?

A. Yes, he can be that.

Q. Do you consider the Commissar Order which has been shown to you here as an illegal order and a contravention of International Law, as you understand it?

A. I don't know whether I have to say anything in connection with this. I had nothing to do with the Commissar Order, and I don't believe that I'm obliged to give a judgment here about the Commissar Order.

Q. You were opposed to the Order though?

A. I would have been opposed to it had I known it.

Q. Do you believe that no Commissars were executed within the area of Army Group A while you were in command?

A. Yes, I am of that opinion.

Q. Was the Crimean Peninsula within the jurisdiction of Army Group A while you were in command of that Army?

A. Yes, that was later on under my jurisdiction.

Q. What do you mean by "later on"?

A. To begin with, if I remember correctly, it was not under my command. Only later on during the course of operations did it come under my command.

Q. About what date did it come under your command?

A. I can't say that at the moment. But when the Crimea came under my command there were no more fighting on the Crimean Peninsula. At that time the fighting had already long been concluded.

Q. Was the XIth Army subordinate to you when you were in command of Army Group A?

A. The XIth Army was under my command for a period in order to employ it via Kerch in connection with Novorossiysk, but later on it was again withdrawn from my command and transferred.

Q. Do you know when it was withdrawn, from your command, the approximately date?

A. No, I'm afraid I don't. There were several changes at that time.

Q. Field Marshal, will you look at the Document NOKW-1902.

THE PRESIDENT: What Exhibit Number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: This was no exhibit number, your Honor, it is a cross-examination document. This is a report from town headquarters I to the commanding officer of Rear Army Area 553. Is that correct, Field Marshal?

A. The Comma order of the Rear Army Area 553.

DR. LATERNER: May I please have a look at the document before any questions concerning the document are asked?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Certainly.

Q. Field Marshal, this is a report from Town Headquarters 1 to the Commanding Officer Rear Army Area 553, is it not?

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. And do you note that it is dated "Kerch 1 August 1942"?

A. Yes,

Q. Is Kerch on the Crimean Peninsula?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you note the receipt stamp of the Commanding Officer Rear Army Area Administrative Headquarters 553 on the first page of the document?

A. Yes, but it is not recognizable.

Q. Turn to page 2 of the document. At the top of the page it reads: "On the 6th of July, 1942 the Battalion Commissar Mahalla was taken prisoner in Camp Kerken and shot on 10 July 1942. Did this report ever come to your attention?

A. No, I said already on the 7th of July I took over the command of the army group. This occurrence happened on the 6th of July and the report -- that is right -- the activity report dates on the 1st of August, but I did not get this whole activity report. The activity report of the Rear Army Area goes to the Army, not to the Army Group and this report, therefore, this activity report of the Town Commandant was evaluated by the Commandant of the Rear Army Area and the Commander of the Rear Army Area sent the main contents on to the Army, I suppose. I suppose that report of the 6th of July, if it already been reported in detail, would not have been reported again on the 1st of August; but, this activity report or, rather, the report by the Command of the Rear Army Area was would not got to the Commander of the Army Group but to the Commander in Chief of the Army. It is quite out of the question that an army would inform me about these things at a moment when an operation starts, an operation of the extent as it had never exhibited before, in the direction of Stalingrad and the Black Sea.

It is completely out of the question that such a report and such details would then reach the Commander in Chief of an Army Group; and, if in this connection I may say this, it can only be explained that the commissar order which had existed already for a long time with the armies in the East at the time when I took over the Army Group -- I was only exclusively receiving my orders from von Book and instructed with respect to operational activity and the operational situation. No files of any kind were given to me and I had no opportunity to study any files in this short period, but this concerned a large military operation where those things naturally recoded into the background, and those measures which were in an entirely different sphere would not even reach the Commander in Chief of an Army Group or even his staff.

Q. Is it true that the Rear Army referred to here was subordinate to the 11th Army?

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Fenstermacher, is this document to be offered in evidence or is it to be marked as an exhibit?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think we should mark it for identification now, your Honor, and then offer the number after the 24 hours is passed and I suggest -- we have no copies to distribute to your Honors at this time but it should be marked as Exhibit 585-A for identification.

THE PRESIDENT: 585-A.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: For identification, and we hope to have enough copies to go around tomorrow.

Q. Field Marshal, is the Rear Army referred to here subordinate to the 11th Army?

A. The Rear Army Area was subordinate to the list Army --that is, as far as I can remember now by heart these, command conditions I am now put before a completely different situation and, if I assume the then 11th Army was at that time subordinate to me in the Crimean then the Rear Army Area would be subordinate to this army, to the 11th Army; but the Army Group as such had nothing to do with the Commander of the Rear Army Area because the Army Group had only purely operational tasks and nothing to do -- and was not employed at all with administration tasks and tasks concerning Rear Areas.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Mr. Fenstermacher, is it your idea that the 24-hour rule applies to cross-examination exhibits?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think it does not apply to our showing a witness a document which he has not seen for 24 hours earlier, but I believe it does apply, your Honor, to the actual offer into evidence; that is to say, we can cross examine oh a document which we have not previously shown to the defense, but I believe we must give them 24 hours before we actually offer it into evidence.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I wouldn't think that was the rule --I don't have it before we, because that would defeat the very purposes of cross examination quite often. It seems to me it ought to be submitted in evidence right during the cross examination; otherwise, if it isn't, what right do you have to examine on it at all?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I would rather have that statement of the rule, your Honor. The prosecution have been working on that construction. Whether Dr. Laternser has any objection or not, I do not know.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Unless the rules specifically, provide otherwise. It seems to me it should be permitted in evidence without the 24-hour rule.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well, your Honors.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honors, I am referring to the 24-hour notice because I do not know that any rule exists which makes an exception in view of any documents so that I also have to insist that the 24-hour rule apply concerning cross examination documents.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Unless the rule provides definitely to the contrary, I am inclined to the view that Dr. Laternser's position is in error because it wouldn't do much good to hold back cross examining exhibits if you had to give them 24 hours in advance to study over when the very purposes are to the contrary.

MR. DENNEY: If your Honor pleases throughout the International Military Tribunal case and all other cases here, to my knowledge cross examination documents have never been submitted to defense counsel prior to the time that they were produced in court and handed to the witness. There has been some variation with reference to the time when these documents were admitted. Some of the present military tribunals hold a view that the documents can only be marked for identification on cross examination and that at the close of the entire defendants' case the formal offer in evidence is to be made.

However, that has no reference at all to the 24-hour rule. Other tribunals have taken the position that the documents may be offered and received in evidence immediately and I think so far as the question is concerned it has no bearing on the 24-hour rule, but I am not aware of any such provision that Dr. Laternser has just stated.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Well, the Tribunal is of that opinion, but we do feel that copies ought to be available so that we can follow along on this cross examination.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We will certainly try to do that in the future, your Honor. This is a document which just arrived and we were not able to get copies in time.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, you say, then the Rear Army Area referred to here was subordinate to the 11th Army and that the 11th Army was subordinate to you as Commander in Chief of Army Group A?

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Before the question is answered, I believe we will take our afternoon recess.

THE MARSHAL: The Court will be in recess for fifteen minutes.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: The Tribunal is again in session.

JUDGE CARTER: You may proceed.

CROSS EXAMINATION (continued)

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, just before the recess I asked you whether the rear army, referred to in the Document NOKW 1902 was subordinate to the 11th Army, and the 11th Army in turn subordinated to you as Commander in Chief of Army Group A?

A. The 11th Army was temporarily under my command as Commander in Chief of Any Group A. This Army had a rear area, but the Commander in Chief of an Amy Group had purely operative tasks, and had nothing to do with the administration of the rear area. That was exclusively the task of the Army.

Q. Were political commissars of the Russian troops captured for the must part during combst, in the operations, or were they taken into custody, generally speaking, in the rear area?

A. I cannot say anything about this, because I cannot recall anything about the capturing of Russian commissars. I cannot recollect having anything to do with Russian commissars.

Q. Do you believe that the 11th Army never reported to you that Battalion Commissar Mahalla had been taken prisoner in Kerkeni, and shot on the 10th of July 1942?

A. I don't believe that the Army ever reported that.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We will have enough copies of that to go around tomorrow, Your Honor, and it can be offered in evidence then. It can be marked now Exhibit 585-A for identification.

JUDGE CARTER: Why not put it in evidence now and eliminate the cecessity for going back?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: All right. Will you give that copy to the Secretary General then? (last remark to clerk) It is offered as Prosecution exhibit 585.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I object to the admission of this exhibit, for the following reasons: The exhibit has no connection with any of the defendants charged here. This connection would have to be proved by the prosecution, and that is something different. As long as this has not happened, this piece of evidence has no probative value. For instance, with regard to the defendant Field Marshall List the Prosecution has not proved that this office has issued this report, and that this office belonged to the 11th Army, and the Prosecution has not proved that the 11th Army was at that time subordinate to Field Marshall List. This exhibit has no connection at all, and must therefore be rejected.

JUDGE CARTER: Objection overruled.

Q. Field Marshall, will you look at this next Document, NOKW 843.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I have sufficient copies of this to go around Your Honor.

Q. (continued) Field Marshall, this is a report of the Secret Field Police, Group 647, for the month of August 1942.

JUDGE CARTER: Is this to be marked Prosecution Exhibit 586?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, Your Honor; I am sorry.

Q. Do you note the receipt stamp of the 42nd Infantry Corps Headquarters for September 3, 1942?

A. Yes.

Q. The report itself is dated "Local Headquarters, 21st August 1942.

A. Yes.

Q. Now, will you look under Paragraph 4, "Arrests."

"In the period covered by the report a total of 238 persons have been arrested - divided according to the following punishable offenses." That is on page 6 of the original document, I believe. Then a list under Paragraph "a" and beginning with that portion under paragraph "a" which begins, "Others". Members of Red Army 44 Jews and Commissars (turned over to SD) 2" Do you recall whether the 11th Army sent a report to you to the effect that the Jews and Commissars had been turned over to the SD?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what "turning over to the BD" means, Field Marshall?

A. I know this now. At the time I would not have known it. That is completely out of the question that such a report from the 11th Army was at that time directed to me. This is an activity report of the Secret Field Police, addressed to the Army High Command, and this activity report would, surely have been passed on to the High Command of an Army Group. I must emphasize again and again that an Army Group had at that time purely Operational tasks and this Army Group was formed during an operation, and a part was split up and this part was lead by the newly formed staff of the Army Group, and had only purely operational tasks which had nothing to do with the administration of the rear army area, etc. and was purely taken up with the operations. I do not even know how long the Crimea, was subordinate and how long a time the Army was subordinate. I said the 11th Army was taken away at sometime and transported somewhere else. When and where that took place I cannot tell you now.

Q. What do you know now that "turning over to the SD" means?

A. In general it is now said that if a person is turned over to the SD that the SD should then execute the person in question.

Q. Field Marshall, isn't it true that the 11th Army had a duty to incorporate in its report to you the most important functions and reports which it had received from subordinate units?

A. I cannot recall that at that time I received any reports from the Army apart from purely operational activities.

Q. You don't believe that the turning over of all Jews and Commissars to the SD would be important enough an incident for the 11th Army to inform you as Commander in Chief of Army Group A about?

A. I just told you the Army group had purely operational tasks and that the other tasks were left to the Army completely independently and without a higher officer, the quartermaster general. The Commander in Chief had in his staff no Quartermaster, for instance. He had only an operational staff.

Q. Now, Field Marshall, will you look at this next document, which is NOKW 848,--

MR. FENSTERMACHER: And when we have sufficient copies tomorrow, Your Honor, we will distribute them. It should be marked Prosecution Exhibit 587.

Q. (continued) This is an activity report of the Secret Field Police Group 647, for the month of July 1942, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you look under paragraph 3 of that report.

"The Politruk Kaliba Josef, 33 years old, and the Battalion Commissar Mahalla Wassili, 35 years old, were shot by order of the Ic of the XXXXIInd Corps. Both had been hiding with a group of partisans in the stone quarries near Kertsch and had tried to make their way to the coast to the Red Army." Did you receive any information about that incident?

A. This is the same report which we have had sometime previously. The document which was submitted to me, at first, mentioning Politruk Kaliba, was this report. If I didn't receive the first report I wouldn't have received this report.

Q. This report is slightly different, because in addition to a reference to a battalion Commissar there is also reference to Politruk; do you know what Politruk is?

A. In the other report this appears as well: it also said "A Politruk Kaliba and the Italian Commander Mahalla, Vassili,-that is the same report.

A. No, this is quite out of the question that I received such a report.

DR. LATERNSE: I object to the introduction of this document It is not to be admitted because it is cumulative. In Exhibit 586 the same document is submitted, and now the same document is again submitted under Exhibit 587. May I add that Exhibit 586 is an extract from this exhibit which is now being submitted under Exhibit 587. By this means material is cumulative, as we have had occasion to observe in other cases here.

Page Unlabeled

MR. FENSTERMACHER: We will withdraw Exhibit 587 at this time, Your Honors, until we can re-check it.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, were the communist insurgent units in the Southeast area organized along the same lines as the Russian army?

A. I cannot say that but bandits can never be as fully organized as an army or as parts of an army.

Q. Do you know whether there were commissars --political commissars among the communist insurgents in the Southeast?

A. No. Commissars being political commissars was mentioned here in one document.

Q. Field Marshal, I believe you testified earlier that you had occasion to capture from time to time certain orders and regulations of the communist insurgents in the Southeast. You spoke specifically of communist regulations for the conduct of guerilla warfare having fallen into your hands.

A. I did not talk about that.

Q. Weren't you asked by Dr. Latenser whether you had ever seen any regulations of the communist insurgents for the conduct of bandit warfare?

A. Only these directives of the communist party for the bandit warfare in Serbia.

Q. Did you ever capture any orders issued by Tito to his units?

A. No. At my time, Tito was a completely unknown concept. He didn't exist at that time.

Q. I believe, Field Marshal, you testified that the Commissar Order was never distributed to the Southeast command. Is that correct?

A. I didn't say it. I didn't put it that way. I said that the Commissar Order was not received by Army Group A or was not sent to Army Group A. You are now referring to the Southeast command in the Balkans? 3411

Q. Yes. Was it ever distributed to you in the Southeast?

A. No.

Q. Do you believe that the Commissar Order was confined only to the Russian theater of war?

A. Yes.

Q. We will turn to Exhibit 14 in Document Book 1. It is on page 49 of the English and page 34 of the German. This is the Commissar Order as distributed by the Commander in Chief of the Army, Field Marshal von Brauchitsch on the 8th of June, 1941. Will you turn to the last page of the document where the distribution list is contained? You will note that the 16th copy was sent to the High Command of Army in Norway. Have you any explanation for why the army in Norway received a copy of the Commissar Order?

A. I can hardly give an explanation for that. I can only think that in the extreme North in Petsamo -- and I don't remember the name of the other place. I believe there must have been a possibility there of a meeting with the Russian troops. Petsamo and Kirkenes-Kirkenes I mean. On the Fischer peninsula.

Q. You are quite sure, however, that the Commissar Order was never received by you in the Southeast and that there were no political commissars with the communist units in the Southeast?

A. No.

Q. I have just a very few questions concerning your chief of staff, General Foertsch. About how many hours a day did you spend in conference with Foertsch?

A. That was different from case to case. There were no regulations about it, no fixed rule. If something big was to happen, plans for instance to carry out the extension of the Fortress Creata, this might have taken three to four hours, and including interruptions it would probably have taken longer. If that was not the case, it was one hour a day or it may have been two hours, one hour in the morning and one hour in the afternoon.

In the Army high Command these conferences would only take place according to requirements and were not fixed according to any fixed rules. Apart from that, I met the chief for lunch and for dinner.

Q. Was your office adjacent to the office of your chief?

A. No. The offices were in completely separate houses.

Q. Do you know whether Foertsch ever complained to you against certain orders issued by the OKW?

A. Yes, Foertsch repeatedly complained to me about orders from the OKW. We often discussed these orders. If orders arrived which we didn't like and we assumed that they had been just ordered by bureaucrats.

Q. Which orders do you recall that Foertsch protested to you about?

A. I can't remember individual orders regarding which Foertsch complained to me. Against one order the contents of which I do not recall, I protested to the OKW, and then I ordered Foertsch when he went on leave to do the same, because I did not receive a reply to my first written complaint.

Q. Do you remember discussing your order of 5 September 1941 with Foertsch before it was distributed to subordinate units?

A. Of the 5th of September? No, Foertsch was on leave then on the 5th of September.

Q. Do you remember discussing the Keitel directive of 16 September 1941 with Foertsch?

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I wonder, Mr. Fenstermacher, what is the purpose of this examination? It certainly isn't cross-examination.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think if Your Honor please, counsel for Foertsch did develop the relationship that existed between List and his chief of staff.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: Well, to the extent that he examined him, I think you have a right to cross-examine him.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I will be very brief, Your Honor.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, you have no doubt heard it said that the relationship between a commanding general and his chief of staff is that of a marriage. Have you heard that expression?

A. I for my person have not used this expression somebody else mentioned it. I believe a witness mentioned it here.

Q. Do you think that is an apt description of the type of relationship that a commanding officer should have with his chief of staff?

A. That depends on the case. There are good marriages and there are bad marriages. In an ideal case, it is a good marriage and then it is as the witness mentioned. I suppose, of course, it can be different.

Q. Was your relationship with Foertsch a happy marriage, Field Marshal?

A. We certainly didn't love each other ardently. There was certainly a good relationship.

Q. Would you rely on Foertsch's judgment?

A. Foertsch had very good judgment and was a very good and loyal assistant.

Q. Did you respect the advice which Foertsch gave to you from time to time?

A. That again depended on the case. If I thought the advice was good, I took it. If I thought his advice was bad, I rejected it. I remember that Foertsch made a proposal in Serbia on which he had worked out a long memorandum, which he read to me and he was very proud of it and I rejected it out of hand and I told him "My dear Foertsch, we can't do it this way. This is impossible."

Q. Would you say that you adopted Foertsch's advice to a greater extent than you rejected it?

A. I believe these are all theoretical considerations. One can hardly say anything regarding it. I said expressly Foertsch was a very good chief of staff, and I accepted many of his counsels that were used when they were good, and in other cases I did not accept them. In many cases he certainly gave me good advice.

Q. Would you say that Foertsch was the most influential man in your headquarters next to you?

A. In every staff of an army, an army corps command, there must be, if it is at all properly staffed, the chief of staff must be after the commander in chief, the one who has the most influential position. This is inherent in the position of the chief because at the same time he leads the whole staff, and is also the adviser to the commander in chief.

Q. Field Marshal, you said that on the 15th of October 1941 you went to the hospital, and that on the 27th of October 1941 General Kuntze was appointed, or at least took over command of the 12th Army and assumed the position of Armed Forces Commander Southeast, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was in command as Armed Forces Commander Southeast, Commander in Chief of the 12th Army, between the 15th and 27th of October 1941?

A. I have already stated that I do not know what other arrangement was arrived at, according to order -- that is according to the order of OKW, Kuntze was to deputize for me from the 18th onwards. Kuntze only arrived on the 27th and he came to see me for the first time on the 28th or 29th for a very brief time. I did not ask him at the time what the arrangement was because my state of health was such that I could only talk to Kuntze for a very brief time when he took over the command.

Q. I think you testified earlier that when you went on leave General Felmy took over command as your deputy.

JUSTICE BURKE: Hasn't this matter been covered by Mr. Denney in his portion of the cross examination of the witness?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, Mr. Denney says he did not cover the period of time from the 15th of October to the 27th of October, 1941, but only covered the period of time when the defendant List went on leave in July 1941.

PRESIDING JUSTICE CARTER: You may proceed.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

A. Mr. Denney asked me who was deputizing for me at that time, but I can repeat it now. On the 18th, according to orders, Kuntze was to deputize for me, but he only arrived in Athens on the 26th, and because of my state of health he could only come and see me on or about the 28th or 29th, but he assumed the command de facto as from the 27th.

During the intervening time I do not know who was commander. I do not know the detailed arrangements. During my leave I had determined that General Felmy was to deputize for me. Because of the suddenness of my illness I could not give an order and consequently no such order was issued by me.

Q. Was General Felmy your Senior Corps Commander at that time?

A. I don't know whether General Felmy was the Senior Commander at that time or not. At that time he was, at any rate, present in Athens, and one could not ask a commanding general who was in Belgrade and who had to stay in Belgrade because of the tension there -- one could not ask him to deputize for me in Athens. One would have to transfer him from Belgrade to Athens for that period of time.

Q. Were you ever relieved--

A. I believe that my former chief of staff, who was present at that time, could give more detailed information about this time than I can give.

Q. Were you ever formally relieved of command of the 12th Army?

A. That is a rather undefined state. Officially, I was relieved by being appointed Commander in Chief of Army Group A. Kuntze was again and again reaffirmed as my deputy, and on paper I still had the title "Commander in Chief of the 12th Army", although I no longer had anything to do with it.

It was a custom of Hitler that he often left things like that in a state of indecision because he did not want to, or could not decide, or he had a grouch against somebody, and did not want to come out in the open with it, and similar things.

Q. Did your deputy, General Kuntze, have power to repeal orders of yours with which he disagreed?

A. The successor, and/or all of the deputies, could of course act as he wanted to act, as he pleased. If a deputy is only present for a couple of weeks, he restrains himself in certain circumstances, but he certainly is entitled to order whatever he thinks fit, if he has been appointed deputy.

Q. You mean he does have the power to repeal orders which the previous commander had already distributed to subordinate units?

A. If he thought it was necessary, yes.

Q. Field Marshal, I think you testified that you resigned your command as Commander in Chief of Army Group A because of a tactical difference with Hitler?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. You did not leave because you disagreed with the way Hitler was running the war?

A. The ideas and considerations, of course, played their part when I protested against the carrying out of the order I received at that time. They made my resistance easier for me.

Q. Is it true that you left your Southeast command because of ill health and not because of any disagreement with Hitler, or with the methods of waging war which he had ordered?

A. Which commend, may I ask, are you alluding to now?

Q. Your command in the Balkans as Commander in Chief of the 12th Army and Armed Forces Commander Southeast.

A. For reasons of health.

Q. Did you ever tender your resignation at any time prior to September 1942?

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: I think, Mr. Fenstermacher, that we have been all through this a time or two. If I remember correctly, he said that he could not resign if he wanted to, and on this one occasion he did because it was requested.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I think he testified that direct, Your Honor, but I do not believe it was gone into on cross examination.

JUDGE BURKE: My recollection differs from that.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well, Your Honors, we will pass it.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, I believe you testified that the measures you ordered for the pacification of Serbia were ordered by you only out of considerations of military necessity, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. But isn't it true that the measures which you ordered had a boomerang effect - that is to say, because of the severity of the measures which you ordered, the insurgent movement in fact increased rather than decreased in numbers and effect?

A. I do not have that impression. From all of these documents it becomes clear again and again that we acted on the defensive, that we only became more severe when the insurgent movement had grown to a certain proportion, and we had to expect that if one once dealt energetically with this seat of infection, we could reach a final pacification, and in my view we would have reached this state if these insurgents had not been constantly supported from abroad.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 30 in Document Book 1, beginning on page 99 of the English and page 77 of the German?

Court No. V, Case No. VII.

Q. This is a report sent to you by the Wehrmacht Liaison Office in Belgrade on the 31st of July 1941, and the receipt stamp of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast for the 5th of August 1941 is on the first page of the document. Will you turn to the second page which is Page 100 in the English, and I believe Page 78 in the German, Paragraph 2: "Though nothing is said publicly about the shooting of Jews and Communists as reprisal for acts of sabotage, these shootings have, however, made a deep impression in Belgrade. It is doubtful whether the shootings will prevent a repetition of acts of sabotage."

Do you remember generally receiving reports to the effect that the measures which you had ordered would probably not have any gainful effect from the Germans' point of view?

A. It is possible that I received such reports, but I cannot recall these reports in detail. But if the one or the other--some minor officials from the Wehrmacht Liaison Office--gives vent to his opinion here that is not at all decisive. We must hold on to the principle idea, and the principle idea, was that our measures were to get hold of the insurgent movement and smash this insurgent movement, and so that we would then come to a final state of pacification. There was no other thought present then but that one definite cauterizing of the wound we would cure the malady. We were only interested in the ruling of a pacified country and nothing else.

Q. Will you turn to the last page of that exhibit which is on Page 110 of the English, and I believe Page 85 of the German, to the sentence beginning: "Reprisal measures, as for instance the severity of the shooting of 81 persons collected haphazardly did not bring about pacification nor did it serve as an intimidation.

On the contrary the feeling of being plundered, chased away or slaughtered with wife and child either by criminal Ustaschi people in Bosnia or Herzagowina or by robber elements, or to lose life and property as the casual object of reprisal at the hands of the Germans has embittered and made desperate the otherwise quiet and politically indifferent and loyal parts of the Seroian population, who are automatically driven into the ranks of some kind of insurgent groups."

A. With reference to this report, I may only say that it is a report from Croatia which was, at that time, not subordinate to me. The report, however, proves the extent of the ethnical fight in Croatia and of the whole of the Balkans. And that not only the German advance was responsible, as this fellow says here for one fact that the Serbian population was driven to take part in the bands, but rather that the Ustashi bands were also co-responsible for this fact. This report proves the sharp confusion and differences on the Balkans.

Q. You didn't believe that this psychological point of view, namely, that harsh measures would drive the loyal parts of the population into the hands of the insurgents, was a valid point of view?

A. I say that these measures had to be taken for reasons of military necessity.

Q. Will you turn to Exhibit 34 in the same document book, Field Marshal? It begins on Page 118 of the English and Page 93 of the German. This is a report of the Ministry of the Interior to the Military Commander in Serbia, Administrative Staff, dated Belgrade, 29 August 1941. Will you turn to the next to the last page of the report which is on Page 120 of the English, and I believe on Page 95 of the German, the paragraph beginning, "The Consequence of the procedure of the German assault troops."

Do you have it?

A. Yes.

Q. "The consequence of the procedure of the German assault troops will be that a large number of innocent people will be slaughtered and that the Communists in the weeks not only will not be exterminated but will increase in numbers. Because many farmers, even entire villages -- even though up to now, they had no connection with the Communist will flee into the woods only out of fear and will be received there by the Communists. They will be provided with arms and used for combat and for open revolt against the German Wehrmacht. This insurrection will develop on a large scale and will have incalculable and terrible consequences for the entire population."

Did the Military Commander in Serbia ever relay that point of view on to you?

A. No, I cannot remember that he put this point of view to me. In addition, this report from the Ministry of the Interior is dated the 29th of August 1941. Therefore, it had its origin before the strict measures were ordered by me. And I would have read the report in detail in order to find out what its origin was and what specially caused it. And this report also proves the Communists did, in fact, terrorize the country and that they were fought against in the woods, and it proves that numerous peasants, that whole villages, did join the Communists. It is a complete proof that the whole population in large areas took part in this Communist advance, and our measures were necessary to combat the Communists' advance.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 103 in Document Book III, at Page 87 of the English, and Page 64 of the German? This is an order from the Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia, dated 25 October 1941. Will you look at the third paragraph on the first page of the order?

"In order to regulate the procurement and execution of hostages according to plan we draw attention to the following points: Indiscriminate arrests and executions of Serbs drive toward the insurgents those circles of the population which have, up until now, stood aloof from the revolt, strengthen the powers of resistance of Communists, weaken the chances of a quick suppression and damage the political aim of the operation."

General Boehme was Commanding General Plenipotentiary in Serbia at that time. Did General Boehme ever mention to you that those severe measures boomeranged in fact?

A. No, this order is dated the 25th of October, and, at that time, on the 25th of October, General Boehme apparently had received reports regarding incidents which had exceeded their aim. In order to get measures under control again he issued this order. That was at a time at which I could not have received this order.

Q. Field Marshal, I believe earlier you testified that during a period of time after the 5th of September 1941, that is to say, after your order of that day was issued and distributed to subordinate units, the insurgent movement increased in numbers. I believe you said that on direct examination. I have a reference to Page 3228 in the English transcript to that effect. Do you recall your testimony in that regard?

A. I said that around about August or September insurgent movements had increased considerably.

Q. Do you believe that it had increased because of the issuance of your order?

A. No, around about August and September and because of the increasing insurgent movement I issued the order of the 5th of September. It was immediately preceded by the capturing of field guard posts, whole companies, etc. That had preceded the order of the 5th of September.

As far as I remember, I also mentioned during the first days of September the total losses which can be seen from a letter I wrote during my leave to the Chief of Staff as a report to the OKW. During the first couple of days over 400 losses occurred and that may explain the opinion that I had given after the 5th of September. Then, because of this order there were incidents taking place at the end of August and the beginning of September. The whole movement increased so that what came afterwards was merely an addition to what had gone before.

PRESIDING JUDGE CARTER: The Tribunal will recess until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

(The court recessed at 1630 hours to resume session on Tuesday 23 September 1947, at 0930.)

Official Transcript of the American Military Tribunal in the matter of the United States of America against Wilhelm List et al, defendants, sitting at Nurnberg, Germany, on 23 September, 1947, 0930-0945, Justice Wennerstrump presiding.

THE MARSHAL: The persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Honorable, the Judges of Military Tribunal V. Military Tribunal V is now in session. God save the United States of America and this Honorable Tribunal.

There will be order in the Court.

May it please your Honors all defendants are present in the Courtroom.

THE COURT: You may proceed, Mr. Fenstermacher.

CROSS EXAMINATION (continued) MR. FENSTERMACHER: If your Honors please, I pass to your Honors now three copies, NOKW 1902, offered in evidence yesterday as Exhibit 585.

German copies of that exhibit were sent to the Translation Information Center last evening. I believe your Honors have from yesterday, copies of Exhibit 586 which were distributed yesterday afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT: By way of inquiry, Mr. Fenstermacher, and for my own information, do you have any suggestions as to the paging of these cross-examinations documents, as to where they can be filed advantageously?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The way I am doing that for myself, Your Honor, is to prepare individual folders for each of the defendants, and to mark them, "List, Cross-Examination documents", and I keep them together with the 25 document books, but separate from the document books.

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, yesterday afternoon we were talking about the the military necessity for the measures which you ordered, and which your troops took during your term of office in the southeast.

Will you turn now to Exhibit 99, in Document Book 3, that is on page 71 of the English, and page 53 of the German? You will note from the second page of the document, which is on page 72 of the English, I believe 54 of the German, this is a report dated "Kragujevac, 20 October, 1941, to the 610 Administrative Sub Area Hq Headquarters Pancevo. Simultaneous for information to the Commander Serbia, Branch 1-a Belgrade."

Will you turn to the last page of the report, the page which contains the signature of von Bischoffshawsen, Captain and Commandant? On page 76 of the English, and I believe on about page 58 or 59 of the German, will you turn to the paragraph beginning:

"According to my standpoint, a shooting partly of completely innocent persons from this city can have directly harmful effects. It is to be expected that embittered relatives of those shot will now practice acts of revenge on members of the German Wehrmacht".

Did he ever pass on to you information to this effect?

A. I state here this report was sent from Kragujevac on the 20th of October. That is at a time when I had been operated on for a couple of days.

THE PRESIDENT: It is not coming through clearly.

A. I must state here that this report was sent out from Kragujevac on the 20th of October. That is at a time when I had already been operated on.

Q. Field Marshal, I believe you stated that when you received the Keitel order of 16 September, 1941, you sent a protest to OKW about that order: is tint correct?

A. The order of the 16th of September?

Q. Yes.

A. On the 16th, yes I said for reasons of humanity I protested against this order, and I put this very clearly to my 1-A at that time and to my chief at that time, and I ordered them to inform the OKW of this.

Q. Did you believe that the Keitel order was an illegal, or a criminal order in contravention of the rules of war as you understood them?

A. I have already said that I rejected this order from purely humanitarian reasons. I had to assume that an order from the OKW was correct and legally admissible. In 1941, the OKW had complete authority at that time, there had been no reverses at that time, and there was no reason to doubt the legality of an order of the OKW.

Q. That order came down on the 16th of September, 1941. Do you recall that the Commissar order that came down on the 8th of June, 1941, and you have already stated that in your opinion, the Commissar order was not a legal order. Did you always assume that orders which came to you from OKW were legal orders?

A. At that time, yes. I didn't know the Commissar order.

Q. When did you first know the Commissar order?

A. I cannot tell you new exactly. In the course of the war comparatively late, and only by way of conversation.

Q. Field Marshal, why did you protest the Keitel order of 16 September, 1941 at all, if measures of that kind were a military necessity?

A. I believe that I am telling this for the 4th or 5th time, Mr. Fenstermacher. My attitude against this order was prompted by humanitarian reasons.

Q. Did you believe, Field Marshal, that the peoples in the Balkans were somehow peculiar, more cruel than the other peoples in Europe, and that is why you had to take such severe measures against them?

A. I had to take severe measures against them because they were insurgents, as I have emphasized repeatedly, because they were definitely guerillas and because they struck at the rest of the occupation power, and it was necessary to do that because their methods were undoubtedly cruel.

I hope a witness will appear here who will state that the, people were killed by being nailed against doors while still alive, and also dismembered while still alive. That was a favorite way of killing people.

Q. Do you believe that the Balkan peoples are somehow different from the other people in Europe; more cruel than the western peoples, for example?

A. They are far more passionate, hot blooded and more cruel, so far as the effect of their emotions are concerned, because they lived in continual battles against each other for hundreds of years, caused by the Turkish domination. The individual in Serbia is obviously like every other peasant, under normal conditions, but as soon as differences arise, then, caused by the hot blood in their veins, the cruelty caused by the hundreds of years of Turkish domination, erupts.

Q. Field Marshl, you know that Hitler and the Mazi racial theoristcs have claimed ever since 1923 that the Balkan people and the Slavic races generally, were inferior. Are you an advocate of those theories?

A. I am not clear about that.

Q. You do not understand my question?

A. I understood the question, but I was not quite clear about that.

Q. I don't quite understand? Now that you know what the Nazi theories regarding the Balkan peoples and the Slavic race, are, do you endorse those theories?

A. I cannot subscribe to the theories because I do not know them. I have never been told of the theories regarding the treatment of the Balkan peoples. I have never seen an order in this regard, and I do not know of any plan in this connection. The plan which is existent is the plan of the 16th of September.

Q. You never heard of Hitler's theories regarding the Slavic race?

A. Of his theories, no.

Q. You heard of his theories regarding the Jews, however, did you not?

A. During the course of the war, yes, in addition of course, I know the Nurnberg laws.

Q. And you know of the activities against the Jews in Vienna in 1938, as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Field Marshal, did you always obey orders which you received from OKW?

A. The basic orders I executed if possible; I have deviated from these orders once or twice in order to effect a mitigation.

Q. On what occasions were these, when you deviated from strict enforcement of the OKW orders?

A. For instance, regarding the "hanging" order. The OKW demanded that the execution of partisans was only to be carried out by hanging. This order was not carried out. As far as possible, I tried to deviate from this order.

Q. Were there any other orders you tried to deviate from?

A. At the moment I cannot recall any orders. Perhaps the order of Goering to the Commandant of Crete which demanded the carrying out of very severe measures. Instead of this order, an amnesty of Crete was issued.

Q. Was it possible for a German Field Marshal to disobey OKW orders?

A. Actually, no; basic orders had to be followed.

Q. Did any other German soldier of lesser rank disobey orders he received from his superior officer?

A. He had to obey all orders except those which asked him to commit a definite crime.

Q. Field Marshal, will you look at this document, NOKW 1011, there are three copies for your Honors, copies for defense counsel, the interpreters and court reporters, and the Secretary General. We offer this as Exhibit 587, your Honors.

Field Marshal, will you turn to the second page of this document? You will note from the top that its subject is, "Hand Grenade Attack Park Hotel, Nish on 3 August, 1941:

To Commander Serbia Belgrade As the senior garrison officer Nish has informed me, unrest and confusion prevail amid the troops garrisoned there because for every German victim 10 Serbs have not as yet been killed in accordance with previous announcements (Hence 30 if only the dead are counted, 70 if all those hit are included). As for my repeated question - who then was to be shot to death - the senior garrison officer did not have an answer.

My comment while referring to other incidents in Serbia, that the culprits who are undoubtedly communists are indifferent to the execution of non-communist elements and perhaps might even welcome it, was apparently appreciated. At the time there is only a small number of Communists under here. I do not believe that I am justified in simply having them shot. In my opinion an Administrative Sub-Area Commander who is simultaneously a judge can have executions performed only on the basis of confirmed sentences. An exception can be made only if hostages are seized for a definite case with the announcement they will be shot to death if this definite case occurs. After conscientious examination, I must reject anything lose by virtue of my sense of justice and my inherent attitude. If other measures are required or considered requisite by a higher authority - then I believe that there are special organizations available for that purpose whose measures I am not in a position to judge nor to permit; nor can I stop these measures. If my attitude is not approved, I must admit that I am not in the right place, that is, I must be given another assignment. I never will be able to deviate from the stand-point that in my capacity as judge or as a soldier I can proceed only according to law and with complete ruthlessness - if it is a matter proceeding immediately after the deed is done, or against people who are met under suspicious circumstances with weapons.

Any requests to have people shot to death who were not involved I cannot fulfill, particularly since one may assume in most cases that it does not touch the culprits at all.

(signed) Freiher von Bothmer (signed) Colonel and Commander You will note from the distribution list that a copy was sent to the Military Commander, Command Staff, Military Commander Administrative Staff, and three other units.

Now if you will turn to the first page of the document there is a communication dated Belgrade, 8 August 1941, from the Commander Serbia to the Administrative Sub-area Commander, Colonel Freiher von Bothmer:

N i s h Subject:

Hand grenade attack Park-Hotel Nish.

Reference: Your communication of 6.8.41, No. 249/41 secret Your letter dated 6.8.4. with reference to the above has been submitted to me; my order dated 8.8.4. pertaining to the seizure of hostages has taken care of it.

(signed) It. Gen. Air Corps.

Q Do you know who Colonel von Bothmer was?

A No, I did not know him.

Q Do you know if any measures were taken against him for protesting and refusing to carryout an order?

A No, I don't know of this incident.

Q Colonel von Bothmer states here: "If my attitude is not approved I must admit I am not in the right place; that is, I must be given another assignment."

Did you ever ask for another assignment, Field Marshal?

A Not as regards my person. I believe the case is different here. He had apparently received an order which I don't know, which asked him to do something illegal and which he thought was illegal. When an order is received from the OKW I must assume that this order is legal and acceptable and has been examined.

Q During the period of time when you were Commander in Chief of the 12th Army and Armed Forces Commander Southeast, and also during the time when you were Commander in Chief of Army Group A, did you ever, to your knowledge, receive a criminal order?

A No.

Q And if you had received a criminal order would you have distributed it to your subordinate units or would you have refused to carry it out?

A That is very difficult to say theoretically. I would have to know regarding which order I should have taken action.

Q Field Marshal, are you familiar with paragraph 47 of the Military Penal Code -- the German Military Penal Code?

A I believe I know to what you are referring. Whether I know this paragraph definitely I cannot tell.

Q Will you look at this document which is the Military Penal Code, and turn to paragraph 47? We have three copies of this Paragraph 47 for your Honors; some for defense counsel; Court Interpreters; Court Reporters; and the Secretary General.

We offer this excerpt, your Honors, as Prosecution Exhibit 588.

Q Field Marshal, according to paragraph 47 of the Military Penal Code: "If execution of an order given in line of duty violates a statute of the penal code, the superior giving that order alone is held responsible for it. The subordinate obeying that order, however, is liable to punishment as an accessory in the event:

- 1) That he exceeded the order, or
- 2) that he was aware that the order involved an act, the commission of which constituted a common or a military crime or offense."

Is this the paragraph you had in mind when you said that you would not carry out an order if you believed it to be a criminal order?

A Yes.

Q Field Marshal, do you consider yourself an officer of the old school?

A Yes, of course.

Q And what is the written or unwritten code of the old school officer of the German Army?

A That is, I believe is so universally known that I need hardly say anything about it. It is of absolute necessity to do one's duty and show absolute decency in one's actions and, of course, justice with humanity.

Q Does it also include personal honesty and integrity, and personal morality, as well as profession honesty, integrity, and morality?

A That is, of course, the pre-requisite.

Q Do you believe that throughout your career in the German Army you have lived up to that code?

A Yes, I am of that view.

Q Do you recall being interrogated in connection with this case prior to the time the indictment was handed down against you?

A Yes, I do.

Q Do you remember how many times you were interrogated?

A I believe five or six times.

Q Who was present at those interrogations?

A The Interrogator; secretaries; and at another time two American officers were present; and at another time two civilians were present who were unknown to me.

Q Was there a guard from the prison always present with you as well?

A Yes, he was also present.

Q Field Marshal, you said yesterday that you made some notes of the time when you took leave until the time you returned from leave. When did you make those notes?

A In my diary.

Q You made them at that time--1941?

A Yes, 1941.

Q Where are those notes now?

A My lawyer has them.

Q Did you have them throughout the time you were here in Nurnberg, in the Nurnberg jail?

A No.

Q When did you first get them?

A In the course of the trial Dr. Laternser once showed them to me.

Q Where did Dr. Laternser get them, if you know.

DR. LATERNSE: I object. Your Honor, I have no objections against these questions, but here I must protest these questions because they relate to my relationship, that is my relationship of defense counsel to my client, and that cannot be used in examination, and I only protest for these reasons.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection to this question will be over-ruled.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q Do you know where Dr. Laternser got them?

A Yes, he got them from my wife:

Q Had you seen those notes between the time you made them in 1941 and the time when Dr. Laternser showed them to you?

Page 3,435

A No.

Q Do you recall...

A I must correct myself. I probably have seen them since 1941, but not since I was in prison.

Q When did Dr. Laternser first show them to you?

DR. LATERNSE: I object. Your Honor, I am not actually concerned with the answer and what the Prosecution wants to find out in regard to this, but I must protest that my relationship as defense counsel with my client is made the subject of an examination here, and that is not admissible.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection to this particular question will be over-ruled.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q Do you recall the question, Field Marshal?

A I don't know when Dr. Laternser showed me these notes for the first time.

Q Field Marshal, do you recall being interrogated in connection with this case on the 15th of January 1947?

A Which case?

Q The case we are now hearing in this Court.

A That I was interrogated?

Q On the 15th of January 1947.

A. Yes.

Q At that time were you asked this question, and did you give this answer: "Q. How long did you stay in Greece?" "A. I was in Command until the 6th or 8th of October 1941."

Do you recall being asked that question and giving that answer?

A Whether I gave this date I cannot recall. If I said from the 6th to the 8th of October -- if I said that on the record, that must be correct. And here, when I talked to Dr. Laternser, I repeatedly said, and Dr. Laternser will remember it: "In my opinion I was sent to the Military hospital on the 8th of October."

If I have made this statement it is in complete conformity with my recollection that I commanded in Greece until the 6th or 8th of October and then fell ill. And I found out, by means of my diary, that actually I was not ill on the 6th or 8th of October, but that I fell ill on the 13th of October, and for a long time I told Dr. Laternser my operation had taken place on the 12th of October and that my illness had started on the 6th or 8th of October.

Q On the same day, January 15, 1947, were you asked this question, and did you give this answer: "Q. Has it been reported to you or did it come to your knowledge that Boehme carried out extremely sharp hostage measures against the civilian population?" "A. No, it has not."

"Q. And that the arrests of hostages sometimes were carried out in a ration of 1 to 50?"

"A. I cannot conceive this at that time. That this is said I do know from the documents which I have read here in Nurnberg, because I was here as a witness in the first trial. The hostage decree was issued by the OKW. I have repeatedly attempted to get this ordinance but I have not succeeded. According to the documents the order must date back about to the 2nd half of October, to a time when I could no longer get the edict. It is true that I once received an instruction, the exact contents of which have slipped my memory, however, much I try to recall them which demanded more severe measures on my part and against this I strongly resisted. I wrote a personal letter to Keitel informing him that he was unable to get the hang of the conditions in the Balkans from up there and that they should leave the responsibility to me."

"Q. Apart from that did you know, at that time, that General Boehme was carrying out extremely sharp and terrible measures against the civilian population in Serbia?"

"A. No, it did not come to my knowledge in the sense that I had to suppose that they had been particularly severe, but we had to proceed against the rebels with full strength as a matter of military necessity."

"Q. I am speaking of the hypothesis that some German soldiers within a small marching column..."

I'm sorry; I neglected to give you the German copy of the interrogation. I'm reading now at Question 62.

"Q. I am speaking of the hypothesis that some German soldiers within a small marching column might have been attacked and killed on the road by bands and that the malefactor was not found, but then the Military Commander give orders... "

THE INTERPRETER: Question 62?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Question 62.

"...and that the malefactor was not found, but then the Military Commander gave orders to arrest from the surrounding places a few hundred hostages and to have them executed according to martial law."

"A. I believe this to be impossible; if it had occurred and had been reported to me, I should have taken very energetic steps. I should not have taken the responsibility for it in view of my christian and ethical attitude."

"Q. If we suppose that such measures took place, are you of the opinion that these measures would only have had an entirely false psychological success?"

"A. Of course. The struggle became only harder as a result. Each one of our prisoners on the other side was being treated only so much the harder; the terrible atrocities in the Balkans were well known indeed."

Q. Were those questions asked of you, Field Marshal, and are these the answers which you gave at that time?

A. Yes, only this record has been reproduced partly incompletely. I have never received this record, and I have never signed this record. It has never been shown to me.

Q Then your recollection today is such that you believe those questions were asked of you and that those are the answers which you gave at that time?

A These answers were not quite given in the manner they are reproduced here. The first part, especially, does not correspond with what I said. At that time I could only answer what I had in my memory. I must emphasize today that during the whole time until I came to Nurnberg here, I was of the opinion that the Hostage Order had only been issued after the middle of October. In Nurnberg, in 1945, I learned from the interrogations and the examinations of Keitel that a Hostage Order was issued. At that time I made a note of it and asked that I be given access to this Hostage Order. Dr. Laternser was not in a position at that time to give me this order, and this note is still in my files of that time. And on this note it is written "16-10, Hostage Order from the OKW." And that is what I asked for. On the strength of this information I constantly believed that I had not given a hostage order, and I can only assure you and state that I repeatedly told my comrades that during my time a hostage order had not been received by me and had not been passed on by me. That as what I said in this record which you have just quoted.

Q. Field Marshal, will you turn now to Exhibit 42 in Document Book II, which is on Page 23 of the English and Page 21 of the German.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you kindly repeat the Exhibit No?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Exhibit 42, Your Honor, on Page 23 of the English and on Page 21 of the German.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your honor, I should like to draw the attention of the Court that regarding this exhibit, Mr. Denney has already asked questions, and Mr. Fenstermacher has also asked questions, and now we are turning to this point for the third time in cross-examination. For this reason I object.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, I am not going to interrogate in connection with this document at all. I simply intend to ask one or two questions to lay a foundation.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well; you may ask the questions briefly.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, this is your order of 5 September 1941, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall being interrogated on 16 January 1947 and being shown this order at that time?

A. I was not shown the whole of this order. I was only shown a small paragraph.

Q. Were you shown Paragraph "f"?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Were you asked this question at that time, and did you give this answer: Question: "In Paragraph "f" you brought in accordance with your Christian and ethical feelings with which reference was made not to a situation brought about by Boehme's order..." Question 29; I'm sorry.

DR. LATERNSEER: Records are being used here of which I have no copy. If they are used in cross-examination I must be given a copy alone for those reasons that I am enabled to examine the translation for its correctness and therefore I ask, Your Honor, that the Prosecution refrain from asking questions regarding these records until he has given to me a copy in English and German.

THE PRESIDENT: Is this to be offered in evidence?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, it is not, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Then, what's the purpose of it?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: To have the witness explain and clarify exactly the inconsistencies between what he said in an interrogation and what he testified to on direct and cross-examination.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be over-ruled, but I think before the witness is excused, the counsel for the Defendant should be furnished a copy, and it should be furnished now.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I will be glad to do that, Your Honor.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I ask you pardon for coming again in this matter. Actually I need this copy now in order to follow the actual proceedings. I always place a certain value on following the proceedings, and I can't do that at this moment.

THE PRESIDENT: The request will be denied. The nature of the question is apparently directed towards the credibility or the extent of the witness's remembrance, and that matter may be gone into briefly. As stated before, the counsel for the defense should have this copy before the witness is discharged.

Q. Field Marshal, were you asked this question on the 16th of January 1947 in connection with subparagraph F of your order of 5 September 1941?

"Q. Can paragraph F be brought into accordance with your Christian and ethical feelings in which reference was made to a situation brought about by Boehme's own hand" -- I beg your pardon -- "in which reference was made not to a situation brought about by Boehme's own hand but to an order given by you to Boehme?

"A. With the best intention, I could not recall it, especially because I had actually been opposed to these things.

"Q. Did you order them, nevertheless, somewhat illogical arrest of hostages, sending of relatives to a concentration camp, etc?

"A. --

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Fenstermacher, can't you break up your questions and make them so you won't be having a long series of questions and then a long series of answers? Then we will know what the record is.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Very well, Your Honor.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Let's take the first question, Field Marshal.

"Can paragraph F be brought into accordance with your Christian and ethical feelings in which reference was made not to a situation brought about by Boehme's own hand but to an order given to you by Boehme?

"A. With the best intention, I could not recall it, especially because I had actually been opposed to these things."

Were you asked that question and did you give that answer?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you give this answer in the same interrogation:

"Q. Did you order them nevertheless -- somewhat illogical arrest of hostages, sending of the relatives to a concentration camp, etc.?"

"A. An arrest of hostages is permissible, however."

Were you asked that question and is that your answer?

A. This question was put to me but I don't believe that I answered it in this way. But I cannot tell you now literally. I remember that this is a matter of the taking of hostages but not of the shooting of hostages.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you give this answer:

"Q. Read this paragraph once again. Is it all in accordance with international law according to your conception?

"A. No, it is not?"

Were you asked that question and was that your answer at that time?

A. I cannot tell that, exactly. It can't have been like that but I may add, regarding this order II-f and regarding these questions. This figure II-f was submitted to me and at the same time I was show my own signature under this order and as far as I remember I answered quite clearly at that time that it is on the 15th of January; I could not recall that I had given this order and I was greatly surprised to find this order here because I had certainly not remembered it. I told the interrogator I would have had no reason at all to make any evading statements or to say something which would not seem correct to me, because from the interrogation on the preceding day I had gained the clear impression that the prosecution or the interrogator was in possession of the documents around that time and from my point of view it would have been quite useless to try and evade these questions.

Rather the situation is this: like many other things I could not remember this order and I have expressed this quite clearly.

Q. Field Marshal, do you recall being interrogated on the 7th of March 1947?

A. Whether it was the 7th of March I don't know, but I was interrogated sometime later and also in March.

Q. Do you recall whether you were asked to swear an oath to what you were going to testify on that day?

A. No. You mean an oath regarding my questionnaire?

Q. No, I mean an oath to the effect that you would answer all the questions that would be put to you on that day under oath?

JUDGE BURKE: Just for my own information, at that time did this witness have counsel?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, he did not, Your Honor.

JUDGE BURKE: When did he have counsel?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I believe he did not have counsel until the indictment was issued against him on the 10th of May.

JUDGE BURKE: Was he informed of anything that we term in America as his constitutional rights?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I am not in a position to say, Your Honor.

FIELD MARSHAL LIST: I was told by the interrogator when this order had been submitted to me and the interrogator told me that I had not spoken the truth. I said on the next day that was the most weighty reproach that had been made to me in my life, and it was very difficult for me to talk to him, and he had accused me of telling a lie and thereupon he told me, "Field Marshal, you are not accused." And he added that I should tell him now what I knew about this period and should come again for interrogation to him the next day or one of the following days, and I told him that was very difficult for me.

I was certainly prepared to say everything I knew, but I could not say more than I knew. Whereupon he told me, "I cannot, of course, show you the documents, but on the other hand as a good lawyer I don't want to mislead you," and he also told me, "The quicker you make your statements, the sooner you will return to Allendorf."

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Do you recall being asked this question on the 7th of March 1947 and giving this answer?

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I am of the opinion that if a copy of the interrogation is there for the interpreters a copy should be provided for the defense counsel as well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honor, that is the only German copy we have at this time.

THE PRESIDENT: The ruling previously made will be adhered to in this case, but as stated the counsel should be furnished a copy before the witness is discharged.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. "Question No. 3. Do you recall the exact time at which you received the hostage order?

"A. No. I have stated once already that I learned of the hostage order for the first time in Nuernberg, as far as I can remember. And that I repeatedly asked if I could not receive it. I have no knowledge of it as such."

Were you asked that question and did you give that answer on the 7th of March 1947?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you give this answer on that day:

"Question No. 4" -- a second question of a more general nature. "Did you ever circumvent orders which you received?

"A. Hereto I mentioned before that I distinctly remember receiving an order from army headquarters that had emanated from Hitler, which was objectionable to me and my viewpoint and which I refused to pass on."

Were you asked that question and was that your answer at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you give this answer on the same day:

"Question 5. How much independence did you have to decide whether orders could be circumvented or whether they had to be carried out?

"A. Actually no liberty at all. On the contrary, they all ought to have carried out. I received this order the contents of which I am unfortunately unable to state. I have also stated that I saw my Ia standing before me. I believe he had a telegram in his hand and that I said to him, 'I shall not carry out this command. I am placed here in the capacity of commander in chief and not just as an executing organ.

' I no longer recall the expression; perhaps it was 'hangman'. I only recall that I absolutely refused to carry out this command. I do not recall the circumstances but I definitely remember the facts as such."

Were you asked that question and was that your answer at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Field Marshal, do you recall now what order you had in mind when you refused to carry out an order of OKW?

A. I cannot say with certainty even today which order that was.

Q. Field Marshal, I now show you Document NOKW-860, which is Prosecution Exhibit No. 2 in evidence. This is in Document Book 1, Your Honors, on page 1 of the English and page 1 of the German.

Is that your signature at the end of that document, Field Marshal?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Would you pass the document to the Tribunal, please?

(The document was passed to the Tribunal.)

THE PRESIDENT: Are you through with the questioning of the witness on the documents of which there is only one German copy?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Yes, I am, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any objection or reason why Dr. Laternser may not have it now?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, the court interpreter may pass it to him now.

THE PRESIDENT: Have you been furnished with the two documents, Dr. Laternser?

DR. LATERNSE: Yes.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, you may proceed then along your proposed line of cross examination at this time.

BY MR. FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Field Marshal, I now show you Prosecution Exhibit 107. This is in Document Book 3 at page 103 of the English and page 76 of the German. Will you look at page 2 of that document, Field Marshal? Is that your signature?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you pass the document to the Tribunal, please?

(Document passed up to Tribunal)

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, I have just one document I forgot to put to the witness the other day. I wonder if I might ask him. I have the original here.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

BY MR. DENNEY:

Q. It is Document -- Exhibit 19, which is at page 68 in the English book and page 49 in the German Book 1. It is the teletype from the Commanding General of the 65th Corps addressed to the Armed Forces Commander Southeast. Did you see that document?

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I don't know how Mr. Denney will examine the witness. When the cross examination was interrupted, I gave my agreement that for an exception there should be an exchange of prosecution counsel. During the International Military Tribunal it was the custom that one member of every prosecution team was allowed to examine a witness, and for the future I want to refer to this ruling and I now want to object that Mr. Denney again examines the witness.

THE PRESIDENT: Is it for the purpose of introduction of some document?

MR. DENNEY: I just want to ask him whether or not he has seen this. I didn't have the document on Friday - the original.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed briefly.

BY MR. DENNEY:

Q. Have you ever seen that document before?

A. If I had seen that document, I would have initialed it. My initial cannot be found on this document.

Q. Whose writing is it that appears below the typed part of the message?

A. That is Foertsch's handwriting.

MR. DENNEY: That is all, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any re-direct examination?

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. I want to revert to various questions which have resulted from cross examination. First of all, I want to revert to the main question, that is, the character of the partisans. What concluded the war between Germany and Yugoslavia?

A. The end of the war between Germany and Yugoslavia was brought about by a capitulation of the Yugoslavian army and a conclusion of an armistice with representatives of the Yugoslavian government.

Q. Do you know which government these representatives represented, so to speak?

A. I personally cannot say that from my experience. I can only say that from hearsay, that these were representatives of the old Serbian government.

Q. The war ended as you said by a capitulation of the government and the army?

A. Yes.

Q. If a state has capitulated, can legal bands be formed in its territory?

A. No.

Q. Now what can these bands represent in every case then?

A. These can only be insurgents, illegal bands and guerillas, who have turned against the occupation power.

Q. You just said that these were illegal bands. Who supported this fight of the bands which was contrary to international law?

A. At the beginning it was doubtlessly supported by Moscow.

Q. And in the subsequent time?

A. Via Sofia and subsequently especially by the British and later I believe also by the American army.

Q. In which form was this fight which was contrary to international law supported?

A. At the beginning by proclamations, especially on the part of Moscow, by the distribution of pamphlets, posters, and later on by dropping weapons from airplanes.

Q. Do you know the extent which this dropping of arms and munitions reached later?

A. I cannot remember this in detail.

Q. You spoke yesterday in this connection of the uprising in France in the years 1870-1871. In that case, I only ask whether you know - did in that case the French government or the army capitulate or had none of these two capitulated?

A. I cannot recall this at the moment. The southern army had certainly not capitulated; as far as I remember, capitulation or an armistice had not been concluded by the French government. Paris was surrendered certainly, but a truce had not been concluded between the governments.

Q. Now what is the difference between that time and the conditions which you then saw in Yugoslavia?

A. At that time there was still a French government in the country. There were still strong remnants of the French army which had not been beaten, and these remnants of the French army attracted the franc tireurs in smaller groups and which later appeared in larger units. These franc tireurs were used in the fight by the army.

Q. Was that at that time a levee en masse?

A. Well, in parts one can call it that.

Q. I now mean France.

A. Yes, France.

Q. Do you know whether this levee en masse is represented in international law?

A. I don't know this at the moment.

Q. Now we have dealt with Yugoslavia. Now how did the war against Greece end?

A. The war against Greece ended with two capitulations, the capitulation of the Thracian army and the capitulation of the Epirus army.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, I think we have been over all this before. Dr. Laternser covered it on his direct.

THE PRESIDENT: I have just been checking. It has been, somewhat. It will be the attitude of the Tribunal to extend some liberality but in doing that we trust that the counsel will not take advantage and extend the examination. If it is, we will have to restrict it.

We will take our morning recess at this time.

(A recess was taken.)

THE MARSHAL: You may proceed, Dr. Laternser.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, may I now announce to the Tribunal that after the conclusion of the examination of Field Marshal List I shall produce a witness, Oberregierungsrat Dr. Gerd Fein. I notified the prosecution of this fact as early as Saturday. The examination will last only half an hour.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION (continued) BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. You were asked whether you had ordered wagons with hostages to be used in front of trains and you denied that question?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether this measure is permissible by international law?

A. Yes, it is permissible by international law.

Q. Where would one find such a regulation?

A. I can't say at the moment. What kind of regulation?

Q. I am submitting to you an excerpt from American Land Warfare from the year 1940 and I ask you to look at paragraph 359--

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, I don't know what this has to do with American Rules of Land Warfare. I don't see where this is relevant.

DR. LATERNSEER: I withdraw the question, but in this connection I would like to draw the Tribunal's attention to paragraph 359, American Rules of Land Warfare, that this example has been put.

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, please, I think if Dr. Laternser wanted to bring that up in argument it would be all right. I don't think this is the place to go into the rules of land warfare.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. The Prosecution has further alleged military successes of the bands. Who withdrew, when fights took place?

A. Who withdrew? Well, generally speaking the bands.

Q. Now we will shortly turn to Serbia again. Who in Serbia lead the Guerilla warfare?

A. It was lead by several parties. There were bands of a Communist nature; there were the Mihajlovic bands; and the Kostja Petjanic bands; and the Comitadchis.

Q. I meant to say who amongst the Germans?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor he has been over all this.

DR. LATERNSEER: That is only a preparation. I am just laying the foundation. In this connection I will come to another point. Who, on the part of the Germans, was in charge of the band warfare?

THE PRESIDENT: You may continue briefly. I again must caution you Dr. Laternser not to cover ground that you have previously covered in your direct examination.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. I had asked you who, on the part of the Germans, lead the band warfare in Serbia?

A. After the appointment of General Boehme, the Plenipotentiary General.

Q. Did you reserve decisions in respect to General Boehme?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. The appointment of General Boehme had as its purpose that there should be a uniform leadership in Serbia and from Athens the Guerilla warfare in Serbia or rather the fighting of that warfare was to be handled. That was in view of the communication lines. Only a personality can do that who is close to the actual scene.

Q. In this connection you were shown the Boehme order of the 10th of October; that is, Exhibit 88?

A. Yes.

Q. On which order is this order of the 10th of October based?

A. The Boehme order is based on the Keitel order of the 16th of September and he designates it as an addition to this order.

Q. Do you recollect that this order of the 10th of October mentions your order of the 5th of September, that is, Exhibit 42?

A. No, it does not refer to it.

Q. You have frequently been asked about your order of the 5th of September, Exhibit 42, during the cross-examination. Now I wanted to ask you what was the main reason or main reasons for issuing this order?

A. I have already testified that it was the crisis in which I found myself; that I was under pressure; from above, that is from the OKW; that demands and directives came in again and again, the last one of those on the 5th of September itself, and that was an important reason; the whole manner of the band fighting which was shown in the band regulations for the Communist Party, and it was the intention as it was laid down in the last paragraph of the regulations that the only and most important task of the occupation forces was to put down this insurrection.

Q. In connection with the OKW order of the 16th of September, Exhibit 63, you have said that after your objectives had at first been successful, which you had followed in regard to this order, you didn't do anything further additionally. What subsequently did you do?

A. Subsequently I issued the order or rather the teletype of the 4th of October on the basis of the impressions that I had gained in the meantime, especially on the basis of impressions which the chief of staff after his return from Belgrade had given to me and in this teletype of the 4th of October I had endeavored to mitigate matters inasmuch as I did not name any ratios for hostage measures.

Q. And I am drawing the attention of the Tribunal to the fact that the teletype which the witness mentions at the moment is Exhibit 70. To whom did you address this teletype on the 4th of October, Exhibit 70?

A. I can't remember now the distribution list but it could have only gone to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia as did all orders which were issued at that time.

Q. And why only to the Plenipotentiary Commanding General in Serbia?

A. Because he was the only Commander in Serbia who had executive powers.

Q. One more question in regard to exhibit 80, that is, the case of the Regiment 521 Signal Corps, according to which 2,000 persons were shot as reprisals. One question only: Do you know whether actually this number of people were shot?

A. No.

Q. What did you establish from the files?

A. I established from the files that according to the troop reports which are present here 440 or 442 persons were actually shot.

Q. You mean reports of execution only to the amount of this figure?

A. Yes, only to the amount of this figure.

Q. At this time may I announce to the Tribunal that regarding this incident I shall produce a witness who will be in a position to clarify matters for the Tribunal. Now, a number of questions about a number of exhibits, short questions. You were shown the Rosenberg letter, Exhibit 4, do you know whether this letter actually went out?

A. No, I can't know that:

Q. Well now turn to Exhibit 14, that is in Document Book I, which concerns the Commissar order. What date does this order bear?

A. I don't know that by heart.

Q. Then I will show you the exhibit. In the English Document Book I, on page 49 you will find the exhibit and in the German on page 34. Now, what date does this exhibit bear?

A. 8th of June.

Q. Where were you at that time?

A. In the Southeast, in Athens.

Q. Did you get there?

A. No.

Q. How you were told that it was also sent to Norway. Can you give an explanation to the Tribunal for this?

A. I said yesterday that I assume that those troops were concerned which were right up in the North.

Q. Do you mean the troops on the Finnish front?

A. Yes, the troops that were employed in the Finnish Front and actually the AOK Norway was employed at the Finnish Front.

Q. When did you come to the East?

A. At the end of June 1942.

Q. How much earlier had the order been distributed?

A. One year earlier.

Q. I am now turning to Exhibit 585 which was shown to you yesterday during cross-examination. In this order there was some talk about the shooting of a Commissar. Did you ascertain from this exhibit that the Commissar order was mentioned?

A. No, the order refers to a regulation of Korlick.

Q. Is it said in this exhibit why the Commissar was shot?

A. No.

Q. How were Commissars usually taken prisoners, by what troops?

A. Generally speaking by the Front troops, but I must emphasize that I, for my part, have no experiences in this direction. That is only natural because the Commissar would be with his troops.

Q. I will look again at Exhibit 14. Who was supposed to kill the Commissars according to the Commissar order?

A. It says under paragraph 2: "Political Commissars attached to the troops should be segregated and dealt with by order of an officer inconspicuously and outside the proper battle zone." Figure 2. It says: "When in action or resisting they are to be killed at once fighting."

Q. Exhibit 585 which was submitted to you yesterday. Did that originate with a rear area?

A. Yes.

Q. The combat troop in that case had taken the Commissar prisoner and I want to ask you does it say in this exhibit whether a court proceedings took place concerning this criminal action?

MR. DENNEY: Your Honor, again I think we have been over this. In addition Dr. Laternser needn't ask him about his own testimony.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor I can't be through with it yet because the Prosecution knows quite well that this document was only submitted yesterday during cross examination and I can't possibly have put a question in regard to it. I am just about to ask an important question with regard to this exhibit and that is similar to what the Prosecution did.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. Just one concluding question. Does it say in this Exhibit 585 anything about whether a court proceedings took place and why the Commissar was shot?

A. No.

Q. You further were shown Exhibit 22, which will be shown to the witness-- It is in Document Book 1, page 55 of the German, and I regret very much I can't say at the moment what English page.

THE PRESIDENT: 76.

THE PRESIDENT: 76. Dr. Laternser, my notes show that you referred to Document 22 in your examination of Thursday September 18. Now unless this is on some matter which has been brought up on cross-examination I think you should not go into this matter further.

DR. LATERNSE: Yes, Your Honor.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. I shall then turn to Exhibit 30. That is on page 99 of the Document Book I, English, and page 75 of the German Document Book I. This document was submitted to you during cross-examination. What date does this exhibit bear?

A. 31 July 1941.

Q. Where were you at that time?

A. On leave. I suppose in Vienna.

Q. I shall now turn to Exhibit 48, that is also found on page 51 of the English Document Book II and on page 42 of the German Document Book II. In this document there is some talk about the four year plan. To clarify this matter I would like to ask you what was the meaning of the four year plan.

A. The four year plan was a program as to what achievements were demanded from industry during the course of the coming four years, from the industry of the Reich and the occupied territory.

Q. Just in order that everything should be clear about this question, had this four-year plan anything to do with the plan to weaken the Balkan population as the Prosecution asserts?

A. No, on the contrary. The industry in Serbia was built up and expanded in order to carry out this four year plan in the Balkan territory; the copper mine Bor which had been destroyed by the Serbs was rebuilt and machinery was brought there in order to bring up production to a certain level.

Q. Now, the last exhibit which I want to deal with here, that is exhibit 68 which has been submitted to you here. We find this on page 137 of the English Document Book II and on page 105 of the German Document Book II.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternser do you propose to examine this witness on some matters that have been developed on cross-examination?

DR. LATERNSE: Yes, Your Honor. Only on such points on the basis of notes which I made during cross examination.

THE PRESIDENT: My notes show that you went into this matter on your direct examination but I don't wish to restrict you concerning matters which pertain to the cross examination.

DR. LATERNSEER: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. This order was submitted to you during cross examination in order to establish connection with the SD. All I want to ask you is what was the purpose altogether of this order which is Exhibit 68?

A. Exhibit 60 dated the 10th of October, that is employment of the Rosenberg Staff?

Q. Yes, it is exhibit 60.

A. The purpose of it was to establish what was the economic and disciplinary assignment of Detachment Rosenberg for the time while this Detachment Rosenberg was in the area of Southern Greece.

Q. That is Exhibit 68, I am sorry.

And what is the consequence of this orders what does it concern?

A. That this detachment is entitled to draw rations and quarter and that violations of discipline are under the authority of the Wehrmacht Commander, Southern Greece. In this case the members of the Detachment Rosenberg were enlisted men.

Q. On the basis of this exhibit 68 do we see a justification to give orders in a factual connection?

A. No.

Q. Field Marshal, to conclude, I would like to deal with the interrogations, the records of which have been submitted to you. Those are interrogations by Mr. Walter Rapp on the 15th of January and another interrogation by Mr. Walter Rapp on the 16th of January and one by Mr. Kreilsheim on the 7th of March 1947. So far I have not had a chance to look at these interrogations. I only want to ask you which way did these interrogations come about? Were they put down in shorthand?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether it was written down in longhand afterwards?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Were you ever shown a copy of such an interrogation?

A. No.

Q. Did you have the possibility to make corrections?

A. No.

Q. Did you have the possibility to correct mistakes in the shorthand notes or to examine the interrogations?

A. No.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to check or to have checked the translation into English?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever sign anything in this connection?

A. I only signed my questionnaire.

Q. I am now talking about the three interrogations of the 15th and 16th of January and 7th of March, 1947?

A. No.

Q. Were you told for what purpose you were being interrogated?

A. No.

Q. Were you told that your statements might possibly be employed against you or might incriminate you?

A. No.

Q. Was it made clear to you that you were permitted to have counsel?

A. No.

DR. LATERNER: Your Honor, at this stage of the proceedings I have at the moment no further questions to put to the witness - to the defendant Field Marshal List, but I reserve the right, after having looked through the material which has newly come in, to put questions to him which might result from this material, and to call him again to the witness stand.

I further reserve the right, in case that it becomes necessary, in connection with the submission of my document books, again to call him to the witness stand, because it may well be possible that in that connection I may have to put a few questions to him which I could not put before, because the document books were not ready at the beginning and not even now at the end of this examination.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal has previously made an order which in substance covers the matters of your request, and you may be assured that the Tribunal will give you consideration in connection with further examination.

DR. LATERNER: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Are there any further matters in re-cross examination?

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, we submit for the record that at this time two footlockers full of documents have come from Washington and have been sent to the Secretary General, in compliance with the Tribunal's order of 14 August 1947, and I believe Dr. Laternser is arranging with his colleagues to see a commissioner who has been appointed by the Secretary General in order that the documents will be available to all defense counsel.

THE PRESIDENT: In connection with that matter I would like to have Dr. Laternser come to my office briefly at the conclusion of this session, Dr. Laternser being the representative of the defense.

Are there any questions by members of the Tribunal? Judge Carter?

JUDGE CARTER: No.

THE PRESIDENT: Judge Burke?

JUDGE BURKE: Not at this time.

EXAMINATION BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. Perhaps this has no particular bearing in connection with this witness's testimony, but for my own information, and perhaps as indicative of the witness's position, can you tell us briefly, Mr. Defendant, as to the set-up of the Army in its relation with the SS and some of these subsidiary organizations - the relation of the Army to some of these other organizations that had developed?

A. You mean relations to the SS, the General SS?

Q. Yes.

A. There was no relation to the SS, that is, to the General SS - no official relations. The Waffen-SS, so-called Waffen-SS, was naturally, wherever it was employed, tactically subordinate to the Military Commander concerned.

With regard to the SA, the case was that at the beginning it was employed to go with the so-called frontier protective organization for the purpose of securing the borders, but that was stopped, as far as I recollect, after the Roehm Putsch on the 30th of June 1934. As of that date there was no official connection between the Wehrmacht and SA.

Q. Was there any difference of opinion in connection with the administration of the Army and these various other organizations that developed?

A. Yes, there was. Up to the year 1934 considerable differences of opinion with the SA. Since after 1934 the SA lost esteem to quite a considerable extent and receded into the background, these differences of opinion did not appear to the same extent as before. There were certain differences of opinion all of the time, but they might well have been different locally. It depended quite a lot on the personality of the leader concerned, just as much as it was the case with the SS, also with the General SS; and after the creation of troop units of the WaffenSS, it was naturally regarded with suspicion by parts of the Army and was not popular, and I know also that the Commander in Chief of the Army continuously objected to the creation of the SS units.

Q. Was the authority of the Army in any way affected by these organizations?

A. One could not say that very well, that the authority of the Army was affected. Himmler might well have endeavored to gain more influence for his own person, but the authority of the Army in itself remained officially sustained. I say "officially" because I do not know whether in an indirect manner there was not a certain struggle against the Wehrmacht, especially in order to weaken the authority of the Army in Hitler's esteem.

THE PRESIDENT: That is all. Are there any further questions?

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, only one question to this question which was just mentioned by Your Honor regarding the SS.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. Field Marshal, during the course of the war, as you know, SS divisions were formed, and you said that - if I understand you correctly they were subordinate with regard to tactical matters to the Army.

A. Yes.

Q. Please explain to the Tribunal what it means that they were tactically subordinate during combat.

A. The tactical subordination means that this SS unit has to account for its actions on the basis of such orders as were given to it by the military and in that case by the Army superiors.

Q. What actions do you mean?

A. Actions during combat, or in the actions preceding combat.

Q. Who punished a member of the SS if he committed a criminal action, a punishable action?

A. The punishment lay in the hands of the members of the SS, and if it became necessary to institute a court proceeding, that was done by special SS courts.

The SS member was not subordinate to the jurisdiction of the Army.

Q. Was it at all possible that a member of the SS was sentenced by a Wehrmacht court?

A. No.

Q. Who promoted an SS man during the period of his tactical subordination?

A. Himmler.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor please, I do not think there is any need of Dr. Laternser going further. It has not been show that the witness had any SS troops under him and it has not been show that he has been in the SS, and in response to some general questions by the Court Dr. Laternser now seems to be going pretty far afield. The witness's knowledge of these things, certainly with reference to the SS units, is questionable at best.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, I only wanted to make it quite clear to the Tribunal what relations there were between the Waffen-SS and Army officers in actual fact, and I ask to be allowed to put two or three more questions. I shall soon be finished.

THE PRESIDENT: Perhaps I started you off on something that is hard to get away from, but we will have to conclude at 12:15.

DR. LATERNSE: By that time I shall be finished, Your Honor.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. Let us assume a Spanish or Italian division, for instance, would be employed in the East. What would, in that case, have been the subordination? Let's make it clear to the Tribunal.

MR. DENNEY: I think we are going too far afield.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. Who gave decorations to an SS man during combat?

A. He received it from his SS superior.

Q. What was the only relation between Waffen-SS and the Wehrmacht

A. A tactical subordination, a tactical order.

Q. That means during combat?

A. Yes, during combat.

Q. Do you know that there were stronger subordinations than tactical subordinations from Waffen-SS units to the Wehrmacht?

A. I do not know of an example.

DR. LATERNSE: Thank you very much. I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal will recess until one-thirty this afternoon.

(A recess was taken until 1330 hours.)

AFTERNOON SESSION THE MARSHAL:

The Tribunal is again in session.

DR. FRITSCH, (for Rendulic): Your Honor, I would like to ask you that General Rendulic will be excused from the sitting tomorrow in order to prepare himself for his examination.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, we have no objection to that procedure. It has been followed in several cases that are presently pending, and in cases that have been concluded, if Your Honors see no objection to it.

THE PRESIDENT: The Tribunal has no objection, it being understood that it is without prejudice on the part of any party, the fact that he may be absent.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors may--

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, I think we ought to have a statement on the record from counsel for the defendant, Rendulic, to indicate that he heard, understood and agrees to what Your Honor has just stated.

DR. FRITSCH: I have accepted, and the Court agrees that Rendulic need not take part in the proceedings tomorrow.

THE PRESIDENT: And with your understanding that he will not note any exceptions or any prejudice by reason of his absence.

DR. FRITSCH: Yes, I have taken note of that.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: May I make one brief statement at this time to clarify the record of yesterday afternoon?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Your Honors, I said yesterday afternoon, that I offered as Prosecution's Exhibit 585, Document Number NOKW 1902, which was a report from Town Headquarters 1 to the commanding officer, Wehrmacht Area 553, dealing with the execution of the Battalion Commissar Mahala.

I then offered Prosecution's Exhibit 586, which was a report,--NOKW 843, which was a report from Secret Field Police Group 647 dated 25 August, 1942, and being an activity report for the month of August, 1942. That report dealt with the turning over to the SD of two Jews and commissars.

I then offered as Prosecution Exhibit 587 NOKW 848, but upon objection by Dr. Latenser that it was an identical document with either Exhibit 585 or Exhibit 586, I withdrew the offer at that time. We have now checked and find that the document which we offered and withdrew is not identical with either of the two proceeding documents, and we should now like to offer NOKW 843 as Prosecution's Exhibit 589.

THE PRESIDENT: Exhibit number?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Exhibit 589. I have copies for Your Honors, copies for defense counsel, and the original exhibit for the Secretary General.

Your Honors will note that this is an activity report for the month of July, 1942, relating to the execution of the Politruk Grand Commissar, being a report of the same secret field police group 647 that is involved in Prosecution's Exhibit 586, which concerned the month of August, 1942.

JUSTICE BURKE: Do you have an exhibit number for NOKW 1011?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I believe NOKW 1011 is Exhibit 587.

JUSTICE BURKE: Was that withdrawn yesterday?

MR. FENSTERMACHER: No, the document I am now referring to as 848 was offered yesterday as Exhibit 587 but was withdrawn, and then this morning NOKW 1011 was offered as Exhibit 587.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, may I have a look at the new document before it is submitted?

...Document handed to Dr. Laternser...

DR. LATERNSEER: I will object to the submission of this document because I have reason to assume that the names are the same, which have been given in this document, - that is the same names which have been mentioned in document 306.

If that proves to be the case this would be cumulative evidence, and therefore would be inadmissible.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: I can clarify that, Your Honor. In Exhibit No. 585 which is a report to the town headquarters, to the commanding officer of the rear area 553, it is stated that on the 5th of July, 1942, the Battalion Commissar Hahala was taken prisoner in Kerkeni and shot on the 10th of July 1942.

In Exhibit 386 there is a reference to two Jews and commissars being turned over to the SD, and 386 is a report to the Secret Police Group 647, an activity report for the month of August 1932. There are no names mentioned in that document, - exhibit 586.

In the document which we have just now offered, NOKW 848, as exhibit 589, we find that the same secret field police group 647 mentioned in Exhibit 586 is sending an activity report for the month of July, 1932. Exhibit 386 was a report of the secret field police group 637 for the month of August 1942.

In Exhibit 589 which we have just offered, two names are mentioned the name of The Politruk Kaliba, Joseph, as well as the name of the Battalion Commissar Hahala.

MR. FENSTERMACHER: The name Kaliba does not appear in either 585 or 586, though the name Mahala does, in fact, appear in Exhibit 585, which, however, is a report not from the Secret Field Police Group 47, involving Exhibit 589, but is rather a report from Towy Headquarters I, to the Commanding Officer of Army Area 553.

DR. LATERNSEER: I shall investigate this. It may be as the Prosecution has just suggested, but just at this moment I detect a translation mistake in the document which has just been submitted, No. 589. I ask that the translation of the first paragraph of this exhibit be investigated. "Im Auftrag" is being translated "by order".

MR. FENSTERMACHER: Would you pass the original exhibit to the Court Interpreters, please (to page)

COURT INTERPRETER: This sentence reads "Politruk, Kaliba, Joseph thirty-three years old, and the Battalion Commissar Mahala, Vassili, thirty-five years old were shot by order of the 1-c-b of the 42nd AK -Army Corps."

Were shot "by order".

DR. LATERNSEER: May I ask whether "Im Auftrag" and "Auf Befehl" are expressed in the same way in the English language?

COURT INTERPRETER: It all depends. In this context it can only be translated "by order."

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, to this point I ask that the Chief of the Translation Division submit a translation of this. For, if it says "by order", then the shooting has to be traced to the order; whereas, if it says "on behalf of", it is quite possible, of course, that it has reference to an edict of a court which was in existence and that this sentence was carried out on behalf of the I-c. The exact translation, therefore, allows such interpretation, whereas the translation just given does not give us this opportunity.

THE PRESIDENT: The Interpreters and Translators for this Tribunal will kindly transmit this request to their superior and report back to the Tribunal.

DR. LATERNSEER: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Dr. Laternseer, before you leave, may the record show that the Defendant List is excused at this time, subject to the conditions announced in the session this morning and the previous orders of the Court?

DR. LATERNSEER: Yes. On my behalf it is all right.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, the other matter I have just touched upon. Because of the possible identify of the documents I shall investigate and I shall then submit my objections to the Court.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. You may call your next witness.

DR. LATERNSEER: Your Honor, I call as the next witness the Oberregierungsrat, Dr. Gert Feine.

THE PRESIDENT: Will you kindly raise your right hand to be sworn. "I swear by God the Almighty and Omniscient that I will speak the pure truth and will withhold and add nothing." (Repeated by witness) (Witness Gert FEINE took the stand) DIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR.

LATERNSE:Q.- Please give us your full name.

A.- My name is Dr. Gert Feine.

Q.- Would you kindly spell this name?

A.- G-e-r-t F-e-i-n-e.

Q.- Dr. Feine, before you answer my question, would you kindly make a short pause, because the question will first have to be translated.

When were you born?

A.- On the 17th of June 1894.

Q.- What is your present profession?

A.- I'm Oberregierungsrat at the Senate in Bremen. Oberregierungsrat can be translated as Government Councillor.

Q.- Were you a member of the National Socialist Party?

A.- No, never.

Q.- What was your profession during the time before you became Government Councillor?

A.- I was in the German Diplomatic Service. I was first Secretary with the Legation in the Foreign Office in Berlin.

Q.- Were you, in 1941, Council with the Legation, at the German Legation in Belgrade?

A.- Yes.

Q.- How did it come about that you were still in Belgrade in 1941?

A.- In 1936 I had been transferred to Belgrade. When war threatened to break out in 1941; on the directives of the Foreign Office; the Minister and the staff of the Legation were called back to Germany. All Germans living in Yugoslavia were transported back to Germany as well. I received, however, a telegram from the Foreign Minister Ribbentrop personally, in which he ordered me to remain in Belgrade as charge d'affair.

Q.- When did the German troops march into Belgrade?

A.- On Sunday, the 6th of April 1941, the troops entered Belgrade; after the previous evening a group of six men had penetrated as far as the Legation.

Q.- And on that day you were in Belgrade?

A.- Yes.

Q.- Do you know the Defendant Field Marshal von Weichs?

A.- I do know him.

Q.- On what occasion did you make his acquaintance?

A.- I made his acquaintance during negotiations for the capitulation.

Q.- Which events led up to these negotiations?

A.- Soon after Belgrade had been occupied by the German troops, negotiators from Yugoslavia appeared, a colonel and he asked for the conditions under which a capitulation or an armistice could be concluded.

Q.- Well, what course did these negotiations with this officer take?

A.- First, Field Marshal von Weichs sent him back and demanded that a delegation be sent which was authorized to conclude an agreement.

Q.- What happened after that?

A.- Next a Yugoslavian Army General appeared. He had authority to negotiate but he had no authority to conclude a capitulation agreement. Field Marshal von Weichs did not accept him for that reason, but he stated that an authorized delegation was to appear which was empowered to conclude an agreement.

THE PRESIDENT: Did the witness mean von Weichs or List?

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q.- When do you mean of the defendants?

A.- Field Marshal von Weichs...

Q.- Now, how did the actual negotiations for the capitulation come about?

A.- On the next day a delegation appeared, led by the former Yugoslavian Foreign Minister Cincar Markovic; an Army General and a Colonel of the General Staff accompanied him.

Q.- Who else was present at these negotiations?

A.- Apart from Field Marshal von Weichs and his staff, a representative of the Hungarian Army and an Italian Military attache in Belgrade, and I as an observer on behalf of the Foreign Office were present. A conference took place in the building in which I was sejourning in Belgrade. That was the former Czechoslovakian Legation. The former German Legation had been destroyed.

Q.- Were the powers and authorities of the Yugoslavian' delegation investigated?

A.- Yes, that took quite some time.

Q.- What do you know about the investigation of these credentials?

A.- I can still remember the following: Cinzcar Markovic presented authority which had been issued by General Kalafatovic/..... Q.- Just a moment.

Could you kindly spell this name? Could you kindly spell both names?

A.- C-i-n-z-c-a-r M-a-r-k-o-v-i-c and the other name K-a-l-a-f-a-t-o-v-i-c. General Kalafatovic, at that time, derived his power from an authority which General Simovic had left behind after leaving Yugoslavia.

Q. Have I understood you correctly that the former Foreign Secretary Markovic had an authority from General Kalafatovic?

A. Yes.

Q. And on what was this power of attorney or authority based?

A. It as base on the authority which General Simovic had issued to General Kalafatovic b fore General Simovic left Yugoslavia.

C. Who was General Simovic?

A. General Simovic was Chief of the Yugoslavian Air Force and had led them again Prince Paul and the Government's Svedkovic, by which this Government had been eliminated. After its fall General Simovic took over the Government and he also stood over the Army.

O. General Simovic was, therefore, at that time, the leader of the Yugoslavian Government?

A. Yes, he was Chief in the Yugoslavian Government.

Q. Where was General Simovic?

A. At the moment when the capitulation conferences took place he must have been on his war from Yugoslavia to Egypt, if he hadn't already arrived in Egypt.

Q. Where was Simovic later on?

A. Later on he was in London.

Q. And what was he there?

A. He was leader of the Yugoslavian Government in Exile.

Q. And on whose side was this Government which was led by Simovic?

A. On the side of the Allies.

Q. Were the powers of credentials pronounced to be correct after they had been investigated?

A. Yes.

Q. In which way did the capitulation negotiations take place?

A. In a very dignified form. Everything was done in order to lighten the difficult task of the Yugoslav delegation which it had to fulfill for the sake of its fatherland.

Q. Do you know the contents of the Instrument of Capitulation?

A. Yes. I could not read the contents of his capitulation, but I was present when it was read aloud.

Q. What were the essentials of its contents?

A. One can summarize the contents in one sentence. The Yugoslavian Armed Forces ceased fighting, and laid down their arms unconditionally.

Q. And now, regarding the Yugoslavia Government. What were the stipulations in their case?

A. I don't quite understand your question.

Q. Now, I will arrive at this point by another question, "ho signed on the German side and who on the Yugoslavian side?

A. On the German side Field Marshal von Weichs signed, and for the Yugoslavian Government the three delegates signed. And when Markovic put the pen to paper to sign his name, he put the pen down again and lean back a moment, and he said, "Today, three weeks ago I signed a different treaty with Germany." He referred to the entry of Yugoslavia into the Tri-Partite Pact.

Q. In order to make it quite clear, from whom did Markovic derive his credentials?

A. It was Ciocar Markovic.

Q. Did. certain difficulties arise about certain points?

A. Yes. Mr. Ciocar Markovic protested especially against two points. After he had seen that a mitigation of the general conditions could not be achieved the first point was this: It had been provided that the Yugoslavian troops should altogether lay down their arms and should remain together and go into the captivity. For those soldiers who left their troop voluntarily they were to be punished by death. Mr. Markovic states that at this would result in the most impossible state of affairs. Many troop units were already in a state of dissolution, and the leadership no longer had any control over these troops.

Q. How was this objection on Markovic's part treated by von Weichs?

A. Field Marshal von Weichs admitted that this was a correct protest and ho agreed to cancel this provision and this provision had fully been cancelled.

Q. Did any difficulties arise regarding any other point?

A. Yes, Mr. Ciocar Markovic moved that the Yugoslavian officers should retain their swords in captivity, but this point was not accepted.

Q. What was the situation in which the Yugoslavian delegates found themselves?

A. The Yugoslavian delegates found itself in a very difficult position, and it was very hard for them.

Q. Did Field Marshal von Weichs show some understanding for this situation?

A. Yes.

Q. How was this expressed?

A. This was expressed in the way of welcome of the delegates and how he talked to them and how he conducted the negotiations. It was not allowed either that pictures of them were taken when they entered the room.

Q. After the war did you go to Yugoslavia again?

A. Yes, in June 1946, I was asked by the Yugoslavian Government to come to Belgrade and to give some information regarding my activities in connection with my work at the German Legation in Belgrade.

Q. Did the Yugoslavian Government reproach you with anything?

A. No, they treated me not only absolutely correctly but also in a very friendly manner. At the end of my interrogation I received a certificate that no reproaches were raised against me for my behavior during my activities with the German Legation.

Q.- I have no further questions to ask.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any cross-examination?

MR. DENNEY: May we have just a moment, Your Honor?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

CROSS-EXAMINATION BY FENSTERMACHER:

Q. Dr. Feine, you were in Belgrade on the 6th of April 1941?

A. Yes.

Q. What happened on that day?

A. On that day, at 7 o'clock, the German air bombardment started on that town.

Q. Do you know whether there was a declaration of war before that bombing began?

A. Yes, I heard that on the wireless --

DR. LATE NSER: I object. I have consciously restricted myself during my examination, to the negotiations for the capitulation, and I, therefore, ask that the Prosecution be advised that it can only examine regarding these points.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY MR. FENSTERMANCER

Q. Dr. Feine, did you know where King Peter was at the time the capitulation was signed?

A. As far as I know, he was out of the country.

Q. Was King Peter the head of the Yugoslavian government at that time? Do you know?

A. He was the monarch of Yugoslavia. He was not the chief of the Yugoslav government.

Q. Was Simovic the prime minister of the Yugoslavian government under King Peter's regime?

A. Yes, he was chief of the government and among other offices he occupied the office of prime minister.

Q. Simovic was not present at the capitulation, was he?

A. He was not present.

Q. Do you know when he fled the country?

A. He must have fled shortly before the capitulation negotiations started. I cannot tell you the date.

Q. Do you happen to know why he fled?

A. Because of the general collapse.

C. You said that the Yugoslavian delegation at the capitulation seemed to be in difficulties, that they had rather a tough time. Did you mean that they seemed to be under duress to sign the capitulation?

A. One saw that obviously, especially as regards Cinczar-Markovic, he was under great mental stress. I happened to know Cinczar-Markovic from former times.

Q. You said that Markovic three weeks earlier signed a different agreement. Was that the Tri-Partite Pact by which Yugoslavia joined the Axis?

A. Yes, that was that contract. It was signed in Vienna.

Q. Did Simovic, the prime minister at the time the capitulation was signed, ever return to Germany? I beg your pardon to Yugoslavia during the German occupation of that country?

A. No, not to my knowledge, he did not.

Q. Did you see the paper which supposedly gave power from Simovic to Markovic to sign the capitulation with Germany.

A. No, I did not see that myself.

Q. I have not further questions, your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there anything further desired with this witness by Dr. Laternser or any counsel for any of the other defendants?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR. SAUTER:

Q. Dr. Sauter for the defendant Geitner. I only have two short questions. Dr. Feine, I am interested in this point. The capitulation which was agreed upon at that time in your presence---was this capitulation carried out? In other words, were all weapons taken from the Yugoslavian army at that time?

A. Yes. The capitulation was carried out in the way it had been agreed upon.

Q. And my second question. During the next months after the instrument of capitulation had been concluded, was there quiet and peace in the country? And when, according to your observations, did the bandit wars start?

A. After the conclusion of the capitulation, there was complete peace in the country. It only became restless during the course of the summer.

Q. Well, how many months?

A. I should say in about June.

Q. When was the conclusion of the armistice?

A. In April.

Q. Two to three months after the armistice, if I have understood you correctly, the bandit was started according to your observation?

A. At least, to a greater extent.

Q. I have no further questions. Thank you.

THE PRESIDENT: There being no other questions desired apparently from other counsel, the witness will be excused. Pardon me, is there any question on behalf of the Tribunal?

JUDGE BURKE: Not any.

THE PRESIDENT: The witness may be excused.

DR. LATERNSEER: With the agreement of the Court, I call the witness Dietloff von Winning.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well.

DIETLOFF VOH MINING, a witness, took the stand and testified as follows:

BY THE PRESIDENT:

Q. The witness will kindly raise his right hand, please. I swear by God, the Almighty and Omniscient, that I will speak the pure truth, and will withhold and add nothing.

(The witness repeated the oath.)

Very well, you may be seated.

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. Please give your full name.

A. Dietloff von Winning.

Q. Will you kindly spell it?

A. D-i-e-t-l-o-f-f- v-o-n- W-i-n-n-i-n-g

Q. Before you answer my question, would you kindly insert a small pause so that the question can first be translated. Where were you born and when?

A. On the 8th of March, 1909, in Strassbourg.

Q. What is your profession?

A. I was an active officer.

Q. What was your last service rank?

A. Lieutenant colonel.

Q. Where were you mainly during your service in the war?

A. I was first Ib of a division in the Polish campaign. Then Ib of a division in the French campaign.

For a short time, I was Q-2 at the army high command 12, then Q-1 - with the same army high command. Later Q-1 with Army Group E and F. Finally I was chief of a corps in Bavaria and the Tyrol.

Q. You said that you had been Q-1 with ACK-12 and later on were with Army Group E and F. What were the respective dates which you spent with the offices you have just mentioned?

A. From March, 1941 to June 1944.

Q. What were your tasks as Q-I?

A. As 7-1, I had the task to see to the supplying of the fighting troops with all the material necessary for warfare.

Do you know Field Marshal List personally?

A. Yes.

7. Where was the AOK-12 stationed in August, 1940?

A. In August, 1940, AOK-12 was stationed in Besancon and in a spa near Besancon.

Q. Where were you transferred later on?

A. In August we were transferred to Zakopane near Cracow.

Q. And then?

A. On Christmas Eve, 1940, we were surprisingly transferred to Vienna and on Jew Year's Eve we were transferred to Bukarest or Kronstadt.

Q. What campaign was being envisaged at that time?

A. After the transfer to Rumania, we were counting on a campaign against Greece.

Q. And against Yugoslavia?

A. No campaign against Yugoslavia was mentioned at that time.

Q. Why not?

A. Yugoslavia....

MR DEHNEY: Your honor, that hasn't been mentioned. I submit that that is too speculative.

THE PRESIDENT: What is your objection again?

MR. DENNEY. He is asking him why the campaign against Yugoslavia hasn't been mentioned. He just said none was ever mentioned. He said why not? The question is in improper form and the witness is incompetent to testify to it.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. Did you see any signs pointing to the fact that the campaign was only intended against Greece?

A. Apart from the fact that all conferences and all planning was merely concerned with Greece, after we had marched into Bulgaria, all measures were taken which prevented any violation of the neutrality of Yugoslavia. I remember, for instance, that a special zone was fixed on the Yugoslav-Bulgarian frontier, the width of this zone may have been about ten kilometers which was out of bounds to every German soldier. We also tried to include in our claiming that a break--through the Rupel pass in southern Bulgaria would be prevented by circumventing the Rodope mountains in the Southwest. It would have been necessary for this purpose to enter a tiny part of Yugoslavia. That would have saved quite a lot of blood on both sides because then there would have been no necessity to break through the so-called Metaxas line.

At that time, the 12th Army requested that the Yugoslav government was to be approached for its agreement which would have enabled us to circumvent, to carry out this by-pass. This request was rejected and we were told that the absolute neutrality of Yugoslavia would have to be guaranteed by every means.

The ideas which prompted us in making provisions for the supply of the army, show that a supply of the troops after, for instance, Salonika had been taken, would have become practically impossible. There was no railway line at our disposal to Salonika, and only one road passing through the Rupel pass. We would have to expect that this road would already have been destroyed and apart from that would have been heavily guarded by troops.

For that reason, we tried to get the agreement of the Yugoslav government to be allowed at least to transport medical supplies, supplies, etc. to transport these materials on the railway line Belgrade-Salonika or at least to be allowed to transport our wounded men from Salonika on this railway, since no other supply for the wounded men seemed to be at our disposal. This request too was rejected quite firmly and we were informed that Yugoslavia would have to be kept quite strictly apart from all actual warfare.

Q What time were you talking about just now?

A All this took place in the period during which AOK-12 was in Bulgaria. That is, immediately before the Greek campaign.

Q Did later on appear any change in policy against Yugoslavia?

A The situation was changed by a coup d'etat in Belgrade. We were told on very short notice that we had to round off troops in the direction of Yugoslavia in order to collaborate with other forces which were to come from Austria to smash the rebellion in Yugoslavia.

Q What were the preparations of the campaign against Yugoslavia?

A We cannot really talk of the preparation in a military sense, since as I have already mentioned we could not enter the frontier zone previously. Therefore, at the starting point, so to speak, there were no troops at all, especially no stocks had been piled up of munition, fuel, etc.

All this had to be done in a couple of days and that was very difficult because of the very bad transportation conditions in Bulgaria.

Q Mr. von Winning, in what capacity did you come to all these conclusions?

A In my capacity as Q-I. I was responsible that the troops which were to be used were supplied with the necessary war materials.

Q Where were you Q-I? Which office were you attached to?

A With the army high command 12.

Q Now we turn to Greece. The cause of the campaign is known. What do you know about the capitulation of the Greek Army?

AAfter Salonika had been conquered, the Greek Army capitulated, which had occupied the Metaxas line. Later on, when the German advance against Athens had made greater progress and the German armed forces were in the rear of the Epirus Army, the Epirus Army capitulated. I remember that for these capitulation negotiations Field Marshal List and some officers of his revenue flew, I believe, to Larissa and there received the capitulation of the Greek Epirus'Army.

The Italians, who had not found themselves bound by these capitulation conferences, therefore did not adhere to this capitulation. I know that Colonel General Jodl who at that time came to Greece in order to conduct renewed capitulation negotiations with the Greeks, was then in agreement with the Italians.

Q After the capitulation was concluded, did the organized resistance of the Greeks then stop?

A Yes. In southern Greece where there were still fights going on with the British and to what extent Greek troops took part in these fights I cannot remember.

Q After the capitulation had been concluded, was everything quiet in Greece?

A It was quiet in Greece after the capitulation had been concluded.

Q Now what about the destructions in Greece during the campaign?

A In Salonika, I only saw that the harbor was destroyed to some degree and the oil installations in the harbor.

Q And the railway lines?

A The most essential destructions in Greece, those who had the most weighty results, had been carried out on the main line SalonikaAthens by allied troops.

Q Who had carried out these destructions?

A It was either the British or the Greeks. At any rate, our opponents of that time.

Q Were bridges also destroyed?

A Several bridges had been destroyed, especially on this railway line and particularly the so-called Asopos and Bralo bridges.

Q Would you kindly spell these names?

A I spell Asopos Bridge-- A-s-o-p-o-s and Bralo, B-r-a-l-o.

Q On which line were these bridges?

A The Northern third of the line Salonika-Athens.

Q And who destroyed these bridges?

A These bridges had been destroyed by our opponents at that time.

Q Not by the Germans?

A Under no circumstances by the Germans. We found the bridges already destroyed.

Q How were the Greek prisoners of war treated?

A The Greek prisoners of war were released after the capitulation without exception.

Q On whose order did that take place?

A The order had been issued by Field Marshal von List, I assume on the strength of superior orders, or at least in agreement with his superior officers.

Q What could the prisoners retain after the cessation of hostilities?

A The Greek prisoners of war could retain their whole organization.

Q What do you mean by organization?

A I mean that the Greek units were demobilized by their own officers. Further, everything was left to them which was necessary for their supply; on principle, every supply installation, food, and medical facilities. They were also allowed to retain that bulk of their motor transport which was necessary to disperse the Greeks as quickly as possible to their homes.

Q. How was the German Army at that time supplied with transport supplies, etc.?

A. At that time already the German Army lacked very considerably in all these things.

Q. At the conclusion of this campaign, was the country of Greece occupied?

A. After the conclusion of the campaign, Greece was occupied.

Q. Just an intermediate question. Who had occupied Athens?

A. Athens had been occupied by the Germans, but the occupation was carried out very soon after by Italian troops.

Q. And were German troop units in Athens as well, ---- I mean units?

A. In Athens we only retained offices. There were no actual troop units?

Q. What was the relationship of the German Armed Forces to the Greek population?

A. The relationship of the German Armed Forces to the Greek population can only be termed as a very good one, I might say it was of a very friendly nature.

Q. What was the food situation of the Greek population when the entry of the troops took place?

A. The food situation of the Greek population was definitely bad.

Q. Were there any stocks of food?

A. I know that before the start of the campaign considerably restrictions in the supply of food to the population had been ordered by the Greek government. There were no stock piles, at least no stocks of any importance. Immediately after the occupation of Greece was carried out, official personages of the then Greek Government approached the Army and they explained to us that the Greek people, because of the lack of stocks, had to rely on transports.

Q. You yourself took part in these conferences with the Greek officials?

A. I did not myself take part. The Chief Quartermaster, however, immediately subsequent to these negotiations, which he conducted, informed me about the things.

Q. What measures were taken by the military agencies in order to forestall any further shortages of food?

A. First of all we saw to it that the German troops did not live on the land, that they did not use up any food, and that food which was still there was saved for the population. Secondly, the official channels of the Army were used in order to point out to the highest authorities in Germany that an importation of food stuffs would very soon become a definite necessity.

Q. Was food imported later on?

A. Food was currently imported. This was actually a matter for the civilian German offices in Athens, but the measures were supported by us. We supported them especially by trying to bridge any difficulties which might appear by coding food from the Army stocks.

Q. What was the part played by the food supply to the Greek population in regard to the distribution of transport?

A. The greatest obstacle in supplying the Greek population with food were the difficult transport situation. From time to time there were conferences during which the available transport was distributed to those most in need of them.

Q. Of what means of transport are you talking now, are you talking of the Army transport or of which transports?

A. As far as we are concerned with motor transport, I am talking of vehicles belonging to the armed forces. As far as railroad stocks, etc, are concerned I am talking of the trains which were at all in existence, because you could not separate them. In the distribution of the means of transportation the so-called civilian sector, which means the supply of the Greek population, was looked upon equally as all the other sectors which needing transportation.

Q. Were there also cases where transports for the purposes of the armed forces were delayed in order to carry out transports for the Greek population more quickly?

A. This has actually happened all the time, because the needs of the armed forces exceeded the transportation means available. I here recall a particular case in which through the Minister Neubacher, who at times was responsible for the supply of the Greek population, demanded that three trains were eventually to be sent to Athens, although the distribution of the means of transportation had already been agreed upon for the period in question, and the civilian sector had already been taken care of to a considerable extent. In spite of that, three ammunition trains were cancelled from the military program in order to make way for the three civilian olive oil trains.

Q. In what way were the civilian population helped further in order to raise the level of the food situation?

A. An essential factor in the low food situation was played by the fishery.

C. What was done for the fishery?

A. First of all all the boats which could be used for fishery purposes were left to the civilian agencies. The Wehrmacht help to put these boats into working order by supplying material and often the Wehrmacht supplied the necessary fuel from its own stocks. In harvesting, the Wehrmacht often supplies personnel, horses and trucks, without the Wehrmacht claiming part of the harvest for their services.

DR. LATERNSE: Your Honor, won't this be a good moment to take a recess, because I want to turn to another point?

THE PRESIDENT: Very well, we will take our afternoon recess at this time.

(Thereupon a recess was taken.)

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed, doctor.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. Mr. Von Wenning, shortly before the recess we discussed measures intended to prevent a shortage of food in Greece. What restrictions were imposed on the German soldiers themselves.

A. There were a number of regulations which were to prevent that Greece would, so to speak, be bought out. There was, for instance, a strict limitation imposed concerning the sending of packages. It was forbidden for the German soldiers to bring any means of currency into Greece and so the German soldiers only had their military pay which was paid to them.

Q. How was the military pay paid to them?

A. The military pay was paid to them in the full amount. However, at a very disadvantageous rate of exchange so that one could only buy very little in the country for what one got. As the inflation progressed the rate of exchange was maintained so that eventually in practice one couldn't really buy anything at all for the military pay.

Q. Did the Army cede to the population food stuffs out of their own stocks?

A. That happened repeatedly, partly in the form of charity feedings. I remember for instance in the severe winter of 1941-42, 30,000 inhabitants of Athens were provided with one meal out of the Wehrmacht stocks; partly food was distributed to large parts of the Greek population.

Q. What was the main reason for that shortage of food?

A. The most important factor for the shortage of food in Greece was the transport difficult. Even when enough food was ready for import it was in most cases impossible to bring that into the country. The reason for that was the the communication and roads in spite of maintenance by German military railway emergency troops was constantly destroyed again and again by Partisans and a further reason was that the Sea route was destroyed by allied submarine activity and air attacks and that could hardly be disposed with.

Q. We now come to the conditions in Athens and I would like to put a few questions. We have already heard a Greek witness concerning this matter who made certain statements. To what extent were the hospitals in Athens requisitions?

A. Only very few hospitals were requisitioned and only inasmuch as it was necessary to accomodate wounded in hospitals; that is, there was no other means of accomodation and where any other accomodation would not have been guaranteed any medical care. This operation on principle was carried out with the consent of the Greek authorities concerned and the period of time which was given for the evacuation for such hospitals was always sufficient so that the Greek hospital inmates could be accomodated elsewhere.

Q. What measures were taken in the sphere of hygiene?

A. The most important one was that in Greece, as far as I am informed, for the first time there was an extensive combat of the illness of malaria on the part of the Germans. For this purpose the population was enlightened on measures they had to take and the German atabrine, a remedy was given to the population from Wehrmacht stocks and the herds of malaria mosquitos were fought by German Hygienic measures.

Q. Were swamps dried out for this purpose?

A. Yes swamps were dried out for this purpose in order to fight the malaria mosquito.

Q. Who was responsible for measures on the cultural sphere?

A. Generally the German civil authorities were responsible but beyond that the Army had a so-called cultural protector; that, was, Dr. von Schoenebeck.

Q. And what did he order?

A. Dr. von Schoenebeck ordered that destructions which had occurred on Greek works of art would be repaired and he further ordered that such works of art which were not properly protected by the population, for instance when they had been brought into damp caves, that such works of art would be re-instated in their old place.

Works of art which were located in places threatened by air attacks would be brought to protected places in Greece and finally his opinion was asked for in matters concerning military constructions. By this it was to avoided that that the troop without knowledge would damage works of art. Schoenebeck on principle ordered these measures with the consent and agreement of the responsible Greek experts. Mostly he made these experts themselves carry out these measures.

Q. Were the soldiers enlightened on this subject?

A. Here too Schoenebeck played a large part. He was asked to hold lectures and issue pamphlets in order to enlighten the soldiers about cultural works and works of art in Greece and on this occasion too instruct them to take care of these things and to try and preserve them.

Q. Were there similar measures carried out?

A. Similar measures were also carried out in the Yugoslav area. Although here there was not such an extensive cause for such measures.

Q. Can you give an example?

A. I recall that one of the objects which contained most works of art in Yugoslavia is the White Castle in Belgrade.

Q. And what was ordered there?

A. A special German officer with a guard was put in this castle and it was his task to make sure that nothing of the works of art contained there would be taken away and that the whole White Castle with all its contents was preserved exactly in the same manner as we had found it.

Q. It is being asserted now that these countries, Greece, Jugoslavia, were plundered and looted.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honor pleases I don't think Dr, Laternser should say what is being assorted but should ask questions and let them be answered.

THE PRESIDENT: I think the counsel could couch his questions perhaps a little more aptly.

BY DR. LATERNSE:

Q. What was done against looting if and when it took place in Greece?

A. Against looting of each and every kind there was sharp intervention on the basis of military law.

Q. Did it make any difference who was being looted?

A. No, the actual act of looting was prosecuted, that is violation of other people's property. When a punishment was fixed it was not taken into consideration whether the parts of the population looted were friendly or unfriendly or whether it was the property of Jews or somebody else's.

Q. What part did the Jewish problem play in the occupation of Greece?

A. I cannot remember that there was ever any discussion about the Jewish problem in Wehrmacht circles. I do not believe that for instance a mere occasion of purchases made any difference as to whether the merchant was a Jew or not and I cannot remember a single case where it had been investigated, whether the owner of any quarters where we were billeted happened to be a Jew or anything like that,

Q. What did you have to do with camps?

A. Prisoner of war camps in-----?

Q. Now again what did you yourself have to do with camps, in your capacity as Q-I.

A. I had to look after the supplies of camps, mainly food supplies.

Q. What camps existed in Greece?

A. I cannot remember the localities in detail. There were altogether only so-called Dulags.

Q. What is Dulags?

A. Dulags is the abbreviation for Durchgangslager (Transient Camp). Those are camps where the prisoners for a short period are collected in order to be transferred later to the prisoner of war camps in the homeland.

Q. Did concentration camps exist in Greece?

A. I have never heard that expression there and I think it is out of the question that such camps existed there, and they were certainly not under the authority of the Wehrmacht.

Q. Let us assume that they had existed and let us assume that they were under authority of the Wehrmacht. Who in that case would have been in charge of the food supplies for such a concentration camp?

A. Such camps would have been reported in the reports of any subordinate unit which were the basis for the food supply estimates.

Q. Mr. von Wenning, the last question which I had put before the microphone went off, as far as I remember was as follows: Let us assume that a concentration camp did exist and let us assume it was under the authority of the Wehrmacht who in that case would have been in charge of the supply of that camp regarding food.

A. These camps would have been found in the reports pertaining to food supply which I had to work on since I was responsible for the total food supply of the troops in the Balkans.

Q. How about Serbia in this respect?

A. The whole Serbian area at that time was a little out of our sight so to speak. The Commander of Serbia was to a large extent independent and the whole Serbian area was not in our immediate sphere. In spite of this I believe that concentration camps in Serbia, if they had been under the authority of the Wehrmacht would have appeared in these reports concerning food supplies and food stocks, and I am sure I would remember that. However, I cannot recall the expression Concentration camps, not for the Serbian area either.

Q. What do you know about the deportation of Greek workers to Germany?

A. Greek labor was being recruited for Germany. I believe that the word deportation should not be used here because they volunteered to come to Germany as workers and there were far more volunteers than could be accepted as Greek workers. That can be clearly seen by a small example which I remember. In our mess a woman happened to work whose son, his name was Konstantin Gafilli, Q. Please spell the name.

A. (con't). G-a-f-i-l-l-i -----repeatedly tried to get to Germany as a worker and after he did not succeed his mother asked me to try and do something about it and it took several telephone calls on my part to the responsible German administrative office which told me that they had too many of such demands and it took several calls on my part until he was finally accepted.

Q. What did the mother of this Greek worker tell you?

A. The mother was very grateful to me that she finally succeeded in getting her son to Germany.

MR. DENNEY: I think this is going a little far. We are not concerned with what the mother of the man told him. I object to the question.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. Did you later on hear anything from this Greek worker?

A. I have heard that he was very happy in Germany and that he would have liked it best never to return at all to Greece.

MR. DENNEY: If Your Honors please, I object to the last question and ask that the answer be stricken.

THE PRESIDENT: Sustained.

BY DR LATERNER:

Q. Now a few questions with regard to Serbia. Did you have an inside into the conditions in Serbia?

A. After Serbia was under the authority of the Wehrmacht Commander Southeast I did also gain a certain inside into conditions in Serbia.

Q. As of what date was that approximately?

A. That was in the summer of the year 1941.

Q. Who up to that time was the military commander Serbia subordinate to?

A. The Military Commander Serbia was subordinate to the OKH.

Q. And who was he subordinate to after that, as of the middle of the year 1941?

A. On paper he was subordinate to the Military Commander Southeast.

DR. LATERNER:

Q. What effect did the subordination have,--that is the subordination under the Military Commander Southeast?

A. The immediate subordination of the Commander Serbia under the OKH was maintained to a large extent, -- that had a variety of reasons. First of all, the Military Commander Serbia did not want to give up his independence, completely and then the Armed Forces Commander Southeast glanced toward the south rather than towards the north, and finally, for technical reasons of communication, etc. it happened that all orders by the Commander-in-Chief of the Army came to us via Belgrade, so that an order, if it had reached us first, and then went to Belgrade; might possibly have been delayed for several weeks.

All of these problems made it advisable that as much as possible could be agreed upon directly between the Military Commander Serbia, and the OKH.

Q. Now how about the administrative staff of the Military Commander Serbia?

A. The Administrative staff of the Military Commander Serbia received its orders immediately from the OKH, and beyond that from the other highest Reich authorities. So far as I know, they were issued mainly from the Reichsfuehrer-SS and I believe also, from the Reich foreign office.

Q. Who was in charge of this administrative staff?

A. The then State Counsellor, Dr. Turner, Liar Administrative Chief, was in charge of this administrative staff.

Q. And what kind of a person was he?

A. Dr. Turner was certainly an efficient person. In my opinion he was largely dominated by some personal vanity, and from an urge for self assertion.

MR. DENNEY: I suggest the statement about "Dr. Turner being dominated" by somebody be stricken from the record.

DR. LATERNER: The prosecution witnesses have quite frequently rendered such opinions, Your Honor.

THE PRESIDENT: The objection will be overruled.

BY DR. LATERNER:

Q. You had completely answered the question had you Mr. Wenning?

A. No, I wanted to add that Dr. Turner because of his personality, as well as on the basis of several utterances which I heard him make, was doubtlessly not inclined to be subordinate, for instance, to a military authority like the Military Commander Serbia. It was not necessary for him to do this, by any means, because he was a very esteemed person in the party and in his "SS" circles, and therefore he would always find cover from those people.

Q. Mr. Henning, we will only talk very shortly about bands, because we have heard so much about that already. I want to ask you merely whether you have had any experiences, or have made any experiences, in what manner the insurgents behaved against their own population.

A. I know that insurgents, especially in the Serbian-Croatian area, in the districts which they occupied, forced the population mostly by coercive measures to do what they wanted them to do. It happened frequently that mayors, or other officials were murdered, and it was frequently difficult to find anybody to take charge of a community, because those people were afraid that they would be murdered by the partisans.

Q. Mr. Wenning, can you briefly give us a few examples -- I do not know whether you are in a position to do that, -- but can you give us a few examples about special atrocities committed by the partisans?

A. Individual examples it is not possible for me to give from memory now; because I am a member of the Signal Corps I remember that the regimental commander of the Army Signal Regiment told me on one occasion that some 20-odd members of his regiment were ambushed and were found mutilated, but I do not know where that had taken place, and I do not know exactly when it had taken place.

Q. Mr. Wenning you said that you were Q 1 in this staff of AOK 12. Of what orders of the AOK 12 had you gained knowledge generally speaking?

A. In my capacity as Q 1, I gained knowledge of all orders which were issued by the AOK 12, and which were of fundamental importance.

Q. How about the Commissar order? Did you gain knowledge of this order? That is Exhibit 13 Your Honor, one-four.

A. For the first time I heard about the Commissar order in the summer of 1933 when I was in a P.W. Camp.

Q. Was it valid for the southeast?

A. It never reached my knowledge in the Southeast, and I am convinced that it was never disseminated there. It could not have been valid because there was no cause for that.

Q. What official connection did you have with Field Marshal List?

A. I occasionally appeared at Field Marshal List's office in order to report, verbally if I had something to report or when he wanted to know something special out of my sphere of work, or when I deputized for the absent Quartermaster General.

Q. In what way did this verbal report take place?

A. The report was made in this way. To begin with, I reported to the Chief of Staff about what I intended to report, and then I would report to the Field Marshal, and then I would receive his instructions, and finally I would inform the Chief of the General Staff of the result of my report.

Q. What intention on the part of Field Marshal List could you ascertain on the occasion of such verbal reports of yours?

A. It was obvious on the occasion of such verbal reports that Field Marshal List wanted to see something done which would help to establish a situation of confidence between us and the occupied population.

This included that we looked after the food supplies for the population; it further included that everything was done in order to protect the Greeks and the other occupied population from all hardships of war which were not actually necessary, and that trade and communications, as far as possible, were developed and maintained.

Q. What picture did you gain of Field Marshal List during your activity which you have described, - just briefly?

A. Field Marshal List's personality to me, as a member of the Staff of the Command of the 12th Army, as well as for the subordinate troops, is characterized by an extraordinary confidence which he inspired in everybody who ever had any dealings with him. This confidence was based on the realization that this man was a personality who --had a great sense of responsibility for all the tasks assigned to him.

MR. DENNEY: The testimony is not coming through.

THE PRESIDENT: We will not leave our seats. We'll take a brief recess. You will be at ease but do not leave the Courtroom until we can check up on this little business.

Apparently it is going to take longer than we anticipated. The Tribunal will be in recess for a few moments.

THE MARSHAL: Persons in the Courtroom will please find their seats.

The Tribunal is again in session.

THE PRESIDENT: You may proceed.

BY DR. LATERNSEER:

Q. Mr. von Wenning, I had asked you what kind of a picture you had gained of the personality of Field Marshal List. And now I ask you to answer this question briefly.

A. I have already mentioned that the characteristic of Field Marshal List's personality was that from the very first moment one had full confidence in him, and this first impression was never disappointed later. The confidence which he radiated was based on the fact that he was a fair person, a man who carried his tasks with a very high sense of responsibility. He was a man who made quick and clear-cut decisions, but he never made decisions which he had not carefully deliberated before-hand. In principle, he always listened to all representations and reports, and beyond that everybody knew that he was kind hearted and was concerned with everybody. And it was well known that his attitude was a kindly one and a humane one, especially toward any population of occupied territory. It is characteristic that we members of the staff often said, "The Field Marshal is like a father to the Greeks."

Q Was anybody in the staff of a different opinion about Field Marshal List?

A I have never heard of anything like that and I do not believe that there was anybody who had a different opinion.

Q Thank you very much. I have no further questions.

THE PRESIDENT: Is there any further examination on behalf of counsel?

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY DR. MENZEL:

Q Menzel for the defendant General Kuntze. May I put a few questions to this witness, please?

Witness, did you recollect anything about unrest in Northern Greece in September and October 1941?

A I know at that time sabotage acts were carried out, also in Northern Greece and that there were unrests in Northern Greece which as far as I recollect were mainly caused by the occupation carried out by the Italians and the Bulgarians.

Q All right, do you happen to remember the name of a certain band? That is, I mean the Negrita band?

A No, I don't remember that any more.

Q Before, you have talked about recruiting of labor among the Greeks for the Reich. Can you remember by any chance when this recruiting started?

A No, I can't remember the date. I can only say that it must have been in 1941.

Q Do you mean that it had been already started in 1941?

A Yes, I believe there was a possibility in 1941 that Greeks could report for work in Germany, but I cannot remember the exact date.

Q Do you remember anything about the transportation of captured partisans from Serbia about March, 1942, and later? That is, importation of these people to Norway?

A No. Anything of that specific nature I do not remember.

Q You don't remember?

A No I only remember that captured partisans were transported to the homeland from transient camps.

Q And do you know whether such transports were caused by an order of Himmler or by an order of the Quartermaster General?

A I only know of orders by the Quartermaster General. I have never seen any order of Himmler.

Q You have said before that the word concentration camp has never been known to you in connection with this area. I have a few additional question there. Did you ever hear anything of Jewish concentration camps in the Balkans?

A No.

Q One more question? Can you tell us what sphere and responsibility was that of the higher SS and Police Leader in Serbia?

A The higher SS and Police Leader in Serbia was not subordinate to the Wehrmacht, with one exception, but police forces under his command, when it was necessary in military operations against the partisans, were subordinated to the Military authorities for the length of the combat action. Apart from that, he had independent police authority similar to the authority of the police in Germany. That is to say, under the Minister of the Interior.

Q There was no right to give directives on the part of the Highest Wehrmacht leadership with regard to these SS and Police Leaders?

A No.

Q Now one last question. Do you know from your time that you spent in the Balkans the defendant General Kuntze?

A Yes, I do know General Kuntze from that time.

Q What kind of a person was General Kuntze? What kind of a person, as a man and as a military leader?

A General Kuntze was known as a soldier who was very strict with his subordinates. This strictness, however, was never considered a disadvantage because everybody knew that he was absolutely fair.

General Kuntze was an extremely keen worker and frequently concerned himself with details of the various departments and spheres. He would never suffer any excesses on the part of his subordinates and I remember one case which might well be typical. The leader of a column on the occasion of a transport took along Greek goods and he asked for money for this. When this case came to a military court, and it was clearly established that the leader of the column did not use the money for himself he was in spite of this fact severely punished by order of General Kuntze, not because he helped the Greeks but because he asked for money for this help.

Q This leader of the column was a German officer?

A Yes, he was a German reserve officer.

Q Thank you. That is all I wanted to ask.

BY DR. RAUSCHENBACH:

Q Dr. Rauschenbach for the defendant Foertsch.

Witness, when did you make the acquaintance of General Foertsch?

A I made his acquaintance for the first time in the autumn of 1938 when I was transferred to the War Academy as a student and General Foertsch was in charge of instruction there.

Q And on what occasion did you meet him again in the Southeast?

A General Foertsch was shortly before the beginning of the Greek campaign appointed liaison officer from the OKH to the 12th Army and later he became chief of the General Staff of that army. Since I was a member of the same staff, I met him again at that time. When General Fortsch became chief of staff of Army Group E, I became Q-I in this army group and the same procedure was repeated with Army Group F when it was created in Belgrade in 1943.

Q What official contacts did you have in your capacity as Q-I with the chief of staff?

A I had to report on repeated occasions to the chief of staff concerning this sphere of my work and besides I participated in all large discussions which were held by the chief of staff, especially the weekly so-called chief discussions.

Q And what impression did you gain of the personality of General Foertsch?

A General Foertsch was a man, a characteristic of whom it is that his general education--that is his knowledge of spheres which apparently had no connection at all with military matters was far beyond the average of a normal person and certainly far beyond the average of a normal soldier. He always endeavored to establish his own measures in such a way and also to educate his subordinates in such a way that all measures were not considered merely from a military point of view but that they learned to judge everything from a political or technical or cultural or historical point of view, whichever case might apply.

Besides, he was a person who had great understanding for everything concerning his subordinates. On the occasion of reports, he always listened to all representations and objections.

Q Witness, did you have occasion to gain knowledge of General Foertsch's attitude toward National Socialism?

THE PRESIDENT: Pardon me, please. May I inquire as to whether or not you will be able to conclude your examination shortly?

DR. RAUSCHENBACH: Your Honor, I have to take at least ten minutes to 15 minutes. May I can continue tomorrow in the morning session.

THE PRESIDENT: Very well. We will adjourn at this time until nine-thirty tomorrow morning.

(The Tribunal adjourned until 24 September 1947 at 0930 hours.)
